Denver has SIX THOUSAND Negroes, and among them are some of the most prominent people of our race. Three trips to that beautiful city has given us a very fine impression of our people. Dr. Ford, of the Baptist Church; Dr. Dyett, of the Quinn Chapel African Methodist Church, and Dr. Williams, of our Church, together with representatives of the Young People's Alliance and the Young People's Societies desire to have a great mass meeting on Convention Sunday afternoon that our people may hear a great number of prominent men and women than those who will appear on the regular program. This meeting is to be a great "short stop" meeting of five-minute addresses. Rev. M. W. Dogan, Ph. D., President of Wiley University, Marshall, Texas, will preside. Speeches will be made by Dr. R. E. Jones, Editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate; Dr. B. F. Woolfolk, of Holly Springs, Miss.; Dr. N. H. Williams, of Mississippi, and others.

We are not able to give at this time the full program as our list of delegates sure to go has not been completed. It is to be a great meeting and we should look forward to it with a great deal of anticipation of profit and genuine uplift.

Delegates and Their Stay in Colorado

By Secretary Penn.

Our delegates and visitors will have all the time they want for side trips and stop overs in Colorado. Tickets are on sale for leaving from June 29 to July 3 inclusive. The final limit on the return trip is August the 8th, which limit may be had by depositing 50 cents with the joint agent at Denver.

That there may be no misunderstanding in this, we call attention to the following information which has been issued by the Southeastern Passenger Association:

DATES OF SALE.

Tickets will be sold June 29 to July 3, inclusive, and should be so regulated as to require presentation at Mississippi river gateways not earlier than June 30 nor later than July 4, 1905.

LIMITS.

Tickets to be limited to continuous passage in each direction east of Colorado common points going trip to commence on date of sale and to be completed to destination before expiration of return limit. Return trip to commence on date of validation of ticket by Joint Agent at destination not earlier than July 5 nor later than July 14, 1905, for which a fee of 25 cents will be charged, and to be continuous passage to original starting point, or if stop-over is secured as hereinafter provided, return trip to be continuous passage leaving last stop-over point not later than July 14, 1905. An extension of return limit not to exceed August 8 may be obtained by depositing ticket with Joint Agent at destination or other Colorado common points not earlier than July 5 nor later than July 14, 1905, and payment of fee of 50 cents at time of deposit (which includes validation fee); tickets to be validated for continuous passage to commence on date of validation within such extended limits.

ZION BAPTIST CHURCH

STOP-OVERS.

Stop-overs will be granted at Colorado common points by deposit of tickets with Joint Agent on arrival and issuance by him of stop-over certificates pasted on date of departure, making ticket good for continuous passage for the remainder of journey, which will not be later than extreme limit of ticket as provided in preceding paragraphs.

That Social Evening

Denver's best will entertain our delegates socially one evening during the Convention. We are giving away no secret when we say the hint was made to us that the "Social Hour" which is to be arranged for the visitors will be the finest the race has ever given in Denver. Those of us who went to 'Frisco will remember the "Social Hour" at the A. M. E. Church Zion during the Convention, and this is to eclipse that.

Pearlington Public School

Our school has closed the most prosperous year in the history of its existence, on April 30th, at the M. E. Church. The annual sermon was preached by the talented Rev. W. F. Waters, business manager of the Southwestern Christian Advocate. His matchless eloquence held the anxious audience spellbound an hour. Indeed, his earnest appeal to the patrons and students for a more useful and progressive living was inspiring and hopeful. Never in the history of the school have we witnessed such a time. The oral and written examinations, May 1-3, attracted large crowds.

May 5th, at the Baptist Church, the annual address was delivered by Rev. A. S. Green, A. M., and again the people were treated to a timely and wholesome address. The speaker carried his audience from the outset.

The concerts on Friday and Saturday nights would have done credit to any city. Prof. E. W. Maxson, our postmaster, read a very interesting and able paper.

Man is the artificer of his own happiness. Let him beware how he complains of the disposition of circumstances, for it is his own disposition he blames. If this is sour, or that rough, or the other steep, let him think if it be not his work. If his looks curdle all hearts, let him not complain of a sour reception; if he hobble in his gait, let him not grumble at the roughness of the way; if he is weak in the knees, let him not call when you are under any manner of cloud. It is the hill steep. This was the pith of the inscription on the wall of the Swedish inn: "You will find at Trochate excellent bread, meat and wine; provided you bring them with you."—Thoreau.

Dr. Bowen in the West

Dr. J. W. E. Bowen during his recent trip made a great impression on the large audiences that greeted him everywhere. Beginning at Kansas City, Mo., Sunday, May 7, and continuing until Sunday, May 14, Dr. Bowen preached five sermons and delivered nine lectures as follows: Sunday, May 7: 11 a. m., Asbury M. E. Church; 3 p. m., Burns M. E. Church; 8 p. m., Allen Chapel A. M. E. Church. Monday, May 8: 11 a. m., M. E. preachers' meeting; 2 p. m., Western University; 8 p. m., Burns M. E. Church. Tuesday, May 9: George R. Smith College, Sedalia, Mo. Wednesday, May 10, Lincoln School, Sedalia, Mo.; 3:30 p. m., Lincoln Institute, Jefferson City, Mo.; 8 p. m., A. M. E. Church, Jefferson City. Thursday, May 11: 8 p. m., St. James M. E. Church, Kansas City, Kan. Friday, May 12, Topeka, Kan., First M. E. Church. Saturday, May 13: Asbury M. E. Church. Sunday, May 14: 11 a. m., Asbury M. E. Church; 3 p. m., baccalaureate sermon, Topeka Industrial Institute.

During his stay in Topeka Dr. Bowen was entertained by the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Evans, of the First Church. At the close of the lecture on Friday the Rev. Dr. Evans and wife tendered a reception to Dr. Bowen. Some of the leading Negroes of the city and other towns were present. Among those present were President W. S. Vernon, of the Western University, Kansas City, Kan.; Pres. W. R. Carter, Topeka Industrial Institute; Rev. R. C. Ransom, of Topeka; Rev. D. Smith, pastor of Asbury M. E. Church, North, Topeka, and the Rev. J. M. Harris, pastor Burns M. E. Church, Kansas City, Mo.

Rev. J. M. Harris accompanied Dr. Bowen on his trip.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

...n 1—July 3, 1905. Title—"Sennacherib's Invasion." (2 Chron. 32: 9-23.) Golden Text.—"With us is the Lord our God, to help us and to fight our battles" (2 Chron. 32:8)

Hezekiah, strength of Jehovah, was the son Ahaz and Abijah. His father was intensely ked, but his mother was extremely good. , with David and Joash, have been considered three perfect kings of Judah. His first act ascending the throne was to cleanse and re- n the temple. He destroyed the brazen ser- nt, said to have been the one used by Moses the wilderness, which had become an object worship. He endeavored to unite the tribes the feast of the Passover. He conducted suc- ssful wars against the Philistines and Assyr- ns. Through prayer he was miraculously aled. He caused the Assyrian army to be itten by an angel of the Lord. He reigned 29 ars, died at the age of 56, and was buried with kings of Judah.

Sennacherib was the son and successor of rgon, king of Assyria. He ascended the rone about B. C. 705, and reigned 22 years. He s one of the most illustrious of the Assyrian ngs. He made Nineveh his capital, and raised to a magnificent city. He waged wars with henicia, Judea, Egypt, Babylonia, Susiana and edia. He was murdered by two of his sons, d was succeeded on the throne by Esarhad- n. The accounts of this invasion given in 2 ngs, chapters 18-19, and also in Isaiah, chap- rs 36-39, should be studied with this lesson.

In the fourteenth year of the reign of Heze- ah (2 Kings 18: 13-16), Sennacherib came against all the fenced cities of Judah and took em, forty-six in number. Hezekiah sent to him Lachish, confessed that he had offended, ask- him to return to Nineveh, and promised to y any tribute he should place on him. The ng of Assyria demanded three hundred tal- ts of silver, and thirty talents of gold; in all out two million dollars. To pay this great m Hezekiah took all the silver that could be und in the temple, and also in his own house. e further stripped the gold from the doors and llars of the temple to pay Sennacherib. Heze- ah's conduct in this whole matter is an insult God and shows great wickedness and cow- rdice on his part.

Josephus tells us that after Sennacherib re- ived the talents of silver and gold he refused depart, as he had promised to do, but while went to war with Egypt, he left a large force, ommanded by Rabshakeh, to destroy Jerusalem. ut it seems better to refer this siege to a second vasion, which occurred a year or more after he ceived Hezekiah's submission and tribute. Hez- iah seems to have made an alliance with Egypt, nd to have fortified Jerusalem between the two vasions.

Rab-shakeh desired to know in whom Heze- iah trusted. 1. Does he trust in "counsel and rength for the war?" He had able advisers his kingdom: Isaiah the prophet, the priest- ood, and the men of state. Rab-shakeh spoke of e strength of their army with disdain. Offered furnish two thousand horses, if Hezekiah ould set riders on them, but that number could ot turn away the face of the least captain of e Assyrian host. 2. Does he trust in Egypt? f so he is leaning on a bruised reed that will ak and pierce his hand. Pharaoh cannot ve thee. 3. Does he trust in the Lord? This as correct. Hezekiah looked beyond the hills, rom whence he expected his help. Rab-shakeh new this, and labored to show that such trust as not well founded. (1) He affirmed that Hezekiah had thrown down the altars of the igh places, and compelled the people to wor- hip at the altar in Jerusalem. He judged Israel after his own people, who thought the greater number of altars and gods they had the better off they were. But, in reality, the digging down of these altars was one of the greatest acts of Hezekiah's life. (2) He said God had given orders for the destruction of Jerusalem at this time. This was an empty boast, but the design was to amuse and terrify the people on the wall. Yet he might have inferred this from the writings of the prophets concerning the ten tribes, that fell into his father's hands when Samaria was taken. He probably believed that what God had said of Israel He had also spoken of Judah. (3) He thought that if God should endeavor to defend them, He would be like the gods of other nations they had gone to war against. He boastfully asks: "Where are the gods of Hamath, of Arpad, of Hena, and of Ivah? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand?" If these gods could not save these nations, then the Lord cannot save Jerusalem. When this address was concluded, Hezekiah's messengers held their peace, rent their clothes, and reported the matter to the king.

When Hezekiah heard this message, he rent his clothes and covered himself with sackcloth (2 Kings 19: 1-8). He sent a delegation to Isaiah the prophet, saying: "This is a day of trouble, of rebuke and of blasphemy. It may be the Lord will hear the words of Rab-shakeh, and will rebuke them. Therefore, lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left." The reply of Isaiah was very encouraging. "Thus saith the Lord: Be not afraid of the words which thou heard, which the servants of the king of Assyria have spoken against me. I will send a blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumor, and shall return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land."

When Hezekiah received this letter he went into the temple, approached the mercy-seat, and spread the letter before the Lord (2 Kings 19: 14-19). He addressed Jehovah as the covenant God of Israel, and represented Him as dwelling on the mercy-seat, beneath the wings of the cherubs. He is addressed as the God of all the earth, and as having power to establish and destroy kingdoms and to crown and uncrown kings. He is asked to bow down His ear and hear the words of Sennacherib, and to open His eyes and behold them, as they are thus spread before Him. There was some truth in the words of Sennacherib. He had destroyed many nations, and had cast their gods into the fire. Hezekiah earnestly besought the Lord to save Israel, for by so doing all the kingdoms of the earth would know He was the only true God. This is an earnest, faithful prayer. Isaiah was at the same time praying for Israel.

God revealed to Isaiah, and he to Hezekiah, the answer to their prayer (2 Kings 19: 20-24). Jerusalem is the virgin daughter of Zion. Behind her walls of granite, and surrounded by the invisible power of God, she felt secure. Sennacherib had blasphemed Jehovah by comparing him with the gods of other nations. He boasted that he would come with his chariots against Jerusalem; he would stand beside the temple; he would destroy the chief men of Judah; he would enter the homes of the common people and complete his work of destruction; he would dry up the rivers of besieged places; he would fulfill the prophecies spoken against Jerusalem, and he would destroy strange cities and make the inhabitants as grass upon the housetop. But the "Holy One of Israel" will not suffer Sennacherib to enter Jerusalem, or shoot an arrow against it, or come before it, or cast about it. But He will put a hook in his nose and a bit in his mouth will turn him about and lead him back to Assyria.

The overthrow of Sennacherib (21-23) was the night following the prayer. An angel of the Lord did the awful work. It may have been a simoom, or a thunderstorm, or a nocturnal attack, or the plague of Egypt. The number slain was 185,000. When those that were alive arose in the morning, they beheld their dead. Sennacherib soon after this returned to Nineveh. He never again went to war with the kingdom of Judah. Two of his sons nineteen years after this slew him with the sword.

Lesson Topic—July 2.

The Making of a Christian: His Destiny

Scripture references: 1 John 2. 15-17; 3. 1-3.

The Word.—This whole exhortation from John is a ringing appeal not to love a godless and evanescent world—a world as transitory and unsatisfying to-day as then. The destiny of man is immortality. The end of all the life, the food, the exercise, the mutual help about which we have been studying in previous lessons on the "making of a Christian" is to fit him for another life. The wicked lover of the world will go down to everlasting death; but the righteous doer of the will of God shall abide forever. We are now the sons of God; and while the future is unseen, we know that there we shall be like Him, and we shall see Him as He is. Being like him will give us the vision to see; and seeing will cause us to become more and more like Him. What a magnificent destiny for the Christian!

Our Homily: Sons of God.—There is no term in the Scriptures to describe the relations of Christians to the Lord more significant than this one of "son." The relations implied, the results obtained, and the destiny secured are all set forth in the terms used. Born of God, and adopted into the divine family, we are entitled to the promises made to the children of the Father in heaven. The implications are suggestive and glorious:

Membership in the Divine Family.—Every truly converted soul is adopted into the family of God. He dwells even in this life in the society of God's elect. He has fellowship with the other members of the family, and enjoys the favor of the Father. He has the sweet sense of communion and fellowship with the Elder Brother. He belongs even now to the great family a part of whom are on this earth, and the majority of whom are in the skies. This membership in God's family insures eternal life and eternal fellowship with God.

A Glorious Destiny.—We may not know just what we shall be. But we do know some things. We know that there is an eternal life. We know that that life is conscious; we shall see and know and feel. We shall enter into complete fellowship with the Father. We have reason to believe that we shall eternally progress and develop in mind and affection. The Scriptures teach that this future life will be one of growth and service. Whatever punishment may be given to the wicked, the children of God are to have a glorious destiny. They are to see God, they are to dwell with him forever, and they are to be like Him. How important, then, to be "born" of God, to be "built up in Him," and to be "faithful unto death," when we have such a glorious destiny awaiting us?

Fight on, my soul, till death
Shall bring thee to thy God:
He'll take thee at thy parting breath
To His divine abode.

—From "Notes on Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topics.

Character is not made in a day. It is the accumulated result of long-period investment. Men often deceive themselves into thinking that they need not be concerned about high standards and "fine lines" in the realm of character-investment during the prime of their lives: it will be time enough to do that in old age. But dividends—whether of character or of money—are not likely to come in after a man's earning years have passed, if he has made no investment when he had funds to invest. The only difference is in this paradox: that spending life and losing self is the road to character-wealth.—Sunday School Times.

GENERAL MAXIMO GOMEZ

Cuba is largely indebted to Generals Maximo Gomez and Antonio Maceo for its freedom. These men, more particularly Gomez, gave force to the Cuban revolution and drew the attention of the outside world to the cause that was ultimately to triumph, and to triumph with the aid of friendly sympathizers. Not only does Cuba, but the world recognizezs the important part that Gomez performed in giving Cuba a flag. General Gomez was born at Bani, San Domingo, in 1836, and began cavalry life in the Spanish Army in his native country. In the war with Hayti Gomez distinguished himself, and when the Spaniards were driven from the island he went with the Spanish troops to Cuba. On becoming disgusted with the manner in which the Spanish General Villar treated some Cuban refugees, for whom Gomez had collected funds, he severed his connection with the Spanish Army. He was so enraged by the conduct of General Villar that he called him a coward and from that time Gomez was a bitter enemy of Spain. He joined the Cuban insurrection in 1868 and was the Cuban Commander-in-Chief from 1873 to 1878. In 1878, when the Cuban leaders were persuaded to accept peace terms, Gomez withdrew to Jamaica, and went to San Domingo, and lived quietly on a farm until 1895, when he returned to Cuba and became the leading spirit in the Cuban revolution. He out-generaled Campos and Villar and won several brilliant victories. He was especially helpful to the American Army which landed in Cuba. He was offered the presidency of the new republic at the close of the war, but refused. In recognition of his services, the Cuban Government in 1903, presented him with $50,000, which he refused to accept until the veterans had been paid. On June 12th of the present year, the Cuban House of Representatives unanimously appropriated $100,000 for his benefit. General Gomez died at Havana on June 17th, in the presence of his family and his old-time friend, President Estrada Palma, and thus ends a brilliant, heroic, patriotic, unselfish career. In honor of General Gomez, the Cuban House of Representatives adjourned for three days, after appropriating $15,000 for the funeral expenses, and flags of every nation in Havana were at half-mast.

Just as we go to press we have a telegram announcing the death of Mrs. Rush, the wife of Rev. J. A. Rush, D. D., pastor of Central Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Atlanta, Ga. in his great bereavement. Dr. Rush has the sympathy of the entire church. A full sketch will appear in our next issue.

THE DENVER CONVENTION

Much of our space this week is devoted to the forthcoming convention of the Epworth League. This meeting should prove a great blessing to the church. It will mean spiritual uplift of thousands who may attend and through them the whole church may be aroused to more earnest endeavor for the salvation of souls. It will not be merely a social gathering, it will be that and more. The results of the meeting will not effervesce in mere enthusiasm. There will be some substantial and permanent growth of the League in spiritual things. There will be a strengthening and broadening of Christian character.

Secretary Penn is marshalling the leaguers and a good time is promised to all who may attend. Effort will be made to have the leaguers reach Denver in a party, leaving Memphis on July 3rd, at 8:25 p. m. Delegates from New Orleans leaving on the Illinois Central 9:15 a.m. will reach Memphis in time to make the connection. Dr. J. E. Ford, pastor of the Zion Baptist Church, of Denver, who is taking considerable interest in the coming convention, sends the following words of greeting:

White and colored of Denver are making ample preparation to take care of a great host of delegates. This is a splendid convention city, with an exceptionally hospitable people and magnicent scenery. The church accommodations are all that tcould be wished and the spirit of progress is abroad on every hand. Those who do not come will miss a great opportunity, and those who do will have the treat of their lives. Headquarters will be in the Zion Baptist Church, while denominational and state rallies will be held in several other churches. A reception is planned to take place at the great A. M. E. Church, and a great mass meeting July 9th, at one of the largest auditoriums in the city. This will be the opportunity of a lifetime and your young and old people ought to make every sacrifice possible to attend this meeting. Denver's slogan to Epworth Leaguers is "Come on!"

BISHOP VINCENT IN TEXAS

Bishop Vincent has been filling some engagements in Texas, delivering the commencement sermon at the Southwestern University and lecturing before the Summer School of Theology, at Georgetown, Texas. In referring to Bishop Vincent the Texas Christian Advocate says:

"He is now looking like an old man, though his bodily strength and mental vigor are in good repair. In person he is tall, erect and sinewy; his eye is clear, his countenance bright and his voice round and musical. He has a large head, mostly bald, but fringed with a border of iron-gray hair. He is a most courtly and affable gentleman, and in conversation almost without an equal. Growing years have not reduced his interest in the progress of the Church and the moral weal of the country."

In referring to the bishop's sermon the Texas Advocate continues:

"It was clear, comprehensive, original, pithy, and thought-provoking. It left much for the hearer to think out in he days to come. It lasted only forty minutes in delivery, but in subject matter it was deep, broad, high, and long. It was a rare treat to the vast audience who heard it."

WORLD-WIDE MISSIONS

The World-Wide Missions is published by Missionary Society especially for the dissemming of missionary information. It is not in field in competition with any of the Advoc and thus, when a person receives the World-W Missions because of his contribution to the sionary cause, it can not be said that he is a scriber to one of the Church papers.

These are the terms on which the World-W Missions is sent:

One copy to every contributor of $1 of m to the Missionary Society, but no family is have more than one copy. Those who con bute this year will have their subscription to World-Wide issions begin next year.

2. Those who give more than $1 can not h the excess, or any part of it, credited to th who give less than $1.

3. The paper can not be sent to classes, Sunday schools, or Epworth Leagues, on basis of total contributions. It is only sent the basis of individual contributions amounti to $1 or more.

4. Contributions to the W. F. M. S. or W. M. S., or to any other than the Missionary S ciety, do not entitle any one to the paper.

5. Pastors are expected to make up their li srictly in accordance with the foregoing con tions.

6. For the Spring Conferences the year begi with the May Number, and all lists from the must be in before July 1. Names received pr to March will go on the list of subscribers t the March number. Such persons will thus re ceive two extra numbers.

7. For the Fall Conferences the year begi with the November number, and all lists fro them must be in before January 31. Names re ceived prior to September will go on the list subscribers for the September number. Suc persons will thus receive two extra numbers.

8. Will pastors kindly inform their people t this offer, that they may know why World-Wi Missions is beig sent to them?

9. If pastors or others desire the paper to b in the hands of persons who give less than $1 year, or nothing at all to the missionary cause it can be done on the subscription plan, as fol lows: One copy, one year, 25 cents; ten copies one year, to the address of one person, $1.50 additional copies beyond ten at the same rate.

Our St. Paul Church of Meridian, Miss., enjoyed the rare treat of hearing Prof. Wm. Pickens, the scholarly young orator of Alabama, in one of his brilliant addresses on Friday night, June 9th.

The riot which broke out June 17 among the two hundred prisoners confined in the prison at Reval, Russia, was occasioned, it is said, by maltreatment. Troops from the garrison had to be called before order could be restored. The following day the offenders were flogged, among them being women.

The victorious Vice-Admiral Togo praises the courageous fight of the Russians, while Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky congratulates Japan on the courage and patriotism of her sailors and says it lessens his regret and the sorrow of defeat to know the high character of the victors.

WHAT ABOUT OCTOBER 31—WILL YOU BE READY?

Personal and General.

The Commencement sermon of McKendree College was preached by Bishop Walden, June 4th.

Rev. J. H. Brandon and wife, of Tallapoosa, Ga., are shouting happy over their first-born. He takes the name of J. H. Brandon, Jr.

An explosion which occurred at the Ivan colliery, at Khartsisk, Southern Russia, June 18, caused the death of five hundred persons.

Bishop M. C. Harris is doing splendid work in Japan. The last evening of the South Japan Conference session there were thirty conversions.

A Woman's Business Club has been organized at Newark, N. J., with 30 members. This organization proposes to invest and deal in real estate.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Bishop Henry Spellmeyer on June 18th, by his alma mater, the University of the City of New York.

The presence of thousands of Baptists is being planned for in St. Louis, Mo., where will convene Sept. 20 the Colored National Baptists' Association.

Miss Mary Marmaduke, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Rader, of Portland, Oregon, was married to Mr. Robert Hughes, on the evening of June 14th.

Rev. J. W. Robinson, of Covington, Ky., preached the baccalaureate sermon before the students of William Grant High School, of that city, Sunday, June 11.

Cardinal Gibbons pays the following beautiful, appropriate and eloquent tribute to President Roosevelt: "He is an angel of peace to the world, and the world owes him a great debt."

Rev. A. Williams, Box 116, Leesville, La., desires to secure the services of two lady teachers for the school to be opened in that section. Those desiring the place should write him.

Rev. Z. T. Gayden, of the Louisiana Conference, is ill at his home in Clinton, La. A card from Mrs. Gayden states that his illness is very serious and desires the prayers of the brethren.

Miss Effie McGann, an instructor in Gilbert Industrial College, Baldwin, La., is spending a few weeks in the city and is at present the guest of Miss Bertha McNeil, of 1720 Bienville street.

At the recent commencement of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, of Normal, Ala., the degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon Mr. Charles Stewart, the Associated Press correspondent.

The fifth commencement of the Kansas City National Training School and the Bethany Hospital, of Kansas City, Mo., was held June 8th. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Jane Bancroft Robinson and Rev. Daniel McGurk, D. D.

Rev. W. C. Ellis, of Fulton, Mo., with less than a hundred members, raised in his rally on Sunday, June 4th, $312.50. They hope to begin erecting soon the new church, and all indications are very encouraging for still greater success.

Of the 300 successful candidates before the Missouri State Board of Medical Examiners, Dr. R. A. Henderson, of Springfield, a graduate of Meharry Medical College, stood second, being exceeded by one per cent, in all the different subjects represented.

Campbell College, Jackson, Miss., of which Rev. D. H. Butler, D. D., is president, conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. A. J. McNair, the successful pastor of St. Stephen's Church, Yazoo City. Dr. McNair is a graduate of Gammon Theological Seminary, class of 1890.

Rev. G. W. Smith, D. D., presiding elder of the Brookhaven district, of the Mississippi Conference, is making an enviable record as a subscriber getter. Recently he has sent us two large lists, and says that this is only the beginning. This is encouraging. May the good work continue.

Announcement cards are out of the marriage of Cora Rose, daughter of Mrs. Leon A. Vignes, a well known resident of this city, to Mr. Robert W. Wilson. The same occurred Wednesday evening, June 14, 1905, and the young couple are now at their home, 927 Bienville street, New Orleans.

The Summer Normal for Colored Teachers for the State of Louisiana is now in session at Alexandria, La. The enrollment at the close of the first week is seventy-one. The faculty is composed of Prof. J. W. Hunter, conductor, Prof. H. W. McDonald, A. M., Prof. R. F. Long and Miss Hildred Williams.

The Anniston District Conference, of the Central Alabama Conference, Rev. W. Thomas, presiding elder, will be held at Hobson City, Ala., August 8-13, instead of Sylacauga, Ala., July 8-13, as has been announced. The Woman's Home Missionary Convention of this district will convene also at the same time and place.

Rev. Richard Wilkinson, pastor of Rayne Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of this city, was honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity by Trinity College, of Durham North Carolina, where he recently delivered the annual sermon. Dr. Wilkinson will preach the annual sermon of Southern University, this city, next Sunday.

Prof. William Pickens, A. M., delivered the address before the Religious Society of Straight University, this city, June 11, and the Commencement address June 14. Prof. Pickens made a great impression on his audiences. His addresses were vigorous in thought and choice in language and forcefully delivered. He is beyond a doubt one of the brightest minds of the race.

At the meeting of the Carnegie hero fund commission held in Pittsburg, May 24, three silver medals and six bronze medals were awarded. Three widows were cared for and a money grant was made to a heroine for educational purposes. For the relief of those who were dependent upon the victims of the Brockton, Mass., disaster of March 20, 1905, $10,000 was granted. Altogether $12,200 was disbursed by the commission.

The closing exercises of the Industrial Training School at Blackshear, Ga., will begin June 25th. Rev. A. B. Allen, presiding elder of the Waycross District, Savannah Conference, will preach the annual sermon. The usual class examinations will be held. On Thursday and Friday nights of commencement week the students will deliver orations and essays. Mrs. Lottie O. Harris, the preceptress, deserves special praise for the work she is doing. Rev. McD. Spencer is principal.

Rev. J. D. Jenkins, pastor of our church at LaGrange, Ga., took hold of the work there under very discouraging circumstances, but he has succeeded in re-establishing the confidence of the people and the church building that was begun some years ago is now being pushed toward completion. On a recent Sabbath this plucky little congregation realized a neat sum for the building fund. We wish Brother Jenkins and his faithful congregation merited success in this enterprise.

The people of New York City gave splendid support to an entertainment and reception given for the benefit of the Hope Day Nursery, on the evening of May 9, at Grand Central Palace. The nursery is the only one of its kind in that city, being for the accommodation of colored children. An elaborate scenic production, entitled "The Gift of the Fairies," preceded the reception. The hall, one of the largest in the city, was crowded early and the benefit was declared to be both a social and financial success. Much credit is due the Literary Committee, of which Miss Maude K. Griffin is chairman.

The commencement exercises of the Kentucky Normal and Industrial Institution at Franklin, Ky., began on Sunday, June 4th, and closed June 7th. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. G. W. Ward, D. D., of Covington, Ky., and the address before the religious society was made by Rev. John E. Wood, D. D. Miss Nannie Burroughs delivered the address before the literary societies on Tuesday of commencement week. On commencement day addresses were delivered by Hon. J. C. Napier, of Nashville, Tenn., Prof. J. W. Scarborough, of Wilberforce University, and others.

Doings of the Workmen.

LOUISIANA.

MANDEVILLE, G. W. Forest, Pastor—My first quarter was held April 20, with Dr. Marshall, presiding elder, in the chair. Most all the officers came with good reports. The elder seemed to be well pleased with the outlook here for a grand successful year. Paid the elder in full. We were interrupted by a band led by Rev. A. Vincent with two gallons of ice cream and cake and a little purse of money. Rev. Vincent presented the same to the presiding elder, who responded and pleaded with the friends to take the SOUTHWESTERN.

Boyce, W. L. Dyas, Pastor.—I take this method to thank the good citizens of Boyce, both white and colored, for a grand surprise, which brought to the parsonage one hundred pounds of choice groceries. The prime leaders of the party were Mesdames Leatha Western, Ella Hayill, Eretter Riptoe, Isaline Kennedy, Aba Harris, Emily Fairfax, Miss Eliza Thompson, Mr. Ross, Miss Dolly Robinson and Mr. Robt Johnson. Mrs Dyas made the welcome address; response by Bro. Johnson, and prayer by the pastor.

Longstreet, Thos. F. Robinson, Pastor.—I arrived at this place Feb. 31, 1905, and was met at the depot by Bro. John Daniels, one of the officers of our church. My people received me kindly. Owing to inclement weather no service was held for a week. I want to thank Brother and Sister Carrie Daniels, also Brother Anderson Daniels, for their hospitality. Our first service, held March 12, was a success. The stewards had the election of officers March 23, and installation March 26. The parsonage has been repaired and the stewardesses have nicely furnished it. I desire to thank Brother Frank Thomas for his liberality. The Lord has been our guide. "The Southwestern" is the watchword at this place.

Longstreet, Thos. F. Robinson, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 1st, Rev. H. Daniels presiding. Reports indicated that affairs are in excellent shape. All departments of the church are alive. Elder Daniels is a most helfpul presiding elder to both pastor and people. After the conference a royal reception was tendered by the stewardess to presiding elder and pastor. Rev. Daniels preached an able sermon on Sunday.

MISSISSIPPI.

Hattiesburg, J. K. Comfort, Pastor.—The St. Paul Church is now lighted by electricity and new stained windows have been put in at a cost of $125.00. The salaries of the pastor and presiding elder are being paid and every department of the church work is in good condition.

Enterprise, C. H. Brown, Pastor.—On Wednesday night, March 15, a great storm came to the parsonage, led by Sisters A. Adams, Lucy Harris, Brothers Blakeny, Stewart, Wilson, Boyd and Harris and hosts of others. They left upon the table about 40 pounds. This act greatly encouraged the pastor. Rev. J. B. Brook, our presiding elder, was with us March 4-5 and held our first quarterly conference. He preached three good sermons on Sunday. The collection on Sunday was $23.00.

Brookhaven, L. W. Price, Pastor.—The missionary convention May 2-7, 1905, was a grand success. Rev. Griffin G. Logan, D. D., field secretary of the missionary society, knows how to execute his plans. He was on the ground and spoke eloquently on several occasions. Our beloved presiding elder, G. W. Smith, D. D., presided at each session. He showed great interest in the convention and electrified us by his able and eloquent addresses. Quite a number of the brethren from over the district were present and lent enthusiasm to the meetings. The cause of missions will now take on new life throughout the Brookhaven District. The Committee on Missions drew up the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Brookhaven District raise this year for missions not less than $250.00, and that each Sunday school be organized into a missionary society and raise one dollar per month.—Revs. J. I. Garrett, L. Tate, I. S. Thomas, committee.

Lexington, C. E. Moody, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 7th and 9th with Rev. S. H. Nevils in the chair. The conference was a success in every respect. Raised this quarter for all purposes, $150.00. Paid elder in full. The pastor's salary was fixed at $500.00. On Sunday night Elder Nevils preached an able sermon. Raised in this quarter $24.00.

Star, P. N. Rhodes, Pastor.—My quarterly conference was held March 20th and the majority of brethren presented written reports. The pastor's salary was estimated at $200. Paid pastor this quarter $21.15, the elder $6.50; total, $2720. Our two churches on this work seem imbued with new life. The Sunday schools are in a prosperous condition. Our members here own their own lands.

Houston, W. C. Canwell, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held at Springs Chapel M. E. church April 3-9 with our presiding elder, Rev. N. C. Clay in the chair. A goodly number of members were present with good reports. Paid pastor this quarter $55.75; the elder (in full) $22.50; total $78.25. We have our new church; frame is The church, which will be ready for services by the third Sunday in June, will be second to none in the Tupelo District.

MISSOURI.

Moberly, J. D. Evans.—In company with my presiding elder, Rev. J. Will Jackson, D. D., I visited my church at Randolph Spring, where, on Sunday April 9th, we held our first quarterly meeting, which was largely attended. Some of the people came from more than fifteen miles. The meeting was a success in every way. The elder remained with us several days, and we greatly enjoyed the hospitality of the people. One thing that particularly attracted my attention, while among these people, was the substantial comfort in which they live in many parts of our great state. Randolph Springs, a place of considerable note because of its medicinal waters, is on the Wabash railroad, about ten miles west of the city of Moberly. Our church is about one mile south of Randolph Springs station and in its immediate neighborhood are well-to-do farmers of our race. Their farms are well supplied with live stock of every description and with all modern implements and up-to-date machinery. Some of the land owners are: S. M. Dameron, 80 acres; Ed Smith, 120 acres; S. Atterberry, 95 acres; A. Harvey, 144½ acres; S. P. Denny, 95 acres; H. Bibbs, 40 acres; Harrison Viley, 40 acres; A. Tolle, 615½ acres. Another thing that attracted my attention very forcibly was the peaceableness and friendship that exists here; the whites and blacks live together in most friendly and neighborly relations. In this community of white and colored people it seems to me that I have discovered the true key to the solution of the so-called race problem, which in my opinion, is not in politics but in Christian religion, ownership in the soil, and education. The people of Randolph Springs have solved the problem for themselves.

Sturgeon Circuit, W. L. Lee, Pastor—Our rally on May 21, 1905, was quite a success. We had our church organized into two clubs. Miss Mattie Hicks, captain of Club 1, raised $63.68; Mrs. W. L. Lee, leader of Club 2, raised $42.20. This is our third year in this charge and our work is in a prosperous condition. We hope to make this the best year of the three. Total amount raised at the rally, $105.88.

Guilford, Ruthia Watkins.—Rev. M. J. Bullock, our presiding elder held our third quarterly conference. Raised for all purposes during the quarter $10.20.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Asheville, N. D. Shamborguer, Pastor.—The pluckiest Methodists in all the North Carolina Conference are the 40 members of College Street Methodist Episcopal Church, this city. I was assigned to this work October 18, 1904. We began at once to plan for the completion of the new church and on Christmas raised $45. Then the roughest winter of many years began and continued until March., but as soon as the weather broke the carpenters began work. We had planned a rally for April 16, hoping to raise $500. Despite the rough weather we raised $408, most of our members gave $10 each, a few friends $6, and one member contributed $21.25. This money was not begged, but worked for. These members have made great sacrifices to complete their church, and when completed it will be one of the neatest churches in the North Carolina Conference. It is to cost $3,750. Too much praise can not be given the members of the Ladies Aid Society, teachers and students of the Allen's Industrial School, for their manifested interest. The trustees join me in thanks to each and all who labored to make the rally a success.

Concord, O. J. Bethea, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held at Mt. Moriah Church, May 8, Rev. I Wells, presiding. His sermons were inspiring and instructive. Paid the elder $6, pastor $3.05, school $2, total for the day $11.05. Improvements $4.75, total raised for all purposes during quarter $72.12.

OHIO.

Martins Ferry, B. J. Coleman.—Saturday evening, April 29, Rev. E. A. White, D. D., our presiding elder, lectured on "The Yellowstone Park." He held the interested attention of his audience for one hour or more. On the following Sunday was held our first quarterly meeting for the conference year. Rev. White preached an excellent sermon Sunday morning to a large and appreciative audience. Two persons came forward—one reclaimed, the other seeking pardon for his sins. Dr. White administered the sacrement of the Lord's Supper to a large number. Paid him in full. Collection for the day, $24.

Cincinnati, A. C. Topson.—There was a grand reception given Friday evening, April 14, at the St. John's M. E. Church, this city, in honor of the pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. D. E. Skelton, and the new presiding elder, Rev. E. A. White. Never in the history of the church has there been such a gathering of eminent divines as assembled that night. Nearly every denomination was represented. An excellent programme was rendered. Among the guests were Drs. Chas. F. Goss, Geo. E. Thayer, A. M. Harvout, Davis W. Clark, P. E. Ohio, Dist. Rev. H. M. Bigelow, Dr. Levi Gilbert, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, Revs. I. N. Ross, H. W. Tate, F. P. Robinson, Scott Ward, J. A. Smith, J. F. Walker, and J. D. Kelly, M. D. After listening to the many speakers who charmed by their ready wit and eloquence, with a few encouraging words of welcome Rev. White, P. E., and Mrs. Skelton were presented a handsome boquet, as was also the master of ceremonies. The climax of the evening was reached when Mr. W. L. Anderson a prominent young business man, on behalf of the members of the church and friends presented Rev. D. E. Skelton and wife a handsome silver tea service. Mr. A. B. Ewing made the address on behalf of the church. After the programme a splendid repast was served.

TEXAS.

Brenham, J. H. Hubbard, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference convened April 1st, with Rev. Bryant, B. D., presiding elder, in the chair. In spite of bad weather, nearly all of the officers were present, and made good reports. The conference benefited by the timely remarks and brotherly advice of the presiding elder. Sunday, at 11 a. m., Rev. Bryant preached, administered the Lord's Supper at 3 p. m., and preached again at night to the delight of all present. Paid the elder $16.25. Collection for the day $18.05. Our revival has resulted in eight accessions, five conversions, and still the meeting continues with increasing interest.

Dickinson.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 19, Rev. E. Lee presiding. All officers presented good written reports. Paid the elder in full. Rev. Lee preached an excellent sermon. One person received baptism.

Paris, G. A. Deslandes, Pastor.—A terrific storm swept over Mt. Zion M. E. Church and parsonage on Friday night, April 6. Opening the door we were met by quite a number of the members and friends who made their way to the dining room and deposited on the table more than ten dollars worth of groceries. Prayers were offered by Bro. R. S. Halbert and the pastor, who also thanked the friends for their liberal offering, which was greatly appreciated.

VIRGINIA.

Harper's Ferry, Jos. Wheeler, Pastor.—Our fourth quarterly conference was held February 26th. The elder, Rev. J. W. Waters, presided. Reports from each department of the church showed the work on the Jefferson circuit to be prosperous and progressing. There has been an increase in interest and numbers in Sunday school and Epworth League work. Church property has been improved and collections for benevolent purposes, minsterial support and trustee work, have been good. At Summit Point and Middleway the pastor was pounded by the good sisters and brothers. We appreciate and thank them for their kindness. Trustees have raised over $300; stewards $500; for benevolent purposes $40.

I CURED MY RUPTURE

I Will Show You How to Cure Yours FREE

I was helpless and bedridden for years from a double rupture. No truss could hold. Doctors said I would die if not operated on. I fooled them all and cured myself by a simple discovery. I will send the cure free by mail if you write for it. It cured me and has since cured thousands. It will cure you. Write to-day. Capt. W. A. Collings, Box 743, Watertown, N. Y.

LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

PROOF BOTTLE FREE.

We want to send you free, costing you absolutely nothing, a trial bottle of "Drake's Palmetto wine." Drop us a postal and it comes a-humming. You know that 'way back in bible times people took wine "for the stomach's sake." But the modern grape wine is not good either for stomach, brain or pocket. "Drake's Palmetto Wine" is vastly different. It comes gushing from the palm-fruit of our own sunny South. It is a superb appetizer, tonic and nerve-bracer. It cleans and purifies the blood and thus feeds brain and brawn. It builds up athletes and nourishes thinkers.

Drake's Palmetto Wine is also a natural medicine. It is a wonderful specific for constipation, flatulency and all dyspeptic troubles. It positively heals catarrh of nose, throat, stomach or bowels. It regulates perfectly the liver, kidneys and bladder. For women it is a true God-send. A tablespoon dose daily cures all those troubles. The wine has a rich, appetizing smack and plucks you up instantly.

We prove all this by sending you a free test bottle on request. The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago.

Baton Rouge, M. J. Dyer, Pastor—Our first quarterly conference was held April 19, by Rev. J. W. Turner. All officers had written reports. The elder was well pleased with the reports.

They Live in Our Memory.

CATCHING.—Sister Ellen Catching, of Bridgeville, Miss., departed this life May 1, 1905, age 65 years. Sister Catching was a member of the M. E. Church for 35 years, and lived a consistent Christian. She leave two sons and one daughter to mourn their loss. Rev. R. H. Patton conducted the funeral.

MCCALAHAN.—Brother George McCalahan, age 45 years, died at Freeman, W. Va., April 1, 1905, after a long illness. In his death the church has lost a faithful member, the wife a kind husband, the children a loving father. These were his last words: "I know I cannot stay here much longer. I am waiting on the Lord."

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past.
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

—W. W. Ward, P. C.

MUFERN.—Brother Henry Mufern, a probationer in Pleasant Plain M. E. Church, died in New Orleans, May 25. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Wm. Harrel.

SAUSER.—Sister Sauser, a member of Pleasant Plain M. E. Church for 50 years, departed this life recently, in full assurance of eternal rest. Rev. Wm. Harrel was in charge of the funeral service.

WILLIAMS.—Sister Patsy Williams, the wife of Bro. R. W. Williams, departed this life at Bonita, La., May 19, 1905. She was a faithful member of Lowson M. E. Church, a teacher in the Sunday school, loved by all. She leaves a dear husband, one child, father, mother one brother and sister. Lowson Chapel has lost a faithful worker.—Robert A. Taylor, Pastor.

WILLIAMS.—Jessie Williams departed this life at Bonita La., on May the 8th, 1905, and May 9th Mr. Joseph Hills died. They were the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo and Nellie Hills. The son was 19 years old and the daughter 22. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. Summerville, of the A. M. E. Church.—Robert A. Taylor, Pastor.

BROWN.—Mrs. Henrietta Brown fell asleep in Jesus March 24th, 1905. She was a member of Davis Chapel M. E. Church and a faithful worker. Sister Brown leaves her husband, three children and many friends to grieve over her passing away. The funeral service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. D. W. Jornise, assisted by Rev. S. M. Emer.

From Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, La., Rev. Johnson, pastor, there comes the report of the deaths of Sister Clara Marshall, January 6, 1905; Brother Howard Green, January 29, 1905; Sister Ann Gordon, February 19, 1905; Mary Gilmore, April 15,1905; Willie Johnson, May 6, 1905; Sister Rebecca Spain, May 16, 1905; Sister Carrie Jolly, May 18, 1905; Eliza Charles, May 23, 1905; Maria Shepard, May 23, 1905, and Brother Henry Smith, May 24, 1905.

COLLIER.—Rev. Nelson Collier, of the Mississippi Conference, departed this life, March 26th, 1905, at Hickory, Miss. There never was a more faithful minister than Brother Collier. He was loved by all who knew him. In September of 1904 Rev. Collier was attacked with malarial fever, this was followed by rheumatism, and then dropsy. He endured his afflictions patiently to the end. A faithful and loving wife and daughter attended him to the last. Brother Collier said, "The only thing I would care to live for would be to preach the Gospel of Christ." His wife and daughter, Miss Ira, did everything possible to restore him to health, but in spite of earthly skill, death took him away. During his illness he was often visited by his white and colored friends, and he told them: "It is good for me to be here. I am so nicely cared for." He leaves a wife and two children and a host of friends to mourn their loss. The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. A. Cowan.—A Friend.

MUKES.—Mr. Thomas Mukes died at Morehead, Miss., May 21, 1905. He was a member of the M. E. Church for several years and lived a consistent Christian life. He said: "I am perfectly willing to die." He leaves a wife and several relatives to mourn their loss. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. W. Walton.

MARSHALL.—Mrs. Hettie Marshall died May 17, at Greenwood, Miss. Sister Marshall was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for 36 years. She was a woman of rare Christian character. Her life was a continued service. Her greatest joy was in making others happy. In her death the church has sustained a great loss. Her funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. W. Walton.

BELCHER.—Sister Eliza Belcher passed into the beyond April 11, 1905, at Springfield, Tenn. She was born in 1864, and was married to Rev. H. P. Belcher October 11, 1882. She joined the Hopewell Church and lived a Christian life always. Rev. G. G. Gordon, the pastor, conducted the funeral service.

BROWN.—Gertrude Brown passed away into the beyond May 12, 1905, at Mantua, Ala. She was a member of Mt. Sinai M. E. Church. She lived in the faith and passed away as a Christian should. Her parents, brothers and sisters and many friends mourn her passing. Rev. V. D. Oatman conducted the funeral.

SHELVY.—Mrs. Lou Shelvy departed this life May 17th, 1905, at New Orleans, La. She had wandered from Mallalieu Church for years. Having wandered away, she came back and joined on probation in October, 1904. Renewed her covenant with God, and died at peace. She leaves five small children, two brothers, who are members of Mallalieu Church, two sisters and a large number of relatives and friends. Rev. H. J. Wright conducted the funeral services Thursday, May 25th.

MADDOX—Janie Maddox departed this life at McDonogh, Ga., Feb. 15, 1905. She was a true Christian. For twenty-two years she was always at her post. She leaves a husband and twelve children to mourn her going. She died in full triumph of faith. Her funeral was conducted by Rev. J. W. Queen, pastor of the church.—L. L. MITCHELL.

MCFADDEN.—On May 10, little Walter McFadden, aged 8 years, 3 months and 5 days (the youngest member of our church save one), was called Home. Little Walter joined the church February, 1904. He had been a regular attendant of the Sunday school before joining the church, after which he seldom missed Sunday school, prayer or class meetings.

His mother being Sunday school superintendent and his sister the organist, was quite an incentive for him. His remains were brought to the church. His funeral was conducted by Rev. A. R. Martin, assisted by Rev. J. R. Hopkins, of A. M. E. church, and Wm. H. Mann, of the Baptist church.

MASSEY—Mrs. Hattie Massey, the wife of Rev. J. L. Massey (pastor of Sparta Circuit), fell asleep in Jesus on the 7th of May. Sister Massey had been sick for quite a while but her death was not expected at the time it came. Sister Massey was a devoted wife, a consistent Christian, and an earnest worker in the church of her choice. She joined the M. E. Church at Tullahoma, Tenn., during the administration of Rev. W. R. Smith as pastor, in 1894, and she was faithful to the same until the time of her death.

HARRIS—Mrs. Emma Harris, a probationer of Williams Chapel, New Orleans, La., died June 7, 1905, after a brief illness. She had great faith in her Savior and so died happy. The deceased leaves father, sisters and other relatives to mourn. Her funeral took place at Williams Chapel, conducted by the pastor, C. W. Reeves.

BREWER—Mrs. Maria Brewer, widow of Bro. Thomas Brewer, an old and faithful member of Haven Chapel, died in Algiers on Tuesday, May 23, and was buried from Haven Chapel on Thursday, May 25th. Her daughter, Miss Palla M. Brewer, had just preceeded her to the heavenly land about six months. During Sister Brewer's long years of affliction she always bore testimony to her faith in Christ Jesus. Rev. W. S. Chinn officiated in the absence of Rev. Jno. McKee, her pastor.

P. M. BURKE,

HYDE—Mrs. Sallie Hyde, one of the converts of the recent revival of First Street M. E. Church, died in full triumph of faith in New Orleans, La., May 2nd, 1905, and was buried from the church. Rev. J. A. Tircuit officiated, assisted by the Rev. W. R. Butler, P. E.

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I have found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription of inestimable value," writes Mrs. Ellen Alma Bryan (Treasurer Memphis Century Club), of 193 Vance Street, Memphis, Tenn., "as a tonic for over-wrought nerves, or when one is troubled with general lassitude and an irritable condition, hardly knowing what the trouble is. I was advised to use it by a member of our Club and the effect on me was truly wonderful. Within two weeks I was like a new woman. I could eat and sleep as I have not been able to for months, my nerves became strong and the mental equilibrium was restored as well as the physical. Your medicine has my highest endorsement."

Don't hesitate to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., if you want good medical advice from a fully qualified physician as to your personal good health. Such letters are always answered free of charge and confidentially.

A medicine which has outsold all others for women in the past third of a century and being recommended by all those who have used it, is a good remedy to tie to. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is purely vegetable and does not contain a particle of alcohol to destroy the blood corpuscles and weaken the system. Do not permit the dealer to insult your intelligence by suggesting some other compound which he recommends as "just as good," because he makes it himself.

Literary Notes

The New England Magazine seems to be steadily improving with each issue, and the admirable June number marks still another step in its progress. A paper of considerable importance and value is Henry L. Shumway's "Modern Treatment of Tuberculosis," which deserves a wide reading. The new department, "The Editors' Table," contains pertinent discussion of timely topics. For sale at all news-stands; 25c per number. Annual subscription, $3. America Company, publishers, 8 Dix Place, Boston.

A magazine that is filled with seasonable interest for women is the July Delineator. In it the summer fashions are exquisitely pictured, and described by such fashion authorities as Helen Berkeley-Loyd and Edouard La Fontaine, of Paris, who write for the magazine exclusively. There is also a short story by Zona Gale, "The Never-Lighted Fire"—a very delicate piece of work. A sketch of Longfellow's boyhood, by Peter Freneau, contains something new about the poet and the friends and home of his early life. Something of the story and influence of the famous Christian hymn, "Rock Sutherland.

Lynchburg.—There was served in the Jackson Street M. E. Church a complimentary banquet by the members to their pastor, Rev. W. A. C. Hughes, who has successfully closed his second year at this charge. Fully eight hundred people were present. An interesting program was rendered in the main auditorium, at which most of the colored ministers of the city were present and participated. Toward the close of the program the pastor was unanimously invited to return for another year, and as an earnest of the people's good will a handsome suit of clothes was presented him by the ladies of the church. After hearty words of thanks by the pastor the people repaired to the lecture room, where tables were spread. Rev. Hughes has succeeded in paying off the mortgage debt which has been upon the church for many years. Well on to $6,000 has been raised; nearly one hundred souls converted and more than that number added to the church. The work of another year contemplates the remodeling and renovating of the entire church, and plans for improvements are well on to completion.

NORTH NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT.

The North New Orleans District Conference, Rev. J. J. Obee, presiding elder, will be held in Lutcher, La., July 26, 1905.

The New Orleans Negro Business League met in the SOUTHWESTERN office Thursday evening, June 8th, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. Dejoie, Sr., president; Z. T. Evans, vice-president; H. Thomas Calloway, corresponding secretary; R. E. Jones, recording secretary; B. T. Hatter, treasurer. The following delegates were elected to attend the National Negro Business League, which meets in New York City during August: Messrs. Wm. Robinson, Moses Alexander, J. Madison Vance, Z. T. Howard, R. E. Jones, Z. T. Evans and A. D. Dejoie.

An enjoyable affair was the pound party tendered Rev. A. B. Harris, our pastor at Camp Parapet, on a recent Thursday evening. Mrs. Georgia Reeves, the promoter of this affair, was assisted by members and friends. A sum of money was also presented the pastor.

Mrs. L. C. Thurman, of Jackson, Miss., National organizer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, spoke Sunday morning, June 11, at Mallalieu Church, Rev. H. J. Wright, pastor. She also delivered an address before the Sunday school. Mrs. Thurman is a splendid speaker, one who commands the interested attention of her audience. She was accompanied by Mrs. Francis Joseph, who also spoke interestingly.

At Williams Chapel, Sunday morning, prayer meeting and Sunday school as usual. At 11 a. m., Bro. W. Fisher preached, assisted by the pastor, Rev. C. W. Reeves. At 3 p. m., the King's Daughters rendered their monthly programme. Mrs. E. Woodfolks presided. Sermon by Brother P. J. Becnel. The pastor preached at night. One annual subscriber for the SOUTHWESTERN. Collection, $18.03.

The anniversary sermon of the Young Men's Vidalia Benevolent Association was preached at Wesley Chapel, Sunday morning, June 18, by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Johnson. At night the pastor again spoke. A large audience was present. Collection for the day, $51.43.

Miss Deborah M. Cooper, daughter of Rev. T. B. Cooper, who has been ill for some time at her home in Hahnville, La., is much better.

Mrs. A. M. Henley, of this city, is spending the warm months at her summer home in Bay St. Louis, where she will welcome her friends.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 176, Notre Dame, Ind.

NEW ORLEANS, JUNE 29, 1905

Vol. 39 No. 26

Editorial

The Pennsylvania railroad system has notified the Union News Company that hereafter no dime novels and sensational detective stories are to be sold either at the stations or upon the cars of that system. It is an indication of progress when a big corporation like the Pennsylvania takes a stand for better morals in its discirimination against vicious literature. Its example is worthy. It will have its effect in other ways for the purification of literature. It will cause the pernicious and hell inspired literature, so often read to the detriment of the young people, to be discarded elsewhere. May the good work of the destruction of detective stories and sensational dime novels continue.

Very often a prescription contains one or more deadly poisons, any one of which, taken separately, would mean certain death. But in the compounding of the elements of the prescription certain chemical changes take place and there is a neutralization of the poisonous effect so that the prescription, made up of a number of parts, as a whole, works together for good, to the health of the patient. So it is with us in our spiritual life. God has diagnosed our case and has prescribed. There are some things that come into our life, separate from all other experiences, that would appear dark and discouraging, but taking all of our experiences together, there is a neutralization of the unpleasant things of life so that all things work together for good to those that love the Lord. Or to put it another way, in the words of that great Apostle, the "light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

The greatest fact of the universe is the fact of God. In whatever direction we may cast our eye we see manifestations of Him. His trademark is upon everything—animate and inanimate. He is seen in art, literature, science, history, philosophy. He may be studied in the religions of the world, in all of them, even tho some may be pagan. He is to be found in all of the world's philosophies, even in the skeptical and heterodox. God is at the tap root of the little liy that opens its smiling face to be kissed by the morning dew; He is the strength of the mighty oak that braves the winter's storms; He is the source of the laughing, bubbling river; He is the light behind the sun; verily, in Him we live and move and have our being. 'Tis our chief business here below to bring ourselves into a personal acquaintanceship with this Greatest Fact that shall yield friendship, and a friendship that shall grant the knowledge of His striking, beautiful, holy, inspiring personality. We should know Him, whom to know aright is life eternal.

THE MASK PULLED OFF

Mr. James Calloway in the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph has pulled off the mask and has shown the South's real attitude toward Negro suffrage. It was not his purpose, necessarily, to show how unfair and unstatesmanlike the question of Negro suffrage has been dealt with. He had other motives, but he served the purpose at any rate to show the real attitude. In the opening of his article this paragraph occurs:

"The Atlanta Journal, in a recent editorial, called for disfranchisement of the Negroes, saying 'the educated ones, of course, would be allowed to vote.' I was not surprised in Mr. Hardwick's case, but the stand taken by the Journal, usually so conservative, was a profound astonishment."

Continuing, speaking of the Georgia primary plan, he says:

"This system is the best, for it regulates the Negro, whether educated or uneducated, or a property holder. We practically disqualify him, and yet we violate no federal law. Our Georgia system is better than any disfranchisement law. We have defeated the federal government and the republican party, and yet passed no laws to gain our end. There was no 'decadence of statesmanship' in that statecraft. It was the acme of prudence and wisdom. Let it stand. Interference is ill-timed."

After satisfying himself on the fact that the Negro has no vote in the state politics, in reference to the proposition to change the present system for the proposed disfranchisement amendment, he says:

"Disfranchisement will then mean enfranchisement, so far as all the 'educated' Negroes are concerned. And their name is legion now—and in ten years more will be legions!"

Continuing, urging the present system and contemplating the growth of the Negroes until when at some long-off future day they will possess at least some power in the state affairs, Mr. Calloway adds:

"Until then, let us hang on to a system that relegates all Negroes, 'educated' or uneducated, that defeats the federal government and the whole republican party, and gives each and all of us rest—sweet rest—from coddling the Negro on each recurring election, and frees us from the 'button-hole' act.

"No possible device can equal our present system, so satisfactory to those of us who do not care to tackle the 'educated' Negro when the threatened plan gets into full operation."

This is as clear a case of pulling off the mask as we have ever known. It is verily a letting of the cat out of the bag by ripping the bag wide open. Indirectly the South is accused of hypocrisy in its position on Negro suffrage. Has Mr. Calloway not betrayed the South?

The educational and property test, as has been imposed in several of the Southern states, has been almost unanimously accepted by the Negroes and their friends. At the same time it was known that it was not merely the elimination of the ignorant Negro vote, but the disfranchisement of a large per cent. of Negro suffrage. Many of the Negroes almost stifled their consciences and accepted the proposed amendment in good faith. Was it not a desertion of our weaker brethren? But the suffrage amendments were accepted for three reasons. 1. A positive and firm belief in a qualified franchise, recognizing the dignity and responsibility of an American voter. 2. A hope that this movement was a recognition of the educated and worthy Negro and a recognition of the two strata of the Negro life—the upper and the lower. 3. As a spur to urge the lower classes on to education. Not education for political reasons merely, but for the larger reason of race development. We were hardly, at the time of the acceptance, frank with ourselves. But there were some whites in the South who were sincere in their conviction that the ignorant Negro vote polluted politics and bred corruption. It was on the sincerity of these that the Negroes placed their endorsement upon the proposed disfranchisement. But yet these sincere people were not in the lead. They were not those that wrote into the constitutions of Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Alabama that "the Negroes shall not vote." Mr. Calloway has told the truth as it is. He has pulled off the mask and has our thanks for doing so. The suffrage amendments are not intended to merely reach the ignorant Negro, but the educated and prosperous Negro as well.

FOUR BANKS IN ONE TOWN

If there are those who suspect that the Negro will forever remain as hewers of wood and drawers of water there are indications that they will be disappointed. A large per cent. of our people, as among other peoples, will always be engaged in domestic vocations, nevertheless the Negro is pushing into avenues where it was thought his failure was assured. In Richmond, Va., according to the Times Dispatch of that city, there are four banks owned and conducted by Negroes and, the State Corporation Commission for it, these banks are in a healthy and prosperous condition. The Savings Bank of the Grand United Order of True Reformers, established April 3, 1899, has assets amounting to $528,734.34; St. Luke's Savings Bank, Mrs. Maggie L. Walker, president, established November 2, 1903, $41,315.23; Mechanics' Savings Bank, established January 1, 1902, $74,221.74; The Nickle Savings Bank, established May 1896, $15,921. It is almost beyond comprehension to think that the Negroes have in one locality, in so short a period since their emancipation, banking institutions rated by the state officials as worth almost three-quarters of a million dollars. The Negro is busily sawing wood while the calamity howlers are doing their best.

The Fortnightly Club of Wellington, Ohio, composed of refined and educated women, in recognition of the talent, culture and personality of Miss Edith Robinson, the only colored member of the club, has unanimously elected her as president. Miss Robinson is an expert stenographer.

Youth and Christianity

By Professor William Pickens, A. M.

The hope of everything good rests in the young. Children are the glory of parents. The untiring strength of youth is the pillar of civilization.

Christianity needs the youth—and youth needs Christianity. The rock of this whole faith was a blooming young man of Palestine—just in the prime of life. When a civilization grows old and sluggish, and development has reached an apparent equilibrium with its environment, then it is that youth and the spirit of youth alone can breathe into the old body fresh strength and re-enlivening vigor. It was so with the ancient Jewish religion when Jesus Christ arose therein; it was so with Mediæval Christianity when Martin Luther flashed into its sickening soul.

The most brilliant pages of history are records of the lives of young reformers. The expression of "young man" is frequently recurrent in the record of God's revelation to men. In Genesis—when Abraham was preparing to entertain God in his tent, he gave the preparation of the fatted calf to the care of a young man, and when Pharaoh wanted an interpreter of dreams, his chief butler told him of a certain prisoner who was a good young man. In Judges—when Micah wanted a strong hand to guide him to God, he chose for his priest a young man. Samuel called Saul a choice young man. David exhausted every means to save his most unfilial son, not only from a parent's instinct, but because he knew the value of a strong young man. Solomon, seeing an industrious young man, made him an officer of his court, and this same young Jeroboam was to receive ten out of the twelve pieces into which God would rend the Kingdom. The great prophet Elisha needed the personal attendance and care of a young man. But the Psalmist realizes that youth, which because of its strength and freshness is capable of the highest success, is also, because of the thick snares and strong temptations that beset its way, subjected to the possibility of the most ignominious failure. And he cries out, not in despair, but in warning: "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way?" From his own experience he at once supplies the answer: "By taking heed according to thy word."

The many useful religious organizations among the young people of to-day attest the fact that there is no inconsistency between youth and practical Christian living. Religious work is not to be regarded as an affair of women and weak men. The soundest bodies, the keenest intellects and the purest lives of the world are engaged in this great work of altruism. The proper relation of Christian character to the life of the world is becoming plainer every day. Christianity is not inconsistent with the world, but it is hostile to the bad that is in the world. No earthly Christian is to be an angel; an angel could not dwell in a clayey body—but he is to be the very best of men; he is to bring heaven into his clay. The body can not sin; it is the soul that sins. The body is the instrument of the soul and a temptation to an evil soul; it might be the occasion of the soul's sinning. Just so the dollar might be the temptation of the rich, but the dollar can not sin.

There is nothing more beautiful than a young Christian. Goethe says: "The beautiful is higher than the good;" but the beautiful and the good are one. A man might be beautiful in face and immoral in heart,—then he has a good face and a bad heart. But what is beautiful is always good, and the good is always beautiful.

Yea, the very ideal of manliness and womanliness is in the character of the young Christian. The stronger the temptation and the greater the energy that must be repressed and guided, the more lovely and attractive is the life. Great power under perfect control is beautiful; the man with no passion and no energy to be subdued and controlled might be perfectly harmless, but can not manifest dignity and strength. Dignity is from self-control, and there can be no self-control where there is nothing to control. There is something far more sublime in piloting a trans-Atlantic steamer or driving a locomotive than in paddling a canoe or prodding an ox. An energetic body of young people, guiding their lives with Jesus Christ as their cynosure, is like the mighty vessel plying through dangerous seas, guided by a compass, delicate but true.

The Christian religion is inclusive of the whole life—body, mind nd soul—time and eternity. To be a Christian is, as Pope says, to be the "highest style of man." It is certainly not the "highest style of man" to have good character, bright mind and weak body; nor to have good character, strong body and an uncultivated intellect; nor to have a perfect physique, brilliant mind and a bad heart. The highest style of Christian neglects no one of these three great phases of life.

In earlier Christian history the body was contemned, blamed and abused. Mortify the body, was the motto. Yea, men often inflicted upon the body punishment for the sins of the soul. That is as foolish as to blame the horse for the deeds of the rider, or to punish the anvil for the mistakes of the smith—for the body is the tool of the mind and soul.

Prejudice against the body was far-reaching in effect. It made men despise the beauties of classic art. The cynic priesthood endeavored to stamp out the evidences of ancient Greek and Roman civilization; they broke their statues and erased their manuscripts. The Dark ages came. But the instincts of men could not be destroyed, and the Renaissance was ushered in, which was no less than the revival of beauty and the resurrection of the body of art. The carved fragments were collected, the dogmas of priests were erased from the parchments, and from the Palimpsest was deciphered the beautiful literature of Pagan humanity.

The body is no longer under the ban; it is to be cherished and made strong—it is the residence of the mind and the interpreter of the soul. The very first step in the making of a man is to be a good animal.

We must have clean bodies. A tidy woman will not keep an unclean house, and a pure mind cannot dwell in an impure body. As a daily prayer should cleanse the soul, so a daily bath should cleanse the body. The paralellism between mind and matter does not permit a strong and active mind in an ill-kept, unhealthy body; mens sana in corpore sano.

Even temperance in its relation to the body can be argued on the basis of hygiene and sanitation. Is the material to be taken into the body food? Will it nourish the body and increase vitality? Or does it tend to weaken vital functions and destroy life? Will it lessen my self-control and so endanger my body, the habitation of my soul? And ever afterward comes the higher moral question: Will not my example mislead my weaker neighbors? This is a fearful question to every conscientious man.

Not only is the body to be kept pure and undefiled, but it is to be made strong. Every able-bodied young person should be something of an athlete, should give some time to play. A young life without play is a world without a song. God's "out-of-doors" should be the only thing large enough for the ebulliency of youth. An unused life dies; life expended multiplies. The saver of his life by non-exercise loses it by decay. The unused organ perishes; Nature builds nothing in vain. Play is the complement of orderly work.

But there is something in man greater than the body. The body is much but mind is more. "Nothing great in the world but man; nothing great in man but mind." The power of a brain cell is more adorable than the strength of the muscle fibre. The greatest powers of the universe are the subtle, intangible, invisible. No one ever perceived by eye or ear or touch the strings, the bodiless web of gravitation; yet it is a mighty force which ties the hill to the earth and tethers the earth to the sun. The most powerful microscope which can draw down the moon into the laboratory and reveal to the eye a million million miles away a nebula, the embryon of a universe, can not detect a thought upon the brain; yet out of these invisible thoughts of the minds of men has been constructed the whole marvelous fabric of human civilization. The hand never moves with design, the ear never hears, the eye never sees, the heart never beats, unless it is prompted by this ultimate agent seated in the brain and nerve of man.

How can a man respect the body and not worship the mind?

The mind is, of course, superior to the hand, though the hand is necessary to the mind. One can not think a chair together; the hand must execute the plans of the mind. Neither can one put a chair together without thought; the mind must plan the executions of the hand.

Cultivate your minds. A man without mind is an animal; his body has all the functions of the body of the horse and all the mortality of the body of the worm. Human life is more than meat and raiment. One headful of thought may outweigh garners of gold coin. Aristotle's ideas and Galileo's systems live and move when Croesus' money and Rome's temples are all dust. The pyramids of the Pharaohs will have returned to the level of the valley of the Nile, while the influence of Egyptian thought will be traceable in every civilization of the future. What Englishman is there to whom the Elizabethan Age is not old? But what Englishman is there to whom Shakespeare's mind is not new?

If a young man grows up with no attention to mental culture he might become a "good animal," but can not be a man. Most of the habits of mind, like the habits of body, are formed before the termination of youth. Such is the parallelism between matter and mind, body and spirit, that when the former is young and pliant the latter is moldable and impressionable. Of course, the mind grows and develops after the body has reached its full growth; but when the body is weak and declining, intellectual power is lessened.

The superiority of mind over matter is seen in the differences between mental and material wealth. The one is diminished by use, the other increased. The one can be stolen, the other is intangible. The one diminishes in division, the other multiplies in imputation. The value of the one depends upon the appraisement of the market, the value of the other is intrinsic. The one is corruptible, the other incorruptible; the one temporal, the other eternal; one of earth, one of heaven.

But there is something in life which is greater than intellectual power; it is spiritual force. Genius is more marvelous than calculation. Spirit transcends intellect. Calculation can give the exact description of natural things; but genius creates and paints ideals—ideal landscapes, ideal forms and ideal characters. Calculation advances by plodding, but genius goes forward with leaps and bounds. Calculation must be stilted every step, but genius leaps through ethereal space. Calculation sees what is before its eyes, but genius peers beyond the veil. Calculation is something, but genius is everything.

Such, too, is the superiority of spirit over intellect. The intellect includes, pervades and is determinate with this world and this life; but the spirit lays hold of the eternal. Mere calculation is after all very limited in its power; it can lay before us the details of time, but can not give one glance into the eternities. But faith,

Pulpit Sayings and Proverbs

By Rev. J. C. Houston

Honesty never frowns at a rule that requires the proof of its existence, but delights to show its hand and thus throw light upon the truthfulness of its claims.

Men may differ in opinion without differing in feeling, but will find it difficult to differ in feeling without differing in opinion.

He who walks with his back to the sun walks in his own shadow, and thus views an exact picture of his worst enemy.

One should not seek power at the cost of liberty, nor at the expense of virtue. Power without the use of the former is helpless, and without the strength of the latter is destructive.

Some people think that freedom means the liberty to do wrong, but wrong-doing destroys freedom and buries liberty and leaves the actor a destitute slave.

The man who sees the faults of others but never sees his own should use his mirror more and his spectacles less.

He who leaps over the little duties of life to reach the high places will likely miss the object of his wish, having leaped over the steps that lead to it.

One who lives for the good of others lives to live and dies to reign.

In the world of Courage, steel in the heart weighs more than gold in the pocket.

The seed of love will bring love when the soil in which it is planted is productive. It does not always fall on good ground.

A bee was given his sword to defend his home, and he handles it with a good deal of scientific activity when the approach of an intruder makes it necessary. It seems that some people might profit in the study of this example.

He who excuses himself from duty accuses himself of weakness and abuses his opportunity for doing good when he could.

When one allows his nature to run to weeds the profound need is the application of a good hoe, and the sooner applied the better for the crop and ultimate harvest.

He who does not die to live lives to die, and when dead will remain dead because he did not live to live.

Conscience is the angel of the soul, the queen of the human temple, and in the willing discharge of the sacred function of her lofty office her voice is not compulsory, but divinely persuasive, and when allowed to reign without the tyrannical obstructions of a depraved will, the tranquillity of her kingdom becomes the beauty of the earth and the joy of heaven.

He who kills his conscience kills his best friend, but the house in which this friend lies a corpse is more dead than its lifeless inhabitant.

Trying to build a life without Divine grace is like trying to twist a rope of sand. It falls to pieces as fast as you get it together and goes to naught without having left any mark or trace of its existence.

Some church people are like alligators and snakes—they crawl into their holes in the winter, where they supinely rest in the sweet repose of their walls of dense obscurity until the warm rays of the spring sun awakes them from their long slumber, and again thaws them into activity, and now appear as conspicuous as if they had not been sleep all winter.

A hypocrite is like a wagon—he won't go unless he is pulled or pushed (except down hill), and makes most noise when empty.

Some church folks are like bats—they seem by the peculiar bent of their nature to sleep all day and fly at night.

He who backslides travels in the dark, for his eyes are before him, and thus he reaches his destination of ultimate destruction without seeing the way of his feet or the sad end of his road.

The backslider never walks—he slides; therefore his journey is down hill. People never slide up hill.

Love which I control is not love, but that which controls me and absorbs the self which I call mine until it is lost in the bosom of its sweetness and then that which is left of me is the fragrance of righteousness which sweetens all with whom it comes in contact and dispels all bitterness by the gentle overflow of its tenderness.

Love in the House of God is like fire in the midst of lead. It melts all of the parts together and thus makes the feeble many one powerful whole.

New York Letter

By L. H. Smith

After a careful investigation by the Health Board and the Charity Organization Society into the ravages of tuberculosis and its affect upon the different races of people living in this great cosmopolitan centre, a new clinic was recently opened in the Health Department Building at Sixth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, for the sole treatment of Negro patients. Colored physicians and a nurse have been placed in attendance. It was found that the mortality from consumption and pulmonary trouble was infinitely greater among colored people than among other races. Believing that Negro doctors better understood their own people and could therefore make a more careful and thorough study of the disease and its treatment with this class of patients, they were installed at the clinic. The health officials have vigorously fought the spread of this dread contagion for years and large sums of money are spent annually in the pursuit of this work. In learning the conditions as they exist among the Negroes valuable assistance was given the investigators by a sub-committee to the Charity Organization Society composed of colored physicians and ministers appointed for the purpose, the chairman of which is the Rev. Dr. W. H. Brooks. This sub-committee will be in immediate charge of this work but will act under the general supervision of the society.

The Board of Education of the City of New York has decided to open three industrial night schools. One of these schools are to be established in the Borough of Manhattan and Public School No. 80, formerly known as the Colored School, has been selected. Dr. William L. Bulkley, a distinguished Negro educator, is principal and several of his staff of teachers and nearly all of the pupils are colored. This move is believed to be a direct aim to give industrial education to the colored youth of this city. Dr. Bulkley and a committee from the Board are visiting the different churches, interesting the people in the project, which needs only their support.

A movement is in progress to establish a Neighborhood House in Newark, N. J., for Afro-Americans and considerable local interest is centered in the work. Social settlements have been in existence for years among German-Americans, German-Jews, Italians, Greeks and other foreign-born people, but the Afro-American has manifested little interest in this phase of city life. Much good has been done other nationalities by the settlement workers and it is to be hoped that the Newark movement will prove beneficial to the colored people. Miss Sarah Hunt, a graduate of Atlanta University and a member of the faculty of Tuskegee Institute, has been appointed head resident.

The annual concert of St. Mark's Lyceum, held on May 25, will occupy a conspicuous place in the list of high-class musical entertainments given in this city during the past season, which was brilliant for its social festivities. The programme included A. Adolphus Haston, a Canadian bass soloist, who is fast becoming popular in musical circles; Miss Myrtle Hart, a harpist from the West: Miss Ella Thomas, violinist, and William D. Moore, a promising young baritone.

An entertainment for the benefit of Salem M. E. Church was given at St. Mark's Church on Wednesday evening, June 7, by the young people of the church. It proved quite a success and encouraging to pastor and congregation. Salem Church is a mission church set off by St. Mark's, and is prospering under the able pastorage of Rev. F. A. Cullen.

hope and love are spiritual X-ray forces which look through the silence, the obscurity and capacity of even death and the grave, disclosing eternity. This is why we put the spiritual life at the head of all the hierarchy of all the phases of life.

All the great men of history, whether of Christendom or Heathendom, did not calculate their way through the world, did not think their lives out from beginning to end, but triumphed through the superior force of spirit. The great painters have not delineated their beautiful forms from a headful of geometry, but created them from a soulful of ideals. The greatest statesmen are not simply skilled in the laws of commerce and trade, but are examples of the ideal life of their people. The best teachers do not exert their influence only through books, but through the breadth and inspiration of their noble souls.

Never underestimate the power of spirit because it can not be calculated on an abacus or measured with a tape. The more wonderful is it!

We should strive hard for physical strength, harder for intellectual development, but above all let us yearn and sacrifice for spiritual elevation. Out of spirit come all the graces which make life beautiful, all the sentiments which make life dear. It is the tie that binds in patriotism and universal brotherhood; it is the fire of religion, and the lawgiver of morality. Moral laws can reach and cover questions which statutes can not.

The ideal Christian organization for the young is one which cultivates all these three sides of their growing lives—Body, Mind and Soul, or spirit. Each has its place and performs its part in the lives of the noble. God remove all narrowness in regard to any one of them. But whenever a sacrifice is to be made, whenever a loss is to be suffered, the lowest should go first. A man should count his bodily life second to his intellectual life, but should estimate above all else the life of the soul.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

"The Father Himself Loveth You"

BY SARA ALBEY.

Weary of roving, O Father, am I,
Through valleys so dark and o'er mountains so high!
For home and for rest in sorrow I sigh!
  My Father, I long for Thee now!
My hands are so sin-stained, my garments are worn;
My feet with the briars are wounded and torn;
With heartbroken wailing my wand'rings I mourn;
  In humble contrition I bow.

Dear Homeland, I dream of thy pastures so green;
Thy still waters, flowing the fair banks between;
To drink of thy pureness my thirst is so keen;
  To lave there my fever-scorched brow!
I cannot, I dare not, my steps homeward turn;
The pure ones who dwell there the wand'rer would spurn.
For love and compassion in anguish I yearn,
  My Homeland, I long for thee now!

But hark! from above me a soft voice I hear;
In accents that move me, so tender, so clear!
"My child, I still love thee; e'en now I draw near,
  To press on thy sin-fevered brow
The kiss of forgiveness, of welcome and peace;
To bid thee from sorrow and wand'ring to cease.
O, long have I sought thee, from sin to release;
  Fear not; I will care for thee now."

Compassionate Father, Thou only canst know
The depths of my heart; how its tides overflow;
A poor wayward child—yet Thou lovest me so!
  In humble thanksgiving I bow.
My soul now is filled with Thy wonderful love;
Henceforth in Thy service my footsteps shall move;
From Homeland and Father no more can I rove;
  My Father will care for me now!

There is but one standard for the Christian, "be ye therefore perfect," and one example, "your Father."

A Chinaman in American garb and some people in their religious experience seem much alike; uncomfortable.

To be sober and sedate is not to be morose. Levity is not always a mark of cheerfulness. You may be sober and yet cheerful.

"Hypocrites in the church." Certainly. No one denies it. The wonder is there are not more, for every good thing is counterfeited.

It grieves us to lose money carelessly. Yet how many through carelessness lose blessings from God and never seem to mind it at all.

Effort that gets folks into the church but not into the Kingdom is futile. To get them saved into the Kingdom, is the important thing.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you they have their reward. From whom do you want yours, God or man? It will come from one or the other, not both.

If you mean by besetment giving way to anger and an unbridled tongue you need to have Jesus cure you of the besetment, for it is sin. "The wages of sin is death."

When God speaks that ends it. There is nothing left for us but to do what He says. When He says, "Be perfect," it is our business to be perfect or disobedient.

Would you be willing for men to know your thoughts as well as hear your words, and to know your motives as well as see your actions? We seem to forget that God knows and takes cognizance of them all.

There is but a slight connection between the trolley and the wire, but because both are in touch with the power house big things are accomplished. If two of you agree on earth as touching anything they shall ask of my Father in heaven it shall be done for them. Two in touch with the Father are like the trolley and wire in connection with the power house—can do great things.

Always With Us

I lay my hand on your aching brow,
  Softly so! And the pain grows still.
The moisture clings to my soothing palm,
  And you sleep because I will.

You forget I am here? 'Tis the darkness hides,
  I am always here, and your needs I know.
I tide you over the long, long night
  To the shores of the morning glow.

So God's hand touches the aching soul,
  Softly so! And the pain grows still;
All grief and woe from the soul He draws,
  And we rest because He wills.

We forget—and yet He is always here!
  He knows our needs and He heeds our sighs;
No night so long but He soothes and stills
  Till the dawn-light rims the skies.

Our Influence

BY REV. W. L. WATKINSON.

"Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out."—Solomon's Song 4. 16.

"One of the most mysterious elements of flowers is the perfume, the essential action of which in plant life cannot be demonstrated by the wisest of our scientific men. Gas can be weighed, but not scent. The smallest known insect that lives in the heart of a rose can be caught by a microscope-lens and made to give up the secret of its organization, but what it is that the warm summer brings us from the wild flowers of the hillsides or wafts to us from the choice exotics of the hothouse no man has been able to determine. So fine, so subtle, so imponderable, it eludes weights and measures."

Does not this subtle fragrance remind us of the strange, sweet influence that distills from genuine souls? No one can exactly understand this influence; it defies explanation. Unlike speech that can be heard, gifts which can be estimated, acts that appeal to the senses, or conduct whose features may be described, influence is altogether ethereal and illusive; yet it is a fact, and one of the most delightful of facts. It is almost impossible to write a biography of some of the very choicest of God's children. They have charmed, helped ,and inspired us, moulded our character, deeply influenced us for good, made it possible for us to believe in the highest ideals, and yet when we sit down with love and reverence to give an account of them we are quite at a loss what to set down. The biographer lacks material; yes, material, just that, the greatest fact in life being the immaterial. We cannot describe the scent of the sweet-briar, paint the odor of the rose, take a photograph of the sweet smell of the field that the Lord has blessed, or track through the air the pervasive breath of pink and carnation, of violet and primrose; neither can we write a memoir of some of the most delightful and influential of saints. Lives of very little real importance sometimes furnish incidents enough to fill a big book, while all that is interesting touching a multitude of brave and gracious men and women easily goes into a single page, just as the smallest phial contains the essence of ten thousand roses.

Many Christians are really and eminently serving the cause of God by simply diffusing the sweet influences of true, consecrated character. They cannot fill a responsible office, play a prominent part, or effect anything worthy of record; yet they charm and bless all about them as the flower of the field diffuses vitality and health. Their smell is as Lebanon, that is all. Yet how much this virtue shed on the desert air means! Example that has no voice, the commonplace deed that secures no chronicle, the personal magnetism that defies analysis—these are precious, silent forces making for righteousness. No philosophy can explain the mysterious elements of Christian influence; but such influence is the supreme force working in society for its purification and uplifting. Let us aim at the sincerest, deepest, purest personal life, and we shall bless the world more than we think: we unperceived by ourselves, be enriching it all day long with the ethers of heaven.—From "Studies in Christian Character, Work and Experience."

"Blessed are they which hunger and thirst after righteousness. They need not expect to be filled, but such hunger and thirst is commendable." (From the unwritten Bible.)

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text: II Cor. 11: 14. Theme: Some Very Remarkable Things About the Devil. (II.)

That the devil is persevering is further seen in the fact that, notwithstanding all Christian men and women are against him, he is still hard at work trying to allure, decoy, and entrap them. The Gospel has declared the devil to be an outlaw, the father of lies, a seducer, and a traducer; a religious tramp, a bloody cut-throat, and spiritual villain of many thousand years—yet is still as faithfully at work as though not a had been said against him and his nefarious business.

The devil is sagacious. He never openly disputes the truth. He never tells a barefaced lie. He never attempts at once to persuade a man to do an unreasonable thing. He never puts himself into an evil object. He has marvelous discernment and wonderful power of penetration. He is quick of thought. One has said: "I would give more the criticism of one sagacious enemy than for those of a score of admirers." The devil never forces a man to do wrong. He only persuades, allures and seduces his victims on to death.

Thoughts of Gold. All the very remarkable things that may be said about the devil do not make him good—no, not for a single moment. If men believed in all of the plan of salvation as the devil, they would now be saved. If all men were as faithful in the discharge of business concerning themselves as the devil, there would be no place for him to slip in and spoil the soul. If Christians were as energetic as the devil, every nation on earth, and every individual in the world, would hear the glorious news of salvation within the next twelve months. If the friends of Jesus were as courageous and as persevering as the devil, the cause of God would not suffer as it does for true witnesses, faithful messengers, fearless defenders, and constant supporters. If the followers of Christ were as sagacious as the devil, righteousness and peace would have all men as advocates, and they would quickly foresee the evil intent and malice of satan and thus escape his wily snares. If men were as mighty in persuasion and its uses as the devil, the whole world would become Christian in a few days. Now, dear friends, if the devil does all of this, at the same time knowing that he can not finally succeed, that he will be conquered and eternally driven out of the world into hell, where he, death, and hell shall be cast into a lake of fire, how much more ought you to use your utmost power to push forward the work of God, knowing that He loves you, and was in Christ Jesus reconciling the world of sinners lost unto Himself.

The Will Not Clubs Endorsed

A Timely Suggestion

REV. B. T. PERKINS, A. M.

"The Will Not Club" by our beloved Bishop W. F. Mallalieu is a timely suggestion; something must be done to save our boys and girls from the baneful influences at work for evil in every city, town, and hamlet. We are not reaching the crap-shooters and whisky drinkers; then it is up to us to keep that class from reaching our boys now in the Sunday school. Let us organize "The Will Not Club" in every school and Junior League. Begin early; we have delayed long already.

Washington, D. C.

Key the Problem

BY REV. J. W. TATE, D. D.

I think the idea as advanced by Bishop Mallalieu, with reference to the organization of "Will Not Clubs," in all our churches and Sunday schools is indeed superb. It starts at the right place and at the proper time. The boy is the father of the man. It is the duty of the church, as far as possible, to see that her boys, especially, are fortified against dissipation and intemperance by giving them the proper training. It is a fact, beyond question, that the groundwork of character is laid in youth; and to the defective or faulty training of the boy may be almost always traced the obliquities of the man. I therefore most heartily endorse the proposed plan of the Bishop; for as I see it, there is simply one available human remedy that will reach the disease and check the destructive tendencies to body, mind and soul, as mentioned by the Bishop; and that is an organized body, such as "The Will Not," backed by the power of God, and fighting upon the principles of "Total Abstinence." The "Will Not Club" gives us the key to the much perplexed problem of how we might meet the iniquitous practice, that is blasting with the mildew of death the aspirations of our youth. Let us have it.

Keynote to Salvation

BY REV. B. M. HUBBARD, D. D.

I think "The Will Not Club" as proposed by our venerable Bishop Mallalieu, if put into operation, will strike the keynote to the salvation of the twentieth century youth. The proposed pledge is certainly capital.

Means New Life

BY REV. J. O. WILLIAMS.

I have just read of the recent visit and observation of Bishop Mallalieu to Louisville, Ky., and of his suggestion of an organization known as "The Will Nots." Since there are so few boys in our Sunday schools and churches, we ought to welcome any plan that will save them. Who knows but that thousands of young men will praise God through all eternity, that will date their beginning of a new life from the day they joined "The Will Nots"?

Needs a Constitution

BY REV. G. B. M'LEAN.

I think it will be up to some one to prepare a constitution and by-laws, including the pledge named by Bishop Mallalieu, and put on foot in our church a "Will Not" society.

Meets With Favor

BY REV. J. M. JOHNSON, D. D

Long live Bishop Mallalieu and "The Will Not Club!" It has the right ring and ought to meet with general favor, for it depicts life as it is in most cities. Men and boys are going to ruin by wholesale. This club, rightly managed, will do untold good. Then let us have at once a "Will Not Club" in every church and Sunday school in Methodism.

Enough Organization Already

BY REV. P. T. GORHAM.

I believe that every agency of the church is born of God; I further believe that we have enough machinery to save this world for Christ, if we will only see to it that all the machinery is at work. Our Sunday schools and churches include the pledge of "The Will Nots" and more; if they do not they are not Methodistic or Christ-like. We have enough organization—the great need of the hour is to set it all to work.

Timely and Worthy

BY REV. J. S. TODD, D. D.

I have read with care and delight Bishop Mallalieu's letter in the SOUTHWESTERN of this week titled, "The Will Not Club." His suggestion to organize such a club for the purpose mentioned is timely and worthy of serious consideration. What the good Bishop saw on one Sabbath in Louisville, Ky., may be seen every day in every city of our country. The extent of intemperance, vice, and pollution is alarming! It seems to me that ministers and the leaders of the people would do well to organize such a club in all our churches. It is certain that something must be done to check the untimely "driving" of nails in their coffins. I agree with the Bishop that the pernicious habit of smoking cigarettes by the boys and young men of the present is beyond doubt undermining the better traits or habits, giving a substitution that shall be all the worse for them in the future. Strange to say that gambling in one form or the other has become so prevalent in this, our day, that so many people do not seem to be ashamed of it. At a glance one can see the evil of crap-shooting and the like gambling become more and more pugnant and less and less ashamed of. I am with Bishop Mallalieu, the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, and every other good man to help put down the use of tobacco in every form, the drink habit, and gambling. Neither of these habits is necessary nor helpful to society and laws ought to be made and enforced to break them up.

"I Will" the Pledge Needed

BY REV. JOHN W. ROBINSON.

In reference to "The Will Not Club" by Bishop Mallalieu, I'd like to say that the presumption is scarcely warrantable that such characters to whom the Bishop refers were frequenters of the church, League or the Sunday schools. If not, then more nor other clubs could solve the problem. The aim of this new club is not different from the league and temperance societies. When we solve the problem of reaching the unreached, of improved environments, higher ideals and a closer brotherhood among Christian men—it must come not through "Will Not Clubs" but, I modestly suggest, through positive aggressive Christians whose pledge of "I will" may lead them to service and sacrifice.

Some Instances of Self-Help at Bennett College

BY PRESIDENT J. D. CHAVIS.

The work, struggles, and the substantial growth of some of our smaller colleges are not well known to the general church and to the philanthropic public. Only the few who are near by, or who are thrown in touch with the real conditions, can fully appreciate the heroic work that some of these institutions are doing, and the sacrificing labors of the men and women who are faithfully serving in them.

Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., stands in the list of the smaller colleges of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Twelve years ago this June Bishop Hartzell asked the writer to take charge of this work. After careful consideration, I assumed the duties and burdens which at that time were embarrassing. The institution was in debt to the amount of over $3,000 there was a financial stringency throughout the nation; and the appropriation, which had been $3,500, was suddenly cut to $1,800. The president had to face this situation and provide for his faculty and the work out of this small appropriation. This condition obtained for about five years, when the appropriation was increased to $2,000. In the meantime the institution had grown in numbers and in grade of work, so that a new dormitory and larger facilities were imperative.

This was the time for strenuous efforts in self-help. As president, I took the field, and the North Carolina Conference, numbering then sixty-five members, responded to the call for a new dormitory for boys. The result was what is now Carolina Hall. Bishops Cranston and Hamilton, and Dr. Mason championed the cause in this effort as encouragement to those who were so bravely helping themselves.

The work of these trying years will ever be marked by the payment of more than $3,000 indebtedness, and the erection of the four-story brick dormitory, estimated at $14,000.

But Bennett College is still in a struggle. Thirteen years ago the faculty numbered six; the year just closed the faculty numbered twelve; but the present appropriation is $1,000 less than it was at that time. The fact is, these schools are doing more each year to meet the demand for self-support. Within the last two years, a splendid brick structure has been annexed to the girls' dormitory, every dollar of which is the result of self-help. This new building is 35x75 feet, covered with tin, and has cost already about $1,200. It contains a dining-hall, kitchen, and supply-room. The bricks were made on the college grounds by the boys, and much of the work of building was done by students and teachers. Ministers, friends and alumni have given every cent of the money raised thus far for this building. Water and lights have been put in, but the building is not yet finished. Teachers, students and a few special friends gave a new set of tables; Bishop McDowell gave us a full supply of the best iron-stone china dishes; Mr. D. W. Washington, of Memphis, Tenn., gave the first hundred dollars in memory of his wife, Dr. Georgia E. L. Patton-Washington, for whom the hall is named. When finished, this new hall will be easily worth $1,800. Money is needed now to finish this hall and to pay some debts that yet rest upon the school.

These are a few instances in which we have tried to help ourselves. Will not some friend who wishes to place a little money where it will do an everlasting good remember Bennett College? Bishop McDowell and Dr. Raymond, on their visit to the schools of the society, spent a day at Bennett College, visiting the class rooms and looking into the work. On coming out of one of the rooms, Bishop McDowell made this special remark to Dr. Raymond, "Now, if a man wants to put a thousand dollars where it will be a real blessing forever, here is the place, in this institution!"

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson II—July 9, 1905. Title—"Hezekiah's Prayer." (Isaiah 38: 1-8.) Golden Text.—"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." (Psa. 46: 1.)

I. Sickness. Time: "In those days." During the Assyrian invasion. The fourteenth year of the reign of Hezekiah. The King was at this time thirty-nine years of age. He lived fifteen years after this event. Person: Hezekiah was the son of Ahaz and Abijah. He was a good son raised by a bad father. He came to the throne when twenty-five years of age, and reigned twenty-nine years. His first work was to cleanse and repair the temple. He destroyed idolatry—even the brazen serpent made by Moses, and at this time worshiped by the Israelites. He endeavored to unite the tribes by a feast of the Passover. He conducted successful wars against the Philistines and Assyrians. He was miraculously healed by prayer. He died at the age of fifty-four, and was buried with the kings of Judah. Affliction: "Sick unto death." His disease was a boil, or carbuncle. The Jews said it was a result of the plague that came upon the Assyrians. It was proving fatal. The king was in a dying condition. All human beings are subject to the same laws of health, of accident, of disease, and of age. No one is exempt because of rank, piety, wealth, or authority.

II. Announcement. Messenger: Isaiah was the son of Amos. His name signifies, "salvation of Jehovah." But little is known of his early life and circumstances. He was married and resided in Jerusalem. He was a prophet sixty or more years. He has been called the Evangelistic prophet, because so many of his predictions refer to Jesus. He stands far above all the other prophets in the contents and spirit of his predictions, and in the beauty of his style. He suffered martyrdom by being sawed asunder under a tree near Jerusalem. Message: "Set thy house in order: for thou shalt die and not live." These are the words of the Lord spoken by Isaiah. When God speaks we should keep silent, give close attention, and obey promptly. This charge is a matter of business: make thy will, and arrange for a successor to the throne of Judah. Thy time has come to depart this life. It becomes necessary sometimes to tell persons, who are afflicted, that they are not going to get well. The human body is a house, the temple of God. It is fearfully and wonderfully made. The soul is the person which resides within. We are destined to die. Disease, accidents, enemies and age are constantly destroying the race. We should "set our house in order," or be ready when our time shall come. "Ye must be born again," and the life should be wholly consecrated to God.

III. Prayer. 1. "He turned his face towards the wall" in meditation and prayer. So he would not be confused by the sight of men. Some say to conceal his tears. It was a natural expression of strong feeling. Ahab turned away his face in anger, but Hezekiah did same in grief. Some think he turned his face towards the temple. 2. "He prayed unto the Lord." Prayer is the communion of the mind with God. From the time of Enos (Gen. 4: 26) down to the present people have been calling on the name of the Lord. We do not pray to inform God, but to express our need. Prayer may influence God to do for us that which He would not do if we did not pray. 3. "Remember now, O Lord, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight." This prayer is not a petition for the restoration of health, yet no doubt this was what he greatly desired. He surely believed he was going to die, and desired God to save his soul, hence the reference to truth, perfection, and good works. We must not regard this prayer in the interest of self-praise. The Old Testament economy centers in the law, that of the New Testament in the gospel. To walk according to the law was not to be morally pure, but to serve Jehovah as the only God. Hezekiah said this in the same spirit that Paul said, "I have fought a good fight." 4. "And Hezekiah wept sore," or with great weeping. Why did Hezekiah thus weep? Was it because he was unwilling to die? Some think so. Was it because he was in the prime of life? The Jews taught that death at this age was a judgment sent for some grave offense. Was it because his kingdom greatly needed him? This was at the time of the Assyrian invasion. Was it because he had no heir to succeed him on the throne? Manasseh was not born for three years after this. Were they tears of importunity? Jacob wept and made supplication unto the Lord.

IV. Answer. 1. "The word of the Lord came to Isaiah." Elsewhere we read that the prophet had not gotten to the middle of the court when he was told to return and tell Hezekiah the Lord had heard his prayer. We know not how this revelation was made; likely by mental impression. 2. "Thus sayeth the Lord, the God of David thy father." Jehovah is a covenant God. He made a contract with the patriarchs to save the world through Jesus the Anointed. Because of this contract He showed mercy to thousands. It is the same as asking a favor on the merits of Jesus. 3. "I have heard thy prayer." Jehovah is a prayer hearing God. He heard Abraham, Jacob, Moses, David, Solomon, Elijah, Jesus, and the apostles. He hears the petitions of His children to-day. 4. "I have seen thy tears." The disposition of heart, whatever it was, that caused Hezekiah to weep, touched the mind of Jehovah. The soul back of the mere act of praying constrained God to suspend the laws of nature and heal Hezekiah. There is something more in prayer than the position of the body, and the expression of thought in language. It is the soul that prays. 5. "I will add unto thy days fifteen years." We know of no other person to whom God revealed the time of his death. Such information would, we think, be hurtful to man. Here is an instance where prayer changed the course of nature and caused a man to live longer than he otherwise would have done. All men do not die when their time comes to depart this life. 6. "I will deliver thee, and this city, out of the hand of the king of Assyria." Hezekiah's sickness likely occurred between the first and second invasions of Sennacherib. It was probably this healing that changed him from a cringing, cowardly subject to a fearless ruler, and also caused him to repair the walls of Jerusalem and make many weapons of war. It should be remembered that the sacred writers do not always record events in chronological order. 7. "They took a lump of figs and laid it on the boil, and he recovered." These figs were pressed into a mass, or poultice. The use of figs in the cure of boils is attested by some ancient writers. He recovered in three days sufficiently to go into the house of the Lord. But the disease was so severe, and the healing so sudden, that all knew it was miraculous. The Lord healeth our diseases, but he works through agents and instrumentalities. A wise and good physician is a great blessing to any community. "The prayer of faith shall save the sick" (James 5: 15).

V. Sign. Hezekiah was impatient, and could not wait three days to test the words of the Lord. He asked for a sign. Isaiah wished to know if he would have the shadow on the dial to go forward ten degrees or backward ten degrees. The king asked for the latter. Isaiah cried unto the Lord and it was done. 1. Some have thought this miracle was wrought by turning the earth backward ten degrees in its axial revolution. It is not necessary to suppose so stupendous a miracle in this case. 2. Others exclude a miracle altogether and explain it as a case of refraction of solar light. Clouds in the higher regions of the air have caused such refractions that dials have been known to deviate an hour and a half. One instance is on record where an eclipse of the sun caused the shadow of the dial to go backward. (Whedon.) 3. But the shadow on the dial of Ahaz went backward in answer to prayer, and at a given time, which shows that it was miraculous. Divine wisdom and power, likely caused the clouds to appear in such position as to turn the rays of the sun from their direct course, and thus cause the shadow of the dial to go backward ten degrees. A boy with a mirror can throw a beam of light in any direction he wishes.

Lesson Topic, July 9.

The Indwelling Christ

Scripture References: Col. 2: 6-10; 3: 8-16.

The Word—

In our lesson Paul is exhorting the Colossian Christians to stalwart living based upon their experience of salvation. As they had received Christ they were to walk, to be rooted, to grow and be built up. They were thus to avoid being "spoiled" by worldly philosophy. This they were to do by being possessed by the "indwelling Christ" who was the Godhead. Possessed by him, they were to be complete in all the plenitude of his gracious gifts. In the second selection from the same epistle they were to demonstrate this "completeness" by putting away certain sins very common at that day. The fact of an indwelling Christ was to be evidenced by the putting off of the old man and the putting on of the new. And this new man was to be a renewed man bearing the image of Christ. The Christian is to incarnate Christ, even as he incarnated the Father.

Our Homily: Christ Incarnated in the Christian.

Jesus taught that the kingdom of God was within us; that it was a subjective kingdom of righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. The kingdom set up in the heart of man is a personal indwelling of a personal Christ. Christ is "formed in us the hope of glory." He abides in us and we are one with him. Other systems of religion are content to teach precepts; but Christ insists that we possess his life and spirit. No man is a "Christian" in the scriptural sense until he incarnates the spirit and life of Jesus. Notice how we may do this:

In Our Words. The tongue is an index of the heart. The speech manifests the spirit. Lying is to give place to truthfulness, filthy communications to cleanness and purity, blasphemy to prayer, and anger to kindness and charity. The most careful watchfulness of our language will be one characteristic of a new heart. The speech will be frank, clean, and pure if Christ dwell in us.

In Our Actions. There will be a radical change in the life of a man who has been converted. He will go to different places; he will associate in different company; he breaks off some habits and forms others. He ceases to do evil and learns to do well. He is not only negatively one who does not do evil things, but he is positively one who does good. He imitates his Master in going about doing good. He is not content to stop sinning; he begins to perform good works because of the impulse in him from the "indwelling Christ." He soon learns that only thus can he retain Christ in his heart and life.

In Our Spirit. Behind the words and actions lie the motives, the spirit of the life. Here will the indwelling Christ manifest his presence. The spirit will become gentle and sweet and pure. The unseen influence of the life will be wholesome and healthful. Constant companionship with the Christ within will transform the man into Christlikeness of spirit. Others will be impressed with the fact that he has been with Jesus and learned of him. This blessed presence and indwelling is the privilege and duty of every soul. No Epworth Leaguer should rest until he is certain that Christ thus indwells in his heart, and that thus his life is being transformed into the likeness of Jesus.—From Notes On the Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topics.

Weir, Miss.—From this place Rev. D. Green writes: "Children's Day was the grandest in the history of the church. The program was conducted by Bro. J. Murphy, the superintendent. Collection, $119.66."

Vaiden (Miss.) Circuit.—Children's Day was observed at each Sunday school. The school at Midway, raised $16.05;; Sand Hill, $10; Martin Grove, $6; Good Hope, $5; total for the day, $45.05. Rev. W. S. Leake, pastor.

Wilsonville, Ky.—The Children's Day program was well carried out. The superintendent, Mr. R. Simpson, conducted the services. The children did nicely. Collection, $33.43.

Greenville, Miss.—"Our Children's Day was a success. The program was well rendered to an appreciative audience. The superintendent, teachers and musical directors deserve much praise for their effort. Collection $13," writes Rev. J. M. Marsh.

Marion, Ala.—"The Children's Day program was nicely carried out at our church," writes Rev. A. G. Glenn, the pastor. "We raised that day $9.60. We are preparing to paint our church in which the District Conference will be held, July 26."

Union Springs, Ala.—"Our Children's Day was a blessing to us all. The program was well conducted by Miss Mary Nelson and Mr. J. H. Redrick, superintendent. Collection $6.80; collected for Easter, $12.69. Total, $19.49," writes Rev. O. Nelson, pastor.

Cedartown, Ga.—Dessie M. Lowery writes: "Children's Day was fittingly and successfully observed at New Hope Church. The program was rendered by the Sunday school and enjoyed by a large audience. Raised for missions, $2.87."

Natchitoches, La.—The Sunday school at Grand Ecore is alive and doing well. Under the leadership of Mrs. Rachael Emanuel, the children were well drilled for Children's Day. Raised $1. Rev. T. Larkins, pastor.

Tupelo, Miss.—From the pastor, Rev. J. C. McGee, comes the following report: "On Easter we raised $158; Children's Day, $58.92. We have almost cancelled the heavy debt against our church. The Sunday school is doing its whole duty and the Epworth League is gradually taking on new life."

Memphis, Tenn.—"Sunday was high day at Centenary. The official program for Children's Day was rendered. Collection, $24 for education. We had in our midst the Rev. Dr. Rhodes, who addressed the Sunday school and held a council wtih the officers and teachers of the Sunday school and at 6.30 p. m., also, the cabinet officers of the Epworth League. Dr. Rhodes gave life and vigor to our officers. He preached at 8 p. m. His presence greatly encouraged the church," writes S. A. Martin.

There is little doubt that we often judge men harshly because they have not all the graces we admire and think we possess, whereas we should compare very badly with them if we had half their difficulties and temptations. What we think is a stain may be only a scar got in winning a battle in which we should have had to succumb a certain look, a certain air about the man frets us—it may be only a token of some dreadful fight in the soul against a foe that would have conquered us long ago.—*T. Atlanta, (Ga.,) Letter

BY JAS. W. WOODLEE.

Methodism in Atlanta seems to have received new impetus. This is noticeable not only in the regular church services, but in the Epworth League and Sunday school conventions, and in the district and quarterly conferences.

A recent session of the Sunday school and Epworth League convention in East Atlanta, over which Presiding Elder E. H. Travis presided, brought out the fact that our church, for spiritual success, is without a peer in Georgia. This meeting was characterized by an undercurrent of brotherly love, for during the entire session not a single word of rebuke or controversy was heard. The reading of special papers from Chapters and Sunday schools was a feature. A little girl so splendidly read her paper that the whole audience was in tears, and it seemed as if "a little child should lead them."

Reports from all the conventions are of like nature. The city churches are in splendid condition. Fort Street Church has a pipe organ. Warren Chapel continues to make improvements. Gate City is at work with enthusiasm on her new edifice, "The Asiel Bowen Memorial."

The City Union Epworth League is in very good shape and promises good results this year. Central Avenue Church is again to the front this year with the other city churches in spiritual and financial work. The rally in May netted something over $800—and this has been probably increased to $1,000.

Sunday, June 11th, was an historical day with our church here. Present at the morning services were Dr. Rust, first secretary of the Freedman's Aid Bureau; Dr. Johnson, of the Board of Trustees; Rev. Standing, a pioneer in Methodism; Sec'y R. T. Weatherby of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. M. C. B. Mason spoke in the afternoon, as also did Rev. Melton, a former pastor.

The Conference Claimant

BY REV. H. W. KEY, D. D.

Whereas, a more adequate way to take care of the superannuated preachers, their widows and children, is needed and whereas we believe that when a preacher enters the traveling connection of the Methodist Episcopal Church is only limited in the extent of his itinerancy by the legitimate authorities of the church, and is not to consider the annual conference into which he enters or is received as the utmost limit of his traveling ministry, and

Whereas, the early policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church was to have the whole church aid in supporting the superannuated preachers of the connection, and

Whereas, by the later practice of the church the funds are expended in the conference where collected, making it very desirable to remain in what are known as the richer conferences and then have some protection for themselves and their families when worn out or disabled from any cause, and

Whereas, the policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church desires to give its active preachers only a comfotrable support while in the active work and aid them when superannuated or disabled;

Therefore, we recommend that a general fund controlled by a general society like the Missionary Society and other societies of the Methodist Church be established for this purpose.

The general government has advised under the leadership of our most excellent President Roosevelt that after a man has passed his sixty-fifth year he be allowed to retire from service and receive full pay for the remainder of his life according to rank. Mr. Andrew Carnegie has provided annuities from a fund of ten million dollars for college professors who are not able to continue in service, and why may not our church do likewise and provide a sufficient amount for the support of that worthy class that are worn out in the cause of the church and provide so that other who ought to retire may give room for young men and themselves be provided for.

For Three Weeks the following Questions have been asked: "What Does This Mean—October 31?" "October 31, Is the Great and Final Day—for What?" "What About October 31—Will You Be Ready?"

That day is swiftly approaching. Who will answer these great questions. This is to be a great day indeed. You ought to answer those questions yourself. Lest this day, take you as a thief we warn you. Be Ready:

BUY BOOKS OF US

We want your book business. In the adjustment of our business office the arrangements are now such that the profits which may accrue from the sale of books will go to meet the running expenses of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. So that, now, every book bought at this office helps that much toward self-support.

We are prepared to fill all orders for Sunday school suppplies and books of any description. We invite our presiding elders and pastors to cooperate with us in soliciting a full patronage of our conferences and to inform the congregations of its advantage: 1. It will enable us to know just how much we contribute to the general church by our purchases. 2. It will thus give us a credit and standing in the church and out of it which we have not hitherto had. 3. It will enable us to judge of the character and improvement of the people by the kinds of books they read. 4. It will help us to encourage the people to read along right lines, and hence aid the schools and ministry in their efforts to save the people. Send us your orders. Send for catalogues, price lists, etc. In ordering Sunday school periodicals, send your orders at least two weeks before the quarter expires. Always remember the golden rule when ordering—cash must accompany all orders. Address, Eaton & Mains, 429 Carondelet street, New Orleans, La.

We are to have a great church in St. Louis among our people. Union Memorial, of which Dr. R. E. Gillum is pastor, has a membership of 1,200. This congregation recently bought the Central Presbyterian Church, located at Garrison and Lucas avenues, the price being $40,000. The purchased property is a large and commodious building, splendidly located for the congregation of Union Memorial. There was some opposition to the property being sold to a colored congregation, but Central Presbyterian Church voted the sale with a vote of eighty-six to six. Dr. Gillum is to be congratulated. Dr. O. T. Fields, chairman of the Trustee Board, had a large hand in the consummation of the purchase, and he is, beyond a doubt, one of the most active and enthusiastic laymen that we know. He is ever on the alert for the interests of Methodism.

The Monitor is a bright paper published in Columbia, S. C., and has for its mission the expansion of Metohdism. Rev. R. L. Hickson, A. M., is editor and proprietor.

MRS. JOHN A. RUSH PASSES TO HER REWARD

The death of Mrs. John A. Rush was a shock to us all, but if ever one was prepared to meet death, Mrs. Rush was, and her dying testimony, "Jesus has me," was a fitting seal to her life of service and devotion. She was one of the choice spirits of the world, rarely found. She was sweet in disposition, sunshiny in temperament, and was active in the Master's business. Mrs. Rush was a product of Clark University, having entered that school in 1886, from which she graduated May 1892. She was born in Newton county, Georgia, April 25, 1868, and was united in marriage with Rev. John A. Rush, D. D., then of the North Carolina Conference, October 20, 1892. She joined her husband in his work on the Macpelah Circuit, one of the large and important charges of the North Carolina Conference, and here she adapted herself to the surroundings and was a great help to her husband. She was a queen in the home at all times and in the pastorate at Greensboro, N. C., where the exactions of the parsonage are critical and many, she brought dignity and strength, and her help had much to do with her husband's success. She was alike helpful in the large church at Winston, N. C. In 1899 she entered enthusiastically with her husband into the pastorate of Loyd Street Church, Atlanta, Ga. Six and a half years have been spent at this charge only to be loved the more as the time passed on. Mrs. Rush was a Sunday school teacher, president of the local Woman's Home Missionary Society, treasurer of the state organization and was full of good works. She was the mother of six children, one of whom preceded her to the land of rest. She was buried from Central Ave. Church, Atlanta, Dr. M. C. B. Mason delivering the principal eulogy. In our next week's issue a full account of Mrs. Rush's life will be published from the versatile pen of Miss Josie Holmes.

CLARK UNIVERSITY

Clark University has just closed an exceptionally prosperous year. The enrollment was 653, the largest by far in the history of the school, being fifty more than the highest number reached in any previous year, and 81 more than that of the year immediately preceeding. In the college, preparatory, and normal classes there were 222.

Commencement week was marked by exercises of a very high order. Rev. Davis W. Clark, D. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio, son of Bishop Clark, for whom the university was named, preached the baccalaureate. The doctor, a welcome guest both for his own sake and for his father's, preached us a sermon highly instructive and enjoyable. The address to the literary societies by Rev. J. E. White, D. D., of the Second Baptist Church, Atlanta, was able and inspiring.

On commencement day the university chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity, and large numbers turned away from the doors because of a lack of room.

The programme was excellently well rendered by the students selected for that purpose. The music, conducted by Prof. F. J. Work, was unusually fine.

Diplomas were granted to seven from the college and higher normal courses, certificates to seven from the common normal. The day closed as usual with the president's reception in the evening.

At the trustees' meeting, June 12, a movement was started to secure funds for the erection of a memorial hall in honor of Bishop Gilbert Haven. Five thousand dollars were subscribed by the trustees, a colored physician leading off with the first hundred. This movement, started in Atlanta, the residence of the Bishop, and the scene of his labors in behalf of the university, will doubtless appeal to the grateful hearts of thousands of our colored people in this southland, for Bishop Haven was the staunch, untiring friend of the race. Any desiring to contribute or subscribe may communicate with the president of the university, W. H. Crogman, South Atlanta, Ga.

COMFORT ORPHANS' HOME

The corner stone laying of the Comfort Colored Orphans' Home at Jackson, Miss., will be held on the 4th day of July, by the Stringer Grand Lodge Masons of Mississippi. The Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and all benevolent organizations are invited to participate in this great work. It will be quite a treat as well as a pleasure to come and see this beautiful building. Reduced rates over all the railroads runng into Jackson. Ample arrangements have been made with the I. C. R. R. Co., and special trains will carry all persons to the Orphanage between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3:30 p. m., for 15 cents round trip.

Program.—The corner stone will be laid at 2 p. m., by Stringer Grand Lodge. Addresses: "The Need of an Orphans' Home," by Prof. W. H. Lanier; "Power in Unity," by Rev. C. P. Jones; "Spirit of Benevolence," by J. L. Collins; "Shall the Churches Help," by Rev. J. C. Hibbler; "Hope of the Negro Race," by Dr. E. W. Lampton. Miss S. M. Rather and choir will furnish music. All pastors and their congregations are especially invited. Refreshments of all kinds will be on the grounds. We want everybody to give us something on that day, or send gifts to Rev. J. K. Comfort, president, to report for you. Get your name in. For further information address M. Byrd, general manager, Jackson, Miss.

J. K. COMFORT, President, Hattiesburg, Miss.

Mr. Chas. H. Stewart, or "J. O. Midnight," addressed on Sunday, June 11th, the Young Men's Christian Association, of Mobile, Ala. Among the three hundred young men who were present, and we know benefited by his remarks, Dr. H. Roger Williams is spoken of as "one of the leading spirits."

Personal and General.

SOME SPEAKERS AT DENVER

In our last week's issue considerable space was devoted to announcements concerning the forthcoming Epworth League Convention, to be held in Denver, Colorado. Unavoidably a number of cuts were omitted because of delay. Rev. G. W. Stewart is the brilliant and popular secretary of the Epworth League Department of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. He has the distinction of having made his department pay its running expenses during the past year. Dr. Stewart's picture appears in another column. Among those who are to appear on the program are two very distinguished representatives of the race. Prof. John W. Gilbert, A. M., will speak before the Convention and no doubt will make a splendid impression. He is a graduate of Brown University and studied for several years Greek in Athens and speaks modern Greek fluently. He took his Hebrew at Gammon Theological Seminary. He is at present Professor of Latin and Greek at Payne Institute, Augusta, Ga. Another representative is Prof. Geo. A. Stephens, A. M., principal of the Virginia Collegiate Institute, an annex to Morgan College, located at Lynchburg, Va. Prof. Stephens has had brilliant success as principal of this, one of our most important educational plants. He is a pleasing and convincing speaker and his assignment to a responsible place on the program is a fitting tribute to his ability. The interest will not lag when Prof. Stephens speaks.

LOUISIANA.

Charenton, O. J. Harvey, Pastor—Sunday, May 28, at Godman M. E. Church, was the re-laying of the corner stone. It was one of the greatest days ever known in the history of our church. The sermon was preached by our worthy presiding elder, the Rev. W. R. Butler. Among the visiting pastors were Revs. J. D. Pool of Crawford, E. B. Richards of Baldwin, D. B. Brown of the A. M. E. Church. Collection for the day, $105.95. Too much praise can not be given to Mrs. O. J. Harvey, M. Washington, M. Corner, Viola Lyons, and others.

Lutcher, M. C. Harrison—Our first quarterly conference was quite a success. Every member paid his quarterage before the elder got on the ground. The love feast Friday night was a blessing. Sunday night Rev. Marshall preached a strong sermon: the spirit of the Lord visited us. The stewardesses made a good report. We are preparing to entertain the District Conference July 26.

Monroe, R. F. Long, Pastor—St. Paul M. E. Church is making rapid strides of progress. Spiritually, she is at high water mark. We are in the midst of a great revival, having gained twenty happy souls since we have started. Financially, we are not behind the record of past years. Collection on Sunday night was $44.50. The Stewardesses' Band under the presidency of Mrs. M. E. Long, is doing very good work for the church. Their effort to raise funds for the church resulted in their raising $18.25. Miss Fanny Brodie, our organist for the League, deserves much credit for her faithfulness. It is expected that by the first of May there will not be one cent debt on our church. The young ladies are now planning to put a nice fence around the church. Notwithstanding that this congregation was only five years old on the 23rd of last month, they have stipulated to pay the pastor, this year, $552, or $11.50 per week. The Willing Workers' Band, under the leadership of Miss Hattie Grant as president, is wide awake to the duties envolved upon them. The Daughters of Conference, under the leadership of Miss Nellie Grant, is of much service in the revival. The Steward Daughters' Band, led by Miss Matilda Ford, will no doubt take the lead in the Easter exercises, assisted by all the young ladies and men of the church. The ladies of St. Paul were the first to give the new presiding elder a reception. This reception was led by the steward sisters.

Franklinton, R. W. Young, Pastor—Rev. J. F. Marshall was with us April 1, and found things in very good shape. We are always glad to see our beloved presiding elder. Paid him $8. We thank the members and friends for storming the parsonage April 15, Saturday night, with 75 pounds of all kinds of groceries, headed by Brothers and Sisters of all churches.

Marksville, A. Norman—The work at this point is moving all right. We have a good Sunday school here and a good day school. Mrs. J. D. McCain is the teacher and she has everything in good shape.

MISSISSIPPI.

Greenville—Mrs. Amelia McCauley, president of the Greenville District Woman's Home Missionary Society, was with us June 11, 1905, and organized a Woman's Home Missionary Society in our church. Officers: Mrs. Anna Mitchell, president; Mrs. Lula Simmons, vice-president; Mrs. M. B. Moore, secretary; Mrs. Mollie Griffin, treasurer; Mrs. Bettie Pierce, manager, and Mrs. J. M. Marsh, corresponding secretary.

Temple Charge, C. H. Blake, Pastor—Our second quarterly conference, Epworth League and Sunday School Convention has been held. It was a success. Raised for pastor, $38.54; for presiding elder, $18.53; Epworth League, $34.57; total, $91.64.

Leaksville, M. J. Bullock—Sunday, April 30, was a great day in Leaksville with the little band of heroic Methodists. For some time those people have been wanting a new church, but they somehow had not really got in earnest. Rev. A. S. Cottingham began to plan for a rally sometime in the early part of the year. His plans were carefully laid. The little handful of members, less than a hundred in number, was divided into twelve different tribes, each named after one of the twelve tribes of Israel. Over each tribe there was a major and a captain appointed to lead the host. Each tribe was asked to raise at least $30.00, which would be an average of $2.75 per member. They went to work, to report on the fifth Sunday in April. The tribes reported that Sunday $630.48. Previous to this collection there had been a deposit made of about $220, making in all in the bank for the new church at Leaksville about $850. One more such an effort as this will give them sufficient money to erect their church clear of debt. If they do this, they will excell anything in the North Carolina Conference. The plans and specifications are being put into the hands of the contractors and it is expected that the Methodist people of Leaksville will be worshiping in their new church at least by the next annual conference. If any brother brings a more glowing report to Maxton at the annual conference than does Brother A. S. Cottingham, he will have to hustle. Dr. J. P. Morris was with Bro. Cottingham and did good service.

OHIO.

Bellaire Circuit, R. F. Broaddus, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held here April 30-May 1. Rev. E. A. White presiding. Sunday, the elder preached very able sermons and administered sacrament to 65 communicants. This session of the conference was very pleasant and profitable. Reports show great advancement on all lines. Pastor's salary was increased by $50. Collections for the day $52.25. The outlook for the year is bright. On Wednesday evening the young men of Bridgeport tendered the presiding elder, Rev. E. A. White, a reception, which was well attended. The following gentlemen made short addresses. Revs. G. Simmons, E. W. Kinchen, Mt. Pleasant, O., and Rev. E. A. White, P. E. An excellent luncheon was served and a very pleasant hour was spent.

Steubenville, H. A. Foreman, Pastor.—On Friday, May 5, Rev. E. A. White, presiding elder, arrived in our city. At night a reception was tendered him, the pastor and wife, by the members and friends of Simpson's M. E. Church. A nice programme was arranged. It left an impression that cannot be effaced. Sunday the crowning day, Rev, White seemed at his best. Our collections were taken and at the close of the day the stewards reported $36.55.

TENNESSEE.

Friendville, C. R. Russell, Pastor.—From a supper given recently $7.55 were realized for the lumber of the new M. E. Church. Our young people have organized and are at work. We hope to hold our third quarterly conference in the new church.

Clifton, A. Ransom, Pastor.—St James Chapel is taking on new life. Since October 20, 1904, we have raised altogether more than $300. Raised this quarter, $25. Our collection the second Sunday in May was $91. The last Sunday our presiding elder was with us we collected $24.65. The elder preached two good sermons during the day. Forty-eight persons communed at night. We are paying off every debt of the church.

Dayton, M. L. Eskridge.—Rev. G. H. Crider, Pastor.—Our second quarterly meeting was held here March 12-13, Rev. J. B. L. Williams presiding. The membership presented written reposts. The elder preached seven soul-stirrng sermons which resulted in a glorious revival with eleven conversions and seven accessions to the church. Rev. Williams seemed to think the charge in better condition than it has been during his administration. Bro. Crider is one of the best pastors on all lines of church work we have ever had. Paid the pastor this quarter, $94.73; traveling and moving expenses, $12.17. Paid the elder in full $17.60, trustees $46.96, benevolence $6.26. Total for the quarter $177.72.

Smyrna, H. E. Ervin, Pastor.—The second quarterly conference of the M. E. Church was held March 25-6 by Rev. W. R. Smith. It was one of great interest. The reports showed that the work had greatly revived. On Sunday three sermons were preached. At 11 o'clock a. m. Rev. W. R. Smith preached a wonderful sermon. During the conference we raised $23.85; for all purposes this quarter, $87.75.

Sharon and Union City, S. . Strayhome, Pastor.—On March 26-27 Rev. J. A. W. oore, D. D., Presiding Elder held our second quarterly conference. Quite a number of the members presented written reports. Raise in the quarterly conference $19. Paid the elder $10.50 in full for this quarter; pastor, $90 trustee, $50. Total, $159. We are now in a gracious revival—seven converts up to date. Rev. J. W. Richman, of Martin Station, is assisting the pastor.

Murfreesboro, C. E. Alexander, Pastor.—I have just closed (April 3) a most successful revival. Twenty-seven were happily converted to God and eighteen joined our church. The church seems to be very greatly revived. The house was full to overflowing every night for two weeks.

TEXAS.

San Antonio, H. Swann, Pastor—The Woman's Auxiliary of the St. Paul M. E. Church at San Antonio, Texas, divided into five clubs, have again raised the standard of the old church on the roll of honor. Sunday, May 28th, closed their great Spring Bazaar and rally, in which $635.14 were raised. The following named ladies, as captains, with their forces worked hard for success, and in spite of almost continuod rains and washouts were able to make this creditable report: Club No. 1, Mrs. M. J. Swann, $56.33; No. 2, Mrs. R. A. Campbell, $117.43; No. 3, Miss M. Maverick, $41.58; No. 4, Mrs. A. Cooke, $180.30; No. 5, Mrs. M. Woods, $204.50; No. 6, led by our honored physician and tiereless superintendent, Dr. G. J. Starnes, $35.00, making a grand total of $635.14, for which all concerned are indeed thanktul.

Waco, Mack Henson.—We arrived in Waco December 29th, 1904, and began pastoral work with the watch night servce, in St. John's M. E. Church. Our plans were laid the first of the year. We have tried to put the SOUTHWESTERN into the homes of our people, though so far our efforts have not been crowned with success, but we will see to it that our list is largely increased Our protracted meeting began March 8th, and after 18 days' effort resulted in three reclaimed, two conversions, thirteen accessions and the church somewhat revived. Raised the elder's full claim, $40.00; following that, $82.15, for missions, on Easter, April 23rd, by classes.

Burnett Circuit, J. T. Sanford, Pastor.—The 28th of December found me on the work and the first quarterly conference was held with Rev. Dr. N. J. Johnson in the chair. The elder said we were in the lead of all the circuits on the district up to date. The elder preached two able sermons. Paid him $11.00; pastor, $27.41; raised for missions, $5.65; paid for church debt $5.00. Twenty-five persons partook of the Lord's Supper. Eight accessions. Total collection, $50.06.

VIRGINIA.

Draper, H. G. Harrison, Pastor—The Ministerial Official and Laymen's Institute met at Draper, Va., June 1st to 4th 1905. This is a beautiful farming section on a branch line of the N. & W. Railroad. The people highly appreciate whatever religious enterprise comes to them. Interesting topics were discussed. Rev. H. G. Harrison made everything pleasant for ministers, delegates and visitors. Sunday collection good. J. F. Prigmore, president; A. W. Randolph, vice-president; J. M. Watson, secretary; F. D. Johnson, corresponding secretary.

CURE YOUR OWN KIDNEY

And Bladder Diseases at Home at a Small Cost—One Who Did it Gladly Tells You How.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock (Clothing Dealer), East Hamoton, Conn., wishes us to tell our readers who are suffering from any kidney or bladder diseases, that if they will send their address to him, he will, without any charge whatsoever, direct them to the perfect home cure he so successfully used.

Knowing, as he so well does, the failure of almost every other treatment in stubborn cases, he feels that he ought to place in the hands of every suffering man and woman this simple, inexpensive and withal positive means of restoring themselves to health.

Our advice is to take advantage of this most generous offer while you can do so without cost.

"It's a bad time to swap horses when you are crossing a stream."

That was Lincoln's famous reply to those who urged him to make a change in generals at a critical period of the Civil war.

Lincoln's saying is worth remembering, especially when you are asked to "swap" Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a bootless bargain, described as "just as good," at the critical time when health is at stake.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine which has a record of ninety-eight per cent. of cures. It is an absolutely reliable family medicine, non-alcoholic and non-narcotic. It always helps; it almost always cures. Why should any one who is seeking a cure for sickness, and is persuaded that the "Discovery" will cure him, "swap" the substance for the shadow at the risk of health?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. What is popularly termed "weak" stomach is the common cause of various forms of physical weakness,—such as "weak" heart, "weak" lungs, "weak" or sluggish liver, "weak" nerves, etc. The entire body and its several organs are dependent for strength upon the food prepared in the stomach. The "weak" stomach cannot provide the food-strength for the various organs, which in their turn become "weak" and unable to accomplish the work for which they were designed. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures through the stomach diseases which have their cause in a diseased condition of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition.

It enables the perfect digestion and assimulation of food by which the body is built up into a condition of sound health. It purifies the blood, driving out the poisons which breed and feed disease.

Preferred to Die.

"Have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it did me more good than anything I could get," writes Mrs. Julia A. Wilcox, of Cygnet, Wood Co., Ohio, Box 25. "I doctored with three different doctors for weak heart, but they did me no good. I was so tired and discouraged if I had had my choice to live or die I would have prefered to die. My husband heard of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and he bought me a bottle. I took that and the first half seemed to help me. I took six bottles before I stopped. I am perfectly well and am cooking for boarders (I have six), and am taking in washing besides. I will truly say I think your medicine will do all it is recommended to do, and more. It has been a God-send to me. I will be willing to answer any letters of inquiry that any one wishes me to. If you think this will be the means of helping any poor suffering woman to obtain relief you may print it and make any honest use of it you wish to."

Was Bedfast.

"I had been sick for more than a year with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Lucy Hayter, of Jacksboro, Jack Co., Texas. "Several different doctors treated me, but none did me any good. One doctor said I never could be cured, that I had Bright's Disease. I suffered nearly death at times; had spells the doctor called spasms. Was bedfast most of the time for six months. My mother begged me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. With but little hope I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he said he could cure me. I began to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and although I had given up to die, I began to improve from the start, and by the time I had taken twenty-two bottles I was entirely cured. I thank God for the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I weigh more than ever before in my life, and believe I am entirely well."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, and over 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps to defray expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper cover, or 31 cents for the book in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Have You Rheumatism?

You Can Be Cured FREE

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

It is now possible to be cured of any form of rheumatism without having your stomach turned up-side down or being half choked to death, and every sufferer from rheumatism should welcome this marvelous discovery with open arms and give it an honest trial. The new remedy was discovered by John A. Smith, Milwaukee, Wis., who is generous enough to send a package free to every sufferer who writes at once. It is a home treatment and will not keep you from your work.

As you know, if you've tried them, every so-called rheumatic remedy on the market to-day, except this genuine cure, will cause you violent stomach pains, and some of them are so dangerous they will cause heart trouble. And the worst of it is they never cure. When a person has rheumatism the constitution is so run down that he should be very careful what he puts into his stomach.

It therefore gives me pleasure to present a remedy that cures. That remedy is

"GLORIA TONIC."

Before I decided to tell the world about the discovery of "Gloria Tonic," I had it tried on hospital patients, also on old and crippled persons with perfect success. But some people never will believe anything until they know it from experience, so the best and quickest way is for you to write me that you want to be cured and I will send you a package of "Gloria Tonic" free of cost. No matter what your form of rheumatism is, acute, chronic, muscular, inflammatory, sciatic, neuralgia, gout, lumbago, etc., "Gloria Tonic" will relieve you. Do not mind if other remedies have failed you, nor mind if doctors say you are incurable. Mind no one but write me to-day sure. "Gloria Tonic" has so far cured persons of upwards 80 years of age. This offer is not for curiosity seekers, but is made to rheumatics only. To them I will send a trial package of "Gloria Tonic" free.

Never before has a remedy been so highly endorsed as "Gloria Tonic." Among the eminent people who endorsed it are:

DR. G. QUINTERO, X. Medical Doctor and Surgeon of the University of Venezuela, whose endorsement of "Gloria Tonic" bears the official seal of the United States Consulate.

HON. EUGENE H. PLUMACHER, UNITED STATES CONSUL, Maracaibo.

STEVENSON MACADAM, F. I. C., F. C. S. of Analytical Laboratory Surgeons Hall, Edinburgh, Scotland.

L. L. RATHMAN, CALOOTE, South Australia.

THE EDITOR of the famous Medical Journal "Health," London, England, and many others.

If you are a sufferer send your name today and by return mail you will receive "Gloria Tonic" and also the most elaborate book ever gotten up on the subject of Rheumatism, absolutely free. This book contains many drawings from actual life and will tell you all about your case. You get "Gloria Tonic" and this wonderful book at the same time, both free, so let me hear from you at once. Address JOHN A SMITH, 1469 Gloria Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

SOUTH NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT PREACHERS' MEETING.

The South New Orleans District Preachers' meeting at Patterson, June 8th. The pastor, Bro. Lewis Smith, was well prepared for our entertainment. Not having a church of our own, the Rev. Mr. Wittenburg, the congenial pastor of the A. M. E. Church, threw wide open the doors of his beautiful church. Devotional service led by Rev. Wittenburg. The president called the meeting to order and a number of pastors gave encouraging reports. The meeting was graced with the presence of our beloved presiding elder, who is now fininshing his sixth year on the district. The elder's excellent speech was brim full of wholesome advice. He also spoke in the highest terms of Bro. Smith and his work. Visitors introduced: Rev. W. M. Johnson, D. D.; Rev. Mr. Wittenburg, A. B., B. D.; Rev. J. H. Lenard and Dean Pierre Landry. Dr. Johnson made the welcome address in behalf of the churches of Patterson. Response by Rev. Charles C. Landry. Dean Landry's talk was very inspiring and helpful. A committee of five was appointed to look into the conditions and needs of Gilbert College. At night the large church was packed. We look forward hopefully to the time when a Methodist Episcopal Church will grace the town of Patterson. Rev. P. C. Cotton reported $45 for missions and 49 conversions. The next meeting will be held at Hurbertville.

BATON ROUGE DISTRICT PREACHERS' MEETING.

The third session of the Baton Rouge District Preachers' Meeting convened in Taylor's M. E. Church, June 8th, New Roads, La., with Rev. M. P. Franklin presiding. The usual business was dispatched with care. Ministers present: M. P. Franklin, J. A. Brown, E. Williams, H. J. Robinson, R. Jones, J. J. Woodridge, C. Spear and J. H. Thompson. The president's talk touching "World-Wide Methodism" and "Universal Prayer Meeting" was very impressive. All pastors reported their work in good condition. Several resolutions were read, there being one complimentary to Messrs. Eaton & Mains, in appointing Rev. W. F. Waters business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN and Profs. Billups and Smith to positions in the office. Rev. Jones and wife, also members and friends, royally entertained all. The welcome address delivered by H. J. Yoist, M. D., was indeed a masterly effort. The president of the District League being always on the spot organized a Chapter at this point. The next session will be held at Wilson, La., July 6th, at 2:30 p. m. We collected $9.55.

They Live in Our Memory.

HENRY.—Captain Robert Henry, of Pocomoke City, Maryland, one of the most successful business men of this section, died suddenly aboard his boat, the "Three Brothers," in Baltimore, on Sunday, May 21, after a profitable business career of fifty-eight years. He was born in Pocomoke City 78 years ago. Though free-born, he was subject to the conditions of those days as it concerned all Negroes. However, he was stronger than the oppositions, and in spite of the drawbacks he pushed his way to the front ranks of the business life and activity of his native town. He started as a cook on a small vessel trading from the Pocomoke river between Baltimore and Philadelphia. He rose rapidly in the confidence of his employers so that he was advanced until he reached the place of "foremost hand." By using the strictest economy he was able in a few years to purchase a small boat of which he became captain, the boat's papers having been taken out in the name of a white man, since no Negro in those days was allowed to take out a captain's license. Observing still the rules of economy he was soon able to purchase another boat of larger capacity. This marked the beginning of his career. Aside from his commercial pursuit he entered the mercantile and real estate business, from which he had larger profits. The Mercantile Trust Company of Baltimore a few years ago placed his wealth at $40,000. Captain Henry was not a lettered man, he neither read nor wrote, but he possessed wonderful native ability. Few men in his business could think quicker and act with more precision than himself. He could mentally calculate with more rapidity any fractional problem arising in his work than many could with the pen. As a citizen he had no superiors. He added fully his share in the making and development of his town. He was never active in politics. In the community in which he lived he always enjoyed the greatest confidence and highest esteem of his fellow citizens. Though uneducated, he believed in the worth and power of education, which he demonstrated by educating all his children. His home is a model. A wife and five children survive him. He was a member of Mt. Zion M. E. Church. In his benevolence he was a little eccentric—he believed in helping the individual, and this he did. The funeral was held at the church of which he was a member. Out of respect for his worth as a man and a citizen a large number of representative white men attended in a body. One of them, speaking, said: "He was a great man, because he made his own way."

ROLING—Mrs. Julia Spencer, wife of Rev. Green Spencer, was called by telegram May 15 to Bethel Springs, Tenn., to attend the funeral of her son, Hillard Roling, who was shot and killed Monday, May 15, 1905, by a white man, without a moment's warning. Hilliard was born on the Givan place, near Mulden, Miss., in Monroe county. He was porter at the depot of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, where he had been for 17 years. He won the respect of all the people of Bethel Springs, where he had worked so long, both white and colored. He was a member of the A. M. E. Church, and his funeral

Who would exchange the merry noise of children at play, with the childless home where the clock tick can be heard hour after hour in the dull silence? But there are a great many who would like to people the silent house with the children that fate has refused them. Fate is often in this case only another word for ignorance. Many a glad mother dates her happiness from the day she first began the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It often happens that with the cure of female weakness and the establishing of the delicate womanly organs in sound health, the way is opened for the joy of motherhood. "Favorite Prescription" is a specific for the chronic ailments peculiar to women. It cures them perfectly and permanently.

No other medicine can do for women so much as "Favorite Prescription." Do not therefore let any other medicine be palmed off on you as "just as good."

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, opium, cocaine or other narcotic. It is strictly a temperance medicine.

"I can truly say your medicine is a friend of mine," writes Mrs. Arthur Bratt, of Amherstburg, Ontario, Canada. "I am mother of four children and suffered greatly at times of birth of first three. When three months along with the last one I began to think of trying some medicine to ease those terrible pains, and asked our doctor whether there was anything he could give me to lessen labor pains. He said there was nothing that could help me. I then thought I would write to Dr. Pierce. He advised me to take his 'Favorite Prescription.' I started to take it at fourth month. I was very weak, had heart trouble and would faint away two or three times a day. Our doctor could not help me and life was a drag. I would often say, oh, if I could only die in one of these spells; but I took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and felt better every way. Got along well at the time of delivery. I had heard of painless childbirth, and I thought it must be a good medicine that would help those pains, but I know now for myself, and can not tell it plain enough. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best medicine as we mothers know. I advise my friends to try it. Baby is now four months old and is a strong healthy boy."

was largely attended on Tuesday, May 18th, by many white people as well as colored. His body was laid to rest by the Masonic fraternity. The deceased leaves a wife, four children, a devoted mother and a host of friends. Green Spencer, pastor of Vaiden, Miss., A. M. E. Church.

HURN—Mr. Nate Hurn, at one time a member of the M. E. Church at Fort Stephen, Miss., passed to judgment May 25, 1905. At the time of his death he was out of the church and so suddenly did death come to him that there was not time to make peace with the Father. R. B. ANDERSON, Pastor.

ALLEN—Mrs. Clarissa Allen, of Monroe, La., departed this life May 25. She was a faithful member of Jones' Chapel. Her parents, two sisters, two brothers and a host of friends mourn her passing. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. D. S. Kilbourne, assisted by Rev. D. G. Taylor.

BEAUFORD — Brother Fletcher Beauford, son of Rev. S. B. Beauford, died May 17th at Cave Springs, Ga. He was born in 1888, and joined the M. E. Church in 1900. He lived a consistent Christian until his end came. He was conscious of his death two weeks before he died. He was surrounded by a devoted stepmother, father, brother and sisters. He told the family in the morning that the Christ had come for him. Rev. C. W. Adams, presiding elder of the Rome District, conducted and preached the funeral sermon, assisted by Rev. F. M. Gordon.

F. M. GORDON.

SANDERS—Brother Andy Sanders departed this life May 19th, at 4:30 o'clock. He was a faithful member and class leader of Wesley Chapel M. E. Church. He was sick but a few days. He said to the pastor that he was ready to go and gave his desire with reference to his children. He leaves behind a mother, three brothers, seven children and a host of friends to mourn their loss. His funeral was attended by W. E. Pruitt, P. C., Center Point, Ark.

ROBERT—Sister Margaret Robert departed this life May 18th, aged 50 years. She was the wife of Bro. Calvin Robert. She was a member of Lynch Chapel and had been for twenty-two years. After three weeks' illness she fell asleep in Jesus. Her funeral was conducted by the pastor, W. L. Mills, and Rev. C. L. Pratt, of Bolton. She leaves a husband and five children and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

W. L. MILLS.

REV. A. S. PALMER.

A. S. Palmer, a minister of Christ, passed from this earthly home into the home eternal. His wife was not with him when death came, but was on her way to him. He went Home April 4, 1905, leaving such a beautiful testimony, such a well-spent life that it seems a pity to mourn his passing. Just before dying Bro. Palmer exhorted from the 14th chapter of Revelations and 13th verse, and talked with those around him. He realized that his wife would not reach him before death would, but he felt that it was God's will and did not murmur. He passed into the Beyond quietly, peacefully, like a little babe. Rev. Palmer was a minister for more than twenty years and at every charge he, assisted by his loving, courageous wife, did a wonderful work. To the wife and the young son left to mourn Brother Palmer's going, we extend every sympathy, praying God to bless and strengthen them in their deep sorrow.

LOUISIANA.

Centreville, Chas C. Landry, Pastor.—Our work here for the year is moving nicely. Our first quarterly conference was held March 25-27. The Rev. W. R. Butler, P. E., was on time with new methods and plans for the work of the new conference year. The officers of the quarterly conference presented written reports. Sunday the elder preached an inspiring sermon to the delight of all. We are planning to build a new church on the lot bought some years ago by Rev. D. S. Sloan. Rev. W. R. Butler is a strong man.

Welsh, S. W. Haynes, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held May 17-18, with the presiding elder, Rev. J. J. Obee in the chair. The session was a success along all lines. Each member presented favorable reports. Paid presding elder in full. Rev. Obee preached two able sermons. Converts, 7; collection $76.90.

Bluff Creek, B. Carr, Pastor—Sunday April 23, at Beach Grove and Pine Grove, was a joyful day at both churches. The pastor preached. Programme was carried out. Collection, $5. Five joined the church and thirty took sacrament. The best Sunday school in 15 miles around led by Bro. Samuel Miles and Bro. Wm. Johnson. Beach Grove leads with W. K. Bell and J. H. Bell. J. K. Bell, superintendent.

WALD-MCFARLAND. — By Rev. C. Washington, at DeSoto, Miss, June 1, 1905, Mr. Jack Wald to Miss Annie McFarland.

JOHNSON-LAFAYETTE. — By Rev. J. Will Jackson, Rev. O. A. Johnson, pastor of Burns Chapel, M. E. Church, Des Moines, Ia., and Miss Melissa May Lafayette, of Oskaloosa, Ia., Wednesday, June 7th, at 8:30 p. m. The ceremony was performed in the new two-story brick church erected by Rev. Johnson and was witnessed by a large and select congregation. Seated on the rostrum were ministers and their wives of some of the leading Protestant churches of the city. The happy couple were the recipients of many valuable presents. Three of the four rooms of the parsonage were completely filled with all the necessary requisites of housekeeping by their many friends. Three tables, with sixty guests at each, were spread for the wedding feast. Rev. Johnson has done a great work for our Methodism in this city, and is held in high esteem by the entire community, and now still greater things may be reasonably expected of him in the near future.—J. Will Jackson.

HUBBARD-HENRY.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henry, at Greensboro, Md., became the scene of one of the prettiest weddings that ever graced the town, when their daughter, Miss Mildred Estelle became the bride of Mr. Charles Hubbard, of Easton, Md., Wednesday evening, June 7th, 1905, by the Rev. P. M. Shelton. Miss Virginia Henry, who is attending Dover College, Prof. R. Chas. Williams, of Easton, Md., and Prof. W. M. Henry, principal of Middletown Grammar School, were among the guests. The bride and groom left that evening for Atlantic City, Riverton, N. J., and points north. Returning, they will reside at their residence in Easton, Md.

Crescent City Notes

At the last examination of the Louisiana Board of Pharmacy there were three colored applicants. Two of them, Mr. James E. Peters and Mr. E. J. Labrauche, passed the required mark. Mr. Peters, who is still a student of Flint Medical College, is a brother of Rev. S. A. Peters, of the Tennessee Conference. He made a high average in the examination for qualified assistant. There were 41 white applicants in the examination, 27 of whom failed. The colored applicants in percentage passed are in the lead this time.

COMPLIMENTARY TO OUR BUSINESS OFFICE.

At the recent session of the Preachers' Meeting of the Baton Rouge District of the Louisiana Conference the following complimentary resolutions were most heartily adopted:

"WHEREAS, We hail with great joy and appreciation the appointment of Rev. W. F. Waters as the business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN, and his very able assistants, Prof. H. L. Billups and Prof. F. B. Smith,

"Resolved, That we will ever stand by them in rolling up more subscriptions and circulating our books and do all in our power to put this grand old SOUTHWESTERN into every home, and into the self-supporting line. We also extend a cordial welcome to our manager and assistants to visit our District Meeting when time permits them.

"On behalf of the Preachers' Meeting held at New Roads, La.

"Signed: M. P. Franklin, H. J. Robinson, R. Jones, T. A. Brown, J. W. Turner, P. E. and J. H. Thompson, Secretary.

NOTICE.

To all Epworth League Chapters having delegates going to the Convention, will please send in the names to headquarters at once, No. 2020 S. Rampart Street, as I am making arrangements.

E. H. ANDERSON,
State President.

Pastors please read this notice to their congregations:

My brother, Hardy Hooks, or Hardy Bradberry, was sold in time of the war. The last time I heard from him was in 1868. He was then at Little Rock, Ark. His father, Shepherd Hooks, is still living and is over 90 years old. Our original home was in Wayne County, N. C.—Martin T. Hooks, Pastor, Mt. Vernon, Mo.

Miss Ophelia V. Green, of Algiers, and Miss Verrina Turner, daughter of Rev. J. W. Turner, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, are visiting friends in Franklin, La.

Mr. Samuel J. Robichaux and Mr. Wendel Clark, both followers of our church and related by family ties to some of the best members of the First Street M. E. Church, this city, died May 25th and June 15th, respectively, and were buried from the First Street Church. Both professed religion on their dying beds.—J. A. Tircuit, Pastor.

Despite the continued rains all of the services of St. Matthew are well attended and the church is on the up grade. The parsonage is nearing completion and the trustees, under the leadership of Brothers Chas. D. Smith, B. J. Diamond and W. J. Brown, are preparing to pay for the same.

On Sunday evening of June 25th Wesley Chapel Sunday School had a catechism contest. Those awarded prizes as successful contestants were: Ethel Bean, Corena Ray, Marion Mack and Harvey Roberson. Collection for the day, $31.32.

The missionary sisters of Wesley Chapel had their installation June 15. The two speakers were Mrs. Mary Phillips and Miss Nellie Williams.

Rev. J. F. Marshall, Presiding Elder of the North New Orleans District, held recently the second quarterly Conference of the Pleasnt Plain Church. The session was pleasant and profitable, and the elder's words of encouragement and advice appreciated. Rev. T. J. Johnson was also present. The fence around this church has been nicely painted through the efforts of the Deaconess Board and the Helping Hand Society has lifted an old note, to the great relief of all. This church is coming to the front under the leadership of its pastor, Rev. William Harrell.

Mrs. Mary Powels and other friends of Pleasant Plains M. E. Church have presented the pastor, Rev. William Harrell, a fine Panama hat, and of course the pastor is delighted.

ROME DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The Sunday School and Epworth League Convention convened at Temple, Ga., May 26th. The convention was called to order by the presiding elder, Rev. C. W. Adams, who conducted the devotional exercises. The president being absent, Prof. C. W. Harper was elected president pro tem, and S. S. Simmons secretary. Business was dispatched with speed and accuracy. Quite a number of pastors were present, among whom were Revs. S. A. Stripling, L. P. Kimball, S. B. Beaufort, J. O. Smith, H. L. Phillips, A. J. Noland, W. J. Sagoes. During the morning (Friday) very able papers were read by Miss Emma L. Reese, of Tallapoosa, Miss Mattie L. Malone, of Rome, and Miss Desie M. Lowry, of Cedartown. Miss Mattie Malone was elected treasurer. Reports were read and $8.00 received from the different schools and Leagues. A committee on constitution was appointed as follows: Rev. S. A. Stripling, S. S. Simmons, L. F. Hudson, C. W. Harper and Miss Mattie L. Malone. This committee drew up a constitution which was adopted and is to be printed as a part of the minutes of the convention each year. Rev. S. A. Stripling was elected to represent the district in the International Epworth League Convention at Denver, Col. The annual sermon, preached Friday night by Rev. L. P. Kimball, was eloquent and logical. The mass meeting held at night was especially interesting. Revs. J. C. Prince, S. A. Stripling and others spoke interestingly concerning the Missionary Society and its work. Sunday morning, Sunday school was well attended and instructively taught by Prof. C. W. Harper and J. C. Luke. At 11 o'clock Rev. S. A. Stripling preached. At 2:30 p. m., remarks by Elder Adams, Prof. I. G. Penn and Rev. S. C. Upshaw, S. S. agent of the Atlanta Conference, were introduced and spoke to the delight and satisfaction of all. The convention closed Sunday night, with an able sermon by Rev. A. J. Noland, to meet at Cave Springs next year.—S. S. Simmons, Dist. Sec.

Editorial

Notwithstanding a Negro passed a creditable civil service examination for clerkship in the postoffice of Greenwood, Miss., the home city of Governor Vardaman, the Governor says he "sincerely hopes that the white people of Greenwood will have too much respect for themselves to permit him (the Negro) to hold it." The Negro is ineligible not because of his inefficiency, but because of his color.

The Philadelphia Methodist continues to foster its pet idea, the withdrawing of the Negroes from the Methodist Episcopal Church. We have had repeated doses of this. If the Philadelphia Methodist were the friend to the Negro that it claims to be it would wait for at least a suggestion on the part of the Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church concerning withdrawal. Anyway, the Negroes are not thinking of withdrawing. That's all of it. A church is not to be constructed on social preferences; it is an institution of Jesus Christ, not of the white man.

The International Sunday School Lesson system remains intact. Effort was made at the recent International Sunday School Convention, held in Toronto, to provide an advanced course for the seniors. The measure was defeated by a vote of 619 to 609. There are some advantages in the proposed advanced course, but the advantages are not worth sacrificing the unity which Christendom enjoys thro the present lesson system. It is worth a great deal to be able to enter any Sunday school anywhere without embarrassment. Not an advanced course but an advanced treatment of the present lessons is what is needed.

In spite of all that has been said about tainted money, Mr. John D. Rockefeller continues to give, and he has no trouble in finding grateful recipients. Mr. Rockefeller's contributions have been, for the most part, in the direction of education, Chicago University, his favorite educational enterprise, has received, it is estimated, $13,000,000. It was announced at the recent commencement of Yale University, that Mr. Rockefeller had given $1,000,000 to that institution. Following closely onto this is the announcement of his gift of $10,000,000 to the General Educational Board for higher education in the United States. Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was instrumental in the organization of the General Educational Board, and his father gave at its organization $1,000,000 for its initial work. The $10,000,000 recently given is to be an endowment. It may or may not be true that Mr. Rockefeller secured his vast wealth by illegal methods; nevertheless, his gifts will prove a great blessing to many.

THE MOB'S BLOODY WORK IN GEORGIA

It should bring the blush of shame to every American's cheek who reads the account of the most dastardly, cowardly, inhuman and bloodthirsty operations of the mob at Watkinsville, Ga., in the early morning of June 29. Seven Negroes and one white man met their deaths at the hands of the mob, and, although Governor Terrell offered a reward, not one will be apprehended. It is commonly supposed that when a person is under arrest and behind the lock and key of the sheriff of a county that he is safe. It would appear, however, that, instead of jails being places of safety, they have become simply a place where the mob more easily finds its victim. This mob, when approached and plead with to spare the prisoners, who were guilty of minor offenses, stated that they had come for the purpose of cleaning out the whole jail, regardless of the crimes that were charged against the inmates. Nine men were taken from the jail; one escaped death by the merest accident, although severely wounded. Two of the men had been duly convicted and sentenced to death for murder and were simply awaiting the day of execution. Another was charged with attempted assault, while there was "some little doubt as to the Negro's intention." Another was charged with having pointed a pistol at another man, and the others were charged with murder. But, whatever the crime, this mob was, as all other mobs are, bloodthirsty. It "went mad." After moving the prisoners from the jail they were tied to fence posts and riddled with bullets. Only against one of the nine was there even the accusation of assault, and, according to the best evidence, if there was the intention of assault there was hardly the attempt.

THE MEMBERS OF THE MOB ARE MURDERERS, but in the face of the facts given a member of the Georgia Legislature, now in session, said, before that body, there were "certain crimes that when committed the criminals should be stopped right there and not be allowed to go around and commit others like them." But the representative's "certain crime" is hardly found in this batch of men who were murdered. This representative, elected to enact the laws for the people, declared that "no member of the mob would ever be convicted if caught, and that the effort to arrest and convict them would be wholly fruitless." Just such talk as this emboldens the mob, for the mob knows that it is securely entrenched behind a public sentiment. The Georgia Legislature on the day following the lynching took up the subject under a resolution and among other paragraphs was this one:

"And, whereas, the members of this house keenly realize that cruel, barbarous and inexcusable as were the bloody injuries perpetrated upon the unfortunate victims of this crime, they are not half so ghastly and but little more fatal than the wounds thereby inflicted upon the honor and civilization of this commonwealth."

Mobocracy is hardly worse in Russia than in our country. At least, we can hardly throw stones at Russia.

TWO CASES OF INTEREST

Chicago has been in the public eye very considerably of late, among others for the reason of the investigations of the Beef Trust and because of the Teamsters' Strike. The investigation against the Beef Trust has been in progress for the last three months, and indictments have been filed by the Federal Grand Jury against seventeen of the most prominent men connected with the packing industry, charging violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. The indictments contain each eight counts, and it is claimed that there is sufficient evidence to substantiate every charge. The packers have refrained from bidding against each other, consulted together and made non-competitive and unreasonable prices, restricted the supply allotted the territory in which each packer was to sell and designated the amount of goods to be sold and when over that amount was sold the packer is to be penalized. It seems as though the public has been grossly outraged, and if this fight against the beef trust is successful the prosecutors will be entitled to the thanks of the entire public. The cost of this investigation so far is said to be $300,000.

But Chicago again claims the public eye also in its indictment of the labor leaders, who, it is claimed, have for personal mercenary reasons called the strikes, and not out of regard for the laborers. There is little doubt but that organized labor is suffering greatly at the hands of indiscreet, disloyal, selfish, arbitrary, unscrupulous leaders. The Chicago grand jury in presenting its report on the teamsters' strike says:

"We believe the present teamsters' strike to have been born in iniquity, and that though many honest laboring men were led to believe a so-called sympathetic strike was advisable and just, we feel satisfied from evidence presented to us that a very few of the principals at the head of the Teamsters' Union were and are responsible for its inception and continuance, that their pockets might jingle with unholy gain."

THE NEGRO'S PLACE

During the recent commencement of the Ohio Wesleyan University, the University of Kentucky was to play a match game of baseball with Ohio Wesleyan, but on the latter team there was a Negro student, and the Kentucky boys were determined that the Negro should not play, but "should know his place." There happened to be a Kentuckian on the Ohio Wesleyan faculty, and he said to the boys, "You ought to know by this time, young men, that the place of the Negro in this conutry is in whatever honorable place he wins by honest effort." The game did not come off, but the expression was worth all the disappointment. It is all the Negro can ask; it is all his friends should give him—an honorable place when won by honest effort.

"Ye Must Be Born Again"

By Simeon R. Reno

The first thirteen verses of the third chapter of St. John's Gospel relates an interview between Jesus and Nicodemus. The subject of the interview is a most vital and fundamental one. The miracles Jesus wrought were a kind of holy embarrassment to him. They compelled attention. The people must see him, hear him and consider him, whether they will or no. His appearance is like the bursting of a full noon-day sun upon a dense and deep darkness—it compels attention. So the miracles and character of Jesus. They come to Him; the poor, the rich; the wise and the unwise; the Jew and the Gentile; the bond, the free; the sick, the whole; saint and sinner—all see and feel alike the warmth and splendor and glory of that Presence!

Nicodemus is representative. He is no mean citizen. As to his religion, a Pharisee; as to his nationality, a Jew; in the popular opinion, "a master in Israel;" as to his political character, "a ruler of the Jews." He was intellectually sincere; morally blameless; ceremonially faithful; a sincere and thoroughly decent but unspiritual man. It is such a man that seeks out our Saviour under cover of the night. Many reasons might be given for Nicodemus choosing the night time: He was a member of that great ecclesiastical body, the Sanhedrim, and the day would demand all, or most of his attention to the affairs of this assembly. Or, the night may have been considered by him the best time for a private interview. Or, he may have thought there was a certain kind of reproach in being found in company with Jesus. And yet later we find him making an open defense of Jesus when Jesus was being illegally dealt with. But he DID come to Jesus! And that was something, though it was by night. Like one of Bunyan's characters, he "had the root of the matter in him."

The "miracles" Jesus had wrought had compelled Nicodemus to admit, "Thou art a Teacher sent from God." But Nicodemus views these "miracles" (Sammeia) from a wrong standpoint. He seems to view them as an end, rather than a means. The miracles of Jesus do have their evidential value, it is true. They were, in part, credentials of his divine character. But belief in them, rather than in the person that wrought them, is not the "born again" (Anothen) that Jesus insists upon.

The crisis comes and Nicodemus asks, "How can these things be?" And Jesus does not mean to trifle with Nicodemus when He says, "Art thou a master in Israel and knowest not these things?" I think Jesus meant to suggest an analogy to Nicodemus something like the following: The Gentile cannot get into the Jewish church without some kind of change. He must cease to be a Gentile. He must accept baptism. He must be instructed in the Jewish Scriptures. He must renounce all Gentile rites and practices. He must undergo an outward metamorphosis. Nicodemus knew this. But this being "born again" (Anothen) is what puzzles this man! And it will puzzle us to-day IF we approach it from the same cold and materialistic standpoint as did Nicodemus. We cannot see the wind that moves the ship, but we can see the ship that moves. We cannot see the heart that loves, but we can see the deed that declares that there is a heart that does love. Time and manner and all outward circumstances are all subservient to the one great reality. Who can recall the circumstances of his first birth? And yet, as "David Copperfield" says, "I was there." Analogies are analogies after all; nothing more. They are not proofs.

It is always easier to say what a thing is not than to say what it is. Negation is easy. We may say that this spiritual birth that Jesus insists upon is not high and splendid lineal descent. It is not culture. It is not intellectual sincerity. It is not moral blamelessness. It is not ceremonial faithfulness. It is not the "abundance of the things" one possesseth. It is not even church membership. It is not mere mental assent to the teachings of Jesus. It is not good standing in one, or all, of the "fraternities." But these things may all consist with that spiritual experience we designate the new birth. The new birth is the reign and rule of God in the soul. It is a new heart. It is a life of conformity, inward and outward, to the life of Jesus Christ. It is such a transformation of all the desires, aspirations and feelings of man that they partake of "the nature of Christ." All the things that I have mentioned as not being the new birth may, under the influences and wrought upon by the Holy Spirit, consist with the "born again" that Jesus so strenuously insists upon and makes essential to "see" and to "enter" the Kingdom of God.

Nicodemus errs at another point. "How can a man be born again when he is old?" He suggested a physical impossibility, and what he knew to be such, in lieu of his spiritual obtuseness and to rid himself of the high demand upon him made by the Son of God. Why, Nicodemus! Of course no one is born full grown! We come into ANY new world babes and not full grown men. Stand by one of those wonderful red wood trees of California and look up, 100, 200 feet. It is 10, 20, yea, 30 feet in diameter. It did not grow in a day, a year, a century! It took a thousand years to make that tree. A mushroom may grow in a single night and in a single hour of the burning sun be withered and blown to the four winds.

While it is not definitely stated in this nocturnal interview by Jesus what one must do to be "born again" (Anothen) yet we need not look far nor long to see what Jesus meant. It is BELIEVE ON ME! This spiritual birth cannot be accomplished aside from, nor understood independently of, Jesus Christ!

The Negro and City Life

By Rev. A. R. Shockley

(The following paragraphs are taken from the Sixth Annual Report of Rev. A. R. Shockley as presiding elder of the Philadelphia District, Delaware.)

Thousands of our members reared up in the South come North and are entirely lost to the church. I fear that the conditions of the Colored People North and East are not known by our Bishops and Secretaries. The most of the representation respecting our people comes from the South, and we all think of the southland as a place where the effort put forth by the church for our people should be confined.

Is it not entirely overlooked that thousands of our people are in the North, and they bring with them all of the peculiar notions that are obtained at their homes? Many of them would no sooner enter a white church in the North than in the South. To leave them to seek church privileges, simply because they are offered, means to turn them over to the worst influences that exist in our Northern cities; and thousands of them are going down into the maelstroms of vice. It has been suggested by some of our Bishops that the distinctively colored denominations should take care of them. There is very much less effort made for the saving of this class of people now, than in former years. Their leaders say that financial conditions in the North are such that they cannot do very much progressive work; and if the colored people, that desire to be Methodist, are cared for at all, the Methodist Episcopal Church must do it. We must wake up to this fact sooner or later, why not now? We may do very much more by a united effort.

The churches need unification, centralization, and concentration. Let the strength of the large churches be unified, and great power may be exerted in withstanding the encroachments of evil. Let them fix upon some central place and build a home for the better caring of our girls. Let them concentrate all of their forces, and the next decade will see advances exceeding the expectation of the most sanguine.

The city problem is taxing the strength, patience and endurance; and putting the faith of the most faithful to the severest test. A condition confronts us in the large cities that is simply appalling. Think of the dens of iniquity, where any respectable person would risk his life even to enter, without a guide. I am told by one of the leading ministers in New York that there are six or seven of these places kept for the purpose of alluring girls and young men from respectable homes, and giving them a night's plunge in the whirl of vice. Conditions are not very much better, if any, in Philadelphia. From these cess pools of vice recruiting agents go out into smaller cities and towns, and bring in the bloom of our youth under the guise of employment.

In Philadelphia, New York and Boston there is estimated to be more than one hundred and fifty thousand colored people. Church members less than fifty thousand. There is not a home for girls where one of our girls would feel welcome. Thousands are pouring in. Adverse criticisms are rife respecting the churches that have been operating among us in the East. A distrust of the moral uprightness of the ministry, a mercenary view of the Christian Life, greatly hinders, and must be overcome by the consecrated minister. Shall we stand and fold our hands and say the tide is against us? The "Japs" pelted Port Arthur until it fell, and drove their enemies from Mukden amid shot and shell, made a strong nation bow to superior generalship, and will in the future reap the benefit of their courage, faithfulness and perseverance. These forts of iniquity that confront us must be taken. We must go into these citadels in the name of the Lord of hosts with the courage of a Melvin Cox, with the perseverance of a Carey, and the insight of a Wesley.

I believe that the Lord has raised us up in the Methodist Episcopal Church for this very purpose. The same indomitable courage and perseverance that gave Port Arthur to the Japanese, will write victory upon our banner. What gave the Japanese victory over the Russians? Preparedness, the working out of little details, giving the most careful attention to the smallest things that will affect the army. They proceeded upon the supposition that a few well trained men, very important in their several stations, had better suffer—die if need be—than that a nation should be forever stamped with the badge of inferiority. What are the few to the many? Teeming millions are crowding upon the path in which we lead. Shall they come to the well, from which the pure water of salvation should flow, and find the springs poisoned because of our neglect to inspect them? The Master is calling us to unselfish devotion. Is it not true that a radical change of front is imperatively necessary if the desired end is reached? To do the most efficient work the administration must no longer seek places for men, but men for places. The future of our people will be, very largely, what alize that there is a divine invisible Being. Phillight ahead.

Tears are the dew on the flower of the skies called hope. Weep, my son, but hope, dare to hope. Hoping is the finest sort of courage, and you can never have enough of it. It is not possible to expect too much of God; every anticipation will be infinitely surpassed.—Charles Wagner.

Life and Character of Mrs. M. J. Rush

By Miss Josephine E. Holmes

Mrs. Mollie Johnson Rush was born April 25, 1868, in Newton county, Georgia. Her parents are Thomas and Betsey Johnson, staunch members of Wesley Chapel, Methodist Episcopal Church. She first attended the public schools of the county in which she was born, where the aptitude which in later life developed into strong intellectuality, was early seen.

With a well laid foundation she entered Clark University, in the fall of 1886. While in this school, she bore herself with true womanliness, thereby gaining the love of both students and teachers. It was during these early days that she began to display those traits of Christian character which made her life such a blessing. She graduated with honor from the university in May, 1892. She was married to the Rev. J. A. Rush, October 20, 1892, and went immediately into the pastorate with her husband at Macpelah, a circuit in North Carolina. Fresh from school, vigorous in body, strong in mind, Christ-like in spirit, she was not content with leading an idle life, but went into the educational work and here endeared herself to the people of all classes, both as a pastor's wife and as a school teacher.

Her husband was then called to the pastorate of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Greensboro, N. C., to which place she went cheerfully and labored more abundantly than ever before. Hers was a busy life at Greensboro, but she knew no such word as stopping, therefore through cold and heat, wet and dry, Sister Rush was always at work, trying to build up the Master's kingdom and to encourage her husband in every possible way.

After three years of service in Greensboro, they were appointed to lead the church of God at Winston-Salem, N. C. The educational work again needed her. With hearty zeal she entered it and at this place scores of young people will rise up and call her blessed, because of the light she sent into their darkened minds. They served two and a half years at this field and then at the call of the church, they were transferred to the Atlanta Conference, in 1899, to the Loyd Street, (now Central Avenue) Methodist Episcopal Church, Atlanta, Ga. Here she remained a loving helpmeet to her husband until she was called to her heavenly home, June 19.

The success of her husband in Atlanta, as elsewhere, has been, in a large measure, due to her faithfulness, her unswerving loyalty to every interest which affected him as a man or related to his church work. She ever stood by and helped to bear each burden, always encouraging and inspiring him by word and deed. She had the wisdom to plan and the ability as well as perseverance to execute the plans. Although she was a model minister's wife, and all through her course of actions bespoke her fitness for that exalted calling, in no wise was her home life neglected. The world will ever delight to honor her primarily as a loving wife and mother, yes, a true home-maker. She gave herself to her children and it may be truthfully said that they were her jewels, but she always had time to listen to the plea of the poor and needy or any less fortunate than herself.

She always spared time from any labors of home or children to relieve suffering around her, and on more than one occasion she and her husband fed and warmed some aged person during an entire winter. All this, however, was done in the Bible spirit and not to be seen of men. Sister Rush was converted when she was a very young girl and all who have known her from childhood testify that helping and giving to some one else seemed to be a part of her very existence.

Some of the most remarkable features of her character were her smoothness of disposition, her genial good nature, and her evenness of temper. She was one of a large family of children, but not once was she known to quarrel with any one. She simply loved brothers, sisters, and all others into doing the fair thing by her.

Again, this smoothness of disposition was seen in the way she handled her children. Never scolding or berating, yet she demanded and received from them the most implicit obedience.

All classes of people from the highest to the lowest, loved her. As she lay on her bier and those who loved her and whom she loved passed by, the drayman mingled his tears with those of the college professor, to whom as a student she had greatly endeared herself.

While Sister Rush's life was full before coming to the heavy work in Atlanta, it was here that she did the work of two women. She did not know what it was to spare herself and through all kinds of weather she would perform her church duties. She laughingly would tell her friends when reminded that she needed rest, "I cannot rest while there is so much to be done."

She felt that her labors should equal her husband's in earnestness and thoroughness, and he was doing the work of two men.

In her life, she exemplified these words,
"Rest is not quitting this busy career,
'Tis serving and fitting one's self to one's sphere."

So she acceptably filled the place of Sunday school teacher, President of the local auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and Conference treasurer of the same organization.

She bore her illness with the greatest Christian fortitude and went rejoicing home to heaven. Just before embarking on the old ship of Zion, she exclaimed in triumphant tones, "Jesus has me!"

She was the mother of six children, one of whom preceded her to the glory world and waited to welcome her coming. The five children, who will sorely miss the protection and brooding love of this mother, are Ruth, aged 12, Pearl, aged 11, Mallalieu, aged 9, John A., aged 5, and the dear little babe, who has only been in the home two months. She leaves a sorrowing mother, father, three sisters and four brothers.

Sister Rush is mourned with bitter tears by the entire church membership and congregation of Central Avenue M. E. Church.

The funeral services of Mrs. Rush were held Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. in Central Avenue Church. Long before the appointed hour the spacious church was packed and fully two hundred people were in the vestibule and grounds about the church, unable to get even standing room on the inside. Rev. Dr. E. H. Oliver, presiding elder of the Atlanta District, conducted the services. Prayer was offered by the Rev. George Standing. First Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Dr. J. P. Wragg. Quartette, "Rest in Peace." Second Scripture lesson by Rev. C. L. Johnson. Paper, "General Character of Sister Rush," by Miss J. E. Holmes. Paper, "Mrs. Rush as a Student," by Mrs. Julia Sherrard Starks. Sermon from the words, "I am the Resurrection and the Life," by Dr. M. C. B. Mason. The sermon was very impressive and all eyes were filled with tears as the preacher in wonderfully graphic language told how death must come to each before the Resurrection and eternal life could be realized. A very large delegation of the preachers of the Atlanta Conference was present, as were many of the pastors of other churches in the city. Dr. M. M. Altson, pastor at Newnan, Ga., eulogized the "Consistent Christian Character" of the deceased. Rev. P. H. Travis, presiding elder of the Griffin District, spoke of her as "A Model Minister's Wife." Dr. Fountain, pastor of the Allen Temple African Methodist Episcopal Church, who is a near neighbor to Dr. Rush, and had been especially kind to the family during the illness of Sister Rush, made very appropriate remarks touching her every day life as he saw it.

Many telegrams and letters of condolence from distinguished friends throughout the country were read. The music rendered by the choir was very beautiful and consisted of hymns which Sister Rush especially loved. The services closed with the one she prized above all others, "Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep!" The commitment services at the grave were read by Dr. M. C. B. Mason. Benediction by Bishop H. M. Turner.

Lackng Divine Authority

By C. H. Weatherbe

A great deal of what is declared by some professors of religion to have Gods authority in support of is actually lacking such authority. They quote certain passages from the Bible, taking them away from their proper connections, explaining them to suit their own notions of what ought to be true, an dthen affirm that they have divine authority for their statements. By such methods a large number of people have been led into accepting most dangerous errors. It was so in times of ancient Israel. There were professional prophets who made a practice of telling people that God had spoken to them certain truths for their acceptance, when in fact he had not done so. Those false prophets merely uttered their own ideas, and then, to give special force to their sayings, they declared that God had authorized them.

Notice what God said to his true prophet Ezekiel: "Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto them that prophesy out of their own heart, hear ye the word of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord God, 'Woe unto the foolish prophets that follow their own spirits and have seen nothing.'" Again, in referring to those false teachers, God said: "They have seen vanity and lying divination that say, the Lord saith, and the Lord hath not sent them and they have made men to hope that the word should be confirmed." Those teachers were very plausible, and it is probable that at least some of them possessed a great deal of oratorical ability and argumentative power. It is also probable that they drew more people to hear them than the true prohpets did. Their prophesying was far more agreeable to the most of people than was that of the prophets whom God had authorized to speak in his name. It is just so in our land today. The preacher who says that God authorized him to declare that all people will at last be saved and spend eternity in heaven, will be listened to by more persons than is the preacher of truth who, upon God's authority says that those who die in sin will forever suffer in the world of death and darkness.

Henry Giles beautifully says: "We cannot rekindle the morning beams of childhood we cannot bring back the perfect day of maturity; we cannot fix the evening rays of age in the shadowy horizon; but we can cherish that goodness which is the sweetness of childhood, the joy of youth, the strength of maturity, the honor of old age, and the bliss of saints."

Self distrust is the cause of most of our failures. In the assurance of strength, there is strength, and they are the weakest, however strong, who have no faith in themselves or their powers.—Bovee.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Trust

BY EMILY HOUSEMAN WATSON.

He clothes the flowers of the field,
In all their beauteous hue;
That love which gives the lilies birth,
More richly cares for you.

He marks the sparrow when it falls,
And pities it in death;
And shall He not protect His own,
"Oh, ye of little faith"?

He hears the ravens when they cry,
Suplying daily food;
More surely still that Providence
Will crown you with all good.

To Be With God

REV. D. W. C. HUNTINGTON, D. D.

Men are often deceived in this world by thinking that happiness is the result of external conditions. They carry this misleading notion into their ideas of heaven. They think of it chiefly as a place. Their care is not so much about becoming heavenly in life and spirit, as about getting to a certain place. They fail to see that what would be paradise to one might be perdition to another. We can trust the heavenly Father to adjust external conditions to his glorified children; but heaven is first of all a spiritual state.

The expectation of going to heaven is almost universal among those who have any settled views of the future state. We have known many wicked men, but very few who did not expect in some way to get into heaven after death. This expectation, when joined with heavenly character, is well founded, and precious in its influence and consolation. When based upon nothing more than the selfish desire to have the best of everything, it will prove delusive. When Miss Frances Willard breathed out her life in the words, "It will be so beautiful to be with God," we can easily see whither she was going. There was but one place in the universe for her; that place was with God. A wicked man once strolled into a religious meeting, and after sitting uneasily for some time, arose, saying, "I want to get out of here; let me out of here; God Almighty is too near." It was just as easy to see where he was not going. "Tell them," said Bishop Hamline, "I had heaven before I died." God gathers into his kingdom here all whom he can persuade to meet the necessary conditions, and brings to the fellowships of heaven all whose lives are hid with Christ in God.

"The church triumphant in Thy love,
Their mighty joys we know;
They sing the Lamb in hymns above,
And we in hymns below."

He Touched My Hand

My hands were filled with many things,
Which I did precious hold
As any treasure of a king's
Silver, or gems, or gold.
The Master came, and touched my hands,
The scars were in his own;
And at his feet my treasures sweet
Fell shattered one by one;
"I must have empty hands," said he,
"Wherewith to work my works through thee."

My hands were stained with marks of toil,
Defiled with dust of earth,
And I my work did ofttimes soil,
And render little worth.
The Master came, and touched my hands,
And crimson were his own.
And when, amazed, on mine I gazed,
Lo, every stain was gone!
"I must have cleansed hands," said he,
"Wherewith to work my works through thee."

My hands were growing feverish,
And cumbered with much care,
Trembling with haste and eagerness,
Nor folded oft in prayer.
The Master came, and touched my hands,
With healing in his own,
And calm and still to do his will,
They grew, the fever gone.
"I must have quiet hands," said he,
"Wherewith to work my works through thee."

My hands were strong in fancied strength,
But not in power divine,
And bold to take up tasks at length,
That were not his, but mine.
The Master came, and touched my hands,
And might was in his own;
But mine, since then, have powerless been,
Save his were laid thereon.
"And it is only thus," said he,
"That I can work my works through thee."

The Music of the Heart

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER.

True piety is the harmony of the soul with God. His will becomes the will of his loving and obedient child; and such a Christian finds his happiness in the chime of his own desires with what God bids him to do. This is the fountain of genuine music of the heart. God's hand is on every string and chord of this wonderful instrument which a loyal believer carries in his or her breast; it is a harp of a thousand strings, and yet they all respond to the same divine touch. The great apostle, in writing to the early Christians, tells them that they must not merely sing, but that they must "make melody in their hearts to the Lord." This signifies the music of the soul; if it be religious music, it must come from a religious heart; it must be the breathing of sincere love and grateful adoration. The most marvelous of all instruments is the harp of the human heart.

Behold He Shall Come

Shall we know Him if we see Him
When He comes?
Shall we fear Him, shall we flee Him
When He comes?
Shall we love Him and believe Him,
Will His own at last receive Him,
Or will slighting coldness grieve Him
When He comes?
Shall we dare to stand before Him
When He comes?
Shall we worship and adore Him
When He comes?
Or will pride presume to try Him,
Will our craven fear deny Him,
And our sins cry, "Crucify Him,"
When He comes?

May our feet be swift to meet Him
When He comes!
May our hearts leap up to greet Him
When He comes!
May our lips be fit to sing Him,
May our hands be clean to bring Him
All we have and are to crown Him
When He comes!

—Mary Bertha Bradfield, in the Methodist Times.

All past days are not to be counted in reckoning up the life which is behind us, although all coming days are to be counted in reckoning life as it comes. It is not good spiritual arithmetic to treat the past and the future alike. There are days in the past which have a history, but there are days there which have no history. There are historic gaps in life. There are blanks in life. Take a concrete case. There is a silence of a whole year in the biography of David. For twelve months he sung no song of praise, thought no great thoughts, and sent nothing good down to posterity. Both harp and conscience were silent. When he lived in a spiritual atmosphere and did spiritual deeds his life was recorded; but when he stepped down from spirituality into carnality there were great blank leaves in his book of life. Prior to the period when the prophet Nathan pointed the finger of reproof at him and brought his conscience back to activity, there was an awful waste of a whole year.—David Gregg, in "Our Best Moods."

By REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text: Isa. 9:6. Theme: The Coming King. Christ is the coming King of this and of all worlds. He is to increase in authority, in majesty, in might, and in glory among all beings wherever found in the universe of God from now, and forever, throughout the eternal, unending years, cycles, and interminable ages of ages when the human soul cannot now soar, nor ever shall, until led into, and through them by the coming King, who is to reign until all His enemies are subject unto Him, and all kingdoms bow in grateful homage to Him, and, He accepted as the Sovereign Ruler, bears sway over all without a rival. Isaiah, the eagle-eyed evangelical prophet, saw the coming King in five aspects of life, majesty, and glory. He saw the coming King drawing near our world with all the mysterious and youthful possibilities of a healthy, vigorous, growing child of untold promise of life; who at the same time was the Ancient of days, the babe of Bethlehem and the God of all grace; the wonderful man, that moment the God of all ages to come; the wise Counsellor of eternity, pleading successfully at all tribunals the cause of the poor, the guilty, and the needy; the mighty God of all creatures, all creations, in all ages past, present, and future; the everlasting Father of the hoary ages of eternity, that remote period where no angel wings have ever flit, nor arch-angel feet have ever trod, nor the mind of man has ever traversed; and the Prince of Peace on earth and in heaven, whose reign shall be such as shall overturn the powers of darkness and bring in an unending day of life and immortality.

The coming King is a real man. He is a child born in human flesh. The shepherds saw the child; the wise men worshiped Him; an angel said that He was born in a manger, while others sang His natal song; Simeon handled Him when a babe in the temple as He nestled on His mother's bosom; Paul said that He was made of woman, made under the law. He was not a mere man, but a real man with a human soul, a human mind, and a human body. He is a man of tender sympathy, a man that could be, and was, sorely tried and tempted. He was given to the world not because the world asked for Him, but because the world must have Him, the great God man, or eternally perish.

The coming King is God over all. His name shall ever be called Wonderful. Wonderful in the love that gave and sent Him. Wonderful in His incarnation and in His advent into the world. Wonderful in His strange life of sorrow, in His ability to teach and to preach. Wonderful in His power to work for others, to suffer cruel mockings and bitter agony. Wonderful in His death, strange burial, and unique resurrection.

Greenville, S. C.

Put all things in His hands, and offer them beforehand to Him in your heart, as a sacrifice. From the moment when you cease to want things to be according to your own judgment, and accept unconditionally whatever He sends, you will be free from all your uneasy retrospects and anxieties about your own concerns.—Fenelon.

In the pilgrimage of life, water often fails us. We come to wells of human comfort, and find them dry; but it is not so with those for whom God is working; and the unclean things that haunt others find no hold in them.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

New Presiding Elders

The presiding elderate is an important office of our itineracy. The men usually chosen have enjoyed marked success previously as pastors, and have the high regard and good wishes of their brethren. We are presenting cuts and brief sketches of the presiding elders who have never been in the saddle before, appointed at the last round of the fall and spring conferences. There were a number of men who were reappointed to the presiding elderate during the conferences referred to, but it is our intention to publish sketches only of those who were appointed for the first time and are practically unknown to the church.

REV. R. N. JONES.

The Gulfport District was made at the last session of the Mississippi Conference and Robert Napoleon Jones is the new presiding elder. He is a hustler, and successful in every appointment that he has held. He will be 36 years old on the 24th day of next August, having first seen the light in Tuscaloosa, Ala. His parents came to the State of Mississippi when he was a small boy. At the age of 15 he was converted under the preaching of Rev. James Jordan and licensed as an exhorter under Rev. N. Toole. He entered Meridian Academy at the age of 20; here he remained until he completed the full Normal Course, then began his career as a teacher. In September, 1892, he was sent by Dr. J. M. Shumpert as a supply at Carthage. This was the beginning of his ministerial career. He was admitted to the Conference and ordained a deacon at Crystal Springs by Bishop Andrews. At this Conference he was stationed at State Line, and here he had a remarkably successful pastorate. In 1894 he was assigned to Terry, paid off old debts, revived the work and got himself a wife, Miss Sadie Tyner, an accomplished, cultured, Christian woman, whose home was at State Line, Miss., but who was educated at Mobile, Ala. He served then Heidelberg, Handsboro and Moss Point; built one church on the Handsboro Circuit and doubled the benevolent collections at Moss Point. A study of his strong face will convince one that he will have success as presiding elder.

Rev. J. B. Brooks, the new presiding elder of the Shubuta District, Mississippi Conference, is a graduate of Meridian Academy and of Gammon Theological Seminary, class 1900. He matriculated at Globe Academy and received the degree of B. S. at its commencement last May. He was ordained deacon at Moss Point in 1890, and in 1893 was ordained elder. He held the following charges before entering the Theological Seminary: Kennolia, Brookhaven, Edwards and Brandon. On his return from "Gammon" he was appointed to West Jackson, subsequently to Biloxi and then to Pass Christian, where he was serving as pastor when promoted to the presiding elderate. During Brother Brooks' ministerial career he has built four churches and three parsonages and under his administration more than 350 have been added to the church. During one revival at Pass Christian 75 were converted. He is sweet spirited, considerate, a hard student, a convincing gospel preacher, and a man of unquestioned integrity. He has the confidence of his brethren.

REV. J. B. BROOKS.

Rev. George W. Smith, D. D., presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, has been a member of the Mississippi Conference for 22 years and has held several of the leading appointments, including Central Church, Jackson, and St. Stevens, Yazoo City. It was under his inspiring pastorate at Yazoo City that the most magnificent church owned by our people in Mississippi was erected. The church cost something more than $12.000, and during the four years of his pastorate here he raised for all purposes more than $11,000. Dr. Smith was unusually successful in his large rally raising in three successive rallies $1,000, $1,300 and $1,760.60. He has been the competent and popular secretary of his conference for the last six years. Dr. Smith is a preacher of considerable merit. Being a hard student of theology in all its branches and taking special interest in philosophy and history. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Campbell College, Jackson, Miss. At the last session of the Mississippi Conference he was appointed by Bishop Spellmeyer, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, and has entered upon his work with indicataions of his usual success. He is making the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN a specialty and has already sent us a number of subscriptions.

REV. G. W. SMITH, D. D.

A study of the face of Rev. Joshua J. Obee, the new presiding elder of the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, will reveal strength, aggressiveness and determination. He is still a young man. He won his way by dint of perseverance from the humblest place in his Conference to the presiding elderate of one of its largest districts. He is not easily discouraged. He sets himself squarely against difficulties and surmounts them easily. He was received on trial in the Louisiana Conference in 1889, having served two years previously as a supply. During his 16 years of membership in the Louisiana Conference he has served Rayne, Shady Grove, Marthaville, Pineville, Alexandria, Napoleonville and Thompson Chapel, this city. He served four years at the last named charge and during this time took the Theological Course at New Orleans University, giving special attention to languages and higher mathemamtics. Under his ministry 380 souls have been converted and added to the church.

REV. J. J. OBEE.

The new presiding elder of the Pine Bluff District, Little Rock Conference, is the Rev. S. McDonald. He is a North Carolinian by birth, having seen light first in Salisbury in 1865. While he was quite young his parents moved to Shelby county, Tennessee, and here he began his education in the public school. He moved to Arkansas in 1879 with his parents and continued his education as opportunities permitted. When quite young his father was taken seriously ill and young Samuel was called upon to support the family, which he did heroically. He was converted in 1884 and joined the church under Rev. A. S. Richardson. At an early age he showed signs of deep spiritual life and was appointed steward, subsequently class-leader, Sunday-school superintendent and then was licensed to exhort and to preach. He was married November 25, 1885, to Miss Mary S. Saxton, joined the traveling connection in 1889, and was sent to Morrillton, his first appointment, and then to Fayetteville Circuit. From Fayetteville Circuit he went to Argenta, where he built a church costing $1.200 and his ministry was blessed with 132 conversions. He was appointed to Johnsville, Cotton Plant, Altheimer and then to White's Chapel, Little Rock. It was while serving as pastor of White's Chapel that he took advantage of the splendid educational facilities offered by Philander Smith College. From White's Chapel he was appointed to Newport and then to Fort Smith. At Fort Smith he served five years, which were full of interest and success. Rev. McDonald is a most successful revivalist, a splendid financier, and is known by his brethren as a church builder. He was appointed presiding elder of the Pine Bluff District at the last session of the Little Rock Conference, by Bishop McDowell.

REV. S. MCDONALD.

People's Normal Institute

The second annual closing exercises of the People's Normal and Industrial Institute of Lake Charles, La., Prof. J. E. L. Hoskins, principal, occurred on the nights of June 8, 9, and 10, 1905. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. B. M. Hubbard, D. D., of Shreveport, La. It was a powerful plea for higher education and was listened to by the elite of the city. It acted as an incentive to a large number of boys and girls who will re-enter the above named school when it open its doors for the ensuing session.

The annual exhibitions, on June 9 and 10, at the K. of P. Hall, were brilliant successes and were witnessed by large, appreciative audiences each night.

This growing city, with its great resources, is a splendid educational field and the faculty of the People's Normal and Industrial Institute is putting forth every effort to secure the best possible results.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson III—July 16, 1905. Title—"The Suffering Saviour (Isaiah 53: 1-12.) Golden Text.—"The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all" (Isaiah. 53: 6.)

The two greatest events about Jesus, predicted in the Old Testament, are His sufferings and the glory that should follow. The two disciples on their way to Emmans were asked: "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into His glory?" (Luke 24: 26). Nowhere in the Old Testament are these two facts more clearly taught than in this lesson. From this chapter there are divers quotations in the New Testament, which are applied directly to Jesus. Here we behold Jesus crucified, and also Jesus glorified. He died for our sins, and arose for our justification.

I. Prophecy: "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" (Ver. 1.) Many times before this had Isaiah predicted the coming of the Messiah. Notice one passage: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and he shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9: 6). Here we see Jesus as a real man—"a child born, a son given," and we also behold him as the Mighty God, and Prince of Peace. The prophecies concerning Jesus were not always believed, because the "arm of the Lord" was not at all times revealed. The people did not discern the power of God which accompanied the prediction and gave to it success. They did not experience in their heart that working of the Spirit which made the word effective. It is the sin of unbelief that is destroying the world. Precious souls perish at the pool's side because they will not step in and be healed.

II. Early life: "He shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, and as a root out of dry ground: He hath no form or comeliness: and when we shall see Him there is no beauty that we should desire Him" (Ver. 2). Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judeau, probably in the year of Rome 750, and was sent with His parents into Egypt when but a few months old. After a year or more He returned with His parents and located in Nazzareth of Galilee. There He grew from infancy to manhood, and increased in wisdom, in stature, and in favor with God and man." He grew up before the Lord "as a tender plant." The protecting care of Jehovah was thrown about Him. He was "as a root out of a dry ground," or as a plant in a desert. He lived apart from the world. When Jesus came the heart of the Jewish nation was politically, socially, and religiously, very dry ground. He "had no form or comeliness" to draw our eyes to Him. Some read: "No beauty of form." He lived in lowly estate, without crown, or royal robe, or courtiers, or body-guard. We have no portrait of our Saviour to which the slightest credit can be given. We need not suppose this verse refers in any way to His physical appearance. On this topic the sacred writers without exception are silent.

III. Ministry: "He was despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from Him" (Ver. 3). The ministry of Jesus lasted about three years and three months. The first twelve months were spent chiefly in Judea, the next twenty-one months He dwelt largely in Galilee, and the last six months He resided in Perea. In Galilee He was not "despised and rejected of men," yet Herod did seek His life (Luke 13: 31), and Jesus stayed out of his dominion some time before finally departing from Galilee. In Perea the publicans and sinners drew near to hear Jesus, but the Scribes and Pharisees were continually seeking His life. It was in Judea that Jesus met the strongest opposition to His ministry. The priests, Scribes and Pharisees set themselves against Him. They accused Him of being a wine-bibbler, of Sabbath desecration, of eating with publicans and sinners, of blasphemy, of being possessed with a devil, of casting out evil spirits in the name of Beelzebub, and of being a traitor to the Roman government. By them He was rejected and despised. No person was ever more familiar with sorrow than He. In deep sympathy with suffering humanity. Rejected by His race and nation. One of His chosen friends proved a traitor, and sold Him for thirty pieces of silver. Satan exhausted his powers of temptation along every line of human nature, upon Him. In Gethsemane so great was His sorrow that He "sweat as it were great drops of blood." Surely He has borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows."

IV. [illegible]: "He was stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted (Ver. 4). "He was taken from prison and from judgment" (Ver. 8). "As a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He openeth not His mouth" (Ver. 7). Jesus was tried before Caiaphas (Matt. 26: 57); before Herod (Luke 23: 7); and before Pilate (Mark 15: 1). In the first trial, which was before the Council and was strictly Jewish, Jesus was condemned for blasphemy. But a more unfair trial was never conducted, and a more groundless sentence never rendered. In the second trial before Herod, Jesus was "set at naught," or treated as nothing. In the third trial, before Pilate, Jesus was acquited. The governor said: "I am innocent of the blood of this just person" (Matt. 27: 24). "I have examined Him before you and find no fault in this man," (Luke 23: 14), yet he gave Him up to be crucified because the chief-priests, scribes, elder, and the common people whom they could influence, clamored for His life. Jesus did not employ any counsel, neither did he plead His own cause. In each trial, He treated with perfect silence every charge brought against Him, and the testimony of all the witnesses. He opened not His mouth. After this he was taken into the "common hall," a purple robe (kings wear purple) was put on Him, a crown of thorns (kings wear crowns) was put on His head, and a reed (kings wield a scepter) was put in His hand. They in mockery bowed the knee and said: "Hail King of the Jews." They scourged Him, spat on Him, and smote Him on the head with the reed. Surely He was "stricken, smitten, and afflicted." All this He bore, not for His offenses for there was no fault found in Him, but for our sins.

V. Crucifixion: "He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter" (Ver. 7). "He was cut off out of the land of the living" (Ver. 8). "He hath poured out His soul unto death" (Ver. 12). Jesus was crucified on Mt. Calvary. The drink given Him was wine mingled with myrrh-vinegar mixed with gall. He was on the cross from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. The superscription nailed above His head read: "Jesus of Nazareth: King of the Jews." He was "numbered with the transgressors" by being crucified between two thieves. The darkness, which continued three hours, was miraculous. He spoke seven times while on the cross. He "made intercession for the transgressors when He prayed: 'Father forgive them for they know not what they do!'" When He died there was an earthquake, and the veil of the temple was rent in twain.

VI. Burial: "He made His grave with the wicked, and with the rich in His death" (Ver. 9). Joseph of Areamathea, a wealthy merchant, went boldly to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. He, assisted by Nicodemus, took it down from the cross, and likely placed it on a bier, lifted it to the shoulders of four servants, who carried it to the tomb. Joseph and Nicodemus, probably composed the funeral procession: some women followed afar off. At the tomb the body was no doubt placed on the ground, while the blood and damps of death were sponged from it. It was then wrapped in the winding sheet of death, with many sweet spices placed between the folds. They then placed it in Joseph's new tomb wherein never man had laid, rolled a great stone over the entrance and departed. The enemies of Jesus came and sealed the tomb, and placed a guard stone over the entrance. Thus Jesus made His grave with the rich, and was surrounded by the wicked in His death.

VII. Resurrection: "When thou shalt make His soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hands" (Ver. 10). No one saw Jesus arise from the dead. He was in the tomb one whole day, and parts of two other days: about forty hours in all. He arose early in the morning of the first day of the week. There was an earthquake which broke the seal and loosed the stone. An angel descended from heaven, rolled away the stone, and sat upon it. Jesus arose from the dead, removed the winding sheet of death and laid it aside, took the napkin from His face, folded and laid it in another place, and passed forth from the tomb clothed in all the majesty and glory of heaven: triumphing over death and over the grave. He was seen ten or more times between His resurrection and ascension. And after He was taken up into glory Stephen, Paul of Tarsus, and John on Patmos, beheld Him.

VIII. Progress: "He shall see of the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied" (Ver. 10). The growth of the church has been wonderful. At first Jesus stood alone. Then twelve apostles were gathered about Him. Later seventy evangelists were added to their number. Then some women joined them. On the day of Pentecost three thousand were added unto them. When Peter healed the lame-born man, at the beautiful gate of the temple, two thousand more came in. At the end of the first century there were five hundred thousand Christians. At the end of the fifth century the number had increased to fifteen millions. At the end of the tenth century it had gone up to fifty million. At the end of the fifteenth century there were one hundred million Christians. At the end of the eighteenth century there were two hundred million followers of Jesus. And now at the beginning of the twentieth century this number has increased to nearly five hundred million Christians. "He shall see of the travail of His soul," but will not be fully satisfied until every nation, kindred, tribe, and tongue shall learn to know Him whom to know aright is everlasting life.

Langston University

BY J. MERCER JOHNSON.

It was my pleasure to visit Langston University during its Commencement week. This school is named for the late John Mercer Langston, and is presided over by President Inman E. Page, A. M., who needs no introduction to the reading world. Upon this school is stamped his great personality, for he is an educator and leader of no mean ability.

The institution is ideally located, in a Negro town, it has 160 acres of land, most of which is under cultivation; splendid buildings and fine manual training plants. Prof. Jackson has charge of this department.

President Page is ably assisted by a strong faculty, among whom is Prof. A. B. Whitby, A. B., who has charge of the Chair of Science, and is indeed doing fine work. Prof. Whitby's many friends will be glad to know that his department will easily rank with the best scientific departments in any of our Southern schools.

Langston University, unlike most State schools, has not only a complete manual training department, but a full college course also, so that her students are taught everything from the making of a buggy wheel and the scientific cooking of a biscuit to the digging out of Greek and Latin roots. I was delighted to note such a Christian atmosphere pervading this institution, fine college spirit, believers and indulgers in college sports. Oklahoma is fortunate in having such a broad-minded, liberally educated, Christian gentleman at the head of its institution as Professor Inman E. Page. We are also glad to note that the white friends are standing right nobly by this school.

A perfect faith would lift us absolutely above fear. It is in the cracks, crannies and gulfy faults of our belief—the gaps that are not faith—that the snow of apprehension settles, and the ice of unkindness forms.—George McDonald.

A voice that habitually "sharps" or "flats" will spoil a choir, so an intolerant spirit will ruin the harmony of a household.—Mrs. J. F. Willing.

WEST CHICAGO, ILL.—Children's Day was quite fittingly observed. The church was very beautifully decorated and the program, under the able management of Mr. J. W. Jones, was very well rendered. Vivian Jackson, aged nine years, who delivered the welcome greetings, won the prize which the writer offered to the pupil who would bring in the largest number of scholars. Addresses by Drs. T. H. Wilson, of Chicago; I. J. Kane, of New Orleans, and the writer. Scott Chapel, named for our beloved Bishop I. B. Scott, is located in West Chicago, in a very populous community, and bids fair for great success. The Rev. D. H. V. Purnell, A. B., is pastor. He is an energetic young man, a faithful, conscientious, unassuming worker, and enjoys the love and respect of all the people. He has increased the membership from five to eighteen, with a Sunday-school enroll- the efficient superintendent," writes Dr. A. W. Brazier the efficient superintendent.

TEMPLE, GA.—The Children's Day program was carried out, including a splendid sermon by the pastor, Rev. C. H. Blake. The exercise was a success. Collection, $17.31.

NORTH (S. C.) CONFERENCE—Children's Day was observed at St. James and Wesley churches with greater enthusiasm than ever before. Each of the churches were tastefully decorated. The official program was carried out to the letter under the efficient management of B. R. Brunson, superintendent. Our full assessment of $10.00 was raised, writes the pastor, Rev. J. R. Townsend.

LA GRANGE, GA.—Children's Day was observed with good results. Presiding Elder R. R. O'Neal preached two glorious sermons. The program was rendered at 5 p. m., and the banner contest between the teachers was quite a success, Miss Dora B. Beasley and Mrs. Laura Burden leading. Collection for the day, at Louise Chapel, $51.67; at Union Chapel, $4.14; total, $55.81, writes the pastor, Rev. G. H. Lennon.

WEDOWE (CT.), ALA.—The Children's Day program was satisfactorily carried out at Mountain Grove Sunday school. The following committees reported: Mrs. Mayme Calves, $13.60; Miss Dallie Chapel, $11.13; Miss Lola Chapel, $8.70; Miss Mary Broom, $6.70; Miss Mollie Foster, $1.04; total collection for the day, $45.77.

Haven Academy

Haven Academy has just closed the most successful school year that it has experienced for many years. On Sunday, June 18, Haven Memorial Chapel was filled with a large audience to hear the baccalaureate sermon preached by the Rev. A. M. H. Evans, of Millen, Ga. Monday and Tuesday evenings, concerts were given by the primary and English departments, also the oratorical contest. Monday evening the Literary Society was addressed by the Rev. W. M. Bellinger. Tuesday morning there was a spelling contest, after which the Rev. J. S. Stripling made a very fine address. Subject, "The Man Wanted." Wednesday evening addresses were made by the Rev. W. H. Brown, presiding elder, Waynesboro district, and the Rev. J. H. Pinkney. On Wednesday evening the commencement exercises were held. The crowning feature was the address delivered by the Rev. C. C. Jacobs, D. D., Field Agent of Sunday School of the M. E. Church, which was greatly appreciated and enjoyed by the large audience. A. A. R.

There is a flower called heartsease, which flourisheth on the meanest soil, when fed with good deeds and kindly thoughts, and 'tis worth a king's ransom to its possessor. That same flower had its roots deep in the heart of God, and its fruit into eternity, where every good shall reap its unfailing harvest of weal, and think to cheat ourselves with the fancy that God's law can fail. Here and hereafter we shall reap as we have sown.—A. L. Glyn.

Lesson Topic July 16,

The Message of the Flowers

Scripture Reference—Matt. 6: 28-34; James 1: 9-11.

The Word. Our lesson is pre-eminently a suitable one for summer. We are taken in our first selection back to the teachings of Jesus on the mount. Nothing was too trivial for Jesus to use it as an illustration of His words. The lilies of the field, the grass of the hillside, the birds of the air were all pointed out as the silent illustrations of the truth. James also uses the grass as a type of the transient and fleeting nature of human riches and of human life. Yet we find many significant lessons in the flowers other than those of death and decay.

Our Homily: The Voice of the Flowers. Jesus was a lover of nature. He delighted in the bright sunshine, the blooming flowers, the variegated landscape as do we. No doubt to his soul the flowers had a message unintelligible to us. It has been a favorite study in all ages to interpret the language of flowers. The various species have been supposed to convey a different message in their offering. We are not so much concerned with the sentimental significance of flowers as we are in the general lessons that come to us from the frailty, the beauty, and the fragrance of the flowers.

They Carry a Lesson of Providence. This was largely the teaching of Jesus. If God clothe the fading flower and the transient grass of the field, how much more will He care for His children. As we walk the fields and see the blooming flowers often in places where no human eye will likely behold them, how suggestive of the profuse and provident resources of God for the comfort of His people! What infinite mechanism in the construction of a rose! What skill in the artistic coloring of the wild flower! What gorgeous displays of beauty wasted on the desert air! Yet God does all this for the pleasure and delight of His children. How much more will He do for their necessities!

They Carry a Lesson of Helpfulness. What a cheer and comfort are in the flowers we send to the sick-room and to the object of our love! How they brighten up the church and schoolroom! With what ministry of comfort they come to the sorrowing and sad! They come to us to teach us that God is love and would cheer and comfort us. They have a ministry as sacred as that of the Word. Nature joins with revelation to declare the care and love of the Father. Their beauty is indicative of the love of God, their fragrance typical of the influence of our lives on others. They are not useless and meaningless, but designed to teach us trust in the God who made them. They suggest the Christ who is designated "the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley."

They Bring a Message of Immortality. There is more than sadness in the frailty of the grass and the flowers. There is more than death typified in the passing of the flower. There is the underlying thought that if human life be as brief as the flower and transient as the grass there is a place where there are "fields arrayed in living green." Their very life of a day teaches us that though we may not stay long on the earth we may give out that which will bless and help while we do live. The memory of their beauty and fragrance remains after they are gone. So our life may be short, but it may abide in the memory of some life and bless it after we are gone.

The Gospel of the Summer.

It tells us that God is intensely alive.
It publishes the beauty of His character.
It manifests forth His infinite love.
It suggests the blessedness of God.

"Thou hast made the summer."—From Notes on the Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topic.

A NEEDY CASE

At his request Rev. Z. T. Gayden was granted the superannuate relation at the last session of the Louisiana conference. He is now seriously ill at his home at Clinton, La., and Rev. G. A. Payne writes us that he is greatly in need of medical attention. Brother Gayden has had an honorable and useful career and now in these closing days of his life he ought not be permitted to suffer. The friends and churches ought to come at once to the relief of this faithful man. Contributions can be sent to Mrs. Z. T. Gayden, or to Rev. G. A. Payne, at Clinton, La.

Rev. Dr. W. P. Thirkield recently paid a visit to Cleveland, Ohio, and addressed the Preachers' Meeting of that city in the interest of his work. Dr. R. L. Dickerson, our pastor at Cleveland, writes an interesting letter of how Dr. Thirkield completely captured his audience and carried it in his usual inimitable way in the discussion of the race situation as it bears upon the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Dr. Thirkield was right when he said that "the Negro problem is not for the South alone, but for the North as well, for there are 10,000 Negroes in Cleveland." The Doctor claims, and justly so, that the Negro being barred from the trade unions of the North is one of the causes for the large percentage of crime among them. His appeal for a hearty co-operation on the part of our strong Methodism at the North for the proper housing and spiritual care of the hundreds of our people who are constantly moving into the North, was timely. Our people go from our Methodism at the South, born at our altars, nurtured by our preachers and should be saved to the church. Dr. Thirkield's appeal for the co-operation and assistance of our brethren who live in northern cities, wihle it was a gentle rebuke, nevertheless is in harmony with the best interests of our Methodism. Dr. Thirkield's address made a profound impression.

A committee some time ago appointed to select eighty-five of the best books published last year for the New York Library has selected at the head of the list on sociology, Dr. Booker T. Washington's book on "Working With Hands."

The Negro physicians, dentists and pharmacists of Philadelphia have effected an organization under the name of the Philadelphia Academy of Medicine and Allied Sciences.

BUY BOOKS FROM US

We want your book business. In the adjustment of our business office the arrangements are now such that the profits which may accrue from the sale of books will go to meet the running expenses of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. So that, now, every book bought at this office helps that much toward self-support.

We are prepared to fill all orders for Sunday school supplies and books of any description. We invite our presiding elders and pastors to cooperate with us in soliciting a full patronage of our conferences and to inform the congregations of its advantage: 1. It will enable us to know just how much we contribute to the general church by our purchases. 2. It will thus give us a credit and standing in the church and out of it which we have not hitherto had. 3. It will enable us to judge of the character and improvement of the people by the kinds of books they read. 4. It will help us to encourage the people to read along right lines, and hence aid the schools and ministry in their efforts to save the people. Send us your orders. Send for catalogues, price lists, etc. In ordering Sunday school periodicals, send your orders at least two weeks before the quarter expires. Always remember the golden rule when ordering—cash must accompany all orders. Address Eaton & Mains, 429 Carondelet street, New Orleans, La.

SECRETARY JOHN HAY

Secretary John Hay died at his home in Newberry, New Hampshire, last Saturday morning. He had been ill for some time. Having gone to Europe and returned but a few weeks since, it was hoped that he had fully recovered his health and would be spared to render services to his country for many years. Mr. Hay had the confidence not only of the American people, but of the world. His diplomacy was frank, sincere, conservative and free from bias and prejudice. His worth was recognized in every European capital and he was on intimate terms with many of the select citizens of the world. By education and training he was not only one of the foremost diplomats of the world, but a statesman of the very highest type. He was given the portfolio of State in President McKinley's cabinett in 1898 and was retained by President Roosevelt. During this time Mr. Hay had handled some of the most difficult questions in which delicate international relations were involved, and in every instance he not only maintained the strength and dignity of the great American republic, but increased the confidence and admiration for American diplomacy. His bold stroke for the oppressed Jew and his firm hand alike in other international affairs have made his name imperishable.

Mr. Hay at his next birthday, October 8th, would have been 67 years of age. He was born in Salem, Ind., and graduated from Brown University in 1858. He was private secretary to President Lincoln. He began his diplomatic career with his appointment as secretary of legation at Paris, and afterwards served in the same capacity in the legations at Madrid and Vienna. From 1870 to 1881 he was First Assistant Secretary of State; 1897 to 1898, Ambassador to the court of St. James, from which post he was called to serve as Secretary of State in the cabinet of Mr. McKinley. His body will be laid to rest at Cleveland, Ohio, his old home. President Roosevelt has signified his intention to attend the service.

In addition to Mr. Hay's qualities as a politician and statesman, he gained recognition in the world of letters. Among other literary productions he was the author of the following: Castilian Days," "Pike County Ballads," "Translation of Castelar's Democracy in Europe," "Abraham Lincoln—a History," "Poems" and "Sir Walter Scott—an Address.'

Chief Engineer Wallace, of the Panama Canal Commission, has been the subject of much public comment. He desired to quit his job in which he had been so short a while because he was offered a larger salary. Secretary Taft's rebuke, tho strong, was justifiable. There are some considerations in a job more than that of money.

OKOLONA INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE

Another indication of the strength of Negro character and life is to be seen in the constant development of school facilities for the race. Many of these schools are established simply upon the faith and energy of the principal. It was so in the case of the Okolona Industrial College, of which Prof. Wallace A. Battle is principal. He drove his stakes down at Okolona, Miss., in the midst of a large Negro population and went to work for the elevation of his people. He has won not only their cordial support, but has the confidence of the entire community of both races. The Okolona Sun, a democratic paper published in Okolona, Miss., speaking of Professor Battle says: "He is in reality a wonder and what he has accomplished with but a modest start, in three years, suggests that he is marching rapidly to first place on the roll of honor in the Negro educational field. Another unanswerable appeal this college has to philanthropists everywhere is that it is located well, with the most cordial Southern environments with the whites it comes in direct contact with, and is in the state containing the largest Negro population in the South."

The Negro student who was the occasion of the wrath of Dr. Dudley A. Warner, of this city, in his speech at Chicago, is Mr. A. B. Terrell, a grandson of Dean Pierre Landry, of Gilbert Industrial College, Baldwin, La. Mr. Terrell has a record of which he should justly be proud, coming as he does from one of the best Methodist families, his father and mother, Prof. and Mrs. I. M. Terrell, being educators of considerable rank at Fort Worth, Texas. Dr. Warner went out of his way to do what at least may be called an unkind and unjust act. After this young Negro, by dint of perseverance, had won his degree at the University of Chicago, the appropriate thing to have been done on the part of Dr. Warner would have been to commend young Terrell on his success, in spite of all the opposition that may have been his. That there is no place in the South for the colored graduate can hardly be accepted if only one looks around him. In this case, as in all others, the college man is as valuable an adjunct to the Negro life as to the life of any class of our citizens.

The revolutionary movement, which was spreading rapidly thro the Russian Government and caused the Czar, in order to guarantee public safety and terminate the disorders at Odessa, to declare a state of war, has been suppressed. The mutiny of sailors at Libau caused the loss of millions of dollars worth of property, including ships which were burned or otherwise destroyed, and probably hundreds were killed or wounded in the street fighting. The crew of the Kniaz Potemkine, the largest battleship of the Black Sea fleet, that killed all of their officers who refused to join them in the mutiny, were compelled to surrender the battleship on June 30th to Vice Admiral Kruger's squadron, and thus order has been somewhat restored. The official version of the affair is that the mutiny on the Kniaz Potemkine was the result of a plot concocted by twenty sailors who were members of a revolutionary organization.

Personal and General.

REV. S. H. NORWOOD

Rev. S. H. Norwood, pastor of Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., is the secretary of the Washington Conference. The minutes have been out for some weeks and are a credit alike to himself as secretary and to his great Conference. Although 2,500 copies of the minutes were printed, the entire edition has been exhausted, and still there is great demand for more copies. Rev. Norwood in a letter says: "The District Conference of the Washington District seems to be dying of its own weight. No charge invites, no charge will have it, all charges refuse to entertain it. The Sunday school Cradle Roll in Asbury and Mount Zion, Washington, is very carefully looked after, and is doing much to help those Sunday schools."

Bishop Earl Cranston, D. D., LL. D., was sixty-five years of age Tuesday, June 27.

Rev. Herbert Welch, D. D., was inaugurated president of the Ohio Wesleyan University, June 22nd.

Bishop Bowman will be 88 years of age July 15th. He visited the Baltimore Preachers' Meeting recently.

Rev. W. R. Chase, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, Gulf Conference, left last Saturday on a trip to Cuba.

Rev. J. H. C. Means has been changed from Baker, La., to Slaughter, La., and Rev. C. D. C. Regan from Slaughter to Baker.

Mrs. Virginia Ross, wife of Rev. N. W. Ross, our pastor of Haven Church, Meridian, Miss., died July 1st, after an illness of some months.

Mr. Charles N. Elliotte and Miss Susie James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Cooke, were united in marriage the evening of June 28, 1905, at St. Louis, Mo.

Rev. C. W. Ivy informs us that reduced rates have been granted for the Meridian District Conference to be held at Lawrence, Miss., July 25-31. Rev. J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder.

Mr. Charles Redmond, one of the most promising young men of Lorain, O., and a member of our church there, died Monday, June 19, at the home of his father, Rev. W. H. Redmond.

Mrs. Josephine Price McNairy gave a concert on June 26 at the courthouse of Humboldt, Tenn. Mrs. McNairy, who is a brilliant musician, is the daughter of our friend, the Rev. J. P. Price, of the Tennessee Conference.

The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Dean Pierre Landry, of Gilbert Industrial College, recently, by the McKinley Memorial University and National Correspondence College at Vincennes, Ind.

In connection with the Lewis and Clark Exposition now on in the city of Portland, Ore., will be held a Methodist Congress from July 11-21, by the Methodists of the Northwest. The excellent program prepared will be a treat to all.

Rev. F. S. Legardy, of Shreveport, La., was in our office last week. Bro. Legardy, tho busy with railroad duties, finds time to keep abreast with his profession. He purchased a set of books, preparatory to coming examinations.

Mr. Julius R. Cox is the popular and efficient traveling secretary of Dr. Booker T. Washington. Prior to his acceptance of this post of duty, Mr. Cox was a mail carrier in Indianapolis, Ind., which position he resigned to accept his present one.

Rev. Claudius B. Spencer, D. D., editor of the Central Christian Advocate, was given the degree of LL. D., at the commencement of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, the Hon. William Jennings Bryan receiving the same degree at the same time.

Rev. C. D. Shallowhorne, pastor of St. James Church, Shreveport, La., was in the city last week officially visiting Southern University, of which he is a trustee. Rev. Shallowhorne had an interview with Governor Blanchard recently concerning some important phases of our educational work.

Rev. N. R. Clay, A. B., of Holly Springs, Miss., has been filling some important engagements in his state. He preached the sermon of the United Woodmen at Laurel recently and addressed audiences at Macon, Crawford, Starkville, West Point and Tupelo. He was cordially received wherever he went.

Mrs. T. B. Miller, of Jackson, Miss., was kind enough to send us recently photographs of the last session of the Mississippi Conference and of the Mississippi Negro Business League. The work is very good, indeed. Mrs. Miller makes a specialty of outdoor photography. Her address is 120 So. Farrish St., Jackson, Miss.

The Committee of Apportionments of the Missionary Society writes Dr. J. M. Shumpert: "We congratulate you on reporting again the largest collection in the history of the Jackson District, as well as the largest number of charges in Class First, and we cordially hope and pray that your term on the Meridian District may be exceedingly prosperous."

Mrs. S. J. Lane, of Geo. R. Smith College, Sedalia, Mo., is spending the summer in the southern South visiting friends. She was present at the Wiley University commencement, Marshall, Tex., from where she went to Houston, spending several weeks. She is now in New Orleans. Mrs. Lane will be the musical director of Geo. R. Smith the coming year.

Dr. Booker T. Washington is to deliver the Fourth of July oration at Montclair, N. J., in line with Dr. Lyman Abbot and others who have delivered this address on previous occasions. The several fire companies were to act as an escort to Dr. Washington, but they object because he is a Negro. Their objection is more of a reflection on themselves than on Mr. Washington.

Rev. J. C. Prince, of the Atlanta Conference, has out a new lecture under the subject "An Appeal to the Christian Conscience of the Nation." Dr. G. W. Arnold in referring to the lecture says: "I heartily commend this lecture to our people," while Rev. V. D. Jenkins says: "It is the finest I have ever heard." For terms and date address Rev. J. C. Prince, So. Atlanta, Ga.

Rev. Lewis S. Price, our pastor at Fort Wayne, Ala., writes us that a man under the assumed name of C. H. Jones has been doing fraudulent business in and around Attala, Ala. He not only has secured money under false pretense, but is a candidate for matrimonial honors in every neighborhood. This statement is published in order that others may not be taken unawares

Rev. W. H. Dean, pastor Leigh Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Richmond, Virginia, having succeeded in an effort toward raising $113.65, the amount of interest due on the debt, is now busy with plans looking to the collection of $426 by the 1st of August with which to pay off two years' principal notes already due. It was under peculiarly trying circumstances that Brother Dean assumed charge of affairs last April. The pastor preceding him had deserted the flock, leaving behind him accumulated debts. Fortunately confidence has been restored, interest revived and the church is working harmoniously. No stone will be left unturned to find a way out of the present strait. In view of the meagre financial resources of the congregation Brother Dean realizes the need of some outside help and requests that the friends of struggling Methodism in that portion of the Old Dominion send on at once contributions of money. Rev. Dr. Hays, presiding elder of the district, writes to the effect that the enterprise represented by Brother Dean is in all respects deserving and ought to be liberally aided. Brother Dean's address is 716 N. First street, Richmond, Va.

The School of Methods for the State of Texas is in session at Austin, Tex., and will continue until July 22. The faculty announced is a strong one. Among others, are Prof. R. S. Lovinggood, Lecturer of Civics; Prof. C. W. Luckie, A. M., lecturer of English, and Prof. Charles Atherton, lecturer of General History. The School of Methods purposes to do a high class of work in the instruction of colored teachers and in its effort it is to have the unstinted commendation.

Doings of the Workmen.

LOUISIANA.

Verdunville Charge, Chas. C. Landry, Pastor.—On Friday night a party, led by Mrs. M. Bogan, Mrs. C. Chambers, Mesdames M. Bourgeois, Louise Alfred, Mr. E. Antoine and Mr. G. G. Walker, accompanied by the string band, brought many choice pounds to the parsonage. These good people have our best wishes and thanks. I wish to thank, also, Mrs. Fanny Calbert and Miss Cora Gilmore for sums of $7.00 and $5.00 respectively.

Franklin, R. C. Worsham, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held March 24, Rev. W. R. Butler presiding. The officers were out in good shape. Notwithstanding the bad weather, we did well during the quarter and everything bids fair for a good year's work at this place. The anniversary sermon of the Knights of Pythias was preached, taking place Sunday, March 26, at Asbury Church, by the pastor. Collection, $36.00.

St. Martinsville, N. R. Randolph, Pastor.—Our quarterly conference convened May 6-7, ably presided over by Rev, J. J. Obee, who was accompanied by Rev. E. C. Goins, of Opelousas. All officers presented written reports. Sunday at 11 a. m. the Rev. Obee preached to a packed house. Collected for the day, 27.80; for the quarter, $127.45. Paid the elder in full, $17.50; pastor $68.50. Our missionary day was May 27th. Our church here is alive and progressing.

Booth, W. L. Jefferson.—A glorious time was had in this place on the 30th of April. Our trustee rally resulted in $52.55, for the purpose of building a new parsonage. The lumber is on the ground and the carpenters are at work. The parsonage will be completed by the 15th inst, with three comfortable rooms. Every member is doing his full duty toward the church under the leadership of Rev. A. C. Mitchell, our pastor. Dr. Marshall was with us and he is well pleased with the work accomplished. We will meet the district conference with a full report and more benevolent money than ever before in the history of the church. The ground was donated by Brother Geo. Plowman, and the trustees have the deeds for the same.

Clinton, N. Ford, Pastor.—Our quarterly conference was held Tuesday night, May 9th, by Rev. J. H. Thompson, and was a very pleasant and profitable session. The officers presented written reports, which indicated improvement along all lines. Rev. F. Walker, of Clinton, was with us and preached an excellent sermon. Collection $9.85. This church is in good condition spiritually and financially, and the prospect is bright for a successful year's work.

Houma, Wm. S. Harris, Pastor.—On Friday night, March 24th, the young people of Wesley Chapel, led by Misses Selina Smith and Daisy Grant, tendered their pastor a delightful surprise. Their thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated.

Washington, S. Green, Pastor.—Sunday, April 16, Rev. E. H. Gaines, pastor of St. Mark's M. E. church, was with us and preached a strong and effective sermon. Also, Brothers W. C. Cooper, S. Trade and G. Wash, local preachers of the same church, worshipped with us. Collection, $57.75.

Maringouin, D. A. Landry.—St. Peter's M. E. church held an excellent quarterly conference on Saturday night, April 8. Rev. A. B. Venable, the pastor, is trying to elevate the church to a higher standard and has succeeded so far. Rev. J. W. Turner, P. E., conducted 11 o'clock service Sunday. Members and friends were glad to meet him. One member was added to the church. Collection, $17.75.

Beattieville, L. H. Smith.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 10, 1905, by Rev. W. R. Butler, presiding elder. Rev. Jules Benn, the pastor, made an excellent report, which showed that he has things well in hand. Our Sunday school numbers 51 and is yet increasing. All officers made good reports. Brothers D. W. Jackson, John D. Brown and L. H. Smith, the committee on resolutions of condolence touching the death of Rev. S. Duncan, presented the following: Beattieville, La., April 10, 1905—To the Chairman and Members of the First Quarterly Conference of the Beattieville Charge: Whereas, as death has summoned Rev. S. Duncan to his eternal home, and, whereas, the Rev. Duncan was our first presiding elder,

And whereas, it is the prerogative of our just Creator to introduce men into His work and to remove same at His will, yet we cannot look upon the sad death of our honored and beloved brother without a feeling of sincere regret. Therefore, be it resolved, that this body extend to the bereaved family of Rev. S. Duncan our heartfelt sympathy. Rev. T. Williams, of Schriever, was with us and he and Rev. Butler preached to a packed house.

Bastrop, Ed Powell, Pastor. — Our first quarterly conference was held March 16-17. Presiding Elder J. O. Brown presided with much care and dignity. The majority of the officers were present with good reports. Rev. Brown preached two able sermons and twelve souls came to the altar for prayer. Mt. Olive is alive Raised this quarter, $41.25; paid pastor, $22.97; presiding elder, $8.00.

Pecan Point, R. E. White, Pastor.—Immediately after the adjournment of the last annual conference I was stricken with pneumonia. I met my people on the first Sunday in March and found the new church closed against us for a debt of $200, past due. officers and members were greatly discouraged, but loyal. On Sunday, April 9th, raised for trustees, $70.00; for pastor, $7.60. A dark cloud hangs over us, but we hope with God's help to soon remove it.

Schriever, Thos. Williams Pastor.—On the night of March 28th, a surprise party came to the parsonage, led by Brother C. Ballard, Sisters P. Smith, R. Williams, E. Byrd and R. Turner. They brought many good things, for which we are thankful. The presentation speech was made by Brother C. Ballard; response by the pastor.

Monroe.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was celebrated. The devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, D. G. Taylor. Prayer by S. Brown. Several scripture lessons were read, followed by a hymn. Sisters E. Willian, E. Brooks, E. L. Bowman, P. N. Bell, M. L. Nornan and J. Rooch spoke in thoughtful, well chosen words. The meeting was of great interest.

Zion Chapel, F. M. Lashington, Pastor—Our first quarterly conference was held April 14, 1905, Rev Dock Young presiding; also Rev. R. E. White was present. We had a grand quarter and paid the presiding elder in full; also added twenty persons to the charge since conference

New Roads, R. Jones, Pastor.—My first quarterly conference was held at Taylor Chapel, Rev. J. W. Taylor presiding. We enjoyed the [illegible] excellent sermon and were able to pay him in full, $12.00

Pineville, J. C. Brown, Pastor—We are moving along nicely at this place. Everything is at peace. We are looking for a great revival. The church is spiritually and financially alive. The officers and leaders are great heroes in the person of Bro. A. F. Tillman, Jas. Green and Good F. Taylor. Also we have great steward sisters in the persons of Sisters L. Green, L. Oliver, D. Taylor, S. Good, S. Tillman, P. Gordon, M. Miller, S. Allen. They have done a grand work; beautified the church inside, they have put railing around the pulpit and have painted it; bought chairs; put in carpet in pulpit, at a cost of $45.

MISSISSIPPI.

Union, A. Howze, Pastor.—We arrived here February 1st, found the work in good condition and were given a warm and cordial welcome by the people. Generous winds began to blow from all directions until on March 24th, under the leadership of Brothers Collins and Brown, Sisters Anna Wchalem, Roundtree and a host of young people came to the parsonage and filled our table with 100 pounds of groceries. This kind act greatly cheered the inmates.

Kilmicheal Circuit, Geo. W. Baker, Pastor.—I came to this circuit January 28th very much discouraged, but this good congregation received me very kindly. My first quarterly conference convened April 8-9. Dr. Thomas W. Davis was on time and we had the best conference ever held on this circuit. All members were present with well prepared reports. Dr. Davis left no stone unturned in presenting the different causes of the grand old church. For the Southwestern we have pledged ourselves to secure ten yearly subscribers by the 1st district conference. Have raised this quarter for all purposes one hundred and seventy-six dollars, of which the pastor received $88.00 on salary. The estimating committee fixed the salary as follows, for the pastor? Shady Grove $80.00; Mt. Zion $200.00; Columbia $200.00; Mt. Moria $100.00; grand total $580.00. For the presiding elder $80.00; for Benevolence $75. By the help of the Master I am going to raise every cent of this amount. We paid the elder in full this quarter $20.00.

Biloxi, R. S. Hammond, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference, held March 28-29, was quite a success. Our presiding elder, Rev. R. N. Jones, was on time. We presented full reports. The elder preached two strong sermons. Paid the elder in full $12.55. Raised $4.00 this quarter for missions. Four persons have been added to the church. Received two new subscribers for the Southwestern.

Belle, Ct., B. J. Robertson, Pastor.—This is our first year at this place. The members and friends received us gladly and made us welcome among them. Our first appointment was at Coleman's the first Sunday of March, but inclement weather prevented our holding this meeting. Our next point was at Wesley's Chapel, where we met a lively set of officers and members. We found the church here in bad condition—only a hall with window opening, but no shutters nor lights. We at once arranged to ceil the church and put in lights, and began a rally for that purpose. In one week they raised $27.00, and having $25.00 already on hand, the total was $52.00 in all. The work has been done and the people are shouting over their victory. With such men as Cunningham, Taylor, Novels, the Boyces, the Heighs and many others, we may hope for success. Our first quarter convened March 25-26. Paid the elder $14.70; pastor, up to date, $32.50. Total raised for March and April $99.20.

West Jackson, J. C. Tabb.—March 26th was rally day with us for erection of parsonage and expenses of church, having lost parsonage by fire more than one year ago. The Lord blessed us all day, both spiritually and financially. There were several young lady contestants for prizes. Miss Nellie Meva raised about $14.15, Miss Deborah Holbrooks $9.78, Miss Hattie Brown $4.96, and a number of others worked faithfully. We have just closed a revival meeting. Rev. Marshall is pushing this work to the front. We expect soon to build a new parsonage. We have added about 20 new members to our church here. We want this to be the banner year for Christ and His church.

Florence Charge, M. Cooper, Pastor.—On Saturday, 1st, our new presiding elder, Rev. G. H. Smith, D. D., came one time and held our first quarterly conference with much grace and ease. Nearly all officers were present with well written reports, which showed that the work was in good condition. Sunday at 11 o'clock the elder preached one of his best sermons and administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to a large number. We are always glad to have with us such true and loyal men as Rev. Smith. Collection for the day $20.20.

Moss Point, S. W. Wallace.—The second Sunday in April was considered as a spring opening Sunday for St. Paul. The day was beautiful. Attendance 136; collection $2.30. Quite an interesting paper was read by Mrs. Gurtrude McLemore. Review by the pastor, Rev. S. H. Cannon. All listened attentively to the wonderful truths gleaned from the lesson topic. Yes, we have a great preacher, a progressive school, a good, efficient corps of officers and teachers..

Cary, E. H. Langston, Pastor.—Our first quarter was held April 1-2, with Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, presiding elder, in the chair. Reports showed the work to be alive along all lines. The church at Cary has been painted on the inside. Raised in the quarter $20.25. Paid the elder, in full, $13.00; paid pastor $37.00. Sunday at 11 a. m. the elder excelled himself. Many partook of the Lord's Supper. Two souls have been added to the church since my return from the annual conference.

TEXAS.

Texarkana, G. A Hall.—I received my appointment from Bishop McDowell at Fordyce, and came direct to my work, filled with new desire to do more for Christ and the church this year than ever before. I found the church somewhat in dull spirit, and began at once planning and praying for a great revival. Men, women and children are coming to the seat of mercy, asking the prayers of the church. Rev. D. B. Harston, P. E., passing through the city to Horatio, stopped and was with us one night, and preached an interesting sermon, at the close of which ten persons came forward for prayer.

Pelham, Mrs. L. A. Richie.—Our second quarterly conference was held April 8-9. Presiding Elder L. H. Richardson could not be with us, and so sent Rev. Geo. Waters, who presided. All officers were out with full reports. Sunday, Rev. Waters preached two noble sermons. Several came forward for prayer. Raised for the elder $20.25. We are well pleased with our pastor, Rev. T. S. Moore. We are now preparing to build another room to the parsonage.

Milford, Wm. Reed.—My second quarterly conference was held April 22-23, Rev. L. H. Richardson in the chair. The conference was well attended. Reports showed that the work was in good condition. The elder preached a delightful sermon at 11 o'clock. Communicants 89. One addition to the church. Raised for pastor, $58.00; elder, $13.15; missions, $14.61; other causes, $26.10; total, $111.86.

A Letter to Dr. Pierce is the First Step to Health for Weak and Sick Women.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and under seal of the strictest privacy. In a little over thirty years of practice as chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured over half a million women. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Offers of "free medical advice" made in imitation of Dr Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter are advertised by persons who are not physicians, and are not qualified to give medical advice. Every woman should consult her own safety by careful inquiry into the genuineness of such offers.

There is no offer similar to Dr. Pierce's, which has behind it an institution of national note, such as the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., with its staff of nearly a score of physicians, presided over by a specialist of Dr. Pierce's experience and success, in the treatment and cure of diseases peculiar to women.

How Other Women Have Been Cured.

"I suffered untold misery for many years with uterine trouble," writes Mrs. Mary E. Wilcox, of Emo (Rainy River), Algoma Co., Ont., "until I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's good medicine and used the local treatment as advised. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I also sent for one box of your 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories.' I have only used two and that was two months ago. I would advise every woman who suffers from ulceration of the uterus and piles to use Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' They are the best medicines in the world. Also write to Dr Pierce for his fatherly advice. I have felt better in these past seven months than I have for years. Every month I used to have to go to bed and have hot poultices and take laudanum to ease the pain. I don't go to bed now nor do I take laudanum."

"I have used your medicine as you directed," writes Mrs. Caroline Hammac, of Hammac, Escambia Co., Ala. "I have only used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in connection I used one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Six doses a day, three of each, and sometimes I used the tablets as you directed. I feel well. I am hard at work and have been for some time. I had been under a good doctor five years for this same disease and you see how quick your medicine cured me."

"About a year ago I had a mishap which left me in very poor health for some time afterward," writes Mrs. Cene Johnson, of Gordon, Sheridan Co., Nebr. "I employed a local doctor but got only temporary relief, until I commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicine, which I did after consulting you. I am now as well as ever. I took five bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I would recommend these medicines to all who suffer as I did."

If you are sick or ailing take advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter and write today to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BROWN.—On May 14, 1905, Mrs. Sarah Brown, a good and faithful member of St. Paul M. E. Church, Cheyneyville, La., was called to her reward. She leaves three sons and a number of grandchildren. Revs. C. L. Roberts Leagans and Brother Johnson of the Baptist Church assisted the pastor, Rev. H. C. Gair, who conducted the funeral service.

HARRIS.—At Cheyneyville, La., May 29, 1905, Mr. James Harris, a young member of our church, died in great peace. He had seen nine years of service in the Master's cause. A grandmother and many other relatives survive him. H. C. GAIR, Pastor.

ROSE.—Mrs. Margaret Rose, one of the oldest members of Union M. E. Church, New Orleans, La., died in the faith June 20.

VALCOUR CHAPMAN, Pastor.

WOFFORD.—On May 28, 1905, Mrs. Eliza Wofford, a member of Pleasant Hill M. E. Church, Harleton, Tex., was called hence. She leaves six children, mother, sisters, brothers, many other relatives and numerous friends. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. M. Q. A. Fuller.

LENNEAU.—At the Sarah Goodridge Hospital, of New Orleans, La., where an operation had been performed May 31, Mrs. Rene Lenneau, aged about 40 years, died on Friday, June 2, 1905. She was a splendid woman, an exemplary Christian and an honored member of the Sixth Baptist Church, this city. Rev. John Marks, pastor. Mrs. Lenneau was of great help to the writer when organizing Steward's Chapel 25 years ago, just below Lamouria, La. We aided her pastor in the funeral service, which was attended in a body by the Court Patron, of which organization the deceased was a member. A devoted husband mourns her going.

H. J. WRIGHT.

EDWARDS.—At Prairie Plains, Tex., May 23, 1905, Mrs. Martha E. Edwards, aged 22 years, fell asleep in Jesus after an illness of six months. She entered the Master's service when but 10 years of age. Her father and mother, the Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Bookman, her husband and child, sisters and brothers, survive her. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. John West, of the Baptist Church, and

P. L. JACKSON, Pastor.

WILLIAMS.—Sister Fanny Williams, age near 70 years, died June 8, 1905. She was a member of Mallalieu M. E. Church, New Orleans, for many years, but was not priviledged to attend since we have been here. On Tuesday we visited her, as we had often done, and she partook of the sacrament for the last time. The deceased died in Gretna, La., where she was living with her daughter-in-law, and was interred in the Union graveyard of this city. She is at rest. Rev. H. J. Wright, her pastor, conducted the funeral service.

HARRIS.—In New Orleans, La., June 19, 1905, Mrs. Rosetta Harris, a native of Baltimore, Md., departed this life in great peace. She was a probationer in Union M. E. Church. On June 9 the Sacrament of Baptism and the Lord's Supper were administered unto her. She leaves two daughters and a number of grandchildren.

VALCOUR CHAPMAN, Pastor.

PALMER.—Whereas, an inscrutable Providence has removed our beloved sister, Mrs. Adelaide Palmer, from the scene of her temporal labors, and from our society, and in view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our beloved friend and sister, and of the still greater loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to her; be it resolved: That we deeply mourn her departure, and sincerely regret the loss of her faithful services as a colaborer in our society, taking consolation, however, in the thought that after having ended her earthly task she has at least joined the blessed society of the redeemed in heaven. Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the afflicted family and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are dealt by loving hands. Committee: Mrs. M. G. Johnson, Mrs. L. E. Brooks, Mrs. Dillard, Members of the Benevolent Society, Columbia, S. C.

GRIER.—On Wednesday, May 10, 1905, at La Grange, Ga., Sister Nancy Grier, after many months' illness and great suffering, was called to her reward. Sister Grier was a faithful member of Union Chapel M. E. Church and died in full triumph of faith, leaving a husband, four children and a host of friends. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, assisted by Revs. R. R. O'Neal and R. B. Hinesman.

PARKER.—On May 23, 1905, at Pearlington, Miss., Mrs. Mary Parker departed this life. Her illness was long and exceedingly painful, but she bore it with Christian fortitude, and died as she lived, a consistent Christian. She leaves three brothers and four children. Rev. Frank Smith conducted the funeral ceremony.

H. L. VAULTZ.

THOMPSON.—Sister Isabella Thompson, a faithful member of Asbury Church, Natchitoches, La., passed to her reward in Heaven on May 31, and was buried on June 1. Aged about 60 years. W. J. M. PRICE.

BAD STOMACH MAKES BAD BLOOD.

You can't make sweet butter in a foul churn. Every farmer's wife knows this. Your stomach churns and digests the food you eat, and if foul, torpid or out of order, your whole system suffers from blood poisoning. You will have foul breath, coated tongue, bad taste, poor appetite and a whole train of disagreeable symptoms. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is not a beverage composed of whisky or alcohol, being entirely free from intoxicants, is a great regulator and invigorator of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

"About a year ago I was ill with blood poisoning," writes Miss Eveline Louis, of 89 Walter Street, Buffalo, N. Y. "I had what seemed to be a small cold sore on my lip. It became very angry in appearance and began to spread until it nearly covered my face. I was a frightful sight and could not go outside the house because of my appearance. I used a blood medicine which did not give me any relief. Then I began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I was greatly benefited with the first bottle and after taking the second bottle was completely cured. The erysipelatous eruption disappeared and my blood was cleansed. My complexion is clear and fresh and I have felt better this year than I did for some time before. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is certainly a most remarkable medicine."

Don't accept a substitute for a medicine which performs such cures and which has a uniformly successful record of nearly forty years to its credit. It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to try by over-persuasion to palm off upon you in its stead some inferior article with no record to back it up. You know what you want; it is his business to meet that want.

$50,000 GIVEN AWAY, in copies of The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book that sold to the extent of 500,000 copies a few years ago, at $1.50 per copy. Last year we gave away $30,000 worth of these invaluable books. This year we shall give away $50,000 worth of them. Will you share in this benefit? If so, send only 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only for book in stiff paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Constipation although a little ill, begets big ones if neglected. Dr. Pierce's Pellets cures constipation.

Literary Notes

BOOK REVIEWS.

Messrs. Eaton & Mains, Publishers, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York, announce a volume of Oriental tales issued May 1st. "Told in the Gardens of Araby," untranslated until now, will appeal to all true lovers of the "Arabian Nights."

It is collaborate work, the Prelude and literary form being by Mrs. Izora Chandler, of New York, author of several successful books—among them, "Anthe," "Three of Us," and "A Dog of Constantinople"—while rendition from the original is by Miss Mary W. Montgomery, who was born in the Orient, has intimate knowledge of the Arabic and Turkish languages, and, at present, lives in New York and is a member of the University Woman's Club.

The book will prove a delight to old and young. It is clean, yet thrilling, and has the true Oriental atmosphere. One, in reading it, must feel approach to those people of the Great East and gain added knowledge of their life and character. The work of putting into English has been done con amore. It seems to be that of a single mind.

A FLEECE OF GOLD.

A second edition of Charles Stuart Given's bright little book, "A Fleece of Gold," has been called for. This is not surprising. It is one of the most notable of that successful series, "Modern Messages," recently published by Jennings & Graham, and is well worthy of the high praise bestowed upon it by the famous preacher, F. W. Gunsaulus, who says: "Among the smaller forces which operate upon the mind and tend toward strengthening and exalting the best ideals, are little books like this."

Such a book as this should be in the hands of every young man and woman, every boy and girl who need the inspiring tonic for mind and heart which comes from the study of great heroes and great principles. A casual reading only of the chapter entitled "The Ruling Element," will awake up the dullest mind and send a thrill of wholesome ambition into the heart of every youngster who is not absolutely dead to all endeavor.

Charmingly written, bristling with fine points, lighted up with apt illustrations from the lives of the most noable of history's favorites, and yet penetrated throughout with the soundest sense and fine ethical teaching, "A Fleec of Gold" is heartily recommended to all who desire to put in the hands of the young the best books. Price, 35 cents net. Published by Jennings & Graham, Cincinnati, O.

The Woman's Home Companion for July has much that is appropriate to the season besides the regular good things for which it can always be depended upon. It contains a Fourth of July story, "A Declaration of Independence;" "The Epworth League," by the editor of The Epworth Herald. There are two full pages of striking photographs of "Fresh Air" children and one, "Lovers of All Nations." The usual ample space is give nto fashions.

GLOSSINE

Queen of all hair tonics. This, the greatest and most meritorious remedy for the human hair, causes the hair to grow with rapidity and gives to it that rich glossy tone so much desired by all. No matter how short or harsh or curley your hair may be, Glossine will make it long and straight, soft and fine, and of so rich and pliable a texture that it can be dressed in any prevailing style desired. Glossine cannot fail. I stake my honor on its great merit and prove its worth by sending a full-size box free to all who write to me. Crescent City Notes

The members of Ross Chapel, Camp Parapet, gave their pastor, Rev. A. B. Harris, a grand birthday reception June 28. A nice program was rendered. Rev. Harris was the recipient of numerous tokens, among them being a purse of $8.00. Refreshments were served by Misses Bertha Small, Mrs. Jane Lemon and Mr. John Small.

More than one hundred children attended the Sunday school service at Wesley Chapel Sunday morning. Sunday evening a very large audience enjoyed the able sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Johnson. Two hundred and seventy-two persons partook of the Sacrament. Collected during the day $45.52. Rev. T. J. Johnson and Mr. Charles Dale, Epworth League President, left the city Monday morning, July 3, to attend the Seventh International Epworth League Convention, which convened this week in Denver, Colo.

VIGNES.—On June 21, 1905, Mrs. Cora Vignes, a faithful and loyal member of Union M. E. Church, New Orleans, La., departed this life in great peace. For fully two years she bore her affliction with much patience and Christian fortitude. Five months ago her husband preceded her to "the land of pure delight." Though afflicted herself, she nursed him through several months' affliction, until he was not, for God took him. Truly she was a good Samaritan. She lived to make others happy. She and her devoted husband educated a family of six children—two sons and four daughters—besides several other children who depended upon them for support. Sister Vigne will long be remembered by a host of friends, who contributed many floral offerings and followed her to her last resting place. Her memorial service was conducted at Union Church by her pastor, assisted by Drs. R. E. Jones, editor of the Southwestern, and A. L. Demond, pastor of Central Congregational Church, New Orleans.

VALCOUR CHAPMAN.

On Sunday evening, July 2, the rally held at Haven Chapel closed with good results. Collected $121.98. Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the pastor, Rev. J. McKee, delivered an address before the Social Club. This organization collected $4.65 and presented the same to the pastor. The installation of the stewardess sisters occurred June 29 and the following officers were installed: President, Mrs. Marie Harden; Mrs. D. Baye, vice-president; Mrs. V. A. Henderson, secretary; Mrs. Ophelia Davis, treasurer. Rev. C. W. Reeves was present and rendered good service.

NEW ORLEANS, JULY 13, 1905

Vol. 39 No. 28

Editorial

Cursed be your liberty if it is used to have a "good time." Liberty is tyrannical in its demands for the best use of one's powers for the good of others.

President Roosevelt has received $583 from the United States Treasury under a law passed six years ago granting two months extra pay to all soldiers serving outside of the United States in the Spanish war.

A national celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the Jews in the United States is to be celebrated next Thanksgiving. The anniversary of their actual landing, according to Wm. E. Curtis, was September 24, 1904.

The Fourth of July was celebrated throughout the country in the usual semi-heathenish and reckless way. Hundreds were wounded and killed and thousands upon thousands of dollars wasted in the use of fireworks. It could be wished that our national birthday could have a more sane and appropriate celebration.

The California legislature has made a request of Congress to raise against the Japanese emigrants the same barriers as now bar the Chinese. The request will hardly be granted, in view of the present popularity of the Japanese in this country. The Japanese, by their conduct in the present war in the Far East, have opened for ever the American ports for their coming. The Japanese make good citizens and should be welcomed.

The Mormons are as active as ever in Utah for the propagation and entrenchment of their faith. A finding of a recent secret letter reveals the fact that the Mormon hierarchy is seeking to capture, for settlement by Mormons alone, 2,500,000 acres of rich land in Utah, soon to be opened for settlement. It is said that the Mormon politicians hope to gain by this distribution an increase of 10,000 voters and thus make the more secure their political domination of this State.

Dr. J. W. Stagg, of Birmingham, Alabama, asserts that the inroads of disease are contributing to the ultimate downfall of the Negro race in this country. He also asserts that within one hundred years the Negro will have ceased to be on the American soil. The doctor has been studying the mortality tables too much —only a glance at the columns of the birth rate and the most doubtful will be convinced that whatever else may happen, instead of the Negro being extirpated from the American soil within one hundred years, he will constitute even a larger percentage of the native-born population than now.

THE WEALTHY VERSUS THE POOR

Wealth is not necessarily an evil, and should not be considered a robe of disgrace. Poverty is no index of virtue, it may be the result of laziness or spendthriftiness. Most persons could be "better off" if they would pay the price.

There is a deal of feeling between the wealthy and poor classes and much of the bitterness can be placed at the door of the poor man.

The ancients used to picture the rich as blind, dark, black of beard, with a horror of sunlight, sitting on an ebon throne. On the one hand the Furies, on the other the Fates; while from beneath the midnight throne gushes that river of sorrow, the Cocytus, whose source is the tears of humanity.

Plutus symbolized the blackness of riches as conceived by the poor classes. If one should build a figure to-day from the poor man's point of view, it would be much the same as that of the ancients. The poor are inclined to have contempt for the rich. The rich themselves are somewhat responsible for this feeling by the vulgarity with which they display their worldly goods. Many rich are avaricious, conniving, and heartless. But a penniless man is as abnormal as a legless one. The world owes every man a comfortable living and a competence, provided by the sweat of his brow he earns it. The individual who shirks work, discards economy and industry, will be poor, and justly so. In this case the poor man is entitled to no more favorable consideration than the man who amasses his fortune by robbery.

Communism has no place in the construction of the ideal society. There will always be, relatively speaking, some rich and some poor. These classes may exist in the ideal state without any friction and animosity. Any plan of operation that destroys individual effort will militate against the highest development of all. Riches are not necessary to the happiness of every man. Men differ in capacities and tendencies. Some have gifts for music, for art, for literature, for philosophy, for constructive government; just so some men have native capacity for the amassing of wealth. Wealth is accumulated along the lines of frugality, economy and brain power. For the peace of our community life there must be the recognition of the financier as we recognize the natural and individual places of others.

When the rich—or those becoming rich—oppress the poor and pay unfair and unreasonably low wages they are robbing the poor, and such action should be suppressed by legislation. But when men are poor by forced circumstances, then charity has a legitimate and beautiful field of activity, otherwise charity would be a hindrance and a bid for shiftlessness.

While it is not the purpose of this writing to laud the rich at the expense of the poor, we do desire to say that the usual attitude of the poor toward the rich is morally wrong. It is not always an attitude of envy and grudge, but an attitude of actual and intense contempt. Such an attitude on the part of the poor operates subjectively on the poor to their discouragement, sourness, and even a reckless and loose handling of whatever income they may have.

Such an attitude takes the song out of life and the glory from the flower of hope. In spite of our present poverty and the oppression of the rich, every man would be better off if he were to set himself about to earn all he can by legitimate and honest means, and labor as hard to save always a part of that earned. In the meantime, let us bear our lot cheerfully.

THE NATIONAL MORAL SENSE

The development of the national moral sense has received a mighty impetus under the vigorous administration of President Roosevelt. The President may not be directly responsible for all the movements for a clean and an honorable officiary in state and national government, nevertheless his preaching of righteousness and a square deal is bearing fruit. Men are emboldened in their attacks against corruption, so that now the popular thing is to strike corruption and strike it hard. With Roosevelt at Washington, Folk in Missouri, LaFollette in Wisconsin, Weaver in Philadelphia, the public has been treated with some splendid examples of fighting wickedness in high places. Some time ago, Senator Burton was convicted of grave charges, corrupt post office officials have been given their walking papers, Minister Bowen dismissed in disgrace, and Chief Engineer Wallace made the object for the teaching of a moral lesson, while now the guns of the administration are turned upon the trusts and railroads. Perhaps no case is more interesting than that of Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon. The senator has just been convicted of having violated the law that forbids United States senators from accepting payment for practising before the departments of the federal government. For the sum of two thousand dollars, Senator Mitchell was a party to the defrauding of the government of certain valuable timber lands in Oregon, the senator himself, as attorney, drawing up papers that were fraudulent. Altogether the senator has had a remarkable political career. He dominated the politics of Oregon for forty years, and has represented that commonwealth in the United States Senate for twenty-two years. But amidst this career, he has been guilty of gross immoralities, even to the charge of conjugal infidelity. His conviction shows the corruption of American politics, and its effort to purge itself. Senator Mitchell's conviction has a streak of pathos, in that he is now seventy years of age. The way of the transgressor is hard, and it should be, but he has no one to blame but himself.

An estate whose minimum value is $10,000 has been bequeathed to the Negro students of the Delaware State College by Mr. Joshua Parker (recently deceased), said to be the wealthiest Negro in lower Delaware.

The Divorce Evil

By Rev. W. L. Reno

The pulpit and press are the two chosen instruments to be used in stirring the public sentiment against the laxity of divorce laws and the loose practices touching divorce.

It goes without saying that there is a laxity in our state law which enables the marriage contract to be easily annulled. The pulpit and press have been too silent in sounding the alarm against this growing evil which is cursing and ruining the race. To stop this hydra that is making such an inroad upon humanity—the divorce evil, the pulpit and press will be expected to double their forces in sounding the alarm.

As far as the state is concerned, it is an admitted fact that some of the judges are too lenient. It might be because of a difference of opinion or difference of capabilities. I don't say that the law is wrong, but I do think it could be improved in its enforcement. Judges are men like other men—not "angels." Many of them are true men and may desire to do right, but they have different capabilities, and the result is, divorces are too easily obtained. This should not be with any church; for many of the churches are too lenient in this all-important question in allowing their ministers to keep this wound—the divorce question—opened. It is necessary for the people to make individual sacrifices for the sake of society. A man who enjoys the rights given by the state or church must not forget that they have some rights and that those rights must be respected.

I venture the assertion that seventy-five per cent. of the divorce cases in the courts—only one side is represented. This ought not to be so and should not be so. How often has the same thing happened in the church, when the unfortunate party—in many cases this unfortunate party proved to be the mother. Audi alteram partem—Hear the other side; i. e., hear both sides.

It is high time to recognize woman—because she can do much good. Women should not be discriminated against in these divorce laws. I believe men—some men—have presumed upon the latitude given them, and the laws should be brought up with regard to men. It is said that no divorces are granted in South Carolina, but the people go right into the next State and get their divorce. "This divorce business is a dangerous menace to the country."

A lot of husbandless wives and a lot of wifeless husbands. The divorce question is one of very grave concern to all the people—in church as well as in State, when we consider that the theory is increasingly rife, that marriage is merely a civil contract, and that, like other civil contracts, it may be dissolved at the will of the parties to such a contract. While it is true that marriage is a civil contract, but like the state it is far more than a civil contract—it is an ordinance of Almighty God. Although it is a relation entered into, it at once becomes a relation clothed with divine sanction and obligations.

The growing theory that marriage is a mere partnership, to be dissolved at will or for slight causes, is a theory which, if carried to its legitimate conclusions, would destroy the very foundations of civilized society. The right sort of divorce laws not only protect marriage, but they also protect every possible interest of society, because the purity of family life is the chief safeguard of social morality and of public justice.

If we look for the cause leading to present deplorable divorce conditions we must go further back than to bad laws. Undoubtedly lax legislation educates public sentiment downward. But back of the bad laws is a bad public sentiment. The bad laws are to be deplored, but the sentiment making such laws is much more to be deplored. It is certain that if there is to be genuine and permanent improvement in the divorce laws, then public sentiment must be aroused and educated and brought to a higher moral level. If public sentiment is wrong on this immeasurably important question we need faithfully to inquire why it is wrong. And the moment such inquir is raised the answer is at hand: Public sentime is wrong, because it has not been educated right The further question needs to be pressed: Wh has failed to educate public sentiment to right eous views on the sanctity of the marriage tie an of the home? We think the answer is not fa away,—the failure has largely been with the pu pit and the press. It is not so much the pulp and the press are wrong on this question, bu other matters have occupied the attention of both to the exclusion of this matter, and this stealth enemy of all righteousness has crept increasingl into high places and low places alike. "Sad bu true," it has crept into our pulpits. It canno be true that in an enlightened Christian civiliza tion, with a free press and a free pulpit, an ev like the divorce evil can long continue to under mine and make for the disintegration of the homes, the church and the very civilization o the people, if the pulpit and the press shall d their duty.

Much of this trouble lies at the door of ba fathers and bad mothers. Many of them are to lazy to properly care for their girls, will not pu them into school, tired of supporting (?) them would rather drop their dresses when in thei early "teens" and turn them out for women, an before the "honie moon" is out they are widows To turn these parties loose on the world is ruin ous. Something must be done to check this grow ing evil. Despite the serious difficulties, the hear of the Great Church faces heaven on this divorc question—the teachings of God's Word. In con clusion: With the right effort, the deplorable ten dencies and conditions involved in the divorc question may, in every way, be bettered and t this end I write that the ministry, especially ou own ministers, make clear this very deplorabl affair to their people everywhere, and declar the doctrine of God upon the sacredness of mar riage and the sanctity of the home.

Relation of Education to Christianity

By Miss Lemuel I. Morrow

For centuries there has been a seeming contrast between the educator and the Christian. The educators were so deeply interested in raising the material to its highest standard that they tailed to give proper attention to the spiritual; and any argument to prove the close relation of these two was strongly disputed.

Moses spent eighty years preparing to lead the children of Israel. Martin Luther was forty years fitting himself to spread Christianity over the world and send the Bible to the utmost parts of the earth, thereby making this book a powerful instrument for universal education.

Mind, man's chief endowment, measures his greatness. Such men as Paul, Melangthon and John Wesley, who are said to have seen deep into the spiritual world and explained the universal law of love, seemed more than men, yea blending into the divine.

In studying the mind we find that it works in three directions: Art, Religion and Philosophy. Art, when developed, opens to our view all that is aesthetic and beautiful; Religion brings to us the spiritual side of nature and causes us to realize that there is a divine invisible Being. Philosophy helps us to look deeply into nature and learn the great scientific truths. So that we begin to establish the fact as one has said, "Every flower is a hint of his beauty; every grain of wheat a token of his beneficence; every atom of dust a revelation of his divine power."

Searching for truth, Columbus discovered America and found that the earth is round. Franklin caught the lightning and proved its identity with electricity. Newton, seeing an apple fall deduced the law of gravitation. Watts watched the boiling tea kettle and invented the steam engine. The steamship, the telegraph, the telephone, Marconi's wireless telegraphy, all help the material world. They give us a means by which we communicate with neighboring countries. Just as this is done for the material world, so is it done for the spiritual.

Africa's redemption will be hastened when these civilizing agents shall be more numerous in that dark land.

Philosophers in unfolding nature discern the omnipotent power of a Creator. The Theologian and educator are convinced of the fact that in getting an education we must be developed along intellectual, material and spiritual lines. The geologist in examining the strata sees the foot-prints of a divine Master. The scientist studying the atmosphere, finds that the same air which at one time moves as a hurricane and destroys man, at another glides calmly on and cools the rugged brow of night. The astronomer with his telescope watching the innumerable movements of the little stars as they flit across the elements, the wandering moon with bowed head peeping down through the fleecy cloud as though guarding her loved ones, the sun moving onward in his orbit giving off heat and light, is led to conclude that God is there.

If these demonstrations do not show to us God, then I say we have crushed out the divine purpose of our education.

The prophet says, "My people perish for the lack of knowledge." We must know God's laws to obey them; we must receive the divine message before we can deliver it; and every one should be prepared to go on these errands. But the minister is God's special messenger, therefore he should be so well developed and so perfectly drilled that he would not mistake in receiving the message, nor err in delivering it.

Such persons as Luther, Wesley, Moses and Paul established the principles that education and Christianity are closely related and without the union of the two we cannot have great and noble men. We have but to follow in the wake of these to build noble characters.

We want men who realize that the stone, wind and sea, the plant and animals, the starry heavens, are all the eternal thoughts of God. Men possessing strong minds, sharp intellects and pure lives. We want matchless men!

So I plead as the poet, who says:

"Bring me men to match my mountains.
Bring me men to match my plains,
Men with empires in their purpose
And new eras in their brain;
Bring me men to match my prairies,
Men to match my inland seas,
Men whose thoughts shall pave a highway
Up to ampler destinies;
Pioneers to clear thought's marshland,
And to cleanse old era's fen;
Bring me men to match my mountains,
Bring me men!"

The Woman's Home Missionary Society

By Mrs. G. N. Johnson

Who are they? Pure, whole-hearted, consecrated women, who have studied and read and thought and prayed to such purpose that they believe themselves bound to "look out and not in" and to "lend a hand" like the good Saviour whose life they pattern. Like Him, they love humanity and see it threatened by the great foes of vice, and hopefully, prayerfully, they speedily rush to the rescue. Ought they not be welcomed? Are they not needed? They are broad-minded and intelligent, working to relieve the needs of the people throughout this South land.

Where are they? In many of our churches. They are in the industrial homes of the South, with consecrated lives. They are teaching along religious, educational, industrial and social lines. They are in deaconess' homes. This work was initiated at the Woman's Home Missionary meeting held in Boston in October, 1888. Since that the world has made marked progress. Hawaii and Porto Rico have been added.

Mrs. R. S. Rust worked faithfully and heroically for its advancement until she was called from labor to reward. Death soon claimed others from the ranks, viz., our beloved presidents, Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. R. B. Hays. God's workers die, but in His own time He fills the places and the work still progresses wonderfully and admirably, with Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, Mrs. Delia L. Williams and Mrs. George Thomson at the head, leading. Mrs. Jane Bancroft Robinson, Field Secretary and Superintendent of Bureau for Deaconess' Work, will ever be remembered for her plans with Mrs. Rust in the early days of this work, and her heroic efforts during the past sixteen years, which caused the time now ripe for a division of this great bureau. By her recommendation five bureaus were formed.

In 1888 there was no Deaconess property and there were no Deaconesses; to-day the property held and institutions connected with the Woman's Home Missionary Society are valued at $612,658, and the Deaconesses and probationers number four hundred and fifty. The treasury paid last year for all expenses of the three national training schools. They are training the orphans and sheltering and comforting the homeless girls who need Christian influences and practical training in the Mothers' Jewels Orphanage Home, York, Neb., and Watts Del'eyster Home, Tivoli on the Hudson. Go to the Immigrant Homes at the sea gates of Boston, Philadelphia and New York. See them taking care of strangers, the sick and dying, saving our country many a shipwrecked life. They keep women and girls over night, help them to find places to work, and hundreds of girls in these large cities have no other home or friends than our Home Missionary women. The figures below give a small idea of the important and Christ-like work done last year at the sea gates: Number of lodgings, 5,420; girls sent to friends, 1,154; girls sent to situations, 115; situations secured, 24; steamers met, 123; ships met, 941; Bibles and Testaments distributed, 3,649; tracts and papers, 1,824; cards and magazines, 847; meals in the Home, 19,241.

These women conduct an Oriental Bureau, which has for its work the Japanese and Chinese girls of the Pacific coast. In San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego the Home Missionary women are doing most effective work canvassing the slums and alleys, taking Chinese girls and women to the mission, rescuing them from immoral and domestic slavery. "Since beginning work among them six hundred have been saved. Many have married and gone back to China to carry with them the gospel they have heard and its comforting principles as they have been able to grasp and receive them. Others are found all along the coast from Washington to San Diego, and as far East as Lynn, Mass. Many of these girls represent happy Christian homes, are faithful rearing their children to love God and do right, and are an honor to our work." The end is not yet.

What are they doing? Trying to help the ignorant, needy and destitute women and children in our own land and in raising funds for the same, by paying one dollar annually membership dues; life membership, $20; honorary membership, $100; honorary manager for life, $300. They are learning all they can about the state of our country, the Indians, the Mormons, the colored people, the Spanish people, the illiterate whites, the immigrants from foreign fields, the lost and wandering ones in our cities and towns.

Perhaps the most important work of this society is building industrial institutions for colored and white girls, in which the moral and religious standards are lifted. From these homes thousand of girls are filling worthy positions in schools, churches, dressmakers and choice, cultured wives of ministers and presidents of colleges.

Last year the Society distributed from the Boston office 17,119 leaflets; Chicago office distributed 100,000, and the Cincinnati office published 17,000 leaflets.

The end is not yet. How are they doing it? From auxiliary members' dues, Circles, Home Guards, Jewels, self-denial envelopes, mite boxes, sociables, public meetings, flag festivals, giving one of their own programs, and the visitors who come to see will be stirred to enthusiasm by facts and figures, will accept invitations, become members and thus swell the treasury.

This year closes the first quarter of a century of this society. One hundred thousand dollars is the sum proposed for celebrating this occasion. It is vastly necessary that the auxiliaries of the Little Rock Conference be alert and at work and make a special thanksgiving offering, $2.50 from each member and friend for the silver anniversary birthday.

Pulpit Sayings and Proverbs

By Rev. J. C. Houston

A man must be the architect of his own character; he cannot inherit it from his ancestral lineage; it cannot be bestowed by his most ardent friends; neither can he purchase it from his bounties of wealth; but if he wishes to sell it he will soon find a buyer.

To listen to the slander of your neighbor without in some sense reproving the slanderer is in a guilty measure to become a partner to the deed, in that as listener you become the willing vessel of his poison ,and such vessel usually leaks.

If the people believe you guilty of a charge, tho you are not, to them you are. But if they believe you are not guilty, tho you are, to them you are not.

Innocence is often punished because its punishers have no practical experience of its nature.

Prejudice is blind, therefore to throw light on a subject for its benefit is an absolute waste of time and mental energy.

Methodists believe in the possibility of falling, but don't believe in falling; they believe in the may, but don't believe in the should, the have, nor the had.

Some people are like hawks. It seems to be peculiar to their nature to seek with untiring vigilance to prey lavishly upon the flesh of their betters and destroy the life of the innocent and helpless.

Hypocrites are like owls. First, because they love darkness rather than light; second, they are all mouth and no practice; third, the largeness of their head consists in its outside proportions; fourth, they have large eyes but little heart; fifth, they steal your property while you sleep.

He who lives exclusively for and within himself lives within a very small world, and is surprisingly short sighted, as his vision does not extend beyond the meager limits of his chosen territory.

Benevolence—what is benevolence? It is a treasure of liberality that keeps its door open to the suffering mouths of the poor without hope of return. It is the White Dove of love that flies from house to house with healing in its wings. It is the Alabaster Box borne upon the sacred arm of active pity, scattering sweetness in its holy wake to be kissed by the celestian dews of eternal memory and recorded as arm deeds on the Book of Life. It is a fount of gratuitous blessings sending forth its invigorating steams in a thousand directions to satisfy the famishing lips of innocent poverty.

Troubles are bitter pills and hard to swallow. But they sometimes cure chronic cases of spiritual indigestion and give the feeble recipient a better appetite for Gospel food.

For Anxious Parents

It may be that I have some readers who are, as Christian parents, exceedingly anxious for the spiritual and moral welfare of their wayward children. They have longings which cannot be expressed in any mere words. There are thousands of such ones in our land. Their hearts are being greatly weighted and worn and torn by the moral madness of their children. One such mother recently asked this question of the editor of the Christian Herald: "What course can an anxious mother take to win a wayward boy to a right life?" I quote the reply, as it may be useful to some reader. It says: "Your difficulty is one that is perplexing thousands of parents. Your main reliance must be on prayer. God can touch his heart and lead him to himself. You may aid in the work by tactful and loving treatment. Could you get some Sunday School teacher, accustomed to dealing with boys, to take an interest in him? Perhaps there is some subject in which he is interested that would wean him from evil ways, if you provided him with facilities for studying it. No youth is wholly evil, and if you study his character you may find some good tendency which may be developed and prove a counter-attraction to his evil propensities. But never cease to pray for him. That is your real ground for hope." That is good advice. Perhaps I cannot add anything to it which will be of any special worth. I may say that I can, to a considerable extent, sympathize with that anxious mother. I know that some children are very obstinate in their career of wrong-doing, and at times their cases seem to be hopeless. It may not be wise, in all instances, to let a wayward child know that he or she is being urgently prayed for by the parents, for the child may be all the more reckless on that account. My own course has been that of daily praying in secret for each one of my children, and with special fervency for the unsaved ones. I place more reliance upon this practice, and its results, than I do upon any other agency. Very ungodly ones have been saved in this way.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Day By Day

I heard a voice at evening softly say,
Bear not thy yesterday into to-morrow.
Nor load this week with lastweek's load of sorrow
Lift all thy burdens as they come, nor try
To weight the present with the by and by.
One step and then another, take thy way—
Live day by day.

Live day by day.
Though autumn leaves are withering round thy way,
Walk in the sunshine. It is all for thee.
Push straight ahead, as long as thou canst see
Dread not the winter whither thou mayst go,
But, when it comes, be thankful for the snow.
Onward and upward. Look and smile and pray—
Live day by day.

Live day by day.
The path before thee doth not lead astray.
Do the next duty. It must surely be
The Christ is in the one that's close to thee,
Onward, still onward, with a sunny smile
Till step by step shall end in mile by mile.
"I'll do my best," unto my conscience say,
Live day by day.

Live day by day.
Why art thou bending toward the backward way?
One summit and another thou shalt mount,
Why stop at every round the space to count?
The past mistakes if thou must still remember,
Watch not the ashes of the dying ember.
Kindle thy hope. Put all thy fears away.
Live day by day.

Week-Day Living

Week-day conduct, rather than Sunday conduct, is the test of a man. No one is quite normal on Sunday. Some are outwardly better on that day, some are outwardly worse. Many a teacher of "the worst boy in Sunday School" has been amazed, upon coming to know him in his home through the week, at the evidences of manly character and unselfishness that cropped out when the boy was off his guard. To be on guard for Sunday behavior with the "bad boy" is to live up to the reputation wrongly given him by his elders. On the other hand, some Sunday School pupils have been equally surprised to find that their teachers' ordinary, every-day life between Sunday is not of quite so high a standard as the Sunday conduct and teaching would indicate. In either case, Sunday is apt to be a day of dress parade, as it were. This is not the fault of the day, but of us mortals. The Sabbath's true purpose is fulfilled when our best is strengthened and uplifted on that day, so that the average of week-day and Sunday alike is raised. But as six-sevenths of our time is week-days, so six-sevenths of our real character is likely to be indicated by our week-day living.—Sunday School Times.

An Abiding Gift

"Though I speak with the tongue of men and of angels, but have no love, I am become sounding brass or a clanging cymbal." Love never faileth; all else shall cease, of hatred and malice, opposition, fame, and the pomp and glory of the world; but love shall abide forever. He who loves allies himself to God, for "God is love." He begins here to breathe an atmosphere of that realm and of that dispensation for which this is preparatory. It is not the love for the lovable alone that ennobles and expands the soul. It is a divine vision which sees hidden excellences, which concerns itself with the possibilities of good and the probabilities of peril in all sorts and conditions of mankind.

"It suffereth long, and is kind." Men may not be wise, and bless humanity with their wisdom, but a loving, tender heart may be possessed by all men, and be a blessing always. Material wealth may not be possessed, except in slight measure, by the masses; but love may be a treasure for all, to keep warm the hearthstone when storms beat without, and make glad the fatherless and widow in the rainy day of adversity.

Who can not love? Love children and aged ones; love helpless and sorrowing souls out of their helplessness and grief; love flowers, and birds, and sunset skies, and truth, and God? Who loves art and nature and institutions, and is not made better for the appreciation of things beautiful and good and true?

Drummond says: "The greatest thing a man can do for his heavenly Father is to be kind to some of his other children." "Much of Christ's life," he says, "was spent in doing kind things—in merely doing kind things." Kindness, then, is the active principle of love, just as patience is the passive. It is so easy to say unkind words, to do unkind things; but it is just as easy to learn how to do and say kind things, if we will—and to be kind.

It is a little thing to love, yet love is the greatest of the graces of human character. It sweetens self-denial, and makes it easy and delightful. It is the staying quality of a believing soul; it is the crowning glory of character. If we are asked to do some great thing, remember, it is to be done in the doing of this simple thing. My brother, my sister, if God, by the voice of his Spirit, by the word of truth, by the preaching and practice of his children, should bid thee do some great thing, and that great thing be the building of a character in accord with his will, wouldst thou not do it? Do, then, the little things which make for character! Use the material within your reach, and do it to-day! Be self-denying; be patient; be courageous; be kind and loving; if there be any other virtue, think on that; and, with the divine help, do it also!—"Greatness of Little Things."

For Love of You

One loves you. He has loved you long.
His love, and its sweet prayer and praise
Were in your mother's cradle song.
And made the music of your days
When flowers were fair, and skies were blue
For love of you.

Now, has the shadow touched your face?
Are the days dark? the prospects gray?
O heart, be brave! The time of grace
Can never pass from you away.
Your Friend is tender, wise and true
For love of you.

He walked for you earth's changeful ways,
He bore for you the lonely hour,
He lived for you through toilsome days,
He met for you the tempter's power,
And joy through sorrow this Friend knew
For love of you.

O child of love, be not still sad,
But change the sigh to happy song,
For you can make the Saviour glad
By loving Him who loved you long.
So fill with praise the heavens above,
For God is love.

—Marianne Farningham.

Wherever beauty is, there is poetry; wherever life is deep, and heartfelt, and true, there is the noblest beauty, and, therefore, the deepest poetry. If you love beauty, you must love poetry, however uninteresting much that is written in rhyme may appear to you. The opening of a flower is poetry, so is the sunrise, the rainbow, the whisper of a rivulet, the rush of the ocean tides, the love in your heart for your home, your friends, your God. If these are anything to you, you care for poetry; there is poetry in you, and your eye for beauty, and your ear for harmony, are your own test of what has been written in verse, a test which the poets themselves are bound to recognize. That is true poetry which harmonizes with what is noblest in our emotions and aspirations; that which when we read gives us back our own ideals set to music. Such poems we all know, and we know, too, how they cling to our memory, how they echo through our tired or busy thoughts, and make us forget the weariness of this work-a-day world.—Selected.

Life's Mirror

BY MADELINE S. BRIDGES.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your heart will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

For life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what you are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text—Isa. 9:6.
Theme—The Coming King. (II.)

The coming King was to be a unique counsellor. He alone was, and is, able to expound the law by showing its claims, its nature, and its divine origin.

The coming King was the mighty God, the God of might and glory; the anointed One. His might is seen in the things He has made, in His government of the world, and in His works of redemption.

The coming King was the everlasting Father, the Father of the hoary ages of eternity. One in essence and being with the Father, who is from everlasting to everlasting; the Author and Source of all life; the Spring of all joy, human, angelic, seraphic, and divine.

The coming King was the Prince of Peace, the eternal Author of peace; the One who calms the turbulent waters of life and the sinful passions of men. He speaks, and peace reigns where confusion was rife; He speaks, and death dies that man may rise to life.

The coming King is to reign prosperously. The helplessness of Bethlehem and the obscurity and poverty of Nazareth did not hold Him long.

The few fishermen that followed Him have become a host that no man can number. The multitudes that startled Jerusalem, and the children that sang hosannas to Him, have steadily moved onward and increased in number and in influence until they now encircle the globe. He is to reign peacefully. Wherever He reigns war and strife cease, salvation draws nigh, and glory covers the land; mercy and truth meet together, and righteousness and peace embrace each other; truth springs out of the earth, and righteousness looks down from heaven; the people quickly and quietly beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, and learn war no more.

The coming King is to reign wisely and equitably. Under Him none shall be unjustly treated, or unwisely dealt with in the administration of judgment and justice. The coming King shall reign beyond doubt, chance and change. Sometimes kings are dethroned, sent into exile, or put to death; often they die, or another takes their place by force; sometimes the reigning prince dies without an heir; but not so with the coming King, for the zeal of the Lord will perform this work, and Christ Jesus shall reign over all worlds throughout the universe of God.

The coming King shall reign eternally. The government of worlds rest upon his shoulders, and He shall continue to reign forever over the people He hath redeemed and washed in His own blood, and hath made kings and priests unto God.

New Presiding Elders

Rev. F. H. Henry, Presiding Elder of the Aberdeen District, Upper Mississippi Conference, served his first appointment at McDonough, Georgia. After a brief pastorate at this place, he was assigned to Lexington, Miss. Here he found the church greatly in debt and the people discouraged. He assembled the leaders and trustees together, and after a thorough understanding began planning to pay the debt, and in a short while comparatively the mortgage was lifted, and a deed was secured for the property, and every cent of the debt paid, at the same time one acre of land was purchased five miles from Lexington and paid for, on which a beautiful church was erected and paid for. The church is known as East Shady Grove. Also money was raised and left in the treasury to repair the church at Howard, Miss.

REV. F. H. HENRY.

From Lexington Brother Henry was assigned to Macon, Miss. Here he spent a very pleasant pastorate. From this place his next appointment was Oxford, Miss. Here he found a very large congregation, a splendid church building and the people alive. At this place some much-needed improvements were made and electric lights installed. At all of these charges served by Brother Henry good revivals were had and the church membership greatly strengthened.

From Oxford Rev. Henry was appointed Presiding Elder of the Aberdeen District. He entered upon his work with the earnestness which characterized his pastorate. With his very positive manner and kind treatment in dealing with the brethren, the work is moving onward. This is nothing more than would be expected. Brother Henry spent ample time in preparation for his work, being a graduate of Rust University and the Gammon Theological Seminary.

Rev. John W. Fisher, the new Presiding Elder of the Savannah District, Savannah Conference, was born on a plantation in Carteret County, North Carolina, February 15, 1857, of Methodist parents, his father being a local preacher. He attended the public schools of the same State, finishing the grades in early life. He came to Georgia in 1880 and engaged in schoolteaching and in 1883 joined the Savannah Conference at Newnan, Ga., and has served the following charges: Munnerlyn, St.Mary's, Camden, Reidsville, Union Grove, Elberton, Gainesville, East Atlanta, Lavonia, Lagrange Circuit, Greenville, Culloden, Waynesboro and Brunswick, and from the last named charge was appointed Presiding Elder. He served as a pastor twenty-two years, during which time he has carried a clean record. Brother Fisher has done a great work. Quite nine hundred souls were converted and added to the church under his preaching, three churches have been built and three renovated. He is a clear and forceful preacher, and it can be truthfully said to know him is only to love him. He attended Gammon Theological Seminary while in charge of our church in Atlanta, and he says that if he has succeeded it is attributed largely to the training received in that school. With suh a leader as this at the head of the Savannah District, certainly it will be brought to the front.

Commencement at Princess Anne Academy

BY E. P. M.

The Commencement week at Princess Anne Academy, Princess Anne, Md., began Sunday, May 28th, 1905. On this day the annual sermon to the graduates was delivered by Rev. J. C. Dunn, of Camden, N. J. The sermon was soul-inspiring and uplifting. Rev. Dunn is an able minister.

On Monday afternoon, at 2:30 p. m., the graduating class held its Class Day exercises. The exercises, which were pleasing and instructive to all that heard them, were held in the Academy Chapel, which was artistically decorated for the occasion. Rev. C. W. Pullet, pastor of the M. E. Church, Princess Anne, Md., ably addressed the class on the subject, "Why Some Fail." Much valuable instruction could be gleaned from his remarks.

On the same date, at 8:30 p. m., the Margaret Hargis' oration prize contest was held in the Metropolitan M. E. Church. The prize, a ten dollar gold medal given for the best English oration written and delivered by the competitor, was won by E. Parker Moore, of Magnolia, N. J.

Tuesday, at 11 a. m., the graduating exercises were held in the above-named church. The graduates were as follows: Harry S. Briggs, Winters J. Barkly, Annie E. Brown, Emma M. Cottman, Benonie F. Dennis, Matthew J. Hall, M. Lydia Johnson, Edith S. Miles, Mary J. Snowden and Bessie L. Waters.

A very eloquent address was delivered to the graduating class by Rev. R. G. Waters. Rev. Waters is one of the most eloquent and fluent speakers that ever addressed a graduating class. The thought which he presented to the large audience was one which the Negro of to-day needs to inspire him to greater efforts and higher ideals.

Dr. J. O. Spencer, president of Morgan College, presented the diplomas to the graduates.

Things Not to Do

To contradict your friends when they are speaking.
To say smart things which may hurt one's feelings.
It is bad to make remarks about the food at dinner.
To talk about things which only interest yourself.
To grumble about your home relatives to outsiders.
To speak disrespectfully to anyone older than yourself.
To be rude to those who serve you either in shop or at home.
To dress shabbily in the morning because no one will see you.
To think first of your own pleasure when you are giving a party.
To refuse ungraciously when somebody wishes to do you a favor.
To behave in a street car or train as if no one else had a right to be there.—Gem.

No large, generous soul was ever a worrier. Calmness, serenity, poise, and power to move through life rhythmically, without jar or fret, are characteristics of greatness and true nobility. —Success.

Preparing for Our Heavenly Home

Scripture References—Phil. 3:20, 21; Heb. 11:8-10, 13-16.

The Word. In our first selection the word "conversation" would be better translated "country" or "citizenship." The force of the exhortation is this: The persons just described in the chapter belong to the earth, and walk in earthly sins; but you ought to walk as I Paul walk, in a heavenly manner, for we belong to heaven. We have now an earthly body, but then we will have a glorified body like unto the risen body of Jesus. In Hebrews we have Abraham and the other worthies "looking for a city" and "seeking a better country," indicative of the fact that in all ages God's people have lived not for this life only but for heaven and eternal life.

Our Homily: Seeking a Better Country. The universal instinct is for one to better his condition. That explains the successive migrations which have populated the earth. The Old Testament worthies felt that they were "strangers and pilgrims" here, that their home was in heaven. They inherited a land of milk and honey, yet felt that they were destined to abide here only a brief time and then go "home."

What is there in the heavenly land which should cause these old heroes to "desire it"? Why should we, to-day, have a thought and care for that heavenly home?

Because it is a better country. We live in an age when the temporal is exalted. The conditions of life are often so happy and pleasant that we are in danger of forgetting this great fact. Heaven is a better country than this. It is the above of satisfaction. We are too big for this world. We are never satisfied here, nor ought we to be. We will be satisfied when we awake in His likeness. It is the asylum of life. Death reigns here, but not there. It is the seat of rest. Restless here, there we shall have eternal rest.

Now, our lesson represents a desire for heaven an index of character and pleasing to God. Why? Surely all men desire heaven. Yes, in a sense, but not in the sense meant here. What are the characteristics of a true desire and preparation for heaven?

A desire for that which is supreme in heaven. This is a holy character. We are to desire heaven not for its rest, its happiness, its pleasures; but for its holiness and purity. The object of desire is always a touchstone of character. Why do you desire wealth, knowledge, power? Tell me why, and I will tell you your character. Why do you seek heaven? If a true child of God it is because there you will be like Jesus. A Godlike character is the real object of the Christian.

An intense desire is necessary. Not the man who has a lazy, languid wish for heaven is commended to God, but the man who earnestly strives for it. Only the man who really longs for wealth, knowledge, or fame, gets it. Only the Christian who is ready to sacrifice everything for heaven and holiness secures these.

It must be also an unselfish desire. We are to seek heaven not simply to enjoy it, but to realize its character. Not to sit down and be happy only, but to be prepared for heavenly service, is to be the thought of the Christian. A preparation for heaven is to be had with the thought that all eternity is to be filled with service for God.

Heavenly Axioms:

Heaven is a prepared place for prepared people.

To get into heaven we must first have heaven in us.

Preparation for earthly service is preparation for heaven.

Heaven has a distinct place for each person.

Heaven is a place, a home, a city.

Lesson IV—July 23, 1905. Title—"The Gracious Invitation" (Isaiah 55:1-13.) Golden Text.—"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found" (Isaiah. 55. 6.)

The gospel is a gift for the entire world. The promises in the preceding chapters are sure. God demands the acceptance of them through faith. Jesus is a self-offered sacrifice of infinitely greater value than "the blood of bulls and of goats." These chapters speak not of the times of Isaiah, nor of the exile, but of the rising plains of Peter, John, and Paul; and also of the far ages of the church still future.

I. A call to faith in a promised Messiah. (Ver. 1-5):

1. The covenant of grace: "I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David." A covenant is a contract made between two parties. God saw proper, in His goodness, to enter into an agreement with man, to redeem him from the power and dominion of sin, through the Lord Jesus Christ. Man in order to receive the benefits of this testament must comply with the conditions God has given in this contract—in His written Word. This promise was made first to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, Gen. 3:15; renewed to Noah at the close of the flood, Gen. 9:8-12; and took on all the nature of a covenant with Abraham, Gen. 15:1-18. It was renewed with Isaac, Gen. 26:1-5, and also with Jacob, Gen. 28:10-15. It was entered into again with David, 2 Sam. 7:12-16. "The sure mercies of David," refer to Jesus the Christ: to His spiritual reign, and to all the blessings brought to the world through that reign. God gave Him, in the fullness of time, to be a witness to the people, a leader and commander to all nations.

2. This covenant of grace is for all nations: "Thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that know not thee shall run unto thee." It began with Abraham, and grew as his descendants multiplied. When Jesus came He found it confined to the Jewish nation alone. But the angel said: "The good tidings of great joy shall be for all nations." Simeon said Jesus was "a light to light the Gentiles, and the glory of Israel." Jesus said: "Whosoever will may have everlasting life." Again: "If I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me." John said of Jesus: "He is the propiation for our sin, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." Jesus is calling the nations to Himself through His gospel, His written word, His Spirit, and His church.

3. The blessings of the covenant of grace is as a feast. Jesus is the bread of life to a hungry soul, and the water, milk and wine of life to the thirsty. Many places in the Bible are the blessings of the gospel compared to a feast, and partaking of them like enjoying a banquet. Jesus in the parable of the marriage of the king's son shows clearly the blessings of the gospel feast. (Matt. 22:1-14.) In this parable story the father represents God, this son is Jesus the Messiah, and the bride is the church. Jesus is represented as going forth, courting the church, winning its love, and offering to become its husband. The church is represented as receiving His love, considering His offer, and consenting to become His bride. The table is then spread, the fatlings are killed, and the people invited to the marriage. All this refers to the plan of salvation wrought out by the sufferings and death of Jesus.

4. Four times in these verses are we invited to come to this feast. God has said: "Come unto me." "Come ye to the waters." "Come ye, buy and eat." These invitations imply: (1) that we are away from this feast. We read: "Your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid His face from you." (Isa. 59:2.) All who have not saving faith in Jesus Christ are away from this banquet of love. (2) That we have the power to come to this feast. The will of man is under law: it is limited. There are things it cannot do. The will is free: there are things it can do, or leave undone, as it wishes. The will has power: it can reach conclusions, and then con strain the entire man—mind, soul and body—to walk in its ways. (3) That God desires us to come to this feast. He knows the joys of heaven, the horrors of hell, and the worth of the soul. Heaven is too great, hell is too awful, and the soul is too valuable to be trifled with. (4) That there is a way by which we may come to this feast. It is the way of faith, repentance, prayer, baptism, and a consecrated life.

II. An exhortation to be converted. (Vers. 6-9):

1. Sin: "The wicked and the unrighteous." The transgressor of law and the neglector of duty. The sinner and the moral man. The one is to forsake his thoughts and the other his ways. Sin is the transgression of the law (I John 3:4), the omission of duty (James 4:17), and the inclination of the soul towards evil (Ps. 51:6). The first stage of sin is a depraved nature; the second is a wicked life, and the third is as a loathsome disease working death, temporal and eternal. Jesus is the only physician that can heal the malady of sin.

2. Repentance is a godly sorrow for sin: an earnest wishing that something that has been done was undone. It is legal when it reaches the outward life only, and evangelical when it affects the moving causes of the outward life—the mind and soul. Repentance implies (1) knowledge of sin. All men are sinful by nature. "There is none that doeth good, no not one." The thoughts and ways of the unsaved are not as God's thoughts an dways. The first work of the gospel is to cause men to feel that they are sinners. This is done by the preaching of the gospel, the study of the Scriptures, and the peculiar working of the Holy Spirit.

(2) Sorrow for sin. God saw the tears and heard the prayer of Hezekiah, and added unto his days fifteen years. The Psalmist said: "I will be sorry for my sin." The sacrifice of God is a broken spirit. The Lord through Joel said: "Turn ye to me with all your heart, with fasting, with weeping, and with mourning." St. Peter, after he had denied his Lord, "went out and wept bitterly." Paul sat in darkness fasting and praying three days. He rejoiced because the Corinthians "were made sorry after a godly manner."

(3) Confession of sin. Man is disposed to cover his faults. But sin cannot be hid. Murder, lying, stealing, and all other vicious habits, will work their way to the light. The Psalmist said: "I confess my sin unto thee." "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper, but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy." The people baptized of John in Jordan "confessed their sins." While Paul preached at Ephesus "many that believed came and confessed and showed their deeds." John said: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins." Confession of sin should be made to God.

(4) Abandonment of sin. Job said: "If I have done iniquity I will do no more." The text says: "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts." God said to Israel: "Amend your ways, and I will cause you to dwell in this land." John told the Pharisees "to bring forth fruits meet for repentance." Paul said: "Let him that stole, steal no more." God does save men in their sins, but from them. No man has a true desire for heaven who continues in sin.

3. Pardon: "And to our God, for He will abundantly pardon." (1) Justification is that act by which God accepts one who is guilty, who confesses his guilt, who repents and believes in Jesus Christ. The moving cause of justification is the love of God, the meritorious cause is Jesus Christ, and the instrumental cause is faith in the Son of God. The acts of saving faith are three: the assent of the understanding to the truthfulness of the gospel, the consent of the will to be saved on the terms of the gospel, from these results actual trust in Jesus. (2) Regeneration should be distinguished from justification, yet we may not separate them. Cleansing directly follows pardon. Both enter into the experience of the same person. Regeneration is that work of the Holy Spirit by which we experience a change of heart. It is variously expressed in Scripture. "Ye must be born again." "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature." "You hath He quickened who were dead in trespasses and in sins." (Binny.)

III. The happy success of those who believe. (10-13):

1. The gospel will not return to God void, but will accomplish that whereto He sends it. As the rain and the snow descend from heaven, and return not there again, but fall in refreshing showers upon the earth, reviving vegetation, giving seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall the word of God be. The growth of the church is like the grain of mustard seed: small but developing into a very large plant. It is like the leaven hid in the meal, which worked till all was leavened. It is like the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, that broke the image in pieces, and became a great mountain that filled the whole earth.

2. The gospel will bring great blessings with it. It will cause the people to go out with joy, and be led forth with peace. This no doubt refers to the Jews in their return from captivity in Babylon. They went out with singing and great joy. The governor and high priest were as mountains, the lower officers were as hills, and the common people as trees. But this is a very striking figure of deliverance from the bondage of sin. This freedom is secured by the preaching of the gospel and the power of the Holy Spirit. The redeemed will sing the praise of God. The thorn and the brier are figures of the wicked, while the fir tree and the myrtle tree represent the righteous. The transforming power of the gospel will do away with the wicked, which are as undesirable as the thorn and brier, and bring about the righteous which are as desirable as the fir tree and the myrtle tree.

Lincoln High School

This school was established in 1881 with Prof. D. V. A. Nero principal.

It was at first connected with the Grammer school and for many years was operated as a distinct High School. The present faculty is as follows: G. N. Gresham, A. B., Anna H. Jones, Ph. B.; D. N. Crosthwait, A. M.; H. O. Cook, A. B.; W. H. Dawly, A. B.; Cornie Cross, A. B.; Maybelle D. Lucas (music), Oberlin College.

The first graduates were four in number. The class of 1905 numbers 21. This class for the first time (to the writer's knowledge) decided to have a baccalaureate sermon (which is a marked improvement). Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church was the first to be honored in this respect. The sermon was preached by the pastor, W. H. Wheeler, May 11, 1905.

Commencement exercises, June 16, 1905, were highly commendable. Each participant performed his part with credit and well merited the applause given by the audience of about 2,000 people. Class motto, "Climbing, though the rocks be rugged." President Norman of the School Board, who presented the diplomas, said, among other things, that it had not been his pleasure to listen to a better program by the High School, and that he was glad to say the School Board had voted to build another High School with increased advantages and a larger faculty. Also, to replace an old ward school by a new one of modern design.

Fairness and charity are sure fruits of heart communion with heaven, and these perfumes of the soul cannot be long preserved unless we come sometimes into a desert place and rest awhile.—T. K. Cheyne.

Conventions

TENNESSEE CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Tennessee Annual Conference Epworth League Convention convened June 21-27, 1905, at Humboldt, Tenn., in Key Chapel M. E. Church, Rev. Jesse P. Price presiding. Rev. Price is the successful pastor here. The following ministers of Humboldt were present and took an active part in the convention: Of the C. M. E. Church: Drs. G. W. Wiley, L. E. B. Rosser, G. W. Spearman, editor of The Afro-American Journal; Rev. Dr. E. McKnight, A. M. E. Church; Rev. J. H. Dawson, Baptist Church; Mrs. Josephine Price McNairy, daughter of Rev. Price, the music instructor of Walden University. Mrs. McNairy gave recitals on Friday and Monday nights to the delight of all who were present, assisted by Mrs. Rosa Ross, of Paris, Tenn. Mrs. McNairy made several talks to the convention and the young people of Humboldt, which were very interesting. The program was nicely rendered. Many interesting words were spoken in the discussions of all the subjects. Rev. S. M. Strayhorne, of Union City, Tenn., Rev. M. Williams, Centenary M. E. Church, Memphis, Tenn., Rev. J. A. W. Moore, presiding elder, West Tennesee District, and the writer, pastor of Shelbyville (Tenn.) charge, took an active part in all discussions. The following officers were elected for another year, viz.: Rev. Jesse P. Price, president; E. J. Guthrie, secretary; Rev. R. A. Dowell, 1st vice president; Rev. H. H. Hinton, 2nd vice president; Rev. W. Ellison, 3rd vice president; Rev. A. J. Procter, 4th vice president; Rev. S. M. Strayhorne, treasurer; Rev. J. M. Lyte, Jr., superintendent Board of Control; Rev. J. F. R. W. Summerhill, Rev. T. W. Johnson, Rev. B. F. Anderson, Joseph Harrison and the presiding elders. The pastor and good people of Humboldt entertained the convention royally. The conventin was in some respects the best ever held in the history of the conference.

E. J. GUTHRIE. Secretary.

TEXAS CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The 12th annual session of the Texas Conference Epworth League Convention met in the M. E. Church, Conroe, Texas, June 13, 1905, with the president, Rev. B. M. Taylor, presiding. The opening sermon by Rev. S. M. Bolden of Yarboro, Texas, was quite a treat. The program was largely carried out. The subjects were very interesting and the discussions quite lively. Rev. M. Fountain preached the annual sermon, to the delight of the large congregation. Rev. J. E. Bryant, A. B., presiding elder of the Navasota District, acquitted himself with credit on the subject, "What has been the benefits derived from the M. E. Church by its Colored membership?" Revs. J. Johnson and J. J. Turner, of the Baptist churches, were present and delivered short lectures, Rev. Turner making the welcome address on behalf of the city. Rev. G. W. Hamilton, of the A. M. E. Church, gave the welcome address on behalf of the city churches and took part in many of the discusions with evident pleasure. He together with a representative of the Allen Christian Endeavor Society presented to the Convention several beautiful bouquets. We found perfect peace between the pastor and people of the different churches. Rev. Adams of the M. E. Church South, gave us a splendid lecture. Rev. T. S. Prior and his people did their utmost to make it pleasant for the convention. All denominations opened their doors to the delegates. Rev. B. M. Taylor deserves great credit for the manner in which he conducted the business of the convention. The query box, conducted by Rev. T. Cole and Mrs. H. E. Taylor, was a rare treat. The next convention will meet at Palestine, Texas. League officers for the ensuing year: President, Rev. S. M. Bolden, Yarboro, Texas; 1st vice, Rev. M. Fountain; 2nd vice, Rev. S. A. Kelly; 3rd vice, Miss Carrie Burns; 4th vice, Rev. J. A. Tillory; Supt., Jr. League, A. F. Johnson Librarian, Miss Blanche Todd; Organist, Abella Morgan; League guard, Rev. T. S. Prior; Treasurer, Mrs. H. E. Taylor, Marshall, Tex.; Musical director, Prof. Landry; Rec. Sec., Prof. J. A. Strain; Cor. Sec., M. Q. A. Fuller. Rev. F. Gary was present and notwithstanding his long illness, was as usual ready to talk and make all feel glad for his presence.

M. Q. A. FULLER.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

The Epworth League Convention of the Western District convened at Brook's Chapel M. E. Church May 25-28, 1905. The annual sermon was preached by Rev. R. J. Shipp. Wednesday the president, Rev. G. W. Brower, opened with a lively song service and testimonies were given, the young people taking part. The district officers' reports showed some improvement and deep interest in the work. Friday evening the local chapters made their reports and from all indications the local chapters had been doing good and active work. Rev. J. W. Wells, an ex-pastor of this charge, now representing the American Bible Society, was introduced and spoke concerning his work. Rev. N. D. Shamborguer made an interesting talk on "Woman, Man's Equal." Miss Hattie Latimore and Mr. R. N. Brooks were chosen as secretaries. All members of the convention wore the badges of red and white. Saturday at 2 p. m. a joint session of the Shelby, Fallston and Forest City quarterly conferences were held, with Presiding Elder M. M. Jones in the chair. The conference was a great success. Sunday morning at 11 Rev. A. H. Newson preached to a crowded house; Rev. W. M. Crofford at 3 p. m., and Rev. N. D. Shamborguer at 8 p. m. The young people on this district are fully alive to the importance of the League. District officers for the ensuing year: President, Mr. R. L. Brower; 1st vice, Miss J. D. Johnson; 2nd vice, Miss C. M. Conner; 3rd vice, Miss Hattie Latimore; 4th vice, Mr. C. J. Young; secretary, Mr. R. N. Brooks; Cor. Sec., Miss Hattie Horn; treasurer, Mr. R. C. McKorkle; Jr. Supt., Miss C. L. Shipp. Revs. G. A. Brower and Crofford are our delegates to the International E. L. Convention.

LAYMEN'S ASSOCIATION, BIRMINGHAM DISTRICT.

On the first day of June the laymen of Birmingham District, Central Alabama Conference, met in their third session at Bessemer, Ala., in the First M. E. Church, of which the Rev. N. H. Redrick is pastor. The pastor and his people had made ample preparations for the entertainment of said body and the reception was very warm and cordial. Mr. John L. Sneed, of the Enon charge, presided over the deliberations of the meeting. The majority of the pastors of the Birmingham District were present and sustained the relation of honorary members and counsellors. Since the organization of this Association the ministers of the district have never failed to meet the laymen and give them words of good cheer and encouragement. All the churches were represented except three, and those who came certainly enjoyed a rare treat. This Association of laymen, the first ever organized in the state among our Methodism, was organized by such laymen as John L. Sneed, Prof. W. C. Davis and others of their character, in whose hearts burn a constant love for the church, and are giving to it their time and continued service. The object of the Association is to awaken an interest in the work and duties of the laymen independent of the pastors. In other words, it is the effort of the Association to point out from time to time what the laymen can and should do to build up and push on the various interests of the church, not independently of the pastors, but along with them. It is not only to awaken an interest in the various causes of the church, but to cultivate a genuine love for the church and its work. There were four days spent in the work, by means of daily discussions of vital subjects pertaining to the material and spiritual good of the churches, by means of suitable sermons for the occasions, and special prayers for the pastors, the churches, the Sunday schools, and Leagues and for the various auxiliaries of the church, and the labors they are putting forth. Each session both night and day, was well attended and the interest did not lag. The good work will be continued of course, and the Association elected for the ensuing year Messrs. J. L. Sneed, president; G. W. Brownlee, vice president; J. Eatman, treasurer; Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Cor. Secretary, and Mr. M. S. Colman, Recording Secretary. After four days' meeting, each delegate returned home with new inspiration and all promised to do more than ever in the pew, and in the laymen's field. The next annual session will be held in the M. E. Church at East Thomas, Ala.

(MRS.) W. H. NELSON.

Children's Day Reports

HARLETON, TEXAS.—"Children's Day was observed: program carried out successfully. Prof. W. H. Reynolds, of Wiley University, preached a fine sermon on 'Education,' and $12 were raised. Lawrence, superintendent, $2.12; St. Paul, Harris, Baity, superintendent, $6.15; White's Chapel, F. Mays, superintendent, $2.05. This work is in fair condition. W. M. Josey, pastor.

FORT STEPHEN, MISS.—Children's Day Service was carried out according to program. At Snowden M. E. church the meeting was a success. Miss Allie M. C. Call had given the children excellent training. Collection for the day, $8.32.

There is a world of comfort in the thought that all days are not alike. If to-day is a day of suffering and discouragement, or of defeat and humiliation, to-morrow, or the next day, or the next, is almost sure to suffer a sky-change. The weather is bound to shift. It cannot rain always, any more than it can shine always. Think of that our forgetting it that makes these transitory clouds so much more saddening than they need to be.—Selected.

Surely you cannot afford to be indifferent. You--what will YOU do?

FAITH NOT DOUBT

The world has enough of doubts and fears. There are some who have no other source of claim upon public attention other than the proclaiming of their doubts, in man, in the Bible and in God. They offer doubts, but offer nothing instead upon which one may rest an individual faith. They doubt all men, because they doubt themselves—and as an attempt at scholarship, they shout their doubts in God and His word. What the world needs to know are not of the negative things, but the positive. Recently we came across these beautiful, fine and striking lines:

"Talk faith. The world is better off without
Your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt.
If you have faith in God, or man, or self,
Say so; push back upon the shelf
Of silence all your thoughts till faith shall come.
No one will grieve because your lips are dumb."

A TRIBUTE TO JOHN HAY

One could hardly be extravagant in speaking of the late Secretary of State, John Hay. His was a most beautiful, honorable, and useful life. The following tribute to Mr. Hay is taken from the Kansas City Star:

"John Hay—Strong his nature was, but serene as the unfretted rainfall that is a prosperous benediction to the soil where tempest would but rend and overthrow. Manifold activities engaged his mind and stern emergencies challenged his potent hand and no responsibility failed acceptance. Calm, poised like a star, his public service ne'er once forfeited the accustomed trust of his people. In youth a poet, simple, straightforward, his mature manhood saw the flowers of his fancy blossoming in the mind of the daughter of his heart. Historian, he read the meaning of the unrolling scroll and, comprehending, set down the lesson of it. Statesman, he spoke definitely, understandingly, with world-wisdom and with the wide charity that he drew from the majestic Lincoln. Thus, nobly dominating the passions of the hour, he saved from rapacious dismemberment the dumb, untutored, helpless giant nation of the East. And thus did he many things. His genius ripened to fulfilment in the exact hour of the swift involvements of his nation's new-flung destiny. Prepared, unfaltering, resolved, chivalrous, he so administered his high employments that the great republic which he served became the white knight of the world's honor, standing at the crossroads of strife and amity and steadily pointing the way. Now, his admirable life ended, his name is exalted and a symbol wherever men, in uprightness and courage, confront the momentous enigmas of alien nations opposed.

CHURCH AND STATE SEPARATED

In 1807 Pope Pius VII and Napoleon signed the famous concordant which gave the religion of the Roman Catholic Church a governmental standing in France. Since then the churches have been the property of the state and the clergy was paid by the state, the administration of church being under the direction of a member of the Cabinet. During the recent months agitation on the division of the state and church in France has arrested public attention. A bill introduced in the Chamber of Deputies, providing for the separation of state and church, was passed July 3 by a vote of 341 to 233, but only after the most persistent work of the opposition which introduced more than two hundred amendments.

The general principle of the measure as finally adopted by the Chamber of Deputies is as follows:

"The Republic assures liberty of conscience and guarantees the free exercise of religion subject to the restrictions of public order. The Republic neither recognizes, pays stipends to, nor subsidizes any sect, but provides funds for colleges, hospital and asylum chaplains. Otherwise the public worship budget is abolished, and public establishments connected with religion are suppressed."

THE LEAGUE WORK APPROACHING SELF-SUPPORT

The church has been generous in providing for the development of the work among our people, but from the beginning we have looked forward to a time when the church would no longer be called upon to subsidize the various agencies. Self-support has been the watchword. Not only self-support but actually contributing to the development of our world-wide Methodism. All have worked hard, but perhaps no individual has worked harder for self-support than Dr. I. G. Penn. Thro the generous help of the Conferences by raising general Epworth League expenses, the year just closed makes a fine showing for the League work among our people. Dr. Penn in his annual report at Denver pays a special tribute to the brethren who by their loyalty in raising league expenses made it possible for him to announce that our department of the League is self-supporting or nearly so. On this point in his yearly report Dr. Penn says:

"Our slogan is enough and more funds in the sale of literature and from general Epworth League expenses to replace every dollar drawn from the Book Concern for the maintenance of the work in the South. How far have we approached that in the last eight months? The salary and office expenses for the past eight months amounts in round figures to $1,756. Our reports to the Book Concern and Central Office amounts to $2,800. We have therefore reported to the Central Office as raised on general Epworth League expenses and as sent to the Book Concern on sale of literature $1,044 more than has been our drafts on the Central Office and Book Concern for all purposes. It is fair to presume that this $1,044 would at least pay the actual cost of the literature sold. If it does our work has reached the place of self-support, if, indeed, it is not a profit to the church, for we are not counting at all the orders for League supplies which go direct from hundreds of our ministers who have credit with the Book Concern and take advantage of same in their orders, nor the hundreds of subscribers to the Herald in our field whose subscriptions are renewed direct from the chapter and from the individual to Chicago."

Dr. Penn deserves the hearty congratulations of the entire church for this magnificent showing.

NEGRO CHURCH NOT WANTED

The African Methodist Episcopal Church seems to have a hard time in the operation of its missionary work in South Africa. Some time ago we called attention to an article published in London which discussed the idea of "Africa for Africans" and pointed out that it was the intent of the Europeans to make South Africa practically a white man's country. Bishop C. S. Smith, D. D., of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, has been assigned to Episcopal duties in South Africa, and it is his experience that the American Negro is regarded with suspicion lest he gives the African an idea of liberty and citizenship. Bishop Smith says:

"It is the unparalleled advancement that makes the American Negro such an object of dread and suspicion in South Africa and so unwelcome thereto. There is great fear lest he may instil into the minds of the natives that love of liberty and independence so characteristic of a republican form of government. The American Negro, whether as missionary, teacher or trader, will find South Africa a most hostile region. Present conditions do not point to the successful operations of any American Negro Church; conditions that will at least continue to exist until the success or failure is demonstrated of the present fixed purpose to Europeanize South Africa and make it the permanent home of the white man."

THE NEW SECRETARY OF STATE

Hon. Elihu Root, former Secretary of War, has accepted the secretaryship of the State Department made vacant by the death of Secretary John Hay.

Mr. Root was born at Clinton, N. Y., 1845. Graduated from Hamilton College, 1864. Taught at Rome Academy, 1865. Graduated from the University Law School College, 1867. United States attorney for the Southern district of New York, 1883-85. Delegate-at-large to the State Constitutional Convention and chairman of the judiciary commission, 1894. Appointed Secretary of War by President McKinley, 1899. Reappointed Secretary of War, 1901. Resigned as Secretary of W[illegible]03.

In accepting the portfolio of State Mr. Root gives up a law practice that yields him $200,000 a year. Mr. Root's past record is a guarantee that he will serve his country in this new capacity with efficiency.

OFF FOR DENVER

On Monday of last week Miss Nellie V. Landry, Miss Anna S. Duncan, Miss Birdie Miller, and the editor and wife left for Denver. At Jackson, Miss., the party was joined by Rev. G. W. Arnold, of the Mississippi Conference, and at Grenada by Mrs. Marion Golden. Memphis was the meeting point for others. They had come from the adjacent towns and states. The party leaving Memphis Monday, besides those already mentioned, were:

Bishop C. H. Phillips, D. D., and wife, Rev. G. W. Stewart, D. D.; Mrs. Susie Davis, Grenada, Miss.; Mrs. Estella Knox, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Maggie B. Cox, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Hattie Boyd, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. J. A. Bray, D. D., president Lane College, Jackson, Tenn.; Miss G. A. Nugent, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. M. L. Rosemond, Grenada, Miss.; Rev. I. M. Thompson, Columbus, Miss.; Rev. E. C. F. Troupe, Grenada, Miss.; Rev. D. T. Burch, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. S. W. Burch, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. Ed. Chany, Mobile, Ala.; Mrs Annie Bobo, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. W. M. Crawford, Sperrill's Ford, N. C.; Prof. G. S. Goodman, Miller, Miss.; Rev. R. Sewell, Memphis, Tenn.

Personal and General.

Rev. W. M. Perkins has been changed from Bonus, Texas, to Fayetteville, Texas.

Mrs. Caroline S. Lang, wife of Rev. W. H. Lang, of Vanceville, La., is spending some time with relatives in Donaldsonville.

Miss Ida Hall, the musical instructor of Straight University, is spending the su mer with friends in Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Delia Adams, of this city, who is employed as secretary at the Grammar School of Theology, is at home for the summer.

The General Missionary Committee will meet in Jane's Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, Wednesday, November 6, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Miss H. K. Patrick, the efficient superintendent of the Girls' Department of the A. and M. College, Normal, Ala., was in our city recently, the guest of relatives.

Wesley Chapel, our church at Gunnison, Miss., of which Rev. R. L. Lee is pastor, was wrecked by the storm which passed through that portion of the State on Sunday night, July 2.

It has been decided to hold the forthcoming session of the West Tennessee District Conference at Martin, Tenn., August 22, instead of Kenton, Tenn., as formerly announced.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of Prof. A. W. Stewart, of Shreveport, accompanied by her small daughter, Pansy, was in the city this week, the guest of her eldest daughter, Mrs. A. Vera Davage.

Under the direction of Rev. A. B. Harris, a new Methodist Episcopal Church will soon be erected in West Carrollton, New Orleans, lumber for the building being already on the ground.

Mr. J. R .Robinson, the well known contractor of Orange, Texas, and his son, Mr. J. L. Robinson, one of Wiley University's most excellent young men, called at the SOUTHWESTERN a few days ago.

Mr. Adolph P. Gaudet, an employee in the Custom House of this city, and Mrs. Frances A. Joseph, were married Tuesday evening, July 11, at the Colored Industrial Home and School, of which Mrs. Joseph has charge.

Rev. W. P. Ryder, treasurer of the Washington Conference, pastor of our church in Wheeling, West Virginia, owing to a serious illness has not been able to take charge of his church services since the first Sabbath in May.

Miss Portia M. Washington, daughter of Dr. Booker T. Washington, in company with Miss Jane E. Clark, sailed June 24 for Europe. Miss Washington will spend three months traveling in the old world, and in September she will begin a special course in music at Berlin.

Dr. G. R. Townsend, who has practiced medicine for more than 20 years at Victoria, Texas, will move to Fort Worth, Texas, and hang out his shingle. The Doctor is a physician of eminent ability and no doubt in his new field will have success from the start.

Wesley Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church, this city, granted its pastor, Rev. T. J. Johnson, a vacation, and he is now attending the Epworth League Convention at Denver, Colo., accompanied by Messrs. Charles W. Dale and Robert Williams, members of Wesley.

Moore's Hill College conferred the degree of LL. D., upon Rev. Levi Gilbert, D. D., editor of the Western Christian Advocate, at its recent commencement, and the Upper Iowa University conferred the same honor upon Rev. H. C. Jennings, D. D., publishing agent of the Western Book Concern.

We are grieved to learn that Bishop I. W. Joyce was stricken with paralysis while preaching at Red Rock, Minn., Sunday, July 2, and that his condition is now serious. The prayers of the church, we are sure, ascend to the throne of grace for the restoration to health of this beloved Bishop.

Dr. E. W. Rogers, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has just returned from Philadelphia, Pa., where he has finished a post-graduate course in the Philadelphia Polyclinic and College for graduates in medicine. He is enjoying a very large and lucrative practice, and is one of the leading physicians of Chattanooga.

The keynote of the recent International Sunday School Association at Toronto was "Progress," and the financial progress of this body was evidenced by the subscriptions of about $75,000 pledged for the work of the triennium. Field workers among the colored people are to be increased from two to four or five.

Rev. Dr. E. L. Parks, at one time a Professor in Gammon Theological Seminary, has engagements for Bible School methods and work at the following Chautauquas: Lake Madison, S. D.; Devil's Lake, N. D.; Pontiac, Shelbyville and Rockford, Ill. At several of these he will also deliver his lecture on "The Negro and the Nation."

The Rev. DeWitt Proseus, of the South America Conference, arrived in New York Friday, July 1, on the steamer New York, coming by way of England. Mr. Proseus went out from the Central New York Conference early in 1902 for missionary work in Argentina Republic, and now returns to the United States because of poor health.

The Leonia Church on the Paulding Circuit, Leonia, Miss., was destroyed by fire on the morning of June 11, causing a serious loss to this membership, as the building was not insured. Nevertheless, they are already planning to rebuild and to this end the friends of Methodism are asked to send contributions, however small, to the pastor, Rev. B. W. Robinson, Leonia, Miss.

Dr. D. W. Shaw, our pastor at Cumberland, Md., of the Washington Conference, is pushing his work with vigor. He has just held his spring rally and the church raised $474.51. The week that the Washington Conference was in session Dr. Shaw bought a parsonage lot for $400. The total receipts for the first eight weeks of this conference year amounted to $618.

The Rev. W. A. Quayle, D. D., pastor of St. James Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago, will deliver the Matriculation Day address at Boston University, School of Theology, on Wednesday, October 11, at 10 a. m. The opening day address will be delivered by the newly elected professor of Practical Theology, Rev. Samuel L. Beiler, Ph., D., on September 20.

Bishop I. B. Scott was the honored guest at Epiphany Hall Cuttington, Cape Palmas, one day during March. The Bishop was introduced by the principal, Rev. J. F. Dunbar, and after he had resigned the floor, to quote the Liberia and West Africa, "his Lordship interestingly addressed the boys; sometimes causing them to indulge in roars of laughter and sometimes causing them serious reflections."

A most pleasing program was rendered at the closing exercises of Lowes Chapel Public School, Crystal Springs, Miss., held recently. J. Powell delivered the opening address; Rev. J. L. Buckwalter, of Drew, Miss., was present and chose as his theme, "Education and Its Qualifications," and an address was made also by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Tatum. The exercises closed with the impressive farewell words of the talented young teacher, Miss Louella A. Ford.

Prof. and Mrs. Carl N. Vance, of the North Andes Mission, have been obliged to return to the United States temporarily, with their infant son, because of ill health brought about by the trying climatic conditions of the Isthmus of Panama, where they have been doing missionary work since last spring. Prof. and Mrs. Vance arrived in New York June 30, and left immediately for their home in Indiana.

Since the last session of the Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, a neat frame church has been erected at Leesville, La., at a cost of nearly $1,000, and it is to the credit of the pastor, Rev. J. D. Brightop, that probably less than $35 of that amount remains unpaid. This edifice is neatly painted, has a bell tower and is in every particular one of the best arranged and nicely finished churches in Leesville.

The "Diplomatic Function at the American Legation," given by the Hon. Ernest J. Lyon, American Minister Resident and Consul General to Liberia, and Mrs. Lyon, in honor of his excellency, Edward Wilmot Blyden, D. D., the recently appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to France from the Liberian Republic, was a unique and patriotic affair. An interesting account of the distinguished guests there assembled and the able addresses delivered appears in the May issue of the Liberia and West Africa.

NEWS NOTES

It is announced that the board of lady managers of the St. Louis World's Fair have returned to the general board $26,000 of the $100,000 placed at their disposal.

The wealth of Foster Williams, the Negro who conducts one of the largest grocery stores in Coffeyville, Kansas, and has charge also of a dry goods store, is estimated at $75,000.

"The Duties of the Rich" was the subject discussed by President Roosevelt on the closing day of the National Education Association Convention held in Asbury Park, N. J., last week.

The body of the naval hero, Admiral Paul Jones, was delivered to the representative of the United States July 6 in the American Church of Paris, and was conveyed by American warships to Annapolis, Md., for interment.

Henry Vertrees, a Negro of Jeffersonville, Ind., has been appointed government blacksmith for the Klamath Indian Reservation, in the State of Oregon. In the examination Mr. Vertrees led his class, making 99.3 per cent.

Mr. Joseph Milbank has given $300,000 for a building in Jersey City, known as the "People's Palace," which is designed to become an uplifting power in the community by providing for the social needs of all classes of people.

The tornado which passed over one of the richest farming sections in Texas, July 5, caused the death of probably forty persons and injured a large number. Property was seriously damaged and the crops and cattle suffered heavily.

A neat and interesting program has been issued of the Indiana District Woman's Home Missionary Association, to be held at St. John Methodist Episcopal Church, Evansville, Ind., August 10-12, Mrs. George A. Sissle, president.

Five hundred dollars of the fund left in trust by the late Philo Bennett, of New Haven, Conn., have been set apart by Hon. William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, as trustee, for the purpose of aiding poor and deserving negro boys in obtaining an education at Tuskegee Institute.

A raid was made by four hundred policemen a few days ago against one hundred and fifty questionable resorts, scattered over twenty square miles of Philadelphia, Pa. About two thousand men and women were arrested, and gambling houses of various kinds were closed.

Henry Arthur Callis, son of Rev. H. J. Callis, D. D., of the A. M. E. Zion Church, the first negro student to graduate from the Binghampton, New York, High School, won the Cornell scholarship from the county, having stood higher in the examinations than any of his white competitors.

The presence of President Roosevelt at the twenty-fifth anniversary of his class and as the honored guest of the University, and his address at the alumni dinner upon the functions of the university and the spirit and ideals that should be those of the graduate, were notable features of the commencement week at Harvard.

The presence of Chief White Swan, of the Yakima tribe, is one of the chief attractions of the Methodist Congress now in session at Portland Oregon. White Swan, who has been a member of the Methodist Church since 1861, will appear in full Indian costume and tell many interesting things concerning the early history of the country.

An institution, known as the Sunlight School No. 1, was opened June 19 at Maillard, La., with an enrollment of thirty-three, under the direction of Julius J. Schexnayder, who had interested in this movement such men as Rev. W. R. Butler, presiding elder of the New Orleans South District, and Mr. M. S. Alexander, of Maillard. The officers are: Messrs. Alphonse Cenf, president; L. C. Jolly, vice president; Thomas J. Volter, treasurer; K. C. Mitchell, secretary. Miss Sophronia Robertson is the teacher and Julius J. Schexnayder, general manager.

Doings of the Workmen.

LOUISIANA.

Spider, T. P. Norris, Pastor—About thirty members and friends of Shady Grove, the evening of April 12th, stormed the parsonage. They brought many pounds of groceries and chickens. Those prominent in the affair were Sisters R. J. Walker, Hannah Limon, Fanny Williams, V. Cato Laura Bryan, Polly London; Brothers A. C. Cato, R. London and Wm. Walker of St. Matthew, who spoke of the SOUTHWESTERN. Short addresses were made by several. I take this method to express my thanks.

Boyce, W. L. Dyas, Pastor—My second quarterly conference convened June 10th, with Rev. Obee presiding. Every officer presented written reports which showed that $336 had been raised by the pastor's planning, and that $485 had been paid out by the stewards and trustees. Lumber is on the ground with which to repair Rynett Chapel, and the carpenters are at work on the same. Paid presiding elder in full.

Central, Allen Johnson, Pastor—Our first quarterly conference was held April 15-16 by Rev. J. F. Marshall. His appeals for the SOUTHWESTERN and the benevolences were fervent and have brought much fruit; $138 raised. The revival was going on with marked success. Six precious souls have been saved. The great Woman's Missionary, Sister M. A. Young, was with us, doing good work. Revs. J. H. Thompson and Davis preached during the week.

Sterlington, C. L. Angrum, Pastor—My first quarterly conference was held at Mt. Sinai M. E. Church, March 29th, by Rev. J. O. Brown. All were present with written reports, which showed a marked improvement.

Sublime, A. G. Warren, Pastor.—The work here is succeeding nicely. We have finished a nice church on this charge, which is worth about $300.50. This is my second year here. When I came, I found two school houses, but not one church on the work. We were made very happy the first Sunday in April over the conversion of a dear old lady, of about 60 years. She cast her lot with us.

Bremond, R. H. Duncan, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held April 22-23, with Rev. J. H. Swann in the chair. Saturday evening at 3 o'clock, the business session was held. Reports from all showed marked improvements on all lines. More than $17.00 were reported. Accessions 29. On Sunday morning all were delighted with the beautiful appearance of the church. The Bible furnished on Sunday by Sister Nellie Maderson for the occasion was a beautiful one. The elder preached two good sermons, raised for all purposes during the quarter, $65.50; paid the elder in full, $22.50.

MISSISSIPPI.

Natchez, W. P. C. Morrison, Pastor—Our rally on the 28th ult. resulted in the raising of $200. Dr. J. W. E. Bowen lectured to us on the 26th and preached Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, also at 8 p. m. Words are inadequate to express the good done for our Methodism by the service of Dr. Bowen. The conference brethren are slowly reporting the results of Natchez Day. We urge upon them immediate action, or we may suffer serious embarrasment.

NORTH CAROLINA.

West Asheville, J. W. Simpson, Pastor—On a recent Sunday $55.00 was raised by this circuit with which to purchase for their pastor, by whom they are standing loyally, a conference suit. Mesdames Hattie Greenlee and Annie Greenlief subscribed $5 each; Mrs. Martha Greenlee and J. D. Smathers, $3 and $2 respectively; a number of others giving from $1.00 to $1.50 each.

TEXAS.

Yorktown, Velma Ross.—The sisters were called together one evening recently by Mrs. Sophie E. Tyler. Quite a number met at the parsonage. Sister Tyler organized the Woman's Home Missionary Society, with 16 members. We elected Sister Emma Fields as president, Miss Louisa Davis, vice-president, Sister C. L. Davis treasurer, Miss Velma Ross secretary. Mrs. Tyler then put a project before the sisters which was then gladly endorsed. Rev. G. E. Tyler gave us a few words of encouragement.

TENNESSEE.

Marion, Miss Susie B. Madison.—The second quarterly conference of Mt. Pleasant Church convened April 1st and 2nd. The presiding elder, Rev. R. A. Swann, was present. The meeting was a success, both spiritually and financially. A large number was present on Saturday night. Excellent reports from the officers, they having raised during the quarter for missions $2.00; pastor, $81.64; raised during the day, $16.00. The work of the church under the estimable pastor, Rev. E. J Cox, is in a more prosperous condition than ever before. On Sunday the presiding elder preached two beautiful and inspiring sermons. In connection with the morning services the four dear little children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mills were given to the Savior in holy baptism, by the elder, assisted by the pastor, after which the Holy Sacrament was administered to a large number of communicants. In the afternoon the quarterly love feast was held and more than 50 persons testified for the Savior. At night we had a most glorious meeting. Four persons were connected with the church. Revival services began March 26 and nine persons have accepted Christ. The pastor is putting forth every effort for the salvation of souls.

Chattanooga, S. C. Priest, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was a grand success. We paid the presiding elder his assessment in full of $6. This membership is small, but they are faithful. On the 30th Sister Harriette Scotte, with about twelve of my good sisters of Sherman Height, came to my home and left the table laden with many good things.

Malaria Makes Pale Blood.

MISS NANCY RICE.

Nothing Takes Its Place.

This is a photograph of Miss Nancy Rice, 185 Beale street, Memphis, Tenn., who has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for years, and who says:

"Nothing I have ever used will take the place of your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer, as it keeps my hair in a splendid condition."

Miss Rice is a woman of striking personal appearance, which is owing very largely to her fine hair, the result of using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT

Has Done Wonders.

This is a photograph of Mr. Louis Nemore, residing at No. 10 Turley St., Memphis, Tenn., one of the most highly respected colored men in the city. He is implicitly trusted by his employer for the last ten years—Dr. Heber Jones, one of our most prominent physicians, and now president of the Memphis Board of Health. Mr. Nemore says he takes pleasure in stating that our "La Creole" Hair Restorer has done wonders for his splendid head of hair. "It has kept my hair from falling out, and has kept my head and scalp in a clean, healthy condition. I recommend it very highly."

MR. LOUIS NEMORE.

Brethren: Remember that the District Conference and Epworth League Convention will convene at Houston, Miss., July 19-23. Don't fail to raise the amount apportioned to your charges for the Rust Building Fund. The work is now going on and the money is much needed. Bring as many subscriptions to the Conference as you possibly can for the Southwestern. We can not afford to fall behind any district in this. Try to have your benevolence raised and paid in full. Faithfully yours, W. C. Clay.

WAYCROSS DISTRICT.

Valdosta, July 8-9; Patterson, 15-16; Folkston and Traders Hill, 22-23; Blackshear, 29-30; Waycross and Waresboro, Aug. 5-6; Fitzgerald and Douglass, 10-11; Cordele, 12-13; Eastman, 19-20; Macon, 26-27; Forsyth, Sept. 2-3; Flovilla, 6-7. Dear Brother Pastors, Officers and Members of the Waycross District: The District Conference convenes at Blackshear July 26-31. Let us all plan to be present. Pray and work for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon us, for the conversion of sinners and the upbuilding of the Master's Kingdom. Build churches, repair old ones, bring up the Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues. Set every member to work; give them something to do. Believe me, ever yours in Jesus, A. B. Allen, P. E.

SAVANNAH CONF. CONVENTION.

The Sunday School and Epworth League Convention of the La Grange District, Savannah Conference, convened at Pleasant Grove M. E. Church, Orchard Hill, Ga., Friday, May 5, 1905. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. R. R. O'Neal, P. E., assisted by Revs. E. D. Giddens, E. J. Kytes and G. H. Lennon. Invocation, by Rev. E. J. Kytes. The Presiding Elder made a brief address. Rev. J. O. Murphy was elected secretary; Mr. E. P. Jenkins, assistant. The Revs. J. A. Richie, G. Y. Flemister and E. J. Kytes, distinguished visitors from the Griffin District, Atlanta Conference, made very instructive addresses. Reports from the various Sunday Schools were read and adopted, the majority of which showed marked improvement. At 7:30 p. m. the welcome address was read by Miss Hattie Taylor. This address was ably prepared and eloquently delivered. Rev. F. R. Bridges responded in a most pleasing manner. Introductory sermon by the writer. Saturday morning session: Devotional service, after which Rev. R. R. O'Neal called the house to order. The majority of reports from Epworth League chapters showed splendid advancement. The cabinet officers for the District and the Junior League Superintendent were elected. The 11 o'clock sermon was ably preached by Rev. F. R. Bridges. At 2:30 p. m. the Literary Progrram, rendered by the young men and women who represented the various charges showed that they had made special preparation for the work assigned to them. At 7:30 p. m. the Epworth League Anniversary was conducted by the writer. Very interesting speeches were made by Presiding Elder O'Neal and Rev. D. McLendon. It is earnestly hoped that these Leaguers and superintendents have been awakened to new life and inspired for greater efforts in the future. Sunday was a great day in our Zion; the Sabbath School was fully alive. At 11 o'clock Rev. E. D. Giddens preached a logical and forceful sermon. At the 3 o'clock service Rev. J. B. Maddox preached to a large and appreciative audience. At 8 p. m. the writer preached. These services proved to be seasons of great refreshing. Rev. M. P. Moore and his good people have done a grand work on this charge. They are nearing the completion of a beautiful concrete edifice, which will be a credit to any conference. Bro. Moore and his people recently held quite a successful rally, in which they succeeded with splendid results. Mrs. Fannie Skandrick, a stewardess and leader, is a prime factor in the work of the upbuilding of the church. The pastor says her work as a leader is inestimable. Much credit is due to this beloved pastor and people for the splendid way in which they provided for the convention.

R. R. O'NEAL, President.
G. H. LENNOX, Reporter.

DALLAS DISTRICT.

To Each S. S. Superintendent of the Dallas District: Each Sunday School is assessed $1.25 for general expenses. Dear Superintendents, will you see to it that the same is raised and forwarded to the District Sunday School Treasurer, Mrs. Alice Green, 527 E. Main Street, Waxahachie, Tex. See to it that this amount is raised not later than July 9, if possible. But, failing in this, send general expenses to the Conference July 17, Pilot Point, Tex., by your delegate. Superintendents, this depends entirely upon your promptness and faithfulness. It is impossible for me to make my official visits, which I regret, so do your best in this cause. H. W. HATTEN, District Superintendent.

LITTLE ROCK CONFERENCE.

The ministers of the Little Rock Conference will please notify us of the number of delegates coming to the District Conference, to be held at this place, in order that we may secure homes for their entertainment. Already we are making extensive preparations to that effect. The A. M. E. and Baptist churches are co-operating with us for the comfort of our friends. I also hope that each church official will notify me personally of his coming. WM. WHITE, Pastor.

Newport, Ark.

PINE BLUFF DISTRICT.

Brothers: Collect $1.00 from your charges and send to Mrs. Nasmyth at Little Rock, Ark. The Woman's Home Missionary Society will meet at Cotton Plant July 20. Do this at once. The District Conference will meet at Luna, Ark., Aug. 17-27. Let every pastor come, also district stewards and class-leaders, with written reports. Begin your preparations now for District Conference. Collect your missionary money and send it in. Dr. Logan will be with us. Be prepared to turn over to him all that you have not sent to New York, and remember our duty to Philander Smith. Collect all your F. S. E. and send to Dr. Cox. The boys' dormitory must be completed. We are crowded there. Let us stand by this school. The brethren that failed to report at convention come prepared to do so at District Conference. Push the work. I am yours truly,

S. MCDONALD, P. E.

WEST VIRGINIA.

BUCKHANNON.—After many years of labor and trials, the colored people of Simpson's M. E. Church, succeeded by the generous aid of their many white friends, in erecting a beautiful brick church 38 feet by 42 feet, which is said by all to be the finest little church in all Buckhannon. This new church was opened for service Sunday, June 25, 1905. The services were enjoyed by all present. The inspiration received from the service conducted by Rev. D. H. K. Dix, was the mainspring of all the services of the day. The sermon by Rev. S. D. Tamblyn, at 10:30, inspired the hearts of the people, as he so beautifully and eloquently urged them to "strive to excel." The sermons by Rev. G. W. W. Jenkins, of Parkersburg, W. Va., at 3 o'clock and 8 o'clock, were wonderfully inspiring. Rev. Jenkins was the man for the occasion and his many newly made friends and well-wishers cordially invite him back to Buckhannon's lofty heights. The choir rendered excellent music at all the services. The pastor and members wish to thank all who contributed money to eliminate the debt on the new church. Cash received amounted to $102.11 and the subscriptions amounted to $149.55. We hope in the near future to raise $1,000 and dedicate our beautiful church free of debt." Rev. Rutherford R. Robinson, pastor. Rev. L. W. Briggs, P. E.

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Covington, B. R. Jackson, Pastor—Our first quarterly conference was held on April 21 by Rev. J. F. Marshall, all reports showing well. The presiding elder preached and a glorious time was had. Three came up for prayer, two backsliders reclaimed and one old sinner, about 70 years old, was happily converted.

Campti, E. H. Clark, Pastor—The first quarterly conference of St. Paul and Mt. Zion M. E. Churches was held April 7th, with Rev. H. Daniels. The reports were good and his lecture was timely. At 11 a. m. at Mt. Zion, and 8 p. m. at St. Paul, the memorial service of Rev. A. H. Banks was held. Revs. Geo. Thomas, Dorsey of the Baptist Church, and the local preachers assisted in the service. We paid him $20 that was due.

Washington, G. Nash—Memorial services in honor of the late Rev. S. Duncan were held in St. Mark M. E. Church, May 28. Song, "Nearer My God to Thee;" scripture lesson by Rev. S. Green; papers: "His Life As a Christian Minister," Prof. S. A. Gray; "His Life of Faithfulness," S. Strode; "His Purity and Cleanliness," Wm. Cooper; "Reality of Religion," G. Nash. Closing remarks and advice to the young people by Rev. S. Green.

THIS TESTIMONY

WILL SURELY INTEREST MANY READERS OF THIS PAPER.

James G. Gray, Gibson, Mo., writes about Drake's Palmetto Wine as follows: "I live in the Missouri Swamps in Dunklin County and have been sick with Malarial fever and for fifteen months a walking skeleton. One bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine has done me more good than all the medicines I have taken in that fifteen months. I am buying two more bottles to stay cured. Drake's Palmetto Wine is the best medicine and tonic for Malaria, Kidney and Liver ailments I ever used or heard of. I feel well now after using one bottle."

A. A. Felding, Knoxville, Tenn., writes: "I had a bad case of sour Stomach and Indigestion. I could eat so little that I was 'falling to bones' and could not sleep nor attend to my business. I used the test bottle and two large seventy-five cent bottles, and can truthfully say I am entirely cured. I have advised many to write for a free test bottle."

J. W. Moore, Monticello, Minn., makes the following statement about himself and a neighbor. He says: "Four bottles of Drake's Palmetto Wine has cured me of Catarrh of Bladder and Kidney Trouble. I suffered ten years and spent hundreds of dollars with best doctors and specialists without benefit. Drake's Palmetto Wine has made me a well man. A young woman here was given up to die by a Minneapolis specialist, and he and our local doctor said they could do no more for her. She has been taking Drake's Palmetto Wine one week and is rapidly recovering."

The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., will send a test bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine free and prepaid to any reader of this paper. A letter or postal card is your only expense to get his free bottle.

REV. C. P. HEAD.

Rev. C. P. Head, one of the oldest and most influential members of our church at Edwards, Miss., died June 24, 1905, in full triumph of faith. He said he was at peace with God and was willing and ready to go. He was a member of the Upper Mississippi Conference and as a preacher ranked high among his brethren. He filled many of the important charges of our church in the state before the conference divided and when the Mississippi Conference was divided he was placed with the Upper Mississippi Conference and served one term as presiding elder. His last year as pastor was crowned with great success. He was granted the superannuate relation at his own request. Brother Head remained at his comfortable home with his loving wife four years and died at the age of 77 years and 6 months. His funeral was largely attended and was conducted by Rev. J. W. Parks and the pastor, J. A. Patterson. His remains were laid to rest by his fraternal brethren of the Free Masons. He leaves a loving wife, son, two daughters and a host of friends. "Servant of God well done."

JACKSON.—At Pelahatchie, Miss., June 5, 1905, the Rev. J. J. Jackson, aged 66 years, a local deacon of the Pelahatchie Circuit, fell asleep in Christ after seven months illness. He was a faithful member and preacher, much beloved by both colored and white. His death was not a surprise but a great loss to the church and the community. He was a Christian man, and lived as such. As a preacher he was above the average. He was a good father. Bro. Jackson had traveled over the circuit, as the various pastors and the whole people respected him, both for his honesty and Christian zeal. He was ordained a deacon at Crystal Springs and served well all appointments. Mt. Pleasant M. E. Church has lost a good and faithful man. He leaves two sons, three daughters and a number of grandchildren. All of his children are members of the church, except one. Funeral was largely attended by the white people and the members of the circuit; the pastor being absent, he was laid to rest by the Masonic Fraternity.

S. JOSSEL, Pastor.

On Thursday, June 15, 1905, Wendell Philip Clark departed this life. He was a young man of great promise; secretary of the First Street M. E Sabbath School, of which church his parents are worthy members. The funeral was largely attended. Brief addresses were made by Revs. F. T. Chinn, V. Chapman, J. A. Tircuit, the pastor, Mrs. O. A. Gould and F. B. Smith. His dying testimony was read by Mr. R. Vining.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Sabbath School:

"Whereas, It has pleased the Heavenly Father to take from among our Sunday school workers our dear secretary, Wendell P. Clark, be it resolved, that "We, the officers, teachers and scholars of First St. M. E. Sunday School, tender our heartfelt and deepest sympathy to the family in their hours of sadness.

"Be it further resolved, that we commend them to the Master who doeth all things well, and while they have lost one of the members of their family circle heaven has gained a precious soul.

"Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, also published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and spread on the minutes of the Sunday school."

BOOZE OR MEDICINE?

Which will you have? If a woman suffering from one of the delicate ailments peculiar to your sex it will be well for you to know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only remedy advertised for such maladies which is absolutely free from intoxicating liquors and all other harmful agents. The good you feel from its use is not the delusive exhileration from a tippling beverage, from which the system reacts into a worse condition than before. It may be a little slower in manifesting its bracing and invigorating action, but its benefits are none the less positive and, best of all, they are lasting. It's an honest medicine—not a beverage.

"I have been taking your medicine for the last three weeks and can say I am gaining strength," writes Mrs. Seneth Kinny, of 605 East Madison Street, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. "I have been having very poor health all winter. I doctored with our family doctor but was relieved only while taking the medicine. I took Dr. Pierce's medicine several years ago. I knew it was good for any one suffering with female trouble. Have taken only one bottle and am gaining strength very fast. I could not eat nor sleep when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription.' Heart troubled me and I had cold and numb spells till my heart would almost stop beating. Have had one child since first taking your medicine. If I continue with your treatment am positive I will be cured."

Every suffering woman in this land should write to Dr. Pierce and learn how certainly he can help her to health and strength. It costs nothing to write and receive entirely free the advice of one of the most experienced physicians in this country. His great thousand-page book the Common Sense Medical Adviser, in stiff paper covers, will be sent free for 21 one-cent stamps the bare cost of mailing; or, send 31 stamps for cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Pierce's Pellets These ORIGINAL Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce over 40 years ago, have been much imitated but never equaled. They're made of purely vegetable, concentrated and refined medicinal principles, extracted from native American roots and plants. They speedily relieve and cure foul, torpid and deranged Stomachs, Livers and Bowels and their attendant distressful ailments. One or two a laxative, three or four a cathartic.

Don't allow the dealer to insult your intelligence by offering his own remedy to you instead of this well-known preparation of Dr. Pierce.

EASTER REPORTS.

(These delayed reports have been received within the last few days.)

Pine Bluff, Ark.—Easter Sunday was joyfully observed at Liberty M. E. Church. Nine persons contributed from $1.00 to $1.50 each, a number of others contributing 25 and 50 cents, making the total collection $25.95. Rev. W. H. Higgins, pastor.

DeSoto, Miss.—An enjoyable Easter program was rendered under the efficient leadership of Mrs. M. A. Howard. Rev. C. W. Washington, pastor. Collection, $3.50.

Tabbville, Miss.—The Easter exercises at this point were of an interesting nature and largely attended. Mr. R. Porter, superintendent.

Richmond, Tex.—Easter Sunday was observed. Prof. J. S. Sidney conducted a very creditable program. Excellent music by Miss B. James. Raised for missions, $4.40. L. L. Graham, pastor.

Newton, Miss.—The rendition of the Easter program greatly delighted the large audience. Mrs. B. E. Franklin, Laurel, Miss., presided at the organ. Collected during the day $44.00. Rev. W. H. Smith, pastor.

UNITED FOR LIFE.

HOLDEN-ADDISON.—At St. Paul M. E. Church, Jefferson, Tex., on June 25, 1905, occurred a very pretty wedding—that of Rev. E. H. Holden and Miss Marie E. Addison, by Rev. M. C. Gillespice.

PHILLIPE-ROBINSON.—At the M. E. Church of Pickens, Miss., June 14, 1905, by Rev. O. W. Crump, Mr. Samuel K. Philippe to Miss S. C. Robinson, a teacher in our public schools.

RANDOLPH-RAMSEY.—On Wednesday evening, June 7, 1905, a very beautiful wedding occurred at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Ramsey, of Houston, Tex. Miss Gertrude Mae, their only daughter, was the bride, and Prof. J. B. Randolph, of Pass Christian, Miss., instructor of Greek and Latin, Wiley University, Marshall, Tex., was the groom. Madame Rochon Chandler, a popular and talented pianist, accompanied Mrs. Phil Herbert, an accomplished vocalist, in that beautiful song of Mascheroni, "Till Death." Miss R. M. Bailey, assistant instructor of music at Wiley University, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered the parlor. Dr. W. H. Logan, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church; Dr. M. W. Dogan, president of Wiley University, and Dr. J. J. Blackshear performed the ceremony. The groom's brother, Mr. O. M. Randolph, of Washington, D. C., was best man; receivers, Misses Nina Williams, Mattie Bell Brown, Anita Bell and Magnolia Johnson. Groomsmen and bridesmaids, Dr. P. W. Watts and Miss Salome Pratt; Mr. Charles B. Johnson of Victoria, Tex., and Miss Euretta Fairchild; Miss Revoydie Adams, of Shreveport, preceded the bride. The home was beautifully decorated. Music was furnished at intervals by Clark's orchestra during the evening.

Miss Gertie is the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Ramsey. She is an accomplished pianist, having studied in Chicago and at Wiley University, where she graduated with honor.

Prof. Randolph is a leading educator and a young man of considerable ability, a college graduate of the New Orleans University, from which school he holds two degrees. For the past three years he has been in charge of the department of Greek and Latin in Wiley University. He is also director of the choir of that institution. He is an expert stenographer and music is his fad.

Literary Notes

From the standpoint of fashion the August Delineator is a most attractive number. Articles on "Old-Fashioned Timepieces," and "Old-Time Summer Resorts," and on Martin Luther's famous hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

Crescent City Notes

At Mallalieu Chapel, on Wednesday night, a glorious love feast was held, Rev. J. F. Marshall presiding. Revs. V. Chapman, John McKee, Joseph Jones, J. A. Lindsay, W. Scott Chinn, B. F. Branch, and representatives from Simpson Chapel and other churches were present. Paid the presiding elder up to date, $29.10, balance due him $2.90, which the pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright, says will be paid before the date of District Conference, July 26.

At Pleasant Plains Church, Sunday, July 2nd, the excellent services held throughout the day were attended by large congregations. The pastor, Rev. William Harrell, preached a splendid sermon at night. Collection, $8.00.

On last Sabbath, the Sunday school service of Haven Chapel, Rev. J. McKee pastor, was well attended, also the speaking meeting at 11 a. m. Sunday evening the Sacrament was administered to a large number of communicants. Collection, $28.51.

Doings of the Workmen

OKLAHOMA.

GUTHRIE.—D. Coburn, Pastor.—My first quarterly conference was held at Boly, I. T., May 20-21. The elder preached two good sermons and administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper to 45 communicants. Collection, $29.11.

TENNESSEE.

CUMBERLAND FURNACE.—J. R. Reasonover, Pastor.—Some days ago Rev. E. R. Gravelly, one of our missionaries from Africa, visited my charge and preached two wonderful sermons; also delivered several lectures. Rev. Gravelly is a fine lecturer and a good preacher. We gave him about $15 to help him in his medical course, after the completion of which he hopes to return to Africa and there aid suffering humanity. Bro. Gravelly has the sympathy of my people, and may God help him in his great undertaking.

VIRGINIA.

GATE CITY.—A. Davis.—Our third quarterly meeting was held at Gate City May 27-28. Presiding Elder R. A. Swan presided, with his usual care and dignity. Reports from all the work indicated the same to be advancing along all lines. Our Sunday school at Big Stone Gap, under the superintendency of Mrs. M. E. Martin, is the banner school of the district. Raised for all purposes this quarter, $189.08. The pastor reported two good Sunday schools and one Epworth League in good working condition. The elder's sermons on Sunday were a treat. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to 36 communicants. Collections for the day, $15.60.

NEW RIVER.—J. M. Watson, Pastor.—The club rally for pastor on June 18 was a success. At 11 a. m. Rev. A. I. Weems preached the funeral sermon of Rev. Mills Black, who died in full triumph of faith some months ago, preaching again at 8 p. m. At 8 p. m. Rev. A. W. Randolph preached, to the delight of all. Club No. 1, Mrs. Walter Trigg, Bros. Jno. Brown and W. H. Minter, raised $27.91; Club No. 2, Bro. R. C. Austin, Miss Susie O. Crockette and Mrs. Hugh Crockette, raised $32.09; raised for Rev. Weems, $5.22; total, $65.22.

OHIO.

TROY.—T. R. Fletcher, Pastor.—Our June rally was a success. Club No. 1, T. C. Arnold and Dicey L. Jones, leaders, raised $44.80; No. 2, Eugene Jones and Louwanie E. Farmer, raised $35; No. 3, William Ross and Amanda Ellett, raised $6. Total raised, $85.50.

ARKANSAS.

BATESVILLE.—W. H. Simpson, Pastor.—Our second quarterly Conference was quite a success. Rev. W. S. Sherrill, P. E., preached two great sermons on Sunday to a crowded house. We paid him in full. Raised for all purposes this quarter, $141. We have put in electric lights and built a new tower, which adds beauty and comfort to our church. We are trying to put the Southwestern in every home.

COTTON PLANT.—G. W. Johnson, Pastor.—Presiding Elder B. J. Griffin held our second quarterly conference May 20-21, and preached during his stay two able sermons. Three persons joined the church, making thirteen accessions during the quarter. Paid elder in full, $17.60; pastor, $79.80; raised for benevolence, $53; parsonage repairs, $250; for the poor, $3; total, $402.80.

PINE BLUFF.—W. H. Higgins, Pastor.—Our presiding elder, Rev. S. McDonald, was with us the first Sunday in April and preached a wonderful sermon that gladdened all hearts. Our work is in fair shape.

POINDEXTER.—T. Vanzant.—C. A. Taylor, our pastor, was with us June 18, looking after every interest of his church. He preached two sermons. Collections, $4.66, and one annual subscriber for the Southwestern.

GEORGIA.

GRIFFIN.—On Sunday, June 18, we had with us Dr. I. L. Thomas, D. D., field agent of the Board of Church Extension. At 11 a. m. he preached from the 24th Psalms, and all went away rejoicing. At 3 p. m. Dr. Thomas conducted an experience meeting, at the close of which we baptized several persons. Dr. Thomas will be with us again the fifth Sunday night in July in the interest of our church extension claims.

NEW ORLEANS, JULY 20, 1905

Vol. 39 No. 29

Garrett Biblical Institute

Editorial

The sheriff at Gadsden, Ala., has given an example of the protection of Negro prisoners against the mob. Five Negroes were arrested and jailed on a charge of murder and a mob gathered to lynch them, but the sheriff's prompt action in requesting State troops, as well as his firm hand in the situation prevents lynching and guarantees the prisoners a fair trial before the jury.

Capt. Robert E. Peary is to make another trip in search of the North Pole. He is to make the trip in a ship especially constructed for the Arctic region, which is named "The Roosevelt." In 1890 Abruzzi reached the 86.33 latitude, which is 241 miles from the Pole. If Captain Peary makes a successful trip and finds the Pole he will not only immortalize his name, but open a field for new scientific investigation.

The separate street-car law works an annoyance and an inconvenience wherever operated. Perhaps there is no more interesting case than that to be found at Bristol, Tenn. It will be remembered that this town occupies territory both in Virginia and Tennessee, the state line being in the middle of one of the principal streets. On this street is laid one of the street-car tracks, which puts half of the car in Tennessee and the other half in Virginia. There being no separate street-car law in Virginia, it is only necessary for the Negroes to take a single step and pass over to the Virginia side and thus avoid the separate car law.

General William J. Blackmar, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, died rather unexpectedly at Boise, Idaho, July 16. The General was on a tour visiting the Grand Army posts in the Northwest. He was elected Commander-in-Chief at the last National Encampment. Gen. Blackmar was born July 25, 1841, at Bristol, Pa. He enlisted in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry and subsequently joined the First West Virginia. He served with distinction throughout the war and at Five Forks was promoted on the field by Gen. Custer to the rank of captain. Throughout three administrations, those of Govs. Long, Talbott and Rice, he was Judge Advocate General of Massachusetts.

We are in the midst of the hot mid-summer days and deaths from heat prostration are reported to have occurred in most of the large cities of the North. The maximum temperature for Monday is given for several cities: Philadelphia 96, Chicago 94, Cincinnati 94, New York 94, Detroit 94, Washington 93, St. Louis 92, Pittsburg 92, Boston 90. The maximum temperature for Uew Orleans for the same day was 80 and the minimum 76. At the same time we had a precipitation of .53. While the cities of the North have reported prostrations and deaths from insufferable heat, not a single case has been reported in New Orleans. We are favored with a cool breeze from the Mississippi river and Lake Pontchartrain and almost daily a shower of rain. For these reasons the heat is not as intense here as at the North.

"CHRISTIAN FRATERNITY"

Christianity is essentially a brotherhood. A fellowship that discountenances race, section and condition. It is a fellowship in Christ Jesus that is at once brotherly and helpful. Christianity does not mean segregation, but congregation. Why should not there be a fellowship of all the saints of God?—and there would be fellowship if all were saints. A church that is tagged, North or South, white or black, say what we will or may about it, does not reflect the full purpose of the Gospel that knows neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free, male nor female, "for all are one in Christ Jesus." Why should there not be a federation of all the churches? There could be if men would drop their petty prejudices and accept the true spirit of the Gospel. Why should we have a distinct white federation any more than we should have a black federation? Unless the latter, perhaps, is such by forced circumstances.

Rev. Dr. H. S. Bradley, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Atlanta, Ga., delivered recently a notable sermon on "Christian Fraternity." Among other things he said:

"The editor of one of our leading magazines, himself one of the greatest preachers of modern times, recently wrote: 'The fundamental message of Christianity is this: that there is a real quality in men because a real life in all, and men are worth working for and worth fighting for.' There is no man in all this world who is not worth working for, since Christ has worked for all; no man in all this world who is not worth dying for, since Christ has died for us all. No longer can we draw a line and put on one side men like the Negro, and say, they are not worth it, and on the other side an Anglo-Saxon race and say, they are not worth it. All men are men; all men are God's children. To live, to suffer, to serve, to die for the feeblest, the poorest, the most ignorant, the most unworthy, is to die, to live, to suffer, to serve one that has in himself the undeveloped germs of infinite worth."

This strikes us as the essence of the Gospel.

It is, of course, understood that the social question is one that is the cause of much annoyance and concerning which there is all too much sensitiveness. Dr. Bradley very appropriately and strikingly remarks on this point:

"This social caste that has grown up among us has led many of us to believe that somehow because we happened, without any choice or any merit of our own, to be born with a white skin the Lord loves us better and thinks a little more of us than he does anybody with a darker skin.

"But I want to say to you that the man who does not admit and live up to the fraternity of the Negro—yes, the fraternity, that is the word—whatever else he may be he is not a Christian.

"I am not afraid of race equality, and I'll tell you my opinion of the man who is. It is this, that his social status must be very, very insecure that he should be so infinitely solicitous about safeguarding it."

It seems as tho there is extreme apprehension when it comes to fellowship with the American Negro. Indeed, the sensitiveness is becoming acute. Before the war Negroes were seated in the same church with white people and administered to by the same pastor. It is true that very generally the Negroes occupied the galleries in the churches, where there were galleries; nevertheless they worshiped in the same church. But it has come to pass in recent days that a certain denomination in a certain large city has work among both the white and colored. Recently the colored congregation bought a building diagonally across the street from the white congregation and their white brothers of the same connection set up a wail of woe and of objection. What a travesty on Christian fellowship! What a mockery on Christian brotherhood! There are very few barrooms where Negroes and whites do not drink together. There is a good deal of mixing in the lower elements, but when it comes to real Christian fellowship then the lines are very often drawn.

People who do missionary work among the Hottentots in Africa are received and honored when they return to this country, but people who dare to do missionary work among the Negroes of the South are ostracised. There was a time when Generals Lee and Jackson taught in a Negro Sunday school at Lexington, Va., but the feeling is now so strong that except in rare cases Southern white people do not dare do missionary work among the needy Negroes at their own doors. Dr. Bradley, in the course of his remarkable address on this point, makes the following pertinent statement:

"Hundreds of our young men and women who have volunteered to go as missionaries to the foreign field, where they have to labor with people every whit as ignorant and sinful as our Southern blacks would shrink from doing the same service for the Negro at home. Miss Laura Haygood once told a Young Women's Missionary Society of the church of which I am pastor that unless they were willing to go into a hovel at home and nurse back to health a sick Negro they should not go as missionaries to China. Said she: 'The Gospel of Jesus Christ is a good news of brotherhood and sisterhood and you should begin illustrating it at home.'"

Statistics may not always be reliable; they at times, however, furnish a source of interesting study. Great Britain has an income tax, and statistics that reveal the individual wealth have recently been given out. In a population of 42,000,000 in Great Britain and reland only 433,017 persons have an income of $800.00, while of this number, according to the income tax, 133,462 have an income of less than $1,000 per year. There are only twenty persons in all of Great Britain with an income exceeding $250,000, and of this twenty, one is an Irishman. There are 200 Britains with an income of from $50,000 to $250,000, while 428 pay taxes on incomes from $25,000 to $50,000. These statistics may not be absolutely correct, but they show that a majority of the people of Great Britain—and this is true in all other countries—are very moderate livers. Nor do millionaires seem to be very plentiful in Great Britain. In this matter Great Britain is far behind America, for 'tis said that on a single street in Colorado Sprlngs, Col., there are quite fifty millionaires.

Love God With the Mind

By Bishop H. W. Warren

In our constant effort at analysis we are wont to consider love as a function of the affections, and this assignment of love to the reasoning faculties seems incongruous. But long before man employed his powers of dissection on himself the Bible recognized the true trichotomy. There is eminent propriety in the injunction to love God with all the mind.

The Lord quoted that early injunction of Deut. 6:5 to love the Lord with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might to the scribe seeking light, and when he answered that men were to love God with the understanding, the Lord told him that he was not far from the kingdom of God. So in the exquisite summary of the things that love does in I. Cor. 13, it is said that love thinketh no evil. The same word is used as in Rom. 2:3, "And thinkest thou, O man, to escape the judgment of God?" Also in Phil. 4:8, "Think on these things."

The fact that men are commanded to love shows that its exercise is within the control of the will, and all know that the action of the will is, or should be, based upon intelligence. The whole composite nature of man is not made up of separate faculties, each independent of all the rest, but is a composite whole, each faculty or function intimately related to all the rest, like a complicated machine, where any wheel or even a cog missing deranges everything. The commandment, then, is to bring every faculty into its legitimate play in order to love God with extreme intensity.

What part does the mind play? Intelligent love depends much on knowledge. A German might bestow a passing glance on the blue cornflower by the dusty roadside, but when he is informed that it is the favorite flower of his emperor, he transplants it to his garden, his buttonhole, and his heart. A man may regard with decent complacency his country; but when he studies the principles of its constitution, learns that the rights of men are embodied therein as nowhere else outside the Bible, sees millions escape from the oppressions of the old world to the freedom of the new, goes to Bunker Hill, Valley Forge, Yorktown, and Appomattox and sees where men have died for God and native land—nay, when he enlists in its armies of war or peace, endures hardness as a good soldier and is ready to lay down his life for his country, then he knows how every faculty can combine to make his love intense.

John Fiske, in his "Through Nature To God," takes one out into a June field of daisies in the dewy hour of sunrise, the luxuriant splendor of the moontide, or the pensive time when the long shadows are thrown eastward, or the solemn hour of night, for him to find his way to God. "One's thought is carried back for the moment to that morning of the world when God looked upon His work and saw that it was good." Thus perception, reasoning, seeing, means adapted to ends, realizing that Providence is as constant and careful as our needs, feed love and make it grow to that intelligent intensity expressed by all our "Might."

No one supposes that domestic love comes to its best development by being left alone as if it had an infinity of affluence in itself. It is fed by sunrises of brightening eyes, tender touches, surprises of thoughtfulness, and thoughts for making fit return. Love is ever heightened by thoughts of the mind toward the one beloved, and especially by deeds done for the beloved. We often miss the true mental connection of two phrases of our Lord's last utterances—"He that hath My commandments and keepeth them will"—consequently—"love Me and be loved of My Father." I always had a great respect for the exegesis of Rom. 13:10, by an old saint—"Love is the fulfilling of the law." He put this seeming predicate for the subject and said, "The fulfilling of the law of love;" i.e., results in love. He may have gotten his hint from Chrysostom: "Thus then (by keeping commandments) shall we love one another and then Him who has most loved us, that is, God."

Here, then, is a remedy for a state of Christian experience greatly to be deplored. Hymns and testimonies are too full of the expression of a too languid love.

"Lord, it is my chief complaint
That my love is weak and faint,
Oh, where is now that glowing love
That marked our union with the Lord!"

The way out of this delicate state is the use of all the appropriate faculties for heightening love. First of all, is the doing of things for love's sake. That is why the young of the human race are, of all the young of living creatures, the most helpless. A two-hours-old chicken can take care of itself if it can have warmth. But, since love is the crowning excellency of the human race, the circumstances of life are arranged to develop it. The long and many helpless years of childhood are for that end. Action works both ways—it both expresses and develops love. Love of "our nation" expressed itself in building a synagogue and made the man worthy to ask of the Lord His highest gift. If all service of God be done from love, then are we children and not servants.

It is easy to see how some systems of thought might hinder love. Any system that puts God's agency far off through unnumbered eons would greatly diminish love. On the contrary, any view of God that says "He thinketh of me, I am an embodied want, he an infinite and immediate supply," would bring us at once into the presence of the beloved. Nay, it would glorify all earthly things on which we thought, like Browning's "Garden Fancies," where the lover walked and felt that the lady who "walked across, arm in my arm," had given an aroma and soul to every flower it never had before. "June's twice June since she breathed it with me."—In Northwestern Advocate.

A Little Story of Self-Help

By Miss Hattie E. Emerson

An occasional review is helpful in most of the affairs of life. Between the milestones of past years we find incidents that offer suggestions profitable for the present hour, with here and there an experience memorable for the hope and encouragement it brought when we were ready to faint by the way.

In the early days of the Woman's Home Missionary Society a tiny seed of the work was planted in one of the small conferences, located on Mission ground. The story of its growth taken at random from reports and statistics is very short and may possibly invite the criticism of those who see only the printed record of achievement. The unwritten story of sacrifice and effort may be read between the lines by those who know the local conditions and surroundings.

Reading recently the brief notice of the death of Mrs. Fanny Savalle, of St. Augustine, Fla., for many years the treasurer of the Woman's Home Missionary Society auxiliary, I recalled the interest so often expressed in her letters for this "grand work of the church." Death has claimed many who gave cheerfully of their time and of their earnings to help the work, and still a loyal little company remain. For their help and encouragement and as a possible incentive to increased interest and effort on the part of the younger women, their successors, this brief glance backward over the published records of th Florida Conference Woman's Home Missionary Society is offered.

In the third annual report of the society, 1883-84, is found a three-line item from Florida secretary and treasurer, Mrs. S. B. Darnell. The first dollar membership was paid by Mrs. W. J. Salmond, of precious memory, who was afterward the conference treasurer for eleven years. This society was organized in 1884 by Mrs. J. L. Whetstone and Mrs. Wm. Runyan, of Ohio, at a very enthusiastic meeting held in Jacksonville, when Mrs. S. B. Darnell was made the first life member of the conference. With this official report to the general treasury of $37.21 begins a varying but unbroken record since that time.

Thirty-five charges have been enrolled, nine of them averaging but $1.50 for the entire period, and nine others average but $5 for the same. This is enough to say of them, except the admission that with better instruction and leadership they might have done more. The next four auxiliaries average $15.50 for the twenty years. Among these Key West is an exception, as they contributed generously in proportion to their ability, in the support of the school conducted by Mrs. S. A. Daley during the five years of her work there. A creditable amount of other local work never officially recorded would largely increase the financial report of woman's work in the conference. Six charges follow with an average of $45 sent to general treasury.

In this list Free Canaan and West Jacksonville are among the new auxiliaries with a record of less than five years, and both show what earnest young women can do when interested. To Miss Carrie Cooper and Miss Jessie Bailey belong much credit for the $40 sent from each of these small country charges.

On the honor roll is Wrightsville auxiliary, where a little band of praying souls, only a few of whom could read in the early days, have cheerfully contributed $122, with $5 from the children's band additional. The story of these dollars if it could be written would preach a genuine missionary sermon. The faithful few in Waldo, the home of the Conference president, Mrs. Annie Jenkens, deserve mention, and their offering of $75 represents labor and sacrifice.

St. Augustine has a room named in both Boylan and Emerson Homes, and stands second on the list of auxiliaries, credited with $267.20.

Ebenezer, the pioneer church, leads the list, with a record of $382.13 contributed, to which should be added the amount raised by Ebenezer Band, which flourished from 1885 to 1889. The young people named a room for Mrs. J. L. Whetstone in Boylan, and are credited with $141.75. At this time Cookman and other bands, not including those in the Industrial Homes, gave $214.04. More should be done by the young people now in consideration of this past record.

Boylan and Emerson Homes have by careful instruction and special effort influenced many dollars in thank-offering. The Ocala Church band, and the Emerson Home Circle have contributed $153.37. Boyland Band and Circle have given $196.58, and from entertainments and card collections have secured $650 for the Home improvements. Of this amount $100 is designated local work and is not officially credited. The total returns from the Conference annual reports are as follows: Auxiliaries, $1,222.27; Bands or Young People, $1,048.38; special and Conference collections, $663.38; other sources, $267.85; annual report 1893, with no special credits, $1,741.90, making a grand total of $4,943.78. This is commendable as an earnest attempt at self-help, while not large enough to admit of vain-glory on the part of the workers.

Remembering always the beneficent work this great organization has established and maintained within the bounds of the Florida Conference and the great expenditure of time and money the work has involved, it becomes the duty of every member to promote its interests in every way possible. Those whose lives have felt the inspiration of the homes and schools planted in their midst should feel the obligation of Christian womanhood upon their hearts and with good will do service for a cause so great in any way they can.

"He who helps another strengthens more than one," and in the record of the past there is encouragement for the workers of to-day.

Delaware Conference Letter

By Rev. F. H. Butler

At the Frankford, Philadelphia, Church, the Rev. T. M. Hubbard is in his tenth year as pastor, and on a recent Sunday raised over three hundred dollars on the church indebtedness. Brother Hubbard is one of those men who knows how to do things. He has a remarkable influence among his people that seems to increase as the years go by.

The Rev. A. L. Martin is still earnestly at work on the new church at Cambridge, Md. This church when completed will be the cathedral of the Eastern Shore peninsula. Brother Martin has the confidence of the entire community in and around Cambridge. Mr. Andrew Carnegie is one of the largest contributors to the enterprise.

Mother Zoar enters upon a year of expectant success under Dr. W. F. Cotton. A fine pastor's reception was given recently, which was representative in every particular. The leading clergy of the city paid glowing tributes to the newly appointed pastor, including Dr. Reeves, of the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Fickland, of the A. M. E. Church; Dr. Credit, of the Baptist Church, and Dr. McGuire, of the Episcopal Church.

Ezion Church in Wilmington enters upon the year of her centennial. For a century she has been contributing to the religious life of Wilmington and vicinity. She is a veritable Gibraltar of Methodism, and her influence has been widespread throughout our Conference territory. Brother J. E. A. Johns enters upon the work of the pastorate here under promising circumstances. A great debt-paying rally is on foot for the month of October. Pastor and people are anxious to pay off the mortgage, and are working out an excellent system to bring this about.

The Rev. H. T. Johnson is arranging to build a new church at Eastnewmarket, Md. The congregation here is very much in need of a suitable house of worship. The edifice will be erected according to one of the Church Extension plans.

The Rev. A. L. Henry still maintains his reputation as the prince of financiers. Not only has he paid every cent of indebtedness on the church at Easton, Md., but he has renovated both church and parsonage and built a fine summer tabernacle where his summer services are held, as well as entertainments and public meetings. Brother Henry's mind is a storehouse of unique plans for raising church funds. He has a remarkable influence among his people and gets any amount of money he aims for.

The Rev. J. W. Bond is doing a good work at Pomona, Md. Brother Bond deserves great credit for his stand against camp meetings and the good he has done in influencing the laymen in Kent county to abolish them.

Dr. J. W. E. Bowen has been in our territory recently. He addressed the graduating class at the Howard High School commencement in Wilmington, preached at Zoar Church, Philadelphia, and delivered the annual address to the Wilmington District Epworth League Convention at Middletown, Del.

Our new Presiding Elders are entering upon their work under auspicious circumstances. Grand receptions were tendered Drs. H. A. Monroe and J. R. Brown by the brethren of their respective districts. Dr. P. O'Connell is making an excellent impression on the Salisbury District. The work on the other two districts is moving along smoothly under the watchful eye and careful supervision of Drs. J. H. Nutter and N. W. Moore.

Street gamins forced an entrance into the St. John's M. E. Church at Newark, N. J., and broke seven of the stained glass windows, all the chandeliers and mutilated the piano and the Sunday School organ. Over seven hundred dollars' worth of damage was done. Brother Handy, the pastor, has recently renovated the church at a cost of three thousand dollars. The pastor and people have the sympathy of the Conference in this hour of misfortune.

The St. Mark's M. E. Church, at Montclair, N. J., is to be repaired at a cost of three thousand dollars. The church is to have new foundations and a basement, with modern improvements. These improvements are to be completed by September. A larger church edifice is much needed at this point to accommodate the ever-increasing congregation.

There will be less camp meetings on the peninsula this year than ever before. Many charges are realizing it doesn't pay. The interest in them seems to be on the wane. Many of the pastors have planned other ways to make ends meet.

The Rev. W. T. Hemsley, at Haven, Philadelphia, is planning to rebuild. Dr. S. S. Jolley has plans on foot to enlarge the church at Atlantic City. The Rev. W. J. Moore is completing one of the neatest and best planned churches in the Conference at Magnolia, N. J. Thus we are pushing Methodism to the front in this Northern territory.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society

By Mrs. H. M. Nasmyth

Before I leave the state for the summer, to travel in the North and East, in the interest of our work, it is but right that I should speak a word to presiding elders, pastors and friends of our Woman's Home Missionary Society and stir up your "pure minds" to do more active and willing service for this splendid and commendable work. I have been making out my annual report for our fiscal year and it stands as follows: Forrest City District, $6; Clow District, $7.50; Little Rock District, $24.50; Pine Bluff District, $29; Ft. Smith District, $59.60; money in mite boxes raised by girls in Adeline Smith Home, $45; money for Silver Anniversary, given by graduates of Adeline Smith Home, $10; total, $181.60.

It was the request of our Board of Managers that we raise this year $220, and you see that we still lack $38.40. That amount should be made up at once. If our five presiding elders would co-operate with pastors and people and raise $44 per year for each district, we would get the required amount. You will notice that Presiding Elder Langston's district leads all the rest with $59.60. This is the youngest district and too much praise cannot be given him for his earnest endeavor and unselfish devotion to the work so dear to us. We cannot but remember how he said to us before he held his district conference last August: "Mrs. Nasmyth, if you will come to us and represent your work for us at our District Conference, I shall take the collection myself and raise you $25." We took him at his word and the $25 were forthcoming and sent to our National Treasurer. May I not ask that each pastor will take a collection once each quarter for this noble and grand work. Think of the scores of girls our own Adeline Smith Home alone has educated either in part, or wholly so. To-day these girls are wives of clergymen, doctors, teachers, business men and farmers, others who remained single teach and sew, and all scatter the seed of a brighter, purer and holier home life among their peopl. We must not be forgetful of our obligations to this good Society, every one in the state are recipients of the blessings that come from this Society, and why should we not league ourselves together to promote its interest? Present its work in your churches and take up a collection and send to the treasurer in care of Adeline Smith Home, Little Rock, Ark., and she will get it. Let us show our friends in the North who have labored for us these 25 years, that we are grateful and have a desire to help ourselves.

You will notice that our girls in the Home raised $45 in mite boxes. These mites were gleaned from friends in Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois, Kansas and Indian Territory. When you see one of our girls approach you with a little mite box, hail it as a friend and drop therein a special gift for our work in recognition of God's great blessings to you. Let us all arise and labor with our might in the interest of this splendid work, and when the Lord of harvest comes, we will receive our reward.

Little Rock, Ark.

SMALL BEGINNINGS.

Many of the most serviceable and extensive enterprises in the land had very small beginnings. In numerous instances only one person, full of hope and zeal, started the work, and under very discouraging conditions; but he kept on, daily doing the best that he was capable of, and after a while he had the aid of others and the patronage of many, accompanied by most substantial results. An instance of this kind is seen in the ministry of Rev. Charles Wagner, of Paris, who recently visited this country. From an interview, as printed in a paper before me, I quote the following sentences: "When I first began to preach this plain gospel in Paris it was in a small hall. Very few people would come to hear me; the rich were not interested and stayed away; the poor came, but they did not continue. Only the young and a few others were interested; so I preached in the mission, largely to the children in those early years. Then the older people began to come in crowds, and they urged me to become their pastor; but I said: 'No, you are not serious enough yet. You are still too unsettled, and you would not remain. I will preach to the young.' I kept them off for two years, and then they came to me again and urged me very earnestly to become their pastor, and I consented. By this time they came in crowds to listen to the plain doctrine I set before them, the doctrine of Jesus Christ, with no dogmatic theology or denominationalism whatsoever." Since then, and for many years, Pastor Wagner has steadily conducted a work of great magnitude, resulting in a very large number of wholesome conversions, and other forms of vital usefulness. If he had been like a great many young ministers in our land he would have soon quit his mission on account of the discouraging features; but the small beginning did not smother his zeal. A small congregation, mostly children, did not quench his hope, nor cause him to abate his ardor for his Lord's sake. He kept looking to God, and not to mere audiences. He did not preach the gospel for the sake of pleasing either himself or men. His noble example should have many imitators.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

God Never Fails

The dearest things in this fair world must change;
  Thy senses hurry on to sure decay;
Thy strength will fail, the pain seem no more strange,
  While love more feebly cheers the misty way.
What then remains above the task of living?
  Is there no crown where that rude cross hath pressed?
Yes, God remains, his own high glory giving
  To light thy lonely path, to make it blest.

Yea, God remains, though suns are daily dying,
  A gracious God, who marks the sparrow's fall;
He listens while thy aching heart is sighing;
  He hears and answers when his children call;
His love shall fill the void when death assails,
The one, eternal God, who never fails.

—W. O. Partridge.

Pious ejaculations are not always an evidence of pity.

It is hard to believe that high society that goes half dressed are all clean.

"Charity begins at home." Certainly. But it reaches out, else it is not charity, but stinginess.

Since God keeps the worlds in their places and safe, and feeds the sparrows, we need not fear. "O ye of little faith."

The sermon that hits you, does it please you just as well as the one that does not?

The lark cannot soar as does the eagle, but sings sweeter. Among men it is not always the one who soars highest that sings sweetest.

"Inasmuch" is a door that swings both ways, in and out, gloryward and hellward, opening to eternal light or darkness. Read Matt. xxv. again.

"Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain." Some do in prayer. We need be careful. "For the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

"Many," "Few," "Strive," "Seek.' Have you closely considered these words in their settings? They are pregnant with meaning.

"Prayer is the highest form of Christian service."—E. S. Dunham, D. D.

With every Methodist on fire for God and hot on the trail of sinners, it would be a comparatively easy task to gain a million converts three times over.

Sometimes Christians do as mules, kick when there is no occasion to.

Most people are as indifferent to and unmindful of the voice of God to their souls as birds are to the messages passing over the wires on which they sit.

"We have a base, man-pleasing temper so that we let people perish rather than lose their love; we let them go quietly to hell lest we should offend them." Disc. page 104. The blood of such God will require at the hand of those who are guilty as here charged. Eze. III. plainly says so.

"That which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God." Sandwiched between the parable of the unjust steward and the account of Dives and his death we find this strong statement. There can be no mistaking its meaning. At least two things that are abomination in God's sight are business shrewdness, of which the unjust steward is an example, and riches, of which Dives is an example. Yet who believes it? When will we learn to esteem things as God does? In face of this men in the church as well as out of it will continue to esteem success by business shrewdness as the thing to be desired.

Simplicity and Purity

BY REV. JAMES MUDGE, D. D.

Simplicity and purity are the two wings with which man soars above earth, and all temporary nature. Simplicity is in the intention, purity is in the affection; simplicity turns to God, purity enjoys Him. No good action will be difficult and painful if thou art free from inordinate affection. And this internal freedom thou wilt enjoy when it is one simple intention of thy mind to obey the will of God, and do good to thy fellow creatures.

Thy desires must be wholly referred to Christ; and, instead of loving thyself, and following thine own partial views, thou must love only His will, and in resignation and obedience be zealous to fulfill it. When desire burns in thy heart, and urges thee on some pursuit, suspend its influence for a while, and consider whether it is kindled by the love of Christ's honor or thine own personal advantage. If he is the pure principle that gives it birth, thou mayest yield thyself to its impulse without fear; and, whatever He ordains, thou wilt enjoy the event in tranquillity and peace. But if it be self-seeking, hidden under the disguise of zeal for the Lord, this will produce obstruction, disappointment and distress. It is always necessary to resist the sensual appetite, and, by steady opposition, subdue its power; to regard not what the flesh likes or dislikes, but to labor to bring it, whether with or against its will, under subjection to the spirit. And it must be thus opposed, and thus compelled to absolute obedience, till it is ready to obey in all things, and has learned to be content in every condition; to accept of the most ordinary accommodations, and not to murmur at the greatest inconvenience.—From Honey from Many Hives.

Release

BY MABEL EARLE.

Out of myself, Lord!
  From the narrowing prison,
The grave-clothes bound on hand and foot and knee,
Up to that life and light where Thou art risen,
Call me, and set me free.

Out of myself, Lord!
  From the restless seeking,
The babel of earth's care and fret and loss,
Into the hush where love alone is speaking,—
The silence of the cross.

Out of myself, Lord!
  From life's tangled story,
The doubts unsolved, the fears unanswered still,
Into the clear white morning of thy glory,
The peace which is thy will.

Out of myself, Lord!
  What shall yet befall me
I ask no more; enough that thou art mine.
Turn but thy face, O Son of God! and call me
To lose my life in thine.

Step by Step

The one lesson we must not forget is this: We see only what we are fit to see, what we are near enough to see, and we can hear things only step by step, in orderly progression. Men cannot leap great gulfs at a single bound. The natural man need not seek to plunge at a moment into the profundities of Christian knowledge and experience; he should begin with the truth that lies closest to his experience, and which most concerns him. He cannot leap immediately from earth to heaven; but God has let down the ladder of the gospel, and he can rise upon the lower step to-day, upon the second step to-morrow; and thus, by learning more and more as knowledge comes, can reach at last the heaven perfect light and peace and joy. Wisdom is the wise; milk is the food ordained for babies. Selected.

One Day at a Time

We carry too often the burden that ne'er
Was meant for this day, nor the next, to bear.
How often we borrow the ills we deplore,
And shrink from the woes that ne'er darken our doo
Such worry's a sin; let's be quit of the crime,
By living one day, just one day, at a time.

A day at a time—that's enough, if we knew,
To spend all our strength on, and anxious though too.
Its tasks and its trials, its varied demands,
Are all we can handle with one pair of hands.
Each day fitly lived makes the record sublime;
God perfects us slowly—one day at a time.

Then let the to-morrows stand waiting, I say,
And deal with each one when its name is To-day.
The best preparation the future can ask
Is doing one's best with to-day and its task.
Life's highest and best, that's the peak we must clim
By faithfullest footsteps—one day at a time.

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text: Gen. 4:9.
Theme: Human Responsibility.

The law of human responsibility is as old humanity itself, and is as strong and as bindi as are all the laws of God.

The law of responsibility of man to God w the first one given man by the Creator in ever-memorable words of permission and pro bition: "Of every tree of the garden thou may freely eat. But of the tree of the knowledge good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it; for the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely di Human responsibility is clearly taught in t first commandment. The law of responsibili was in use and was powerfully wielded agai offenders before man was created. Jude, verse Where there is not capability, or power to d charge an obligation, there can be no punis ment, and where no punishment is inflicted neglecting to discharge an obligation, there is responsibility. The ambitious world has alwa claimed that it is not its brother's keeper, a that it is not in any way responsible for a other; no, not even so much as for its own co duct. Notwithstanding this proud taunt of t world, there is an invincible power exerted Providence that holds each man responsible the life he lives, and for the influence wielded him among his fellows. The sin of Adam still alive and at work after many thousa years in all nations of the earth. The peculi constitution and structure of society makes possible for one man to injuriously affect t whole general life of mankind forever. This l of solidarity is a benediction as well as a curs

Man is responsible to God as Creator, as R deemer, and as a gracious Saviour. Man responsible to other men as keeper, as teache as friend, and as a helper in all the walks noble life and holy living. When I think se ously over the past, and consider that all of ye terday is gone beyond recall, and that to-morro will never come, my heart is stirred within m while accepting the grave responsibility of t Lord's work, knowing that to-day only remai for me to discharge my duty to God, to huma ity, and to myself.

Responsibility is indeed serious and weigh but it is also a privilege, and it may becom joy and a blessing to all who enter into the spi of brotherly love and mutual helpfulness taught by our Lord Jesus Christ.

Greenville, S. C.

Alcorn A. & M. College Commencement

Natchitoches Public School

The closing exercises of the colored public school, on Friday, June 16, was a grand affair. The pupils performed their parts very creditably. One could readily see that the most thorough preparation had been made, the result of which made a most pleasing impression upon a large and appreciative audience.

Prof. J. W. Thomas, the principal, was highly complimented by both white and colored upon the excellent work that has been accomplished during his administration of the last four sessions.

The Colored High School of Washington, La

The Colored High School of Washington, La., gave its closing exercises Saturday night, July 8. An interesting program was rendered. One graduate went forth with honor, viz., Miss Josephine Walker; the young lady is a bright scholar and we predict for her a very successful future. Diploma delivered by Prof. F. C. Blundon. The large crowd was enthused. The school, tho in its infancy, is rapidly growing; conducted by Prof. S. A. Gray, principal.

The Peabody Summer Normal

The Peabody Summer Normal School for Colored Teachers, held in Alexandria, La., opened June 12, and, continuing twenty days, closed July 7. The faculty consisted of four: J. W. Hunter, A. B., conductor; H. W. McDonald, A. M.; R. F. Long, and Miss Hildred Williams. Ninety-four teachers from twenty-one different parishes of the State were in attendance. The interest manifested and the amount of work done during the session were very marked, surpassing any of previous years. Great interest in education is being aroused by the present state administration and the Negro's interest is being favorably considered in the program pursued.

In the hands of each teacher was a "Manual," giving in well-arranged outlines and details a lesson plan and course of study to be pursued in the normal. Teachers who attended the twenty days received certificates, certifying to their attendance and character of work done, and the holder is also entitled to special benefits and privileges granted by the State Board of Education. During the session the following distinguished persons visited and addressed the teachers: State Institute Conductor J. E. Keeny, State Superintendent J. B. Aswell, Dr. G. R. Glenn, president of Georgia Agricultural College; Dr. R. E. Jones, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; Prof. Jonas Henderson, A. M., principal of Howe Institute, New Iberia, and the following ministers and educators of Alexandria: Rev. Hoover, of the white Baptist Church; Rabbi Emile Ellinger, Ph. D.; Rev. P. W. Clark, Dr. Brown, and Prof. Wright, principal of Central Baptist High School.

The teachers in attendance placed themselves on record, favoring the organization of a State Teachers' Association. Delegates were elected —one from each parish represented—to meet in convention in Alexandria September 26, for the purpose of effecting a permanent State organization. Delegates from the Shreveport and Lake Providence Normals will be chosen accordingly and will meet in Alexandria next September.

The normal was one of the best ever assembled in the State. The closing exercises were held in Shiloh Baptist Church, Friday night, July 7, at the conclusion of which resolutions were read expressing thanks to the kind and hospitable people of Alexandria., Revs. Israel Thomas, P. W. Clark, H. B. N. Brown, Rev. Junson and Rev. Davis, and to the different speakers who addressed the normal

In all there were three such normals for the colored teachers, provided by the State Institute Board this year. This is better than previous years. The board, and particularly State Institute Conductor Keeny and State Superintendent Aswell, are to be congratulated for the "manual," outlines of the summer work and the Course of Study laid out for all of the public schools of the State. May this interest in the educational work of the State grow continually year by year.

Sterling College

The ninth annual commencement of Stirling College began Thursday evening, May 25, with the exercises of the kindergarten department, which was one of the best of its kind we have ever witnessed.. Friday evening the program of the intermediate department was rendered. Much interest was centered in this very large department, and quite early the campus and the spacious chapel were filled with an unusually large body of people. The auditorium was beautifully decorated; specimens of the work of the art department were everywhere displayed, and the exercises were excellent. Really this department excelled itself.

Sunday, at 11:30 a. m., Rev. R. Lee Hickson, of Columbia, S. C., Presiding Elder of the Spartanburg District, preached the baccalaureate sermon in a manner that greatly pleased the large audience. His eloquence, oratory, beauty of argument all combined to make the sermon a very impressive one. At 3:30 p. m., Rev. P. F. Maloy, D. D., pastor of Springfield Baptist Church, preached the annual sermon and for fifty minutes held his audience with a matchless flow of eloquence.

Monday evening the first year students appeared before a vast concourse of people. The exercises were simply superb. Much interest was manifested in the second year prize contest, which was the feature of the Tuesday evening exercises. Two valuable prizes were awarded to the members of the class, who delivered the best orations. The occasion was a feast and the competitors fought like Spartans for the laurels of the day. Miss Ora L. Sellars, of Greenville, won first prize, and to Miss Nellie S. Johnson, of Anderson, was awarded the second prize. All the class had received the most careful training. Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30, the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees was held in the college chapel. The president, Rev. D. M. Minus, D. D., presented his report, which was the best ever rendered in the history of the institution. It showed that great had been the improvement in every department of the work, and the board was elated over it. Two philanthropists were present and made the college a donation of $1,400. Wednesday evening the graduating exercises came off. The building was crowded by 8 o'clock and standing room was at a premium. The class consisted of seven students, three college preps. and four normals. To say that these youths creditably acquitted themselves is to give but a faint idea of how excellently they covered the ground. The auditors, trustees and faculty were all proud of them.

The Rev. Clayton R. Brown, of Florence, S. C., and Rev. David H. Kearse, of Cowpens, S. C., having passd satisfactory examinations, were awarded the degree of doctor of divinity. The Rev. Robert L. Hickson, of Columbia, S. C., having met all the rigid requirements, received the degree of master of arts.

Miss Cecelia Johnson, a talented musician, presided at the piano. Truly, this has been Stirling's greatest year, which next year promises to surpass by far, especially in point of increased enrollment. A first-class library is being fitted up for the school, and twenty scholarships are being offered worthy students. That Stirling is fully meeting a longfelt need in the Piedmont section of South Carolina and Georgia is a fact beyond question, so says the public.

The Teachers' National Association

BY JAMES W. WOODLEE.

The Teachers' National Association held a three days' session in Atlanta, Ga., June 28-30. Hon. J. B. Woodward, Mayor of the city, made a brief welcome address, and other addresses were made by Hon. J. Max Barber, editor of The Voice of the Negro, and Prof. J. Hope, of Atlanta Baptist College. Responses were made by gentlemen representing three other States. The discussions were on a very high order.

Thursday morning the national body by vote agreed to postpone its evening sessions to meet with the Georgia State Teachers' Association that was in session in another part of the city.

Thursday night Dr. P. B. Guernsey, of Roger Williams University, made a most excellent address.

Friday's sessions were very liberally attended by local teachers.

Among the most prominent present were: Mr. J. H. Murphy, of The Baltimore Afro-American Ledger; Mr. Charles H. Stewart, Associated Press correspondent; Dr. P. B. Guernsey, Nashville, Tenn.; Prof. J. W. Bell, Kentucky; Prof. W. H. Holtzclaw, Mississippi; Prof. Riley, Florida; Dr. J. W. Darden, Alabama; Rev. W. D. Chappelle and Prof. Frank Smith, Tennessee; Prof. John Hope, Atlanta; Prof. Thweatt, Georgia.

Prof. J. R. E. Lee, the president of the Association, was unable to attend on account of sickness. The meetings were presided over by Prof. J. E. Knox, of Brinkley, Ark. By vote the Association decided to meet in Montgomery, Ala., next year.

As a sequel to the meeting, the Southern Press Association was formed. Mr. Murphy, of the Baltimore Afro-American Ledger, was elected president; Rev. W. D. Chappelle, of the Nashville Monitor, was elected vice-president; Mr. J. J. Davis, of Atlanta Independent, secretary; Mr. James W. Woodlee, of The Voice of the Negro, treasurer. Mr. Charles Stewart, general organizer. A manifesto will soon be issued and sent to all Southern newspapers, which by action of the newly formed association, are considered as members.

The secret of success of one of England's most learned men was bound up in four little words, which he took as a motto: "I'll think of it." And although to-day we may think it a little thing to think, let us learn that it is the power that moves the world. That it is the great drive-wheel of progress, driving, with its propelling force, humanity from wrong to right: driving it from the dark shades of barbarity into the sunlit regions of civilization; lifting it higher, step by step, into that glorious realm, manhood. And as surely as terrestrial power is drawn from the sun, so surely is the propelling power and influence over man drawn from that fountain ever rich and full, the mind.—Selected.

"A singer sang a song of cheer,
And the great world listened and smiled:
For he sang of the love of a father dear
And the trust of a little child;
And souls that before had forgotten to pray
Looked up and went singing along the way."

Let your friends have your sympathy and your help * * * and let simplicity, love, and humility be your great aim—just to do God's work without an atom of self-love in it. Keep this aim ever true and pure and all will come out right, even though many a weary step has to be trod in the footsteps of Jesus.—H. Monsell.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson V—July 30, 1905. Title—"Manasseh's Sin and Repentance" (2 Chron. 33:1-13.) Golden Text.—"Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." (Prov. 14-34.)

Hezekiah lived fifteen years after he was healed by the Lord. When he slept with his fathers they buried him in the chiefest tomb of the sons of David. All Jerusalem did him honor at his death. Manasseh, his son, was only twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. He did evil in the sight of the Lord, for which he was punished. He repented, was restored, and did some noble works. Here is an instance where a good father raised a bad son. The same may be said of Adam, of Jacob, of Eli, of Samuel, and of David. It has often been said that the sons of ministers are more wicked than those of other men. The statement is not true. Statistics are against it. In a number of towns and colleges it has been investigated, and in every instance has been found to be false. (Peloubet's Notes, 1898.) The sons of ministers do not turn out worse than those of lawyers, doctors, teachers, and other classes of professional men. It is not true that when a child passes out from the restraints of a religious home he drifts to the other extreme. Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it. Hezekiah died when Manasseh was twelve years of age. The young king seems to have assumed the reigns of government at that time. This may account for the evils of his early life. Many of the people were no doubt anxious to throw off the yoke laid on them by Hezekiah. The young king likely fell into the hands of the idolatrous class.

1. Sinning. (1-10). Manasseh's wickedness is seen in many ways. (1) He introduced again the worship of idols. In ancient times it was thought wrong to shut up the gods within walls, hence groves were the first temples, and are often mentioned with the worship of the true God. The high place which had been removed by Hezekiah were rebuilt, and groves were again dedicated to the service of idols. Altars were erected in these high places in the groves, in the house of the Lord, and in the courts of the temple. Images of Baal, Ashtoreth, and Moloch were placed above these altars, and victims were sacrificed to them. The worship of the heavenly bodies was also restored. In gardens and on the roofs of houses were built little altars of brick, and from them clouds of incense were daily ascending to heaven. In the streets were furnaces, for which the children gathered wood, and in which mothers baked cakes as offerings to Astart. Human beings were sacrificed to their gods, and children were compelled to pass through the fire to Moloch. (2) He neglected the house of the Lord. The temple where God had said: "My name shall abide forever," was neglected, and the worship of Jehovah was wholly given up. The priesthood became worldly or idolatrous. The Scriptures were not taught or practiced. The temple was desecrated and given over to the worship of images. Idolatry is a part of one nature, which may grow into a disease and work eternal death. (3) He persecuted the church. The Lord told him, through the prophets, that He would bring such evils upon Judah that the ears of those who heard of them would tingle: that He would stretch over them the line of Samaria and the plumit of Ahab; that He would wipe Jerusalem as a man would wipe a dish and turn it upside down to dry; and that He would forsake the remnant of His inheritance, or give Judah and Benjamin over to their enemies. All this would be done because Manasseh had shed innocent blood, and filled Jerusalem with it from one end to the other. This was a very bitter persecution. Prophets and people were put to death. Isaiah was likely sawed asunder at this time.

2. Suffering. (Ver. 11.) The king of Assyria was at this time Esarhadden. This is clear from the fact that no other king of Assyria, so far as we can learn, had a palace and held his court in Babylon. He does not seem to have come up against Jerusalem himself, but to have sent the captains of his army against it. We are told that Palestine was overrun by his army at this time. The invasion was likely a Godsend. Manasseh was the man they sought, and when they found him they departed. They took him "among the thorns," likely means they "took him with hooks." They probably put a ring through his nose, or upper lip, attached a chain to it, and led him wherever they wished him to go. This shameful and humiliating method of dealing with distinguished prisoners was practiced by the Assyrians. Babylon, located on the banks of the Euphrates river, about five hundred miles east of Jerusalem, was at this time one of the largest cities in the world.

3. Repenting. (Ver. 12.) Tradition says Manasseh was taken to Babylon, put in a brazen cage, and fed on bread made of bran dipped in vinegar. While there he humbled himself before the God of his fathers, earnestly repented of his sins, and faithfully called upon the Lord in prayer. He no doubt promised to lead a devout life. A godly sorrow for sin is essential to salvation. We need not hope for pardon without it. We must not only hate our sins, but also the principle within that leads to them.

4. Forgiving. (Ver 13.) The Lord was entreated of him. He was moved with compassion towards Manasseh. The Jews say the Lord became a flame of fire about him till all the bars of his cage were melted. The Lord heard his supplication, and was touched with a feeling of his infirmities. He decided to do as Manasseh desired. God moved the heart of the king and nobles to release him from prison, and send him back to Jerusalem. There was something very unnatural in this act. But God can make the wrath of man to praise Him. We know not how long Manasseh was out of Jerusalem, or what Judah did for a king during his absence, but when he returned he was again placed on the throne.

5. Working. (14-17.) He fortified the holy city by building a strong high wall on the northwest side: he put captains of war in all the fenced cities of Judah: he took away the strange gods from the house of the Lord: he removed all the altars he had built in Jerusalem: he repaired the altar of the Lord, and sacrificed thereon peace offerings and thank offerings: and he commanded Judah to serve the Lord God of Israel. Note—The parable of the Prodigal Son was surely founded on the life of Manasseh. The king sinned—the younger son "wasted his substance with riotous living." The king was led a prisoner into Babylon—the younger son "joined himself to a citizen of that country." The king earnestly repented—the younger son "came to himself and said, 'I will arise and go to my father.'" The king was freely forgiven and returned to his throne—the younger son was anxiously pardoned and taken back into his father's home.

Guanajuato, Mexico, which was overwhelmed by a great flood a few days ago, is the seat of a prosperous Methodist Episcopal Mission. A telegram to Secretary H. K. Carroll, of the Missionary Society, announces that "all the workers" in that place "have been mercifully preserved, and the properties of the Mission are intact." There are two Methodist congregations, two Sunday schools, two day schools, and a hospital, employing four doctors and about twenty nurses. The property of the Good Samaritan Hospital has recently been extended by the addition of a new wing, and its efficiency has been increased by the installation of an electrical plant and waterworks. Mary Ann Cox Memorial College for Girls has a total enrollment of 153. There is a training school class for Bible women, and a primary school for boys with an enrollment of 70 pupils.

Lesson Topic July 30.

Missions in Eastern Asia

Scripture References: Psa. 22:27, 28; Jer. 16:19.

The Prophecy: Our Scripture selections are prophecies concerning the conversion of the Gentiles to Christ and have special reference to our modern missionary operations. Our selection from Psalms is one of the Old Testament's expressions foretelling Messiah's universal reign. This is being specially fulfilled as the great nations of heathenism are being permeated with gospel influence. Jeremiahs prophetical prayer for the heathen has the same interpretation. The nations will repudiate the false superstitions of heathenism and accept the gospel of Christ.

The Field: Eastern Asia is a term which is used to designate our missions in China, Korea, and Japan. It should possibly take in our work in the Philippine Islands, but they are embraced in our Malaysian work, which is under the Southern Asia work. The field embraces the five great Conferences in China with her four hundred millions—the Foochow, the Hinghua, the Central China, the North China, and the West China Mission. It takes in also the two Conferences in Japan—the Japan and the South Japan. It also embraces the Korean Mission. A good missionary map should be procured and hung up in the League room, and a careful drill be given on the location and condition of each mission. This field is one of the largest, one of the most important, and one of the most difficult of any of the mission fields of our church. Let us take a glance at each division:

China: The China Mission was begun in 1847 by Revs. Judson D. Collins and Moses C. White. They began at Foochow, and from their work it has spread to nearly every part of the empire. The Foochow Conference embraces the Fukien Province, and was organized into a Conference in 18877. The Hinghua Mission Conference includes two perfectures of the Fukien Province, and was opened in 1864 and organized as a Conference in 1896. The Central China Mission was begun in 1867 by workers from the Foochow, and set apart as a mission in 1869. It includes Central China, with headquarters at Nanking. North China Conference includes the northern provinces of Shantung and Hohan. Work was begun in 1869, and the Conference was organized in 1893. The West China Mission is in the western part of the empire, the farthest removed of all our missions from the United States. It was opened in 1881.

Japan: Work was begun in Japan by our church in 1873. Dr. Maclay founded the mission. The work in the northern part was organized into a Conference in 18884. Work was begun in Nagasaki in 1873 by Dr. Davidson, which was organized into a Mission Conference in 1898. This South Japan Conference embraces the southern one of the four large islands of the empire and Formosa.

Korea: This mission was begun in 1885 under the superintendency of Dr. Maclay, of our Japan Mission. It embraces the entire kingdom and has been very successful. It is in the midst of some twelve millions of people.—From Notes on the Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topics.

O hearts of love! O souls that turn
Like sunfloflwers to the pure and best!
To you the truth is manifest:
For they the mind of Christ discern
Who lean, like John, upon His breast —Whittier.

He who rushes into the presence of God and hurriedly whispers a few petitions and rushes out again, never, perhaps, sees God there at all. He can no more get a vision than a disquieted lake can mirror the stars. We must stay long enough to become calm, for it is only the peaceful soul in which eternal things are reflected as in a placid water.—Arthur T. Pierson.

GAINESVILLE DISTRICT.

The thirteenth annual session of the Sunday School and Epworth League Association of the Gainesville District, Florida Conference, met in the Mt. Pleasant M. E. Church, Gainesville, Fla., June 22, 1905. The meeting was largely attended and was a success from the beginning to the end. It was to be seen through the reports of the superintendent and delegates that the Sunday School and League work is achieving great results on the Gainesville District. Much interest was manifested in the discussions. Rev. S. A. Huger, presiding elder of the Ocala District, and Rev. J. S. Todd, D. D., of the Jacksonville District, were present and rendered acceptable service. Sermons were preached by the different ministers Wednesday night the Rev. J. M. Trammel preached the introductory sermon; Thursday night Rev. I. P. Ferguson preached, and both sermons were enjoyed by all who heard them. Friday night the Mt. Pleasant church tendered a reception to the Association, and all were royally entertained. The following ministers spoke on Sunday: Revs. A. B. Young, H. Hawkins and T. W. Williams, and all were made to feel that it was good to be there. Raised during the meeting, $117.45, $5 of which was donated to the Bishop Scott launch fund.

T. W. WILLIAMS.

MARION DISTRICT.

The Missionary Convention of the Marion District, Mobile Conference, was held in Eutaw, Ala., June 8-9, Rev. H. N. Brown, D. D., B. S., presiding elder. As Dr. G. G. Logan, Missionary Secretary, on account of a similar meeting in South Carolina could not be present, Rev. S. A. Cowan, D. D., of Meridian, Miss., came in his stead. The Doctor preached two masterly sermons and eloquently addressed the convention Thursday night, giving the history of the church. Dr. H. N. Brown, in a few well chosen words, stated the object of the convention and Rev. S. D. Davis gave a brief address on "Missions." A collection of $2.25 was taken for missions. Friday morning, after the devotional exercises, Rev. A. G. Glenn, D. D., delivered an excellent address, subject "The Great Commission." Rev. W. M. Jones represented the Missionary Causes of the M. E. Church. Rev. S. D. Davis read a paper on "The Macedonian Cry;" Mrs. Atta B. Jones read a paper, subject, "The Life and Work of John Stewart;" Prof. R. M. Davis, A. B., discussed the "Life of Melville B. Cox." Papers by Rev. R. S. Cobb, on "The Epworth League," and J. W. Knox, "What Ought the Mobile Annual Conference Do For Missions?" "The Response of the Marion District" was made by J. A. Knox. The various charges on the district were called and answered, viz.: Marion, A. G. Glenn, D. D., $21; voucher for $19; Old Town, I. A. Knox, $6.77; Scott's and Allen's, R. Cox, voucher, $6; Wedgworth, cash, $2.93; Newberne, S. D. Davis, voucher $16, cash 25 cents, $16.25; Eutaw, W. M. Jones, $30; Union, D. Heron, voucher $2, cash $16.15. total, $18.15; Clinton, T. S. Sanders, $17; Gainesville, R. S. Cobb, voucher $28, $30; Mount Sterling, J. W. Knox, $4. Other collections and vouchers for missions on the district amounted to $173.35.

R. M. DAVIS, Secretary.

FLORENCE DISTRICT.

The Missionary Convention of Williamsburg county met Monday morning, June 12, in the M. E. Church, Kingstree, S. C. Song service was conducted by Rev. C. R. Brown, presiding elder, who afterward addressed the convention in a short, pointed way. Dr. G. G. Logan was called to preside and M. F. B. Cottingham was elected secretary. Dr. Logan then spoke on "Giving and Giving Willingly to Missions." Rev. R. A. Cottingham read a carefully prepared paper on "The Great Commission." Rev. Benj. Brown gave a statistical synopsis of the "Benevolent Causes of the M. E. Church. The name of Rev. J. H. Parks was called and Rev. Brown announced his death, which occurred a few weeks before. "Servant of God well done" was most touchingly sung, convention standing. Rev. Dr. Salter's paper was short and inspiring. "Our Duty to the Missionary Society" by Rev. J. A. Harrell was carefully prepared and instructive. "Sunday School and Missions," by Mr. E. J. McCollum, was good in plans for systematic giving. He spoke of the good being done in rural districts. Rev. I. Myers was reported sick. Dr. Logan then spoke of his work in general. Benediction by Rev. B. Brown. Afternoon devotions were conducted by Rev. R. A. Cottingham. Rev. Neal read an excellent paper. Five minute talks were then made by the delegates from the several churches. They pledged to make the "Outlook" a reality and enforced the pledge by giving a collection. Reports were received from the Sunday Schools. Dr. Logan pointed out on his immense map the territory as yet unsaved and that which has never heard of Jesus. His lecture was one among the best ever listened to. All who heard him were inspired to do more for missions. He was to have preached in the evening, but the rain prevented. Both sessions were crowded, many coming twenty or more miles and no one went home disappointed.

LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

On the morning of May 10th, 1905, Mount Zion M. E. Church, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, O., Rev. H. W. Tate, pastor, was the scene of a manifestation of woman's worth to the church. The occasion was the fifth annual session of the Lexington Conference, Woman's Home Missionary Convention.

Rev. Tate being a loyal Methodist preacher, naturally believes in all of the departments of the grand old church, hence he said to his missionary ladies and others of his congregation that he would heartily join hands with them in their efforts to prepare for and entertain the Convention. The church was cleaned and elaborately and tastefully papered and frescoed for the occasion. He was glad to report at the close of the Convention that our meeting had been a spiritual, instructing and financial benefit. Forty-five women were well entertained in beautiful, comfortable homes. The good women and friends of Mt. Zion Auxiliary can not be forgotten for their splendid and successful effort to entertain those who came within their gates.

"God be with them till we meet again."

So began the first independent session of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Lexington Conference. We say "independent" as it was the first time we have met separate from the Ministerial Conference. At times we felt that we were mistaken in this, for the voices of the women were often drowned in their efforts to be heard by the chair, by the voices of Presiding Elder E. A. White, Revs. H. M. Tate, D. E. Skelton, J. W. White and the Lexington Conference Secretary, J. W. Robinson. The inspiring remarks and points given by these earnest brethren were indeed appreciated. Dr. M. C. B. Mason delivered a fine welcome address.

From the beginning until the close of the session we felt the presence of God with us. Among the many other treats that we enjoyed were the splendid addresses by the following general officers: Mrs. I. D. Jones, Mrs. Dr. Thirkield, Mrs. Goodman and Miss Gray, the first deaconess, of Kentucky. The good thoughts and fine experiences told by these great women inspired us to greater usefulness. Four years ago we only reported $10 to the General Society as a Conference organization. At this session the Treasurer reported over $350 turned over to the General Treasurer, and that more than $1,000 had been raised for all purposes, including value of supplies sent to ministers and students. The Conference Society also paid a $20 pledge to Kent Home, besides other student funds. Now that the work is becoming so well understood and organized, the Convention will send Miss Mary Ross, the daughter of the late Rev. Jacob Ross, of the Lexington Conference, to one of the Industrial Schools in the South. This will mean about $100 to be raised for this purpose alone. Every representative at the Convention heartily endorsed the plan. More and more we see the need of an industrial school within the bounds of our Conference. Had we been better able to estimate the co-operation of the dear pastors to whom we must look for the success of the work, we could have had three students leave our Conference next September. Two other girls applied, in a manner, for our aid. We feel that each time we meet we are better able to explain the workings of this great society, and by so doing we gain the assistance of the brethren. The Lexington District being only one year old, feels greatly honored in carrying off the banner, having raised for general fund and contingent money alone $1191. The Louisville District received the membership banner, having added 56 new members to the district this year. Paris, Ky., will be the seat of our next convention. We know what to expect at the hands of that enthusiastic and untiring District President, Mrs. Dr. J. H. Stanley. The same officers were re-elected with the exception of the Supply Secretary, who is now Miss Martha Minnis, of Versailles, Ky. The Conference Treasurer is Mrs. D. Lula E. Allen, of 385 E. Short street, Lexington, Ky., Mrs. A. Sissle having served as Treasurer for three successive years, was compelled to decline a re-nomination, having as her only reason too much house care and an increase in church duties, as her husband will soon resume the work of the pastorate again after this year. The society was indeed grieved to accept the statement from one so faithful and who has done more than any one member of the Conference to bring the society up to its present standard. Yet they know there is no resting of oars in so ardent a lover of the Missionary Society. We will hear from her as a Conference organizer. The SOUTHWESTERN was ably represented, in the absence of the editor, by Mrs. Sissle.

Mrs. Louise Montgomery, of Chicago, not only represented the law in the convention, but solicited enough money to pay for four volumes of Dr. M. C. B. Mason's "Pulpit Gems," with which to present the President, Corresponding Secretary, Recording Secretary and Treasurer, as a small token of the appreciation of their services to the convention.

Very fitting and touching words were spoken by Rev. J. W. Robinson, of Covington, in his presentation speech. The convention also remembered the faithful pastor, Rev. Tate, and added to his lapel decoration the unique pin of the Woman's Home Missionary Society.

Presiding Elder E. A. White was deeply moved with joy on receiving from the convention his gift of "Pulpit Gems," the Chautauqua salute, and the joyous appeal of the full chorus of "Glory, glory, hallelujah!" by the crowded convention. Much of the spiritual blessings of the convention were due to the inspiring touch of Mrs. W. H. Pope, at the organ, and the prayers and sermons of our blessed evangelists, Sister Cassie Jackson and Sister Dollie Lewis.

The program rendered on Saturday afternoon by the young people from the circles of Cummingville, E. Covington, Ky., St. John's, Cincinnati, and Mt. Zion, Cincinnati, was a rare treat. The hope of the development of the missionary spirit among our race was made certain by the one hundred boys and girls who had been so carefully trained for this missionary service. Mrs. Monroe and Miss Ella Brown and others deserve great credit for their efforts to show the work of the young people. Our work in this department will be looked after in an interesting manner by Miss L. Marshall, 9th street, Covington, Secretary of Conference, Young People's Work.

TEMPERANCE RALLY.

The temperance loving people of Galilee M. E. Church, Lauringburg, N. C., on July 4th, assembled together in a temperance rally, under the management of Mr. E. L. Fletcher. The occasion was a rare one. There were several speakers, viz: Messrs. C. S. Gibson, Nathan Davis, Charlie Gibson, E. L. Fletcher, J. R. Gibson and Mrs. A. E. Peace. Two very fine addresses were made by Revs. W. R. Hayes and J. C. Robbins. They were to the point and very helpful indeed. Every one who spoke had for his or her subject "Temperance," but each treated the subject from a different point of view, making it the more instructive and interesting. It is hoped that our people will bestir themselves more largely along the line of temperance work. The black demon rum is fast ruining many of our homes. We hope to have another temperance program soon. A missionary collection was taken up after the program, and more than $4.00 were collected. Bro. E. L. Fletcher was master of ceremonies. We are praying that the good work of the temperance cause may be felt more and more in the home, in the church, and in the State.

A. E. PEACE.

THE LAUNCH FUND

Previously acknowledged	$1,691.62
Rev. E. R. Miller, Grantville, Georgia	1.00
John Wesley, Junior League, Salisbury, Md.	2.00
Total	$1,694.62

It will be noted that in the Launch Fund acknowledgment is made of a contribution from the Junior League of John Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, Salisbury, Md., Rev. J. H. Blake, pastor. Mrs. M. J. O'Connell, wife of Dr. P. O'Connell, is the Junior League superintendent. This is Mrs. O'Connell's second effort for the Launch Fund, the first being a large contribution through Ezion Church, Wilmington, Delaware, where Dr. and Mrs. O'Connell were then laboring.

OUR WORK IN EAST CENTRAL AFRICA

Bishop Hartzell has just closed a very successful session of the East Central Africa Mission Conference, which includes the work in Portuguese East Africa and Eastern Rhodesia. The reports show that the church membership has increased from 271 to 580; 3,000 cases have received medical treatment; the Old Testament is being translated and the New Testament is already in two languages; the printing press has been kept busy, and a hymn book of 200 pages and 500 copies of the books of Ruth, Esther and Genesis have been printed. All told, 1,600 volumes, amounting to 160,000 pages, have gone forth from the press as healing leaves. In the day schools are 446 children and 600 are in the Sunday schools. That the people are helping themselves is shown by the fact that they are contributing 21 pence per member, including probationers. It is said that Umtali Academy is the best equipped and managed school in Rhodesia. Bishop Hartzell is proving himself quite a statesman in handling the affairs of the church. It will be remembered that some time ago Bishop Hartzell received through Right Hon. Earl Grey and Mr. Cecil Rhodes quite a concession of lands and buildings. The Bishop has succeeded in getting the privilege to exchange a part of the lands given for tracts in other sections of the country that will be of more advantage to our mission work. Bishop Hartzell was most cordially received by all, and the Rhodesia Advertiser, published in Umtali, publishes a large supplement giving a full account of our work in that section.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Christian Endeavorers at the Belvidere Hotel, during the recent convention in Baltimore, Md., Bishop Alexander Walters and Bishop B. W. Arnett, who were delegates, being refused admittance in the front elevators, were compelled to use the back elevators.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AT THE DENVER EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION

Resolved, That the National Bureau of Reforms, of which Dr. W. F. Crafts is the secretary, the Lord's Day Alliance of the Dominion of Canada, and other similar associations having for their purpose the promotion of civic righteousness and moral reform legislation be heartily commended to the support of league members throughout the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

Resolved, That we believe the temperance movement to be especially important to the social conditions of our own times, and that no compromise should be made in the incessant warfare that must be carried on by the church of God against all forms of intemperance. That we reaffirm our conviction that the Methodist Church is the greatest and most efficient temperance agency in the world, and urge Epworth League members everywhere to adhere closely to the position of Methodism in its warfare against the liquor traffic in all its forms. And that we heartily commend all the forces that are working for the promotion of temperance and prohibition of the liquor traffic by education and legislation; and we express our especial gratification over the substantial victories won, and the encouraging progress made by the Anti-Saloon League in the United States and the Dominion Alliance in Canada, and recommend to Methodist young people earnest co-operation with other churches and organizations through these mediums.

Resolved, That we urge upon our league members and all others whom we may influence the courageous advocacy of a social standard by which the law of purity shall bear equally upon men and women.

Resolved, That inasmuch as Reed Smoot, Senator-elect from the State of Utah, is subservient to a system that is antagonistic to the purity and integrity of the American home and subversive of the law of the land by reason of his official relation to the Mormon hierarchy, we earnestly and solemnly protest against his admission to a seat in the supreme legislative body of the nation, and we urge upon the attention of Congress the need of passing laws making it henceforth impossible for representatives of such a treason-working system to obtain seats in the legislative bodies of the United States. And we urge the Congress of the United States to submit to the people a constitutional amendment prohibiting polygamy or plural marriages within the territory of the United States.

Resolved, That we are fixed in our attitude of uncompromising opposition to the sale of beer, wine and spirits in the army canteens and deplore the advocacy of the canteen by officers of the army and others as a place for dispensing intoxicants; and that we call attention to the dangerous confusion (on the part of such advocates) of the moral issues involved with the separate question of the provision by innocent means for all the social and material needs of our soldiers.

Reolved, That the growing evil of divorce calls for uniform legislation by which the whole nation should be protected from the evils of legalized lust and encroachment upon the sanctity of the marriage bond.

Resolved, That the Hepburn-Dolliver bill for the prevention of the interstate transportation of intoxicants in plain violation of the prohibitory laws of the several states deserves and has our hearty approval, and that we seek to influence by all right means, members of the national legislature in the interest of the bill.

Resolved, That the convention has felt deeply grieved by the absence of Bishop Joyce, former president of the board of control of the league of our Methodist Episcopal Church, and that our prayers go out to the Father of Mercies for him in this experience of nearness of the last enemy; and that our sympathies are with the loved ones who watch by his bedside.

Resolved, That we gratefully acknowledge the unselfishness and efficient labors of the Denver committee of arrangements, their unvarying politeness, fine organization and ample provision for handling the vast concourse of the Seventh International Convention.

Complimentary resolutions were also passed thanking the churches of all denominations of Denver, the railroads, the press of Denver, the general secretaries and editors and publishers of church papers, for their interest and help in making the convention a success.

BISHOP WALDEN ABUNDANT IN LABORS

A recent issue of the Western gives the following account of Bishop Walden's labors during the past six months:

"Bishop Walden, president of the Southern Education Society, was prevented by his accident from attending those Fall Conferences, where he was to represent this cause. He has, however, had opportunity to visit several parts of the South in this interest. Starting the middle of January he, within a month, reached Grant University, Chattanooga; Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.; Cookman Academy, Jacksonville, Fla.; Clark University and Gammon Theological Seminary; Atlanta. Only from three to six days were spent at these schools severally, as he returned to Cincinnati late in February to attend the final meeting of the Commission on the Catechism, of which he is a member. Mrs. Walden, accompanying him on this trip, visited the Model Homes and Schools of the Woman's Home Missionary Society (of which she is vice-president) in Orangeburg and Camden, S. C.; Savannah and Atlanta, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla. The Bishop, on this trip, also visited the American Missionary Association Schools at Charleston and Savannah, and the State Industrial School, near the latter city. In March he represented our Southern education cause at the Virginia Conference in Wise, Va., and visited Roanoke in the interest of the society. Early in April, to meet the special request of the board, he and Mr. George B. Johnson visited the schools at Baldwin, La. This gave opportunity to visit the Academy at Meridian, Miss.; the University in New Orleans, and the Normal and Industrial College, Morristown, Tenn. In May he visited Walden University in connection with delivering the Commencement address. Later he, with the special committee of which he was chairman, visited Fort Worth in the interest of the University there. As noted last week, he has just attended the annual meetings of the trustees of Clark University, Gammon Theological Seminary and Walden University, of which boards he is president, and of the Grant University Board, of which he is a member. In making these trips he has traveled 9,089 miles by railway, including other trips, mostly to meet Church engagements. His railway travel during the first six months of the current year has been nearly fourteen thousand miles.

Dr. A. B. Leonard, corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society, left Ketchikan immediately after the meeting of the Alaska Mission, which began June 29, and in company with Dr. John Parsons, superintendent of the Mission, started on a trip through the interior of Alaska. His plan was to return to Skagway, at the terminus of the Lynn Canal, and to take a train across White Pass to White Horse on the Yukon river, thence to take the steamer to Dawson, and from there to the mouth of the Tanama river and up that river to Fairbank. Returning to the Yukon, they planned to proceed to St. Michael's and thence to Nome, where they were to take ship to Dutch Harbor, Unalaska. At Juneau, Dr. Leonard plans to take the steamer for Seattle on his return home.

OCTOBER 31--That Great Day--Our Next Issue Tells About It

BISHOP JOYCE

The Central Christian Advocate gives a full account of Bishop Joyce's recent attack. In no part of the church is the Bishop more loved than in the South. Concerning his condition the Central in its last issue says:

Bishop Joyce, while lifting up his voice in the sweet message of salvation, received his death summons, as we fear, at Redrock Camp-meeting, Minnesota, Sunday, July 2. From various sources, papers, letters and conversation, we have the account of the stroke, and from them we compile the following:

Bishop Joyce was preaching at the principal morning hour of worship on the Redrock assembly grounds. The regular meetings of the Minnesota Pentecostal Association had been in progress since June 23. The meetings are always largely attended by Methodists and other Christian people from all over the State, and a large congregation had assembled to hear the beloved prelate.

Bishop Joyce, having spoken fifteen minutes, had advanced well into his sermon when he was seen to stagger and start to fall. He ceased speaking and kept himself from falling by clinging to a post which supported the roof of the speakers' stand. Again he endeavored to speak, and again was seen to stagger. Ministers who occupied seats on the platform rushed to his assistance, but he assured them that he was all right and would be able to resume his sermon in a few minutes. He made the attempt but suddenly fell to the floor. * * * He was removed to a cottage and Dr. C. C. Squires, of Newport, was called to attend him.

The physician advised that Bishop Joyce's own family physician be called, as the case appeared to be serious, and that the distinguished patient be removed to his home at once. Col. F. M. Joyce, in whose house the Bishop lives in Minneapolis, was advised of the condition of his father, and rather than wait for a train to take him to the assembly grounds, he decided to make the trip in his automobile. He summoned Dr. Mark C. Smith, and in all haste made the trip of eighteen miles, arriving about 3:30 o'clock.

Bishop Joyce's wife and a host of solicitous friends had done all in their power to relieve his suffering, and when Colonel Joyce and Dr. Smith arrived, he had so far recovered as to be able to undertake the trip home. The journey to St. Paul was made by the Burlington motor, and from St. Paul to Minneapolis by the regular evening train on the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway. He was unconscious during the trip.

The Bishop seemed to stand the journey well, and once at home he was soon made easy, and under powerful stimulants seemed to rally. Late in the evening he had recovered the partial use of his right shoulder, but was still unable to talk.

Paralysis of the tongue continued during the night, but, in response to direct questioning, by nods of his head he indicated that he was perfectly conscious and had coherent ideas of all that was going on about him and recognized every one present. Later he fell asleep of lapsed into a semi-conscious state.

CONFERENCE CHANGES

The dates of the Conferences and missions where changes have been made now stand in the Episcopal Plan as follows:

Atlantic Mission Conference, October 19th.
Central German Conference, September 13th.
Central Tennessee Conference, October 11th.
Northern German Conference, September 20th.
Tennessee Conference, October 4th.
Upper Iowa Conference, September 27th,
West German Conference, September 6th.
Wyoming Mission, August 23d.

Where changes in the places of meeting have been made, they stand as follows:

North Pacific German Mission Conference, Portland, Ore., September 7th.
Utah Mission, Salt Lake City, August 9th.
All changes in the plan to July 1st noted here.

JOHN M. WALDEN, Secretary.

Personal and General.

Rev. Dr. J. W. E. Bowen is in Baltimore.

Rev. Thomas F. Roberson, pastor of our church at Longstreet, La., was in the city last week.

Rev. M. J. Naylor, D. D., has been elected president of the Baltimore Episcopal Ministers' Meeting.

Mrs. Sarah Drummond, of this city, leaves in a few days on a visit to her relatives at Spartanburg, S. C.

A statue of the late President McKinley was unveiled Tuesday, July 4th, in the McKinley Park, of Chicago.

Rev. T. P. Colwell and Mr. M. J. Tucker, of Yazoo City, Miss., were in the city last week and called at the SOUTWESTERN office.

Rev. S. M. G. Taylor, our pastor at Eola, was in the city this week, looking after business interests. We were glad to have him call at our office.

The Brookhaven District Conference has been changed from July 20 to July 27. It will be held at Tylertown, Miss. Rev. G. W. Smith, D. D., is presiding elder.

Mrs. M. C. Harris, wife of Bishop Harris, sailed Saturday, July 8th, for Japan, spending a short while enroute in Hawaii. Mrs. Harris made her first trip to Japan in the early seventies.

Our church at Austell, Ga., was burned on July 13. The church was built in 1897 by Rev. A. Owens, who happened to be present during the fire and helped to save some of the church furniture.

Rev. J. W. Wright, our pastor at Attalla, Ala., and his wife are both very ill. Brother Wright is one of our strong and faithful young men and is worthy of the prayers and sympathy of his brethren, for which he asks.

Prof. J. Beverly F. Shaw, of Rust University, is invited by the Epworth League chapter of Centenary M. E. Church, Memphis, Tenn., to deliver an address there Tuesday night, July 25, on the occasion of the reception to their delegates returned from the Denver Convention.

Dr. G. G. Logan writes: "Rev. H. B. Hart, our popular pastor at Corinth, Miss., is leading the Upper Mississippi Conference in missionary giving this year, and Rev. Dr. S. A. Cowan, of Meridian, is leading the Mississippi Conference in missionary giving this year. The brethren have already sent in more for Missions from their respective charges than any other charges in their respective Conferences."

The trial of Caleb Powers, the alleged accomplice in the murder of Senator Goebel, of Kentucky, has been granted a hearing before the United States Court. This, of course, will take the matter out of the hands of the local courts of Kentucky, in which Powers has been several times tried and as often convicted. It is believed now that an impartial jury can be impaneled and that the accused will have a fair trial.

The Gulfport District, under the leadership of Rev. R. N. Jones, presiding elder, is not only keeping up its regular claims, but is taking a special interest in the work of Bishop Scott. The Sunday schools at Hattiesburg, Moss Point, Pass Christian, Ocean Springs, Bay St. Louis, McLain, Handsboro, Daunivan and McNeil presented to Bishop Scott, recently, through Presiding Elder Jones, a large batch of church catechisms.

A number of presiding elder's districts have combined their "Station Plan" contributions to the Missionary Society, and now possess their own foreign missionaries at the front. Nearly sixty missionaries have been thus assigned. Another popular form of contributing under the "Station Plan," is that of taking a "share" in the work at some designated point in the mission field, which entitles the giver to the periodical letters written by the missionary in charge of that work. Native workers, students and orphans are not assigned by the Missionary Society to contributors under the "Station Plan:" such are supported only on the basis of special gifts, the administration of which is separate and distinct from that of the "Station Plan."

NEWS NOTES

Texas has the largest school fund of any state in the Union, amounting to $39,533,323.

The Carnegie Technical School will open the first department next October at Pittsburg.

It is announced that the Farmers' Improvement Society will open an Industrial School at Oakland, Tex., this fall.

We are in receipt of a copy of the journal and year book of the Florida Annual Conference, edited by the secretary, Rev. Joseph M. Deas, D. D.

President Judson S. Hill, of Morristown, Tenn., is with his youngest son, who is under treatment in the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., for general dislocation of the hip.

This year twenty-five years ago the Salvation Army in the United States began a work which is now recognized as one of the most permanent, valuable and helpful religious elements of the nation.

An impressive feature of the Denver Epworth League Convention was the singing of "Nearer, My God to Thee," in the deaf-mute sign language, by Miss Anna Hale, of Chicago, a delegate to the Convention.

New York is said to be to-day the greatest Jewish city in the world, with probably a larger population of Jews than Jerusalem ever had, there being twenty-five times as many in New York as in the Holy City.

To clebrate her great victory over the Russian fleet Japan is to erect a lighthouse on Okine Island which is expected to cast its rays for eighty miles over the sea, illuminating almost the entire scene of the wonderful battle.

Twenty churches are open in the tenement districts in New York during this month and next and schools established in the same for the children in the different parishes. These schools are taught by young men and women from the colleges.

Miss Ida Smalley, daughter of Geo. W. Smalley, correspondent of the London Times, and granddaughter by adoption of Wendell Phillips, the abolitionist, is the official stenographer in the office of the Negro Collector of Internal Revenue, Charles W. Anderson.

Miss Evangeline R. Hall, a member of this year's graduating class of Radcliffe College, the female institution connected with Howard University, is its third Negro graduate. She holds, it is said, the best record ever made by a Negro woman student in New Englaand.

Through the efforts of the energetic pastor, Rev. George W. Lane, of the Lexington Conference, a beautiful parsonage, one of the best on the Indiana District, has been erected in Booneville, Ind., since the recent session of that Conference; $50 paid on the same and the property insured.

Near Deanwood, D. C., a brick-making concern is being operated by Negroes that is said to be capable of turning out 4,000 bricks per day. This enterprise is under the direction of a firm which includes Messrs. George F. T. Cook and George H. White, wealthy and influential men of the race.

There is now in Paris, Tex., an organization known as the Colored Workmen's Protective League. Its purpose is to draw a line between the honest working element and the idle vagrant class. The establishment of an employment bureau is proposed, where steady and reliable help can be secured.

Dr. H. L. E. Luering, who has been connected with the Mission in Malaysia since the fall of 1889, arrived in New York, Thursday, July 13. Dr. Luering is making his first visit to the United States, and is on his second furlough, most of which he is spending with his family in Germany, his native land. He will spend the remainder of the summer and early months of the fall in representing the Malaysia Mission before the English and German speaking congregations in the United States.

Doings of the Workmen.

FLORIDA.

TAMPA—Dear Brothe: At our last General Conference all that part of Florida south of the twenty-ninth parallel was set apart as a Mission work. Within that mission is Tampa, the second largest city of the state, which is beyond contradiction to be the main maneuvring center for the Mission. Possessing the thoroughfare for Key West, Cuba and Porto Rica, made up of thousands of foreigners, and so near is it to Panama, the population is bound to soon reach fifty or a hundred thousand inhabitants, for in the last five years the increase has been over 40 per cent. Therefore, in order to be able to meet the emergency and to have our church cope with the other denominations in the ingathering of people who flock here weekly, we must have a well located building. The Catholics have a building worth $100,000, and the schools, one for colored and one for whites, and one for Cubans, and the only high school for the colored people. There are five small African Methodist churches, five Baptist and one Zion, one Episcopal, all handsomely located. We have only one church, and that is on an inside lot. The report at last Conference was 97 members and 40 probationers. In the last three months we have had an increase of 31, giving a total of 126 members and 42 probationers. We are arranging to build a new church, one sufficiently large to hold the people, and to do this we will need $10,000. Through the kindness of a friend we have been able to secure a lot for only $1,500, which is well worth $2,500. We raised $1,500 ourselves and secured it, but need $9,000 for the erection of a building. We have about $2,000, including property and subscriptions that are available. But this yet leaves us in need of $7,0000. Will you not help us in this work? Any amount will be thankfully received, and will be published in the SOUTHWESTERN. Kindly get your church to give us a collection, and forward to us at once.—Thos. H. B. Walker, Pastor; A. P. Prince, Secretary of Trustees; Thos. C. Miller, Chairman; A. J. Prince, Box 141, Tampa, Fla.

GEORGIA.

Grantville, E. R. Miller, Pastor.—This charge has two churches, both of which are in fine shape. We are making unparalleled history by real, genuine, deliberate Christian activity. "Doing" is our motto. We delight in system and accomplishments. Thus we press forward. Children's Day is now a matter of history. It was a great day, a day of instruction and edification, a day of accomplishments. We had two days of it, 2nd at Grantville 3rd at Lutherville. At Grantville, the occasion was dignified with our distinguished Dr. M. C. B. Mason, of the F. A. S. E. Society, and Dr. I. L. Thomas of the Church Extension Society, and at Lutherville by Dr. Jno. P. Wragg. These men of God swept the vast audiences before them like a mighty cyclone. The tide of enthusiasm has not yet abated. Dr. Thomas has recently taken up his residence among us. We are proud of him. He is a thinker, a scholar, a theologian, a business man, a Christian gentleman, and a preacher of great power. The program was finely rendered. Too much praise can not be bestowed upon the superintendents, Bros. W. T. Tatum and Olin McGhee, the officers and teachers, for the efficient manner in which they served and rendered the program. Our people are liberal. The result was $221.00 for the church. We have paid an old debt of seven years' standing, and paid a great many minor debts. The people are happy, and the church is moving. Benevolent money raised. We have from one to eight conversions with few exceptions at each service, have money in hand to paint our church, which will be done immediately.

LOUISIANA.

Baton Rouge, J. W. Lewis, Pastor—The first quarterly conference of Albert Chapel was opened March 29, by Rev. H. James. The reports of pastor and officers showed marked improvement. Rev. J. W. Turner, presiding elder, according to appointment, was on time. He preached a short sermon, after which the pastor, in behalf of the church, delivered a welcome address. After service there was a reception given the presiding elder. M. A. Robinson presented the pastor a fine gold gilded box for collars and cuffs.

Opelousas, Jos. H. Augustus.—I take this means of showing my appreciation to my many friends of Pineville, for the grand reception given me while attending the Summer Normal at Alexandria, from June 12 to July 7. Much praise is due Miss M. Woodland, Mrs. L. Oliver, A. F. Tillman, Mrs. and Rev. Brown, and others too numerous to mention. May success be theirs at all times.

Washington, S. Green, Pastor—In the parish of St. Landry, six miles from the town of Washington, we have forty members and have bought and paid for an acre of land for a church and graveyard. All friends are invited to attend the stake-driving of our new church. Come down on the Little Teche the fourth Sunday in June. Stakes will range from $1 to $10. The literary part of the Epworth League had a fine program Saturday night and shortly after our return home a host of Leaguers came to the parsonage, led by Miss B. Roy, Mr. W. C. Cooper and others. After refreshments were served, they presented the pastor with a purse and left many pounds of choice groceries on the table. We see nothing less than success at Washington Charge.

Woodside, D. Alexander—Sumner and Mason M. E. Churches are greatly revived by having Rev. H. J. Robinson as their pastor. He is a pushing young man. Our first quarterly conference was held April 3-4, with the presiding elder, Rev. C. W. Turner. Reports showed advancement. The pastor's and presiding elder's salaries were increased. Rev. E. H. Hall preached a good sermon. A company of young people entered the church and after a short speech by Bro. Jesse, made the presentation speech and presented the pastor a present. Baskets were opened and both white and colored took part in this supper. Collection for the night, $25.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass.
Dear Sir: Jan. 11th, 1904.

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water to-day and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am, Very truly yours,

"I. C. RICHARDSON."

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root. If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

"LA CREOLE" HAIR RESTORER

Much of the physical beauty of man or woman is dependent on the hair. Keep this "crowning glory" in best condition with "La Creole" Hair Restorer the preparation used by famous Creole beauties. It makes the hair lie straight and smooth for a long time, cures dandruff, prevents falling hair and restores original color to gray hair.

Unexcelled for Purpose

Mrs. Melissa Dancy, of 281 Orleans street, Memphis, Tenn., is one of the most prominent women in the colored society of this city, in both a social and religious way; Mrs. Dancy has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for many years and takes pleasure in saying:

"Your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer is unexcelled for the purposes for which you recommend it, viz., to keep the hair in a soft and glossy condition and to prevent it from falling out."

MR. JAMES BACON.

Splendid Hair Dressing

To the old patrons of the Peabody Hotel, Memphis, Tenn., this is a familiar face—that of Mr. James Bacon, who has had entire charge of the dining room in that celebrated hostlery for over twenty-five years, and who, by his courteous manner and polite attention has secured the friendship and respect of every one with whom he comes in contact. Mr. Bacon says:

"Your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer is a splendid dressing for the hair and I have received great benefit from its use."

His address is 98 St. Paul street, Memphis.

"La Creole" Hair Restorer retails at $1.00 per large bottle. If your dealer cannot supply you, we will send by prepaid express, to any station in the United States or Canada—

One bottle for $1.00; 6 bottles for $5.00.

RANSOM-GAFNEY.—May 28, 1905, at the parsonage of Wesley M. E. Church, North, S. C., Mr. Oscar Ransom and Mrs. Adrianna Gafney, by Rev. J. R. Townsend.

HOLTER-FORD.—On Thursday evening, May 25, 1905, at White Oak M. E. Church, Crystal Springs, Miss., Rev. Buck Holter and Miss Louella Almeda Ford, by Rev. J. A. Tatum. The bride, who is a prominent figure in church and social affairs, is a graduate of the Mount Hermon Institution, Clinton, Miss. The home was beautifully decorated and here a large number of friends were gathered. Misses Ruth M. Fox, J. Simpson and Mary Houghton, of the Mt. Herman Seminary, were of the bridal party.

BOON-BELL.—On April 20, 1905, at the home of the bride in Belen, Miss., by Rev. J. C. White, Mr. Oscar Boon to Miss Maria Bell. The presents were numerous.

WASHINGTON-NURSE.—At Asbury M. E. Church, Franklin, La., June 28, 1905, Mr. Henry Washington and Miss Azzie Nurse. The church was beautifully decorated. Mrs. O. M. Porter presided at the organ. Rev. R. Worsham officiated, assisted by Rev. T. J. Johnson. A reception was tendered the young couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Nurse, and they were the recipients of about three hundred presents.

PHILLIPS-ROBINSON—WILSON-ROBINSON.—On June 14, 1905, at Pickens, Miss., by the pastor, Rev. O. W. Crump, Miss S. C. Robinson to Mr. S. K. Phillips and Miss Fannie Robinson to Mr. C. M. Wilson. The two ladies are sisters, Miss Fannie being a student of Rust and Walden Universities and Miss Sarilda a well-known teacher in the schools of Holms county, Miss., and Newport, Ark. Mr. Phillips, a respected, enterprising young barber of Pickens, is a member of Union M. E. Church. Mr. Wilson, who has recently finished with honors from Flint Medical College, is also a graduate of the Alcorn A. & M. College. It was a beautiful ceremony. The brides were clad in white silk and lilies of the valley; the maids in organdie; the flower girls in white Swiss with pink ribbons. The church was beautifully decorated, and just before the party entered Miss Gertrude Taylor sang "O Promise Me." Many presents of value were given them.—A Friend.

CUNNINGHAM-RHONE.—On June 29, 1905, Mr. Augustus Cunningham and Miss Jessie A. Rhone, at Vincent M. E. Church, Grenada, Miss., by Rev. E. C. F. Troupe, in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage. The altar was a perfect mass of flowers and ferns. The bride, who is a teacher in the City school, is an earnest, energetic Christian worker. Many valuable presents were received.

WILLIAMS-EDMOND.—On June 28, 1905, at the residence of the bride, in Pearl River, La., Mr. Thomas Williams, a respected young man of Moss Point, Miss., and Miss Victoria Edmond, a prominent member of our church, by Rev. H. A. Sorrell. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will make their future home in Slidell, La.

SUMMERS-BELL.—On June 29, at the residence of the bride's mother, Miss Victoria D. Bell, of Nachitoches, La., and Mr. A. J. Summers, of Jackson, Miss., by Rev. W. J. M. Price.

TOOMBS-HAMILTON. — By Dr. B. M. Hubbard, at Shreveport, La., June 29 1905, Mr. Robt. Toombs and Miss L. Hamilton.

LUCAS-PAGE.—Mr. Griffin L. Lucas, of Waycross, Ga., and Miss Parthena Page, of Traders Hill, at the home of the bride's parents, June 30, 1905. The groom is a machinist by trade, and a young man of very fine qualities; the bride is a public school teacher of excellent character. They are both loyal members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Select music was furnished by Mrs. R. Annie Holman. The gifts were numerous and choice.—Griffin T. Holman.

HARDY-MAYO.—At Moss Point, Miss., June 29, 1905, Prof. W. C. Hardy and Mrs. Minnie Mayo, by Rev. S. H. Cannon. Prof. Mayo is one of our leading educators. He is principal of our City school and manager of the People's Drug Store, of this place. His bride is a sweet spirited woman of high standing and one of the leaders of social affairs. They are both members of St. Paul's Church, and have the best wishes of their many friends.

BARTLETT-CHAMBERS. — At Shreveport, La., June 9, 1905, Mr. William Bartlett and Miss Penny Chambers, by Rev. B. M. Hubbard.

CRYSTAL WEDDING.—At the Methodist Episcopal Church of McDonough, Ga., June 8, 1905, was celebrated the crystal wedding of Rev. and Mrs. V. D. Jenkins. The reception was attended by a large and representative audience, all the churches of the community participating. The tokens of esteem and appreciation were choice and valuable. Rev. Jenkins has endeared himself to the people of McDonough; they consider him a safe leader. The pastor's daughter, Miss Mary, discoursed sweet music. Mr. G. W. Lemon was master of ceremonies. Rev. J. A. Richie, of Griffin, Ga., and Rev. V. D. Jenkins, were the principal speakers.

LITTLE ROCK CONFERENCE W. H. M. S.

Dear pastors and sister of the Little Rock Conference: Will you not give your careful and immediate attention to the Woman's Home Missionary organizations in your charges. In the charges where the society has not been organized let the pastor organize without delay. The fiscal year of the Woman's Home Missionary Society closes July 15. Let the presidents of the districts bestir themselves to duty. See to it that each auxiliary has a good report. Begin now. Let each auxiliary send a delegate to the meeting. Collect all you can from every member and friend; inquire of the delinquent members and dormant auxiliaries. The new work begun in foreign fields, the large increase of students that come to our Industrial Homes and are turned away for the lack of room makes the demand upon the society far greater than any previous year. Dear sisters and mothers of Methodism, can we afford to have our friends do more for our daughters than we are willing to do? What sacrifice have we made to raise the $225 assessed our conference? In 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904 the Little Rock Conference paid to the Woman's Home Missionary Society $581.71. Adeline Smith Home received in return, $10,087. At the annual meeting held at Denver, Colo., last October the Society promised to pay $700 to help the girls at Adeline Smith Home to pay their board. The presidents, who are the presiding elders' wives, will not allow the district to fall behind and at the annual meeting July 20-23 will come with round report. In Philander Smith College, May 17, the conference president, Mrs. A. T. Strickland, and the writer met the presiding elders' council. Their interest and love manifested for the Society is worthy of note. We hope the result will be a double increase in members, new auxiliaries and the financial report larger than any previous year. They highly endorsed the plans suggested to forward the work and we decided Cotton Plant the place for the Woman's Home Missionary annual meeting July 20-23, in connection with the Forrest City District Missionary meeting. Dr. G. G. Logan, conductor of missionary program. The good people and pastors of Cotton Plant and the presiding elders, Revs. B. J. Griffin, Langston, Harston, McDonald and Sherrill, promise their hearty co-operation. The program will consist of prayer services, Young People's Silver Anniversary, addresses of missionary intelligence, cantata Forrest Jubilee Band, music, Miss Naomi Johnson, A. B., pianist for the occasion. The table of literature will be in charge of Mrs. Prof. Lizzie Humphrey. MRS. G. N. JOHNSON.

MAYSVILLE DISTRICT.

From all points in Kentucky and from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Maysville, District Conference to be held at Cynthia, Ky., July 25-31, reduced rates will be granted on return trip of one-third first-class fare, plus 25 cents, if fifty or more persons hold properly receipted certificates of standard form. Secure certificates from each agent of whom tickets are purchased.—G. W. ZEIGLER, P. E.

LA GRANGE DISTRICT.

The LaGrange District Conference of the Savannah Annual Conference, will convene at West Point, Ga., July 27-31 All delegates, pastors and general officers attending this conference will please procure a certificate at starting point, and for each change of roads over which he travels. Reduced rates have been granted over all railroads in the State. All general officers are invited.—G. H. LENNON, Secretary.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT.

Pastors of the Aberdeen District please instruct all delegates on your charge to secure a certificate on purchasing their tickets to Aberdeen. By so doing they can return for one-third the full fare, plus 25 cts. Conference will convene in the Tabernacle M. E. Church, on the Athens circuit, five miles east of Aberdeen, July 26 to 30. —G. J. DONSON, Secretary.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT.

By request of the brethren of China Grove, the Brookhaven District Conference, will embrace the fifth Sunday. July 25-30, instead of July 20-23. Please notice and govern yourself accordingly. Yours as ever, G. W. SMITH.

FOREST CITY DISTRICT.

THIRD ROUND.

Auvergne, July 29-30; Augusta, August 2-3; Cotton Plant Ct., 7-8; Brinkley, 12-13; Brinkley Ct., 12-13; Brisco, 9-10; Palestine, 19-20; Park Place, 26-27; Haynes, 29; Oak Forest, Sept. 2-3; Bledsoe, 9-10; Forest City, 16-17; Caldwell and Wynne, 18-19; Widners, 17; Crawfordsville, 23-24; Jonesboro, 26-27. Each pastor should be able to report his benevolence in full. I desire to use the Fourth Round for the benefit of the pastors' salary on each charge where the benevolence is out of the way. Co-operation is what I desire. Yours for the cause, B. J. GRIFFIN, P. E.

WEST TENNESSEE DISTRICT.

Persons attending the West Tennessee District Conference, August 22-28, must procure from each agent you purchase a ticket from a standard form certificate, and you will be returned at one-third rate, plus 25 cts. Preachers holding permits will please travel on the certificate plan, and so assure the required number of 50 or more persons, or else we can't get the benefit of reduced rates.—A. J. PROCTOR, Secretary.

BATON ROUGE DISTRICT.

The Baton Rouge District Preachers' Meeting will convene in St. Mark Church, Baton Rouge, Wednesday, August 9, 2:30 p. m—J. H. THOMPSON Secretary.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

There are three entirely different kinds of ingredients used in making the three different varieties of baking powders on the market, viz:—(1) Mineral-Acid or Alum, (2) Bone-Acid or Phosphate, and (3) Cream of Tartar made from grapes. It is important, from the standpoint of health, to know something about these ingredients, and which kind is used in your baking powder.

(1) Mineral-Acid, or Alum, is made from a kind of clay. This is mixed with diluted oil of vitriol and from this solution a product is obtained which is alum. Alum is cheap; costs about two cents a pound, and baking powder made with this Mineral-Acid sells from 10 to 25c a pound.

(2) Bone-Acid, or Phosphate, is the basis of phosphate baking powders and the process is fully described in the patents issued to a large manufacturer of a phosphate powder. The U. S. Patent Office Report gives a full and exact description, but the following extract is enough:

"Burned bones, after being ground, into freshly diluted oil of vitriol and with continual stirring and in the following proportion," etc.

From this Bone-Acid phosphate baking powders are made; such powders sell from 20 to 30 cents a pound.

(3) Cream of Tartar exists in all ripe grapes, and flows with the juice fro mthe press in the manufacture of wine. After the wine is drawn off the tartar is scraped from the cask, boiled with water, and crystals of Cream of Tartar, white and very pure, separate and are collected. It differs in no respect from the form in which it originally existed in the grape. Cream of Tartar, then, while the most expensive, is the only ingredient that should be used in a baking powder to act upon the soda, as its wholesomeness is beyond question. Cream of Tartar baking powders sell at about 40 to 50 cents a pound.

Such are the facts, and every one, careful of the health of the family, should remember this rule: Baking powders selling from 10 to 25 cents a pound are made of Mineral-Acids; those selling from 20 to 30 cents of Bone-Acid; and those from 40 to 50 cents of Cream of Tartar made from grapes.

Doings of the Workmen

MISSISSIPPI.

LIBERTY—Rev. H. Judson Brown writes us that the second Sunday in July was a glorious day in Liberty, with songs and praises to God, Baptist and Methodist members and friends and the presence of Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, who preached two powerful sermons. The people of Liberty and vicinity met to dedicate a beautiful edifice to the Lord of Hosts. The members at Liberty M. E. Church have been struggling for years to build a new church, free of debt. At last their efforts have been crowned with success. On above named day the contractors turned over to the trustees a new building which cost $1.200, free of debt. The trustees now have money in the bank, to paint the building and to erect a new parsonage. The pastor and members are happy. Bro. Brown also succeeded in getting five subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN and hopes to bring five more to District Conference at Vicksburg, Miss.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

MUSKOGEE.—We had a very successful rally May 28, raising $184.50. The three prizes awarded to the captains raising the highest amount were won by Miss Leila Bowers, a beautiful gold watch; Mrs. Anna Sippes, a handsome gold ring; Mrs. Mamie Rinerly, a magnificent and useful teacher's Bible. Rev. C. R. Brown, A. B., B. D., pastor at Guthrie, preached two eloquent sermons, and Rev. T. J. Porter of the A. M. E. delivered an able sermon in the afternoon. Work will soon begin again on our beautiful brick church, which is nearing completion.

KENTUCKY.

FLEMINGSBURG.—D. C. Quaw.—Our church here is in an excellent condition, both financially and spiritually. We have just closed our first quarter for this conference year, and our reports to the quarterly conference were never better in the history of the church. Our Easter exercises were well attended; collections, $15. Our quarterly meeting collection was $44.31. Rev. W. H. Riley, who is one of the best pastors in the Lexington conference, has been returned to us for the second year. Rev. G. W. Zeigler, our newly appointed presiding elder, seems to be making a good start. Our church gave a grand reception on Friday, May 12, in honor of our elder and pastor.

HARDINSBURG.—A. A. Woolfolk, Pastor.—The rally which was held May 28, to pay on the church debt, was a success. The collection for the day was $66.45. Our first quarterly meeting was held May 14. Rev. Joseph Courtney, D. D., P. E., preached two able sermons. The collections were good.

CLEVELAND.—A. W. Bird, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held May 21-22 by Rev. L. M. Hagood, presiding elder. His sermon was one of eloquence and power. Collection, $15; paid the elder $9.30. The session was successful and pleasant. All departments of the work are in good shape.

BOWLING GREEN.—Malinda E. Hinton.—If present indications count for anything, our church here is going to be her former self during this year. The members are manifesting a degree of interest in the entire machinery of the church that certainly points towards success. Mrs. I. H. Franklin has organized the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and through her unceasing efforts they have beautifully carpeted and partially refurnished the parsonage. Rev. J. L. Franklin is carrying a good congregation and is loved by all.

LOUISIANA.

RAPIDES.—W. L. Amos, Pastor.—Our church, on the Avoca place, is entirely surrounded by water, and the Rapides side is almost in the same condition; and the best part of our people's crops are under the water. This puts the progress of the church at a standstill. But we are trusting in the Lord.

DUVALL.—V. Ferguson.—Our first quarterly conference was held June 9 at Wintonville by Presiding Elder J. W. Turner. The elder handles this work like a veteran. His sermons are strong and helpful. The Easter missionary exercises were good.

MISSISSIPPI.

Union, A. Howze, Pastor.—To our delight, the Epworth Leaguers of our church brought to the parsonage one evening recently 100 pounds of choice groceries. This party was led by Brothers Collins and Brown, Sisters Roundtree and Whilam. Prayer by Rev. Brown and several speeches by the ladies, and all soon retired to their different homes the happier for this generous act, which led to a pleasant social gathering.

Ruleville.—At Jordan Chapel, Sunday, June 11th, the day was a financial success, $22.75 being raised. Some of those who helped in this effort are: Mesdames Annie Perry, $6.50; Penina Perry, $2.95; Emma Curkum, $2.70; M. C. Raspberry, $2.70; Dollie Knox, 85 cents, and many others contributing. This congregation, tho in the rural district, is alive spiritually and financially and we are determined to make the Indianola Circuit second to none.

SABINE, J. C. White, pastor—We were late beginning our work here on account of unfavorable weather, but now everything is moving off nicely. We had a good revival during April. We are buying land and lumber for two new churches and cemeteries.

CURE FOR SICK HEADACHE.

Severe attacks of Sick Headache are due to a Torpid, Congested Liver and a Disordered Stomach. No one can enjoy good health when the stomach refuses to do its necessary work. One trial bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine has brought complete health to persons suffering with the above named symptoms, and in many cases was pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in the country.

A large bottle, usual dollar size, can be obtained at drug stores for 75 cents, but a trial bottle with full instructions will be sent free to every reader of this paper who needs it.

Address your letter or postal card to The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

TENNESSEE.

Smyrna, Edith Erwin.—On Sunday, May 7, there was a grand rally and basket dinner given by the pastor, Rev. H. E. Erwin and members of Elder M. E. Chapel, for the benefit of the new church. Rev. J. L. Massey, of the Sparta Circuit, was present and preached two wonderful sermons. Club No. 1., Capt. Ben Cartwright, raised $23.70; Club No. 2, Capt. Wm. Elder, raised $41.50; total $65.20.

VIRGINIA.

NORTH FORK.—D. McFarland, Pastor.—Rev. G. W. Zeigler held our first quarterly conference May 10 and we had a very good session; raised $5.25. The elder's quarterage was paid; have paid a small debt of $8.08 which was against the church. Two members have been reclaimed. The Sunday school membership has been increased from 8 to 28. To the school was donated recently 20 new books and other very much needed literature. Our Easter services were good. Collections, $1. We are now preparing to organize a league. The church is reviving.

Glade Spring, G. W. Cain, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held March 25-26, at Meadow View M. E. Church. Bro. Swann was present, also a number of officers with good reports. Elder Swann looks after every department of the church. Sunday was a day of joy to us. The elder preached two inspiring sermons. Received one full member, baptized three. Thirty-nine partook of the Lord's Supper. Paid our elder in full. Raised this quarter, $39.50.

Bluefield (W. Va.), T. W. Russell, Pastor.—The first Sunday in May was Trustee Day. The sum of $32.38 was raised. Bluefield will be able to make a fair report this year. Success seems to be ours.

WILLIAMS.—At Shreveport, La., Sister Williams, wife of Brother Williams, a local preacher of Asbury, died May 24, 1905, in the glorious hope of the final reward that awaits the faithful. The bereaved are commended to the sustaining grace of God. The funeral was attended from her late residence. B. M. Hubbard officiated.

COLLINS.—Brother Alexander Collins, a member of Thomson Chapel, New Orleans, La., departed this life in the Christian faith July 1, 1905. He leaves a wife, two children and a host of friends. The Rev. Nicholas assisted the writer in the funeral services. His remains were laid to rest in Louisa Street Cemetery.

D. M. SEALS, Pastor.

ELLIS.—Zechariah Ellis, one of the most enterprising and progressive citizens of Clinton, Tenn., and a Christian of the most conscientious type, departed this life on the 3rd inst. Funeral conducted from Asbury M. E. Church, of which he was a member.

E. H. FORREST.

LUCAS.—At her home in Carrollton, New Orleans, La., Mrs. Agnes Lucas, age 18 years, died June 11. She had been a member of one of the Baptist churches in Carrollton, but had fallen back into the ways of the world. God being merciful, she was permitted to linger long enough to repent. Hence she died in full faith, leaving a husband, mother-in-law and other relatives to mourn her demise.

C. W. REEVES, Pastor.

REV. MACK HENSON.

Rev. Mack Henson was born in Pike county, Alabama, December 24, 1849, and died, or rather fell asleep in Waco, Tex., Thursday, June 22, 1905, at about 9 p. m., aged 56 years, 6 months and 1 day. He was converted at the age of 15 years, was baptized and joined the church of Christ; hence he was an earnest and consistent Christian for 41 years. He joined the United States army December 22, 1866, and was honorably discharged January 15, 1868. He met, loved and married Miss Maggie Florine Jones, in St. Paul's M. E. Church, at San Antonio, Tex., in 1873. Rev. Larkin Carper officiating. He leaves Mrs. Henson, two children, one sister, three brothers, and a host of friends to lament his demise. He was admitted on trial in West Texas Conference at San Antonio, Tex., 1872, and in full membership in 1874, making 33 years of active work in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. During these years he has ably and acceptably filled the following appointments: Gonzales, Victoria, Simpson, Tabernacle, St. Paul's, San Antonio District, four years, Wesley Chapel, Austin, one term presiding elder of the Austin District, St. Paul's Dallas, six years as presiding elder of the Columbus District. Rev. M. Henson has been a staunch friend and supporter of Samuel Huston College from its beginning in 1878, when said college was struggling for existence under the name of the West Texas Conference Seminary. He has served as trustee or treasurer all these years, and a term as its financial agent. His last appointment being Waco, St. James, where he died at his post as above stated, while engaged in divine worship. He had just prayed a fervent and earnest prayer ,arose, sang two stanzas of the well-known hymn, "Give me that old-time religion," when he fell forward and expired. In the death of Rev. Henson, the West Texas Conference loses a burning and shining light, the State an honored citizen, the community a true and tried hero, the children a devoted father, the wife her mainstay. "Servant of God, well done." (Read by Rev. D. C. Lacy, at funeral service June 25.)

He was buried with Masonic and Pythian honors. Many able ministers were in attendance, among them Rev. W. H. Logan, of Trinity M. E. Church, Houston; Rev. J. H. Swan, P. E., Waco District; Rev. L. L. Campbell pastor of Third Baptist Church, Rev. Pyus, pastor of First Baptist Church, both of Austin, and Rev. Jas. Hutchinson, and others. His was the largest funeral witnessed in Austin for many years.

GREEN. — Mrs. Ella Green died at Hazlehurst, Miss., May 17, 1905. She was a faithful Christian and a member of the Camp Chapel M. E. Church. Her funeral was attended May 18, by the pastor, Rev. D. D. Dukes and the presiding elder, Rev. G. W. Smith.

TAYLOR.—Mrs. Caroline Taylor was the mother-in-law of the Rev. Thos. McCary, the Conference evangelist. She was something over 80 years old. Born in Norfolk, Va., she was brought to Louisiana over 60 years ago. She leaves some near relatives in Virginia. She was sick for three weeks, her daughter (Mrs. McCary) asked her if she was ready and willing to die. She said: "Why, daughter, why ask me such a question. What have I been doing here all this time if I am not ready? Ready, yes, and I want to go." She was conscious until the last moment. Rev. McCary could not get here in time for the funeral. Rev. H. J. Wright, pastor of Mallalieu M. E. Church, attended the same, and thus was laid away one of the survivors of former days. "Well done, faithful servant of the Lord."—H. J. W.

BAD! BAD!! BAD!!!

Bad blood comes from bad digestion—bad stomach, bad liver, bad kidneys—attended with bad, foul breath, coated tongue, bad taste, bad headaches, bad appetite and kindred symptoms. Bad as these all are, and serious as are the diseases to which they lead, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery comes to the relief and cure of all these by regulating and invigorating STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS, and putting all these organs in good order.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, opium or other harmful drugs; neither does it contain sugar or syrup, which are injurious to some stomachs. Without any of these it retains its pleasant taste and marvelous healing qualities in the most trying climate. Don't let a selfish medicine seller cheat you out of your health by giving you a substitute. He's only looking out for a larger profit, not for your good. Shun him. Honest, unselfish dealers recommend the "Golden Medical Discovery."

"That your remedies are not for the few, but for the many is evident, for I personally know of many scores of persons in this city who have been restored to health and strength by your medicines," thus writes Henry Landsheft, Esq., Alderman in 17th Ward, Buffalo, N. Y., of 1204 Jefferson Street. "I know that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is most valuable in cases of derangement of the liver, having taken the medicine some two years ago when I had a bad attack of liver trouble, and I never used a medicine before that did me so much good. I have known Dr. Pierce for twenty-six years, and do not wonder at his success, for he is a physician and man of sterling qualities, is possessed of extraordinary skill, and he has in his Sanitarium a corps of Specialists who are chosen because of their unusual knowledge and professional skill."

If suffering from any obstinate, lingering ailment, write to Dr. Pierce and get, free of charge, sound medical advice. He has the counsel and assistance of a large staff of expert specialists.

The Life of Christ," by Rev. W. Dawson. George W. Jacobs & Company, publishers. Price $1.50.

Rev. Dawson has presented us a ery interesting, fresh and vigorous Life of Christ." He is a very vigrous and independent thinker, and hows originality in dealing with the ife of Christ. However, many Lives f Christ one may have, Rev. Dawson's Life of Christ" will not be superflu-s.

"The Harmonized and Subject Refer-ce New Testament," by Rev. James Shearer: This is a practical, help-l and unique volume for the study-g of the New Testament. It contains full pages, and may be had for $1.50 addressing the author at Delaware, J.

'Quiet Talks on Prayer," by S. D. rdon. Fleming H. Revell Co., New k, publishers. A remarkably fresh vigorous book on prayer. The s are really talks. One can feel earnestness of the author, and at es the style is so direct that the ler is likely to think he is in the ior's presence. That it is in its thousand is not surprising. It remarkable volume, and one that live.

" he Mind of Methodism—A Brief." the Rev. Harvey Reeves Calkins. ings & Graham, Cincinnati; Eaton ins, New York, publishers. Price nts, net.

orty pages of well-packed and earn-st thought are the essentials of Meth-dism as a living power. The author elt he need out in India of just such bo klet as this, which would explain he nt of the church and give the re why for Methodism. Such a boo is needed here also by pastors, nd fathers and mothers everywhere fo ir young folk, and we are sure Sunday school superintendent teacher would put this simple, well written, and earnest and every way elpful book of 40 pages into the hands of their scholars, results would happe that would be gratifying to yo nd old.

Crescent City Notes

Sunday morning services at Wesley Chapel, July 17, were well attended. Collection for the day, $39.86. The Sunday-school scholars will probably be prepared for the catechism contest the fourth Sunday, July 23, and on this date will be delivered at Wesley, by the pastor, Rev. J. T. Johnson, the annual sermon of The Golden Harp Association.

The second quarterly conference of Malden Chapel, Rev. Jno. A. Lindsay, pastor, was held last week by the presiding elder, Rev. J. F. Marshall. Success on all lines were indicated by the reports. The love feast on July 12th was a decided success, spiritually and financially. Rev. H. J. Wright, with twenty members from Mallalieu, rendered excellent service. Rev. V. Chapman led the meeting in a way that left a lasting impression on all present. Two persons were prayed for by their request. The presiding elder spoke very encouragingly and was exceedingly pleased at the outlook for Malden. Rev. H. C. Armston, ex-pastor and founder of Malden, was present and made a very helpful address. Collection $4.05.

Rev. Thomas F. Roberson, of Longstreet, La., reports a very successful year's work thus far. He speaks in the highest terms of the loyalty of his membership. In a contest held recently, in which a gold medal was offered the one bringing in the largest amount of money for the church, Mr. John Daniels was the successful contestant.

The installation of officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at Wesley Chapel on last Monday The program rendered was as follows: Invocation by Mr. Mitchell; vocal solo, little Mosella Thomas; welcome address, Miss Mamie Bland; response, Miss Mamie Peyton; vocal solo, "Dream of Paradise," Miss Irma Williams; "The Work of the W. C. T. U.," Mrs. Amelia Seals; vocal solo, Prof. Colwell; address, Rev. T. J. Johnson; installation of officers, Rev. J. W. Washington. Mrs. A. A. Murcherson, president; Mrs. Rebecca Hill, vice-president; Mrs. Amelia Seals, secretary; Mrs. Lydia Norris, assistant secretary; Miss M. A. Oliver, treasurer. The choir rendered excellent music. After the services a reception was tendered the W. C. T. Union by the pastor and a committee of ladies of the church.

Doings of the Workmen

CLINTON.—Isaac Butler.—There was a grand concert given on the 27th of May by Miss Amy Davis and Mrs. Della Anderson, for the purpose of getting lamps for the church. The programme was excellent and the crowd was enormous. On the 17th of June they presented five beautiful lamps to the trustees, at the cost of $12.50. We, the trustees of Mount Zion M. E. Church, pray God's blessings upon these young ladies in copious showers.

JACKSON.—The Ariel Bowen chapter of the Epworth League was organized in Magnolia M. E. church June 15, 1905, with the following officers: President, Miss Mary Evans; first vice president, Miss Sue Parker; second vice president, Miss Lizzie Stull; third vice president, Mrs. Ida Cook; fourth vice president, Miss Mattie Evans; secretary, Mr. George Baisseau; treasurer, Miss Frankie Walker; superintendent J. E. L., Mrs. M. D. Washington; librarian, Miss Agnes Kemper. This chapter is named in honor of the sainted Mrs. Dr. Bowen. The Epworth Herald will please copy. Rev. H. T. S. Johnson, P. C.; J. H. Thompson, district president; Rev. J. W. Turner, P. E.

VIRGINIA.

Christiansburg, J. F. Prigmore, Pastor.—My third quarterly conference was held April 30-31. Rev. W. E. Mitchel was present. According to reports the work was in fine condition. Our people are always glad to see Rev. Mitchel. He preached two good sermons. Total collections for the day, $17.83.

Bell Springs, A. W. Randolph, Pastor.—On April 23 we closed our revival wth good success. Had five conversions and six accessions to the church. On May 13-14 the third quarterly conference was held, with Rev. W. E. Mitchell, the presiding elder, in the chair. The majority of the officers presented written reports. The elder spoke very encouragingly to the pastor and members of the work they had done this quarter. He preached an able sermon. At three o'clock the Lord's Supper was administered. Many of our white friends were out and contributed to the collection. Paid on indebtedness, $19.00; paid the elder, $6.05; pastor, $82.03; total raised for the quarter, $137.08.

NEW ORLEANS, JULY 27, 1905

Vol. 39 No. 30

Editorial

As a result of an explosion of a boiler on the United States gunboat Bennington, in San Diego Bay, California, the morning of July 21st, 49 men are known to be dead, 7 are missing and 54 are injured, some seriously. The people of San Diego came nobly to the aid of the sufferers, more than 300 women volunteering their services at hospitals.

The Picayune of this city in referring to Capt. Peter Joseph, who recently died in Denver, Colorado, said that altho Mr. Joseph was a colored man "he was thoroughly white in character, principle, and dealings with everybody." From conversation with many of the old citizens who have known Mr. Joseph he was well worthy of this confidence. Character, principle and honest dealing have no color and are to be found in white and black the same.

Siam is an independent monarchy located in Southeastern Asia. By a decree of the King the slaves in the bounds of that kingdom are to be free. Those who are slaves are so voluntarily and not by force. In referring to slavery the King says: "We have always considered that the institution, even in this modified form, is an impediment to the progress of our country." The emancipation is to be gradual. Children of parents who are slaves shall be free, the law of slavery is abolished and no person hereafter can be made a slave.

The teamsters' strike that has been on in Chicago for more than three months has been declared off, the union losing, practically, every point of contention. The only concession that the union men gained was in the case of the lumber drivers, who are privileged to wear union buttons. In other cases even wearing of buttons is discretionary with the employers. The strike was one of the most bitter and expensive that has ever occurred in Chicago. More than thirty lives were lost and hundreds were injured. The union men lost practically everything.

A movemennt is on foot to convert McDonogh School No. 5, this city, which is at present used by the colored children, into a school for white children. It is said that "the building is large and commodious, well ventilated, situated in the center of several lots, located on one of the best paved streets," and "in every respect just what is required for white children." Of course, colored children do not need a well ventilated and well situated school building. An appropriation of $20,000 is asked for with which to erect a school building for the colored children in place of the one now being used. It is hoped that if the present school is taken a new one will be granted at once.

THE NIAGARA MOVEMENT

The development of the race is a long, tedious and difficult process. In spite of the history of other peoples the new race is constantly feeling for safe ground upon which it may rest its hope and secure a firm footing. Many new movements, therefore, are constantly coming into view. Many movements, doubtless the result of new ideas, and again the result of the re-stating of fixed principles that have been somewhat neglected. New movements occasionally find their basis in the ambition of some person or persons who desire leadership. But in the long run all the movements seek the elevation of the people and are productive of good.

During the early part of July a notable conference of colored men was held in Buffalo, New York, under the direct inspiration and leadership of Prof. W. E. B. DuBois, the author of "The Souls of Black Folk." Fourteen states were represented and the gathering was formally organized under the name, "The Niagara Movement." Quite a strenuous name to say the least. If it partakes of its namesake it will have a mighty rushing effect upon American life. In its platform the movement declared in favor of freedom of speech and criticism, an unfettered and unsubsidized press, full manhood suffrage, the abolition of all class distinction based simply on race or color, the recognition of the principle of human brotherhood as a practical, present creed; the recognition of the highest and best human training as the monopoly of no class or race; a belief in the dignity of labor; united effort to realize these ideals under a wise, pure, fearless leadership.

After formally stating its purpose, which is in general the uplift of Negro-Americans, the platform protests "emphatically and continually" against the curtailment of the political rights of the Negro, declaring: "We believe in manhood suffrage; we believe that no man is so good, intelligent or wealthy as to be entrusted wholly with the welfare of his neighbor. We believe also in protest against the curtailment of our civil rights."

But the movement is further, and justifiably outspoken as to the treatment some of the American citizens receive in places of public entertainment, and strikingly appropriate is the reference in regards to the separate cars as operated in the South.

Continuing, the platform forcibly and pertinently declares: "We especially complain against the denial of equal opportunities to us in economic life; in the rural districts of the South this amounts to peonage and virtual slavery; all over the South it tends to crush labor and small business enterprises; and everywhere American prejudice, helped often by iniquitous laws, is making it more difficult for Negro-Americans to earn a decent living."

The movement urges compulsory education, high school training for all and that college training should be the monopoly of no class or race in any section of our common country. The platform also declared in favor of technical schools for the training of artisans. The movement touched a very vital point in the following paragraph:

"We hold up for public execration the conduct of two opposite classes of men: The practice among employers of importing ignorant Negro American laborers in emergencies, and then affording them neither protection nor permanent employment; and the practice of labor unions of proscribing and boycotting and oppressing thousands of their fellow-toilers, simply because they are black. These methods have accentuated and will accentuate the war of labor and capital, and they are disgraceful to both sides."

American prejudice is strong. To say that it is increasing may be wide of the mark. The Negro in his development is now more sensitive to discrimination than he was years ago. And then, too, that the American white people are a little more sensitive of the Negro, inasmuch as he is pushing up in various lines, is not to be wondered at. Yet the paragraph found in the platform against prejudice is timely when it declares "Any discrimination based simply on race or color is barbarous, we care not how hallowed it may be by custom, expediency, or prejudice."

There is all too much favor of settling the status of the Negro without consulting him directly. No equation for the solution of the race question that eliminates the Negro will ever be satisfactory and permanent. The Negro certainly is a factor in his own elevation and by divine decree must be a factor in the settling of his status. The platform very properly declares, therefore:

"We repudiate the monstrous doctrine that the oppressor should be the sole authority as to the rights of the oppressed."

There is much in the movement to be commended; its spirit is manly, progressive and just; it makes no extravagant demands and no demands that may not be accepted by all American citizens. But there is one paragraph in the platform to which we unreservedly, positively and emphatically dissent. It is this:

"The Negro race in America, stolen, ravished and degraded, struggling up through difficulties and oppression, needs sympathy and receives criticism; needs help and is given hindrance; needs protection and is given mob violence; needs justice and is given charity; needs leadership and is given cowardice and apology; needs bread and is given a stone. This nation will never stand justified before God until these things are changed."

In particular cases every indictment in this paragraph could be substantiated. But while the American Negro has much of which to complain on the other hand he has much for which he may profoundly rejoice. If it is true that no people has been so much oppressed and dehumanized, on the other hand it is also true that no race in all history has been so largely helped and so generously provided for as the Negro; if he has received criticism he has also received commendation and encouragement again and again: if he

Where I First Landed on African Soil

By Bishop I. B. Scott, D. D.

In looking about himself in Africa, one sees so many things that are of interest that it is difficult to decide what will be most interesting to the readers of any given periodical. But since I am here and they are there, I must make choice for them. Hence I shall call attention to some things I saw and learned of Sierra Leone, an English colony, where I first set foot on African soil. And I may say I really think I have seen nothing to interest me more than what I saw in and about Freetown, its capital and principal city. It has an ideal harbor and presents a beautiful picture as approached from the sea. A peninsula, that must be more than twenty miles long, juts out into the ocean from the Southern coast, like the thumb of a man's hand, and protects the town, which nestles between the thumb and what I shall call the index finger, from any of the disorderly capers of "old Ocean." A low chain of mountains runs along the full length of the peninsula like so many reclining lions. The town, for the most part, lies along the water's edge at the foot of the mountains, though it is gradually creeping toward their summits. It is a beautiful sight to behold from an approaching steamer either by night or day. The harbor is deep and calm.

This colony, it will be recalled, is the result of a benevolent movement made during the latter part of the eighteenth century in England. There were several hundred free Negroes in and about London who were colonized here in 1787, and about five years later more than a thousand others were brought from Nova Scotia. To be more exact, according to the best information obtainable, an organization known as the Sierra Leone Company sent out a party of 400 from London in the first installment, but 84 died enroute. In 1792 a second party of 1196 left Nova Scotia for the same point, and 65 of these died enroute. The Nova Scotians were American Negroes who had sided with England during the Revolutionary war, hence the interest manifested in them. Sixteen sailing vessels were needed to transport them to their new home. Some idea of the effects of their exposure and privations can be had from the fact that one half of the Europeans and one-tenth of the Negroes died during the first rainy season. But the colony held on. In 1800 their numbers were again augmented by the transportation of 550 Maroons from the West Indies, the result of the Maroon War in Jamaica. Sierra Leone became a Crown Colony in 1808 and later in the new century, from 1819 to 1838, 48,359 Africans, rescued by the British from slave traders, were repatriated and registered in the colony. So much for its origin, now as to its present.

When the steamer in which our party came from Liverpool dropped anchor in the harbor, my American eyes beheld some strange sights The Boarding Master, who first came to inspect our ship was black, as were all his attendants, and the engineers on all the steam crafts which were gliding from place to place in the harbor, were black. "Well," said I, "what does all this mean? Let's go ashore and see where we are." So we went and as we went the thing got blacker and blacker. Such was the color of all the Customs officers I met, save one; and thus it was in the Treasurer's and perhaps a dozen other departments. There were scores and scores of sub-officers and clerks almost as black as nature found it convenient to make them. Each one seemed to be performing his duties to the satisfaction of his chief, and each one thoroughly absorbed in his work. I went to the telegraph and cable office and the keys were manipulated by black fingers; this same class sold me my ticket as I prepared to board the train (for our steamer remained here three days discharging cargo) and the guards who collected the fares on the train were the same. In the Post Office Department I saw no white faces. The Colonial Postmaster-General, the Hon. James C. Smith, is a West Indian—a mulatto. In addition to the usual work of such a department, General Smith has under his charge the Post Office Savings Bank Department, embracing in both a clerical force of twenty or more, not including the officials in different parts of the protectorate. He is evidently a thorough business man, and it was gratifying to hear him speak in the highest terms of the efficiency and honesty of the force under his supervision. I am glad to present a picture of the General with his assistant and their force.

This, as I have already stated, is an English colony, and perhaps the most liberally governed of any on the coast. In fact, since the British have become so nervous, and I may say, so greatly excited over the native question, it is doubtful whether they would give any other colony an equally liberal chance for development and self-government. The British policy now, as announced by some of the leaders in South Africa, is more nearly akin to that advocated for the Negro by the rabid Southerners in the States. While they know that nothing will elevate the African but education and such training as a white man needs, yet to give him this is dangerous, since he will eventually want to exercise the rights of citizenship. While I cannot believe that such a policy is expressive of the mind of the English people, it does represent the wish of that element of statesmen who hold sway in Africa, and that class of capitalists who think education spoils the laborer. God pity Africa if this view is to prevail.

But as I looked about me at Sierra Leone, I could not avoid the question: "What would the American laborer do here?" I saw dozens of natives carrying boxes, barrels and other heavy freight on their heads. On inquiring as to wages, I was told that they get a shilling a day; in some cases they may, in addition, get a small portion of rice, say a pint or its equivalent and a small piece of salt fish. The shilling amounts to twenty-four cents, but as a rule is accepted by the merchants as one-fourth of a dollar. Now, this may be all right for a native man, but what would an American Negro do on such wages? Besides, I doubt whether he could get this class of work for even that, since for reasons native labor is preferred. I have compared these conditions with those I have found at other coast points, as far as I have traveled, and find them the same, or, to say the least, no better. Mechanics, it is true, are paid more. Passing steamers bound south call at Sierra Leone and other ports for native boys to handle their cargo while on the coast. A "boy" is any male native, old or young, but they wish grown men, and these are only too glad to ship at a shilling a day and their rice. Some idea can be had as to the immense number that are thus employed when I tell you that scores of steamers have to be supplied with them.

But, here, I have taken all the space I should now, but could write a number of other things that might be of interest. Still, I must stop for this time.

Possibilities of the Louisiana Conference

By Rev. J. F. Marshall, D. D.

The outgrowth of what is known in the history of our Southern Methodism as the "Christmas Conference," organized December 25, 1805, in Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, was the Mississippi Mission Conference—out of which soon sprang the Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, West Texas, Austin, Southern German, Upper Mississippi, and more recently the Gulf Conference. All these from the time they entered the field of activity, have been doing aggressive and heroic work, pushing the conquest of our glorious Methodism. We give each our hearty God-speed and fervent amen! in every holy endeavor and successful achievement.

The Louisiana Conference has a unique place in this galaxy. Occupying the very territory on which the first organization took place, gives it an importance and prestige that cannot be overlooked. This brings a responsibility that must be shouldered and borne with fortitude. Hitherto have we wrought—meeting demands and performing arduous duties. But a large field and a great opportunity are before us.

A considerable part of our legitimate territory has not been covered. While it is true that Catholicism holds great sway in Southern Louisiana, there are evidences of a turning to the light reflected by the gospel torch under the banner of Methodism. In the city of New Orleans and along the river coast, we have not received all that is due us. It is also true, that much earnest evangelistic and material labor must be done in North Louisiana before we can with any degree of satisfaction content ourselves with having met the demands upon us. Out of this fact comes what is said to be the small proportion of our lay membership to that of the ministry. But it reqiures all we have and more to cultivate the whole field. Let us not falter, but in the spirit of Him who has called us to this work, make it known that we go forward.

We enjoy the reputation of following the old landmarks. We are not quite enough up to date to give up the class meetings and love feasts. We believe as much as ever in keeping up the revival fire. These will no doubt go to our credit, and by them we shall be better able to advance our cause.

I am sure it is our desire to fully develop our resources and secure the best results. The possibilities are before us and the responsibilities are upon us. How can we best meet them?

In obedience to the Master through willing and consecrated service. All can say the cause shall not suffer, nor shall its progress be impeded by any reproach we shall bring upon it. In unselfish devotion, curbing inordinate ambition, we shall be able to overcome every difficulty and find ourselves workmen well appointed. Harmony and co-operation in our ranks will give vantage ground. The enemy will be put to flight, and seeming impossibilities will be turned into victories for the cause we have vowed to support with heart and talent.

Entering fully into such a spirit, every phase of the work would soon feel its impulse, with immediate results. Revivals would be frequent, the spiritual life deeper and richer, and more interest would be taken in the regular services and all our general interests would be better and more largely supported.

The coming of the Missionary Convention for our Southwestern Methodism to our city in October, is an event of great importance. It will be fraught with much to instruct and encourage in the great work of missionary endeavor and conquest. We should appreciate the honor it brings us by bending all of our energy to make it a complete success, and evidence our deepest interest by increased contributions and strongly supporting the cause which the gathering will represent. Let us measure up to our duty and responsibility and our present and future reward will be ample.

New Orleans.

Hampton Negro Conference

Held at Hampton Institute, July 12, 13 and 14.

Tuberculosis Among Negroes Considered—Exporting of Colored Girls Condemned—Negro Insurance Companies Discussed—Social Settlement Work Among Negroes Urged—Organized Charity and Prison Reform Recommended—Plans Adopted to Improve methods of Farming—Negro Support of Negro Educational Institutions Urged.

Consumption Among Negroes—The discussion of consumption by Dr. Joseph J. France, of Portsmouth, Va., aroused great interest among the colored people of the Conference. Dr. France showed that the Negro death rate from consumption is about twice that of the whites in the leading cities of Virginia. He urged plans similar to those used in New York City to combat the disease. The Conference is already cooperating with the National Tuberculosis Association in the distribution of literature upon the subject, in forming local committees to educate the people and in efforts to establish a sanatorium for the Negro consumptives of Virginia and other southern states.

Exporting of Colored Girls—Next in its interest to the people was the subject of exporting colored girls to Northern cities for immoral purposes. A number of flagrant cases were given by delegates, the saddest of which was that of a young colored girl who was brought home to a Virginia town a physical and mental wreck. This young woman had been away from her old parents but a few weeks when a white woman one day without any warning to the parents led her into the house and left her there with no word of explanation. The girls mind is perfectly blank. She spends her waking hours in a corner of the little house with her hands over her face, unable to tell her troubles to her dazed and grief-stricken parents.

The Conference is now in a position to direct any young woman into safe hands in Philadelphia, Boston, and New York. Miss Frances A. Kellor of New York City has brought about the co-operation of various forces which will ultimately stop this nefarious traffic.

Negro Savings Institutions—The economic committee considered the soundness of Negro savings institutions. It was shown that Negro insurance companies pay but little attention to death rates in selection of their policy holders. The extreme danger of this oversight was forcibly pointed out and committees were appointed to bring the insurance people together on this matter and also to educate the people in some of the principles underlying sound insurance. The race was urged to give its savings institutions its closest attention. Saving and loan establishments are in a sense public institutions and they sholud be regularly and carefully inspected.

Negro Education—City schools were shown to be much better than those of the rural districts, yet, even in many of the cities, the seating capacity of the schoolrooms was not nearly sufficient. As against this, it was stated that in some cities the Negroes do not use even the limited seating room offered them. The Negroes of these cities were urged to see to it that their children used the space given, and then to seek for further advantages.

In many places where the public funds are inadequate Negroes are supplementing them out of their own pockets and it was recommended that they continue to do this, while at the same time not forgetting that they are entitled to their fair share of public funds and not neglecting to use wise means to obtain this share.

Religious Work and Social Settlement—Sunday schools were proved to be very effective agencies for good among the colored people. In every section of this state more children attend Sunday schools that the public schools. While the public school attendance is about 23 per cent. the Sunday school average is about 38 per cent. These Sunday schools are gradually increasing the attention which they give to moral and practical questions of life. They are a power against intemperance and other evils among the Negroes. Nevertheless there is much that can be learned from the methods of social settlements and a committee was appointed to bring about a union of Sunday school and neighborhood contact work.

Prison Reform and Organized Charity—The evils of the county jails were described in their relation to the colored criminals. There were shown to be centers for the diffusion of immorality among the colored people more dangerous to the morals of the race in some respects than a consumptive house to the physique of a community. The evils of indiscriminate giving were discussed and the barbarous care of the aged in public institutions was described.

Through co-operation with the Virginia Charities and Correction Association it is hoped that reform in the county jails and in charitable institutions will be brought about.

Improved Methods of Farming—This year the Conference began a movement in behalf of farmers. According to the census of 1900, 59 per cent. of the Negro farmers of Virginia own their land, and they are annually increasing both in number of the farmers and in the amount of land possessed. These farmers are often situated in counties where contact with the forward movements of the age is exceedingly rare. The Hampton Negro Conference now plans to assist such farmers by assembling them in local conferences to listen to lectures on improved farming and to co-operate in various methods of self-help similar to those which Sir Horace Plunkett introduced into Ireland.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

If Life Were All

If life were all,
Where were the recompense
For all our tears?
The troubled toil
Of all the long-drawn years,
The struggle to survive
The passing show
Were scarce worth while,
If life were all.

If life were all,
What were it worth to live?
To build on pain,
So soon to learn
Our building were but vain,
And then to pass.
To some vague nothingness
Were scarce worth while,
If life were all.

If life were all,
How might we bear
Our poor hearts' grief?
Our partings frequent
And our pleasures brief,
The cup pressed to the lips,
Then snatched away,
Were scarce worth looking on
If life were all.

Life is not all—
We build eternally,
And what is ours to-day
To make existence sweet
Is ours alway.
We stand on solid ground
That lasts for aye and aye,
And makes life's sojourn
Worth the while—
Life is not all.

Life is not all,
I do not know the plan;
I only know that God is good,
And that his strength sustains.
I only know that He is just;
So in the starless, songless night
I lift my face and trust,
And God my spirit witness bears,
Life is not all.

Abide With Me

It would be difficult to find a happier illustration of what Christ means than the one taken from the vine and its branches. To those whom he addressed, the vine-covered hills, with their luscious clusters, were a familiar scene. His lesson was one of easy application. A vine can be run into leaves as well as into fruitage. His purpose was to teach the disciples that they were to carry out what he was here for—they were to be fruit-bearers. Otherwise the husbandman would sever them from the vine. In order to be this kind of branches, they must abide in the vine—"I am the vince, ye are the branches, therefore abide in me."

Clearly the lesson is that fruit-bearing in Christian service depends upon abiding in Christ, just as the fruit-bearing branch must have a vital connection with the living vine. It is equally important that the branch bear fruit, else it will be cut off by the husbandman, as sapping strength that should go into fruitful branches. A man cannot be truly useful in the kingdom of God except as he is unted by a vital faith to Jesus Christ. When he ceases to be useful he is cut off. The love of God is such that it engenders a sympathetic and interested love for our fellowmen. It is that which gives the Christian power. Put the love of Christ in your work, and the result becomes immediately apparent. The world recognizes this as a Christian's credentials, and accepts him upon that basis as a child of God. If he veers from this, if he goes wrong, the wide-awake newspapers are quick enough to discover the vulnerable points, and the headlines appear accordingly. To look for an easy time is to miss the purpose of religion. To seek for happiness when we should seek for service, is to miss both. Service is so intimately allied with happiness that it is impossible to have one without diligence in the other, and neither will be satisfactory except as the life is rooted in Christ.—Unidentified.

The Christian Soldier Dead

Fold his hands upon his breast,
Done his work; now sweet his rest.
Bowing low in solitude,
Shed a tear of gratitude
For his soldier work, well done,
For salvation sought and won,
Purchased by the Saviour's blood—
Son of man and Son of God.

Let his body rest in peace;
He from war has found surcease;
Battles fought, long marches done,
Hungering ended, victory won,
Broke the fetters of th' enslaved,
Honored flag and country saved—
Let the loyal soldier rest,
Strew sweet flwers o'er his breast,
Godly, brave, forever blest!

The Mark of Sin

REV. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

With sorrow let us confess that sin also hath its trade-marks. If right thoughts stamp the brow with beauty, wrong thoughts brand the brow as with a hot iron. Here experience makes the argument, and observation furnishes the proofs. Make your way into yonder Bowery. Behold these faces that represent a soul that has fallen in to ruins. Look at yonder reeling figure! The bleared eyes of the drunkard tell us that he bears about with him the marks of intemperance. The swollen face of the glutton is the mark of his want of moderation. How furtive the eyes of the thief! How cunning and shifty the glance of his companions! Sin hath stamped the lips that should have been curved as if in marble, and made them weak and characterless.

On every side are human beings that once were clothed with the image and beauty of God in their infancy. Now, in age, the face is seamed with sickness, dimmed with sensuality, and plowed with passion. Muddy the eyes with baseness! With the serpent's twist, the feet go forward. Hands move with the cunning of the fox, and the blow that strikes is unfair, like the stroke of the wolf. For man that was made to stand upright like the gods hath fallen to the level of the beasts, with things that creep and crawl. O, sometimes the jail with its bars seems like a cage of wild animals. God intended that man should be ever more and more beautiful, until in old age he should wear loveliness even as the sheaf of corn comes to its climax of beauty when it is ready for the sickle. Who defiled and destroyed the temple of God? Lo! an enemy hath done this! Be not deceived, young man. Come soon or come late, the marks will certainly come. Evil thoughts are like the drops of water in the caves of Kentucky. The drop seems pure as crystal, but it holds a sediment of lime, an infinitesimal stain of iron. These do not report themselves to the eye, but when long time has passed by, and the myriad drops, like myriad thoughts have fallen, they leave their yellow deposit. Slowly the stalactites of thought and habit grow. You may think the thought leaves no impression. Indeed, the impulse may be as noiseless as the angel's wing. The touch of imagination may be as gentle as the touch of a zephyr on the cheek, and they leave their imprint fixed forever. For you are the sum total of all your yesterdays.

Trees are monuments that leaves build. During a hundred summers the character is a cathedral, a Parthenon, a palm tree, a palace, a what-you-will, builded out of thoughts, impulses, resolves, decisions of the will. Blessed is that man Paul, who can say, "My soul is the temple of God, worthy to be fit for his worship." Alas, for that man who, in horror, calls upon the mountains and the rocks to fall upon him, because the marks of the demon are burned into his brow. Be not deceived. God keeps his books. The angel of judgment records the life story for him as the angel of memory preserves it for you. If the book of recollection could speak, it would say to each transgressor, "I bear about in my pages the marks of your master, Satan," and the marks shall be for a witness against you.—In the Northwestern Advocate.

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text: Jer. 5: 31. Theme: The end thereof.

All of the ways of sin are very deceptive and flattering. The end of the ways of sin is always kept out of sight. Absalom would not have continued in his awful way of rebellion if he could have seen at the end of it his tragic death. Judas Iscariot would not have persisted in his effort to betray his Savior if he could have seen the real end of his way of sin. The text is part of a message from God to the Jews many years ago, and it is a message from Him to you, and to me, and to all men in all ages to come. The text contains an unpleasant question to the wrongdoer, to the drunkard, to the thief, to the unfaithful, to those who are wasting their time, searing their conscience, and to them who have backslided, and are now staying away from the house of God, and all other places which suggest this question, "What will ye do in the end thereof?" The text is an unanswerable question. Man can refuse to consider it, but like the Questioner, the question remains in full force. Many may do as sailors are often said to do when their ship is going to pieces, and thus surely hasten their own destruction. Some often act as did the man who had not on a wedding garment although he knew what the result would be. Wicked men have been known to act in answering this question as did a grizzly bear that contended with a large saw which it hugged in its rage; there was only a bear sawed into two pieces. The text is an important, absolutely imperative question. Wilful blindness, stolid indifference, hardness of heart, will not keep the end from coming. Forgetfulness of consequences, studied determination to frustrate the plans of God, and make void, and retard the ever progressive work of redemption will not delay the coming of the end of sin and the sinner. The man who thinks of his end will be saved from death. The sober sailors always consult their chart and compass. It is the burnt child that fears or dreads the fire. Instinctively the elephant shakes the first end of the bridge before it starts across. Many who read these lines are conscious of wrongs done, sins committed, promises made, and vows unkept, but are still unwilling to be aroused to action by the question, "What will ye do in the end thereof?" He must be a madman who perseveres in a way which must of necessity end in death. The way to heaven is the best if not the most attractive; in it is life, "and in the pathway thereof there is no death."

New Presiding Elders

REV. G. W. ZEIGLER.

Rev. George Washington Ziegler was born September 9th, 1885, on a farm eight miles from Winston-Salem, North Carolina. His parents were slaves. After the war school advantages being poor, they did what they could to give their children the advantages of the school in the country. Here young Ziegler manifested a desire for an aducation and began to imbibe the same. He attended the rudiments of school at Salem a short while. His parents sent him to Indiana for greater educational opportunities. He entered the public school at Newscastle, finishing up the course, thus laying the foundation of his education. Here he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was called to the ministry. Still feeling the need of a better preparation for his great mission, he entered Dupauw University, at Green Castle, Ind., and he pursued his studies for a number of years. Entering the itinerant ranks of the Lexington Annual M. E. Conference, at Paris, Ky., in 1880, under the sainted Bishop Simpson, he has served in the pastorate twenty-five years. Among the noted churches which he has served in the Lexington Conference are: Springfield, O., Union Chapel, Cincinnati, O., Ninth Street, Covington, Ky., Lexington, Ky., Gunn's Tabernacle, Lexington, Ky., Asbury Temple. Dr. Ziegler also served Wiley Memorial, Chattanooga, and Clark Memorial, Nashville. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by the McKinley Memorial National Correspondence College, September 1st, 1903.

He was appointed presiding elder at the last session of the Lexington Conference, of the Maysville District.

Rev. W. A. Webber was born a slave in South Carolina about 1853. His mother, Nancy Webber, who was also a slave, taught him the letters of the alphabet from an old "Blue back" speller while working in the field. He came to Tennessee in 1868, and began to learn the wheelwright trade by working at it in a shop for $50 per year.

REV. W. A. WEBBER.

When a Sabbath school was opened in the town where he lived by a Northern white lady, he entered it with his heart full of zeal to learn the Bible, and was ever afterwards an earnest Sabbath school worker. He was married when quite young to Miss Maria L. Whiteside. Five children blessed this union. Three are living, two of these are graduates of Morristown Normal College.

He served in the local ranks quite a while before entering the Conference.

He was ordained a deacon by Bishop Foster, while yet a local preacher, and was ordained elder by Bishop Goodsell. He was appointed presiding elder by Bishop Warren in 1904.

He has always been a successful church builder, and never left one in debt.

He served the Knoxville District as secretary fourteen years in succession, and the annual Conference as statistical secretary four years. He is presiding elder of the Knoxville District, East Tennessee Conference.

He is a Royal Arch Mason and a Knight Templar.

One kindly deed may turn
The fountain of thy soul
To love's sweet day-star, that shall o'er thee burn
Long as its currents roll!

A Plea for Total Abstinence

The temperance question in this country is one of individual conviction. That conviction is most readily and most permanently formed in childhood and youth. The opportunity and responsibility then for the most vital and practical temperance work rest upon parents in the home and preachers and teachers in the church.

The position of the church on every phase of the temperance question is clearly and fully stated in the dsicipline. These forcible utterances by the church should be made known by the ministry to all the members, and should be taught to children by their parents.

The methods by which the church may do a great work for temperance are more complete than ever before; in the organization of the Sunday school, Junior and Senior Leagues, Congregations and Conferences into temperance societies. But these admirable methods must be worked if they are to be of service. In its teaching and methods the church has paved the way for temperance work on the individual life and conscience.

Personal total abstinence as required of every Christian and member of the church is the most important and practical result to be obtained by temperance reform. It is not generally urged as it should be. Legal and political phases of temperance work have overshadowed and largely turned attention from total abstinence.

The ministry should preach it and urge it upon men everywhere, the Sunday schools, Junior and Senior Leagues should be organized into Temperance Societies and total abstinence taught in programs, public meetings and in private and personal appeal.

Total abstinence is the first and most practical result to be obtained.

Total abstinence is the only sure foundation for legal prohibition.

Total abstinence is the great need of every age and every class.

Total abstinence, instilled into the minds of childhood, the watchword of a clean and strong young manhood, the foundation of anti-saloon strength among voting citizens, is the urgent need to-day.

Why Mother Is Proud

I ook in his face, look in his eyes,
Roguish and blue and terribly wise—
Roguish and blue, but quickest to see
When mother comes in as tired as can be:
Quickest to find her the nicest old chair:
Quickest to get to the top of the stair:
Quickest to see that a kiss on her cheek
Would help her far more than to chatter, to speak.
Look in his face, and guess, if you can,
Why mother is proud of her little man.

The mother is proud—I will tell you this;
You can see it yourself in her tender kiss.
But why? Well, of all her dears
There is scarcely one who ever hears
The moment she speaks and jumps to see
What her want or her wishes might be.
Scarcely one. They all forget,
Or are not in the notion to go quite yet.
But this she knows, if her boy is near,
There is somebody certain to want to hear.

Mother is proud, and she holds him fast.
And kisses him first, and kisses him last;
And he holds her hand and looks in her face,
And hunts for her spool which is out of place,
And proves that he loves her whenever he can—
That is why she is proud of her little man.

Detirmined to Succeed

The following is one of the traditions of a manufacturing firm in Glasgow, Scotland. Thirty years ago a barefooted, ragged urchin presented himself before the desk of the principal partner and asked for work as an errand boy.

"There's a deal o' running to be dune," said Mr. Blank, jestingly affecting a broad Scotch accent. "Your qualification wud be a pair o' shoon."

The boy, with a grave nod, disappeared. He lived by doing odd jobs in the market, and slept under one of the stalls. Two months passed before he had saved enough money to buy the shoes. Then he presented himself before Mr. Blank one morning, and held out a package.

"I have the shoon, sir," he said, quietly.

"Oh!" Mr. Blank with difficulty recalled the circumstances. "You want a place? Not in those rags, my lad. You would disgrace this house."

The boy hesitated a moment, and then went out without a word. Six months passed before he returned, decently clothed in coarse but new garments. Mr. Blank's interest was aroused. For the first time he looked at the boy attentively. His thin, bloodless face showed that he had stinted himself of food for months in order to buy those clothes. The manufacturer now questioned the boy carefully, and found, to his regret, that he could neither read nor write.

"It is necessary that you should do both before we could employ you in carrying home packages," he said. "We have no place for you."

The lad's face grew paler; but, without a word of complaint, he disappeared. He now went fifteen miles into the country, and found work in stables near to a night school. At the end of the year he again presented himself before Mr. Blank.

"I can read and write," he said, briefly.

"I gave him the place," the employer said years afterward, "with the conviction that, in process of time, he would take mine, if he made up his mind to do it. Men rise slowly in Scotch business houses, but he is our chief foreman."—Western Record.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson VI—August 6 1905. Title—"Josiah's Good Reign." (2 Chron. 34:1-13.) Golden Text.—"Remember thy Creator in the days of thy Youth." (Eccl. 12:1)

When Manasseh died they buried him in his own house. Amon, his son, reigned in his stead. He was twenty-two years of age when placed on the throne, and he reigned two years. He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord. He did not humble himself, or repent, when warned by the prophets, but went on from bad to worse. His servants assassinated him in his own house. The people of the land slew those who conspired against Amon, and then put Josiah on the throne. They were no doubt friends to David, and stood for all that he loved.

Before we see the overthrow of Jerusalem we shall yet behold some glorious years during the reign of good Josiah. Through his influence God tried them yet once more. If they had but known the things that made for their peace, during this their day of visitation, and had improved them, their ruin might have been prevented. But they were hid from them, and the reigns that follow brought on utter destruction.

I. The childhood of Josiah. (Vers. 1, 2.) Josiah, "Jehovah will support," was the son of Amon, and grandson of Manasseh. The name of his mother was Jedidah, "beloved of Jehovah," and that of his grandmother was Adaiah, "the honored of Jehovah." From these names we may infer that Josiah, during his early life, was under religious training. He was also under the influence of his penitent and pious grandfather during the last six years of Manasseh's life. Josiah became king when but eight years of age, reigned thirty-one years, and died in his fortieth year. He did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of David, his father.

II. Destroying idolatry. (3-7.) 1. Josiah was very young when he began to reign. Solomon said: "Woe unto thee, O land, when thy king is a child." But happy should be the people who has such a king as Josiah, though only a child. His mother was probably queen-regent during the first eight years of his reign. But some think, "the people of the land," that slew those who conspired against king Amon and put Josiah on the throne, selected their elders to manage the affairs of the nation until the young king should reach manhood. For about eight years after Josiah became king things likely went about as they had gone while his father was on the throne. But after this matters began to change. The reign of Josiah marks the last dying glory of the earthly kingdom of David. Josiah's kingdom virtually extended over the territory of the ten tribes.

2. Josiah's conversion took place when he was sixteen years of age, and in the eighth year of his reign, when "he began to seek after the God of David, his father." He probably put himself under the influence of the religious men of his kingdom. He likely inquired of Jeremiah, Zephaniah and Habakkuk, the prophets, and of Huldah, the prophetess. From them he learned what God would have him do. His conversion was one of the wonderful acts of the Holy Spirit. It is remarkable that a son of a wicked father, polluted by his bad example, and in the midst of a splendid but corrupt and idolatrous court, should at the first dawning of manhood begin to seek the Lord with his whole heart. We should seek the kingdom of God, and His righteousness, first in life, first each day, and first in importance. In childhood is the time to seek the Lord: the heart is then tender and easily inclined to wisdom's ways. It is easy to seek God while young, and hard to turn to Him when old. Happiness in old age depends upon knowing God while young.

3. When Josiah was twenty years of age, and in the twelfth year of his reign, he began to purify Jerusalem, Judæa, and many of the cities of the extinct ten tribes from idolatry. The young king led in this overthrow of image worship. Other nations were too busy with their own affairs to interfere. The Medes and Persians were at this time conquering the Assyrians. Soon after this Nineveh, their capital city, was destroyed. When Josiah entered upon this great reformation he destroyed idols "that had planted themselves in the eyes of men." The temple was first cleansed of idols, and all the implements of idol worship. Groves were destroyed, and altars were dug down. Images were broken, ground to powder, and scattered over the graves of those who sacrificed to them. The bones of idolatrous priests were dug up, and burned on the altars where they had offered sacrifices to strange gods. This overthrow of idolatry extended as far north as Nephtali by the Sea of Galilee. This was the negative side of religion. It was ceasing to do wrong. But to "quit our meanness" is not sufficient—we must also learn to do well.

III. Repairing the temple. (Vers 8-13.) 1. The order to repair the temple. When Josiah was twenty-six years of age, and in the eighteenth year of his reign, he gave orders to repair the house of the Lord. The temple had been built by Solomon three hundred and fifty years before this. Nearly two hundred years after its erection it was repaired by Joash. But now many parts of the building has gone to decay, and it greatly needs repairing again. The body of man is the temple of God. Time, disease, accidents, and enemies are continually preying upon it. When it gets tired we rest it; when it is hungry we feed it; when it is in danger we protect it; when it is sick we nurse it. But death will finally overthrow it, just as time destroyed the temple of Solomon.

2. Directions had been given before this for raising money to repair the temple. The plan followed was likely very much like the one adopted by Joash two centuries before this (2 Chron. 24:4-13). The first plan adopted by Joash was not successful. He called together the priests and Levites, commanded them to go into all the cities and gather of all Israel money for the house of the Lord. This work was to be pushed, and continued from year to year until the whole amount should be secured. The amount each one was to pay was the half-shekle poll tax, and was called the "free-will offering." This plan did not succeed. But the second plan adopted by Joash worked admirably. He took a chest, bored a hole in the lid, and placed it at the gate of the temple. He then issued a proclamation that all the people should pay the half-shekle, after the shekle of the sanctuary, laid on them by Moses. The rich were to bring no more and the poor were not to bring less. "It was a ransom unto the Lord for the soul." All brought their gifts and cast them into the chest. Each evening the chest was emptied before the king, the money counted, put into bags and likely sealed with the king's signet ring. Probably both these plans were used by King Josiah in raising money to repair the temple.

3. The money was used judiciously. It was put in the hands of overseers, and they gave it to workmen with which to buy material, and to pay for labor. All were considered honest, and there was no reckoning made with any of them because they dealt faithfully. Soon the temple was repaired and re-dedicated to the Lord.

Lesson Topic August 6.

The First Fruits for God

Scripture Reference: Lev. 23: 9-14; Deut. 16: 9-12.

The Word—Our lessons are from the old Jewish law which was given through Moses, and the special section which we study is that which refers to the offering of the first fruits to God. The sheaf was only a representative of the first fruits of every kind. The pious Hebrew could not relish anything that he had not shared with the Lord. The Lord's portion must first be offered, then the rest might be enjoyed. How this rebukes the meager and hurried offerings professing Christians often make! What a rebuke to the niggardliness of many with whom self is first and Christ is last! The second selection is an account of the institution of the Feast of Tabernacles, the great harvest festival of the year. It was at this feast that Jesus stood and cried, "If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink."

Our Homily: Putting God First—The real test of a Christian life is the attitude we assume toward God. If that attitude be one of reluctant service, of compulsion in doing and giving; if we put our own interests paramount to any other, how can we profess to serve God at all? If, on the other hand, we put Christ and the church first, and let self-interest be a secondary consideration, do we not place ourselves on the same plane as the Jew was put by the Lord in our lesson? That the Jew became a timeserver and a formalist is no reason why we may not see the justice and beauty of the original law in its intent and design. The spirit of this law has passed over to the Christian law of consecration, and rests upon us to-day.

1. We Should Put God First in Our Offerings. We are greatly tempted in this age of worldliness and prosperity to put our pleasures, our interests first. We catch the spirit of gain and competition and forget to bring the first fruits of every toil to God. Instead, we compromise by giving a spare margin of the left-over portions to God, if indeed we do not sometimes forget to give God anything at all. We not only fail to "tithe" our money, our time, and our possessions, but we fail to give any systematic proportion to him. We see the cause of God suffer and need help, while we have been robbing God of our offerings. Not only do we thus sin against him, but we miss all the joy and delight of sharing our harvests and our gains with our Master. Why can we not before we spend any money, give any service, first offer to God his share? Put God first, and these other things secondary.

2. We Should Give God Our First Choices. Let his interests have the right of way. If the choice must be made between pleasure and the interests of the church, choose God's interests. If sacrifice is demanded to choose Christ, make the sacrifice and choose him. Put God first in the choices of your life. Give his interests first place. Not only make the offerings of first fruits, or of money, but give him the benefit of every choice in life.

3. Put God First In Your Affections. We are exhorted to love him supremely. We are to put him before any other object. Neither business, nor pleasure, nor success, nor self-interest is to take the supreme place. Love to God is to be first. This will then prompt all the rest. If we love God supremely, we shall delight to bring him the first fruits of our fields. If we love supremely we will shoose his interests first. If we love God most he will be first always, ever. So we see that this is the supreme test. "Lovest thou me more than these?" said Jesus to Peter. And he is saying the same thing to us and to all men. Let us bring the first fruits of our business, of our choices, of our lives, and gladly give it to Him who gave himself to us.—From Notes On the Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topics.

Recent District Conferences

KNOXVILLE DISTRICT.

The Knoxville District Conference met in its nineteenth session in the New Century M. E. Church of Harriman, Tenn., July 13, with Presiding Elder W. A. Webber in the chair. Bro. Webber was for fourteen successive years the secretary of this conference, and the skill and ease with which he presided is doubtless due to this fact. Rev. D. T. Torner, of Morristown, was elected secretary and Rev. F. A. Hatcher, of Byington, recording secretary. All ministers of the district were present save one. Reports showed the work of the district to be, at least, 100 per cent in advance of what it was at this time last year. Dr. I. L. Thomas, of the Board of Church Extension, was with us and by his lectures and addresses caused us to see the work and appreciate the spirit of the church as never before. His sermon on Sunday was one of the most powerful ever delivered before this conference. Strong resolutions assuring him of the support of this conference were passed and emphasized by a handsome amount for his cause. Dr. Jacobs on Sunday night preached a sermon of great power and beauty. These two men will honor the church anywhere. The writer presented the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN, which was endorsed by resolutions requiring all local preachers and exhorters to subscribe for it, before the renewal of their license would be authorized. Bro. Guthrie and his people were untiring in their hospitality. The music, under the supervision of Prof. Camble of Harriman, and Mrs. Chas. Coultie, of Morristown, was a pleasant feature. The colored people of this little city of the "woods" are to be commended upon their neat, commodious homes. The business spirit is rife among them. Mr. Hooston conducts a well kept grocery and enjoys a liberal patronage from both races. Rev. William Russell is at the head of a splendid cafe. Rev. R. M. Liggett conducts a well equipped livery business and enjoys the confidence of a large number of the citizens. Prof. B. J. Campbell, principal of the city school, has so won the esteem and confidence of the people that his service is well nigh indispensable as an educator. Prof. Ovaltree is to be commended upon the splendid industrial school which stands at this place as a monument to his business and educational ability.

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

The Raleigh District Conference was held at Oxford, N. C., June 28-July 2, 1905, Rev. H. L. Ashe, presiding elder. Wednesday morning, organization of the District Epworth League. At 7:30 p. m. welcome address by Miss Lillie P. Lassiter; response by W. M. Graves. Rev. I. W. Wells, presiding elder of the Wilmington District, and Rev. R. Smtih, of the Winston District, made encouraging remarks. Thrusday morning, devotions were conducted by W. F. Allen. Welcome address in behalf of ministers of the city by Rev. Shaw, D. D.; response by Rev. J. P. Morris, D. D. Institute work, Rev. H. L. Ashe, subject, "How to Deliver a Sermon." The majority of pastors presented good reports which showed the work of the Raleigh District, under the new presiding elder, Rev. H. L. Ashe, far in advance of previous years. Sermon at 8 p. m. by Rev. I. W. Wells, presiding elder. Friday morning the devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Hawkins. Institute work, Dr. J. P. Morris, instructor. The following brethren were present and represented their work: Drs. C. C. Jacobs, Sunday School Union; I. L. Thomas, Church Extension; J. D. Chavis, Education; J. W. Wells, American Bible Society. During Sunday sermons were delivered by Drs. M. M. Jones, presiding elder Western District; J. P. Morris; R. Smith, presiding elder Winston District. The Rev. W. M. Wells is well liked by the people of Oxford. He saw to it that the conference was nicely cared for.

TOPEKA DISTRICT.

The 17th session of the Topeka District Conference convened in Newman Chapel, Methodist Episcopal Church, Lincoln, Neb., Wednesday morning, July 12, 1905, Rev. H. South, presiding elder. H. R. Pinckney, pastor at Mound City, Kansas, was elected secretary. While the attendance was not so large, those present were energetic and contributed loyally their aid to make the meeting a success. Rev. Geo. E. Trower has been here only a few months, yet he has secured a nice parsonage, painted and refitted the church, and accomplished other good results. He had a splendid program prepared for the first evening at a prominent hall, where four young ladies engaged in a debate of the following question: "Resolved, That the higher co-education of woman is makng her an economic unit in this country." At this meeting the visiting preachers and delegates were introduced to the citizens. The conference opened Wednesday, and after the president's report of the work of the district, reports from the charges were received, which indicated a healthy and hopeful outlook for the first half of the year's work. The district conference program was observed to the letter, and as a result we listened to many able and interesting papers, which encouraged and strengthened us. There were many visitors present. The session of the conference was enlivened by the sweet music of the choir, and especially by the singing evangelists, Mrs. Lucinda and her daughter, Miss Pearl Beck. They sing the gospel in a wonderful and most effective way. While the work of these Christian ladies as evangelists has been mainly among white congregations, yet they go wherever called to aid pastors in religious meetings. Their address is 2226 "O" street, Lincoln, Neb. Quite a number of pastors arranged dates with them. T. J. Ross, local preacher, assigned by the last annual conference to Hastings, Neb., as pastor, was expelled from the membership and the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, after investigation of his case by the conference. The services on Sabbath were largely attended. A new interest has been stirred on this charge since conference and the outlook is encouraging. Quite a number of the brethren filled city pulpits. Total collection for the conference, $46.45. The next place of meeting will be Asbury Chapel, Topeka. A resolution was unanimously adopted thanking the good people and friends, the pastor, the city press and the railroads for their hospitality and courtesies extended.

BRISTOL DISTRICT.

The 16th annual session of the Bristol District Conference convened in Mountain City M. E. Church, July 12-16, 1905, Rev. R. A. Swan presiding. Wednesday was given to the work of the Epworth League, Rev. I. R. Hill, district president, presiding. The subjects, "How can the Epworth League be Helpful to the Ministry?", "How can we best Increase the Missionary Spirit among our young People?" were discussed by the preachers and delegates. The District League officers were elected and installed by Presiding Elder R. A. Swan. Rev. G. J. Headricks preached an excellent sermon at 8:30 p. m., his theme being "Our duty to Obey." Thursday, July 13, the business of the District Conference was taken up. Welcome address by Rev. Wm. Johnson, pastor, which was responded to by I. R. Hill. Rev. J. H. Gardner preached the introductory sermon. The presiding elder read his report, which was inspiring in every detail. The pastors then reported. Rev. J. L. Griffin of the M. E. Church, South, was introduced and addressed the conference on "The dignity of Christian Ministry." The afternoon session was taken up in discussions. Thursday evening the anniversary of the Board of Church Extension was held. Dr. I. L. Thomas made a wonderful speech and his eloquent plea was responded to by a collection of $9. Friday morning reports from Epworth League presidents and Sunday school superintendents were received. Dr. C. C. Jacobs was introduced and talked for a short time in the interest of the Sunday School Union. At 2:30 p. m. the anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society was held. This cause was represented by Owen Hypsher and I. R. Hill. Mrs. Saul, the wife and co-laborer of Rev. Saul, the evangelist, made a short address. At night Dr. Jacobs electrified the large audience that greeted him. He plead for the care of the young. A collection of $6 was given for his cause. Saturday afternoon the cause of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was presented by Mrs. Rachel Boyd, and an excellent paper was read by Mrs. Gertrude Johnson. G. W. Cain preached at 8:30 p. m. Love feast. Sunday morning. At 11 a. m. A. Davis preached and at 3:30 Dr. Saul, the noted evangelist, preached for the conference in the Supreme Court room. Owen Hypsher preached the closing sermon at night to a large and appreciative audience. The pastor, who is an energetic young man, commands the respect and admiration of both races. The neat and comfortable new church in which we held our session is a monument to his zealous work and Christian character. Rev. Wm. Johnson entertained the conference as it has never been entertained before. The benevolent collection was reported $55 in advance of last year. This session was marked by a greater spiritual interest, larger attendance and by the presence of a large number of general officers than any previous meeting. The conference will meet next year at Big Stone Gap, Va. The SOUTHWESTERN was represented by A. Davis and quite a number of subscriptions were promised.

LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

The Committee on Conference, Academy of the Lexington Conference, met in Ninth St. M. E. Church, Covington, Ky. There were present Drs. L. M. Hagood, Jos. Courtney, E. A. White, G. W. Ziegler, Revs. H. W. Tate, P. T. Gorham, J. S. Bailey, J. W. Robinson, T. L. Ferguson and D. E. Skelton. The meeting was quite an enthusiastic one. The discussions were full of good suggestions. The committee selected Cynthiana, Paris, LaGrange, Winchester, and Lexington, Ky., as suitable places to locate the school and instructed the committee on location to accept the place offering the best inducement. Committee on location of the school: Jos. Courtney, H. W. Tate, John W. Robinson. The following persons were elected trustees for two years: Dr. J. H. Stanley, Mr. J. P. Shaw, Rev. P. T. Gorham; for three years: Mr. Nortmen, Dr. L. M. Hagood, Dr. E. A. White; for five years: Dr. Jos. Courtney, Mr. C. C. Stoll, Dr. G. A. Sissie. The committee appointed on by-laws and constitution consists of Drs. Courtney, Hagood, Ziegler, Stanley, Revs. J. W. Robinson, H. W. Tate and Dr. E. A. White. The treasurer's report showed quite a neat sum in hand for the school. It was decided to open the school for work in September, 1906. Some good bonafide subscriptions have been taken and from information gathered the Academy is a settled fact and soon our people of Methodism and the Lexington Conference can point with pride to an institution that will give our boys and girls a Christian education. In the auditorium at 8 p. m. a platform meeting was held. Rev. J. S. Bailey, Dr. E. A. White and Dr. L. M. Hagood were the speakers of the evening. The meeting was a great success.

NASHVILLE DISTRICT.

The second Sunday School Institute and Epworth League Convention, separate from the District Conference, was held in Stone's River Chapel, near Murfreesboro, June 27-30, and great good was accomplished. The program was fully carried out and each subject discussed with great interest. The largest delegation in the history of the convention was present, together with a number of friends and visitors, who added greatly to the interest of the occasion.

The pastor, Rev. H. E. Erwin, and the good members and friends of Stone River Chapel deserve much credit for the interest taken in the convention, and for the hospitality with which they cared for the delegates. A number expressed themselves as having been greatly benefited, and requested that we come again. The convention closed on Friday, with a grand social in honor of the delegates, which was highly enjoyed by all, to meet in its next session on the Nolensville Circuit.

Beautiful is young enthusiasm: keep it to the end, and be more and more correct in fixing on the object of it. It is a terrible thing to be wrong in that—the source of all our miseries and confusions whatever.—Carlyle.

It passeth knowledge: that dear love of Thine!
My Jesus! Saviour! Yet this soul of mine
Would of that love in all its depth and length,
And height and breadth and everlasting strength
Know more and more.

A PLAIN STATEMENT

For some weeks we have been publishing sentance references to October 31st. It is now time that we make a clear and open statement as to the significance of that day and what is proposed.

Our pastors and presiding elders are to be congratulated for the manner in which they have loyally stood by the Southwestern Christian Advocate. During the past two quadrenniums the subcription list of the Southwestern was doubled and we are approaching the point where the paper may be a scource of revenue to our worn out preachers and likewise a monument to self-support.

What is that we now propose? Simply this,— The ingathering of 5,000 new subscriptions by the end of October 31st. We have 85 presiding elders, more than 1 800 pastors, more than 4 000 local preachers 10 000 Quarterly Conference members and a membership of nearly 300,000; with this mighty host properly aroused, we could in any given time, however limited, double the present subscription list of the Southwestern; First, because it is perfectly within our ability; what we most need is enthusiam for it. Second, we owe it to our selfrespect to no longer let this business enterprise lag. The increase of the circulation to the point suggested would be a subject of favorable comment throughout the church. Third, we owe it to worn out preachers to use no longer the money which otherwise would go to their comfort. Fourth, the church has placed the entire management of the paper in the hands of our people. This was done upon the plea that we would make the paper self-supporting. It is now up to us.

The final limit of the canvass is OCTOBER 31st. Any method will succeed that is properly pushed.

The only further word necessary at this time is, BEGIN THE CANVASS NOW AND PUSH IT HARD.

If you are in sympathy with the movement tell us so.

THE SEVENTH INTERNATIONAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION

Conventions cost much in energy, time and money, but whatever the cost may have footed up in these three items the recent International Epworth League Convention, held at Denver, was well worth the price. It was not so largely attended as heretofore, probably being the smallest in the way of attendance since the first International Convention was held at Chattanooga, Tenn., but the quality made up for the quantity. The program was cast with an eye single to the direct spiritual uplift of those who attended and indirectly the stimulation of the entire Church. In this the program did not fail of its purpose. "Salvation" was the keynote. The full, complete and unquestioned redemption of one's self through the blood of Jesus Christ and thus blessed, with courage and inspiration go forth for the salvation of others. Bishop Hendrix put the motto in a new phrase: "Looking up in order that we may lift up." The dominant note in all the meetings was the spiritual. There was the absence of the purely intellectual effort. While the addresses were of a high order, brilliant and profound, it seemed as tho every speaker had caught the spirit of the convention, which had been packed into the one word "Evangelize."

Perhaps no meeting indicated more clearly the dominant note of the convention than the morning watch services that were conducted by Bishop Berry. These meetings were held in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church at an early morning hour and were largely attended. Soulful singing, heaven directed prayer, inspiring testimonies, direct and convincing exhortation constituted the program. The people were blessed. Why should they not have been? They came for that purpose: they had God's promise: they were reinforced by the inspiring leadership of Bishop Berry.

Many of the speakers were new and being unknown to the Leaguers it was hard for them to decide just where to go, hence many lingered around Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, which had become the center of the convention, and not finding admission there strolled through the city. But the program at all the places of meeting was strong. Perhaps the most notable addresses were those of Mark Guy Pearse, of London; Bishop Warren, Bishop Galloway, and Dr. W. S. Quayle. The convention attracted, of course, national attention. Greetings came from the President, from the International Convention of Christian Endeavor, held at Baltimore, and from Bishops Mallalieu, Burt and Neely.

The Denver press was liberal in its space, giving the doings of the convention, large excerpts being made of most of the addresses, which dealt with the young life of the Church from various statndpoints and the problems that we face in public life. The Departmental conferences held in five places were educational and inspirational and will prove a blessing to our League work throughout the Church.

The attendance of our colored delegates was not as large, perhaps, as at some of the conventions, but was representative. Prof. R. S. Lovinggood presided with grace and dignity at the Coliseum Friday afternoon, and Prof. J. W. Gilbert led effectively the devotional exercises. Mrs. R. E. Jones delivered an effective address before the Junior rally at the Central Christian Church. Prof. George A. Stevens, A. M., made a great impression upon his auditors on Sunday evening in his address at the First Congregational Church upon the subject, "The Value of Now; Now Is the Accepted Time." Prof. J. A. Bray, D. D., speaking upon the same subject at the Central Christian Church, made a strong and creditable representative of the race and of his church.

The International Epworth League Convention compact, is composed of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Methodist Church of Canada, and the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America The latter body complains of a lack of recognition, and we think justly so. If the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church is in the compact it should be placed upon equal footing and most certainly should be programmed along with the others in the responses to the welcome addresses.

has had hindrances there have been generous helps of men and women who have given their life's best strength to the Negroes' development, as well as there has been full handed philanthropy to provide facilities for our development; if there have been mobs, there have been armies for our protection; if there have been cowardly and apologetic leadership, there have been some who have never bowed their knees to Baal; if he has been given a stone over and over again, he has been given bread without stint and without reservation. This nation has not done all that it should have done for the Negro, but it has done much for him and under the American flag he receives more consideration, in spite of the color line, than he receives under any other national banner.

The Niagara Movement is deserving of consideration and no doubt will receive it from the hands of Americans and particularly at the hands of the people whose cause it espouses. It closes its appeal to the American people with the following striking paragraph:

"And while we are demanding, and ought to demand, and will continue to demand, the rights enumerated above, God forbid that we should ever forget to urge corresponding duties upon our people—

"The duty to vote.
"The duty to respect the rights of others.
"The duty to work.
"The duty to obey the laws.
"The duty to be clean and orderly.
"The duty to send our children to school.
"The duty to respect ourselves, even as we respect others.

"This statement, complaint and prayer we submit to the American people, and to Almighty God."

Since the decision to employ Negro labor in the silk mill of Wadesboro, N. C., a training school is being erected and young Negroes, under well trained instructors of their own race will be taught to use all the machinery in the mill.

Leading Catholic women of New York, banded together in an organization known as "The Daughters of the Faith," have publicly announced a crusade against divorce. According to their manual "The Catholic divorcee who remarries must be socially ostracised."

Since the separate streetcar law has gone into effect in Nashville, Tenn., many of the Negroes of that city have bought horses, others oxen, others have sought employment nearer home and the majority are walking. The streetcar company, it is said, came up $200 short on the first day.

On page two of this issue a most interesting article appears from the pen of Bishop Scott. We are sure it will be very generally read.

Personal and General.

DR. BUCKINGHAM.

The influence of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the work of the uplifting of the Negro race is not confined to the Negro members within its own borders, but many who are prominent in the distinctive Negro churches have been at some time touched by the influence of our great church. Many of them have been educated in our schools. Dr. Henry H. Buckingham is the new president of Campbell College, Jackson, Miss. Dr. Buckingham was born near Aberdeen, Miss., November 22, 1865. He got his early training at Sibley Academy, Sibley, Tenn., and after eight years in Walden University he graduated with the class of 1898 with the degree of A. B., having previously completed the theological course in 1897. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by the trustees and faculty of Campbell College, which subsequently unanimously elected him as president. Dr. Buckingham has been a successful teacher for fifteen years. His unflagging interest, self-reliance and indomitable will are the chief elements that have characterized his life. As president of Campbell College it may be expected that he will give good account of himself, and reflect credit alike upon his church and his race.

Mrs. Edith F. Ross and her daughter Miss Beatrice are spending the summer with Mrs. D. A. Smith, at Shreveport, La.

Mrs. A. H. Banks has been in the city some time, an inmate of the Sarah Goodrich Hospital, where she underwent an operation.

Rev. Z. T. Gayden died at his home in Clinton, La., July 22. He was a member of the Louisiana Conference for twenty-seven years.

The address of Dr. J. A. Foust, of the Liberia Conference, who is in this country on a furlough, is 1479 Bergen street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Jordan, wife of Rev. James Jordan, pastor at Heidleburg, Miss., is in very critical health. The family desire the prayers of the church.

Rev. W. C. Thompson, B. D., pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lexington, Va., is spending a few weeks at Evanston, Ill., in post-graduate study.

Our church at Lexington, Va., Rev. W. C. Thompson, pastor, has paid off all old indebtedness, made extensive repairs and is now collecting funds to purchase a new pipe organ.

Lane College, Jackson, Tenn., is the leading institution of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. It has a strong faculty and offers courses of rare advantage. Rev. J. A. Bray, A. M., D. D., is the president.

Dr. S. D. Redmond, the noted physician and surgeon of Jackson, Miss., left on the 15th for New York City, where he goes to spend some time, taking a post graduate course in the New York Post Graduate College and Hospital. Dr.

We acknowledge receipt of a copy of the minutes of the last session of the Louisiana Annual Conference. It is beautifully printed and well edited. Rev. J. J. Obee, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, has been the secretary of the Conference for the last two years.

Rev. John W. Weakley, presiding elder of the San Antonio District of the West Texas Conference, has upon examination in ethics, homiletics, and Bible exegesis making an average of 96, been granted by the Western University of Chicago the degree of B. D.

Rev. Thomas E. Chandler, D. D., has been transferred from New England Southern Conference to the Southwest Kansas by Bishops Hamilton and Joyce, and stationed at Paola, Kan. The Doctor has had remarkable success in his New England pastorates.

Dr. Samuel F. Craver, of the Methodist Mission in Montevideo, Uruguay, arrived in New York City Saturday, July 15, enroute to Harvey, Ill., where Mrs. Craver has been for the past year. Dr. Craver is spending the Conference year on furlough, and comes to America by way of Europe.

There is a Negro student, Edwin Bardon, of this country, who is creating quite a stir at the University of Berlin. The male students have boycotted him, but Bardon is quietly pursuing his studies and the professors unanimously declare him an unusually gifted and energetic student.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society, Tuesday, June 18, provision was made for the outgoing of two missionaries to do evangelistic work within the Hinghua Conference; a man to be added to the teaching staff of the American Methodist Institution in Calcutta; and a man to serve as pastor of the English Church and to teach in the High School at Callao, Peru.

Rev. N. S. Sterling, our pastor in South Rome, Ga., is now domiciled in the new parsonage. The land has been purchased and parsonage erected on the same since last December and Brother Stirling is to be congratulated on his good work. Redmond is one of the leading men of the state, not only as a physician but in every way. Mrs. Redmond is visiting her sister, Mrs. Clayton, of Seattle, Wash., and the Portland Exposition.

The Rev. W. H. Hollister, who for several years previous to March 1904, when he returned to America on furlough, had been missionary in charge of our work in Kolar, South India, sailed from New York Wednesday, July 19. Since 1892 Mr. Hollister has been largely responsible for the development of the successful industrial work in connection with the Mission at Kolar. The boys of the Mission have become so proficient in the manual arts that they have erected their own buildings and certain buildings for other purposes.

Mr. George E. Nicholson, of Iola, Kan., whose generosity made possible the opening of the Florence B. Nicholson Memorial School of Theology at Baroda, India, last year, has offered $10,000 to the Missionary Society to be used in the erection of suitable school buildings at or near Manila, Philippine Islands, for the accommodation of a training school to be called the Florence B. Nicholson Memorial Training School. The object of this school is to be the education of native men and women for missionary work in the Philippine Islands. The Board of Managers of the Missionary Society at their July meeting, accepted Mr. Nicholson's offer with thanks.

Special Agent William S. Waudby, of the United States Bureau of Labor has issued, officially, recently, a statement giving some vital statistics on the immigration question. Two-thirds of the immigrants of the world are directed to the United States, which yield to the railroads and steamship companies in transporting them $15,000,000 per year. The Italians, which are by far the most numerous that come, are slow to assimilate our ideals and do not make good citizens. It is said that the Italian bankers of New York send to Italy an average a year of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. The immigration question is becoming not only of intense interest, but seems to be fraught with great danger.

NEWS NOTES

The Lincoln Baptist Association, a Negro organization, will establish a farm for former slaves.

The Russian peace commissioners will receive a salary of $200 per day and $7,500 for other expenses.

The governor of Massachusetts has appointed as public administrator, Clifford H. Plummer, one of Boston's prominent Negro lawyers.

According to report, the Sultan of Turkey will depart from the usual custom and is to have a bodyguard of man-tracking dogs instead of men.

The Flanner Guild, located at Indianapolis, Ind., is to establish soon a fresh air mission camp for sick colored children. Grounds have been given the organization for this purpose at Oak Hill.

Our church at LaGrange, Ga., of which Rev. J. D. Jenkins is pastor, was destroyed by fire July 10th. The total loss of about $3,000 is partially covered by insurance. The aid of friends is asked in rebuilding.

"DANCING NOT AN INNOCENT AMUSEMENT"

There are quite a few within our own communion who try to persuade themselves to the opinion that dancing is an innocent and harmless amusement, a diversion and a graceful exercise. As a rebuttal to this statement it is very pleasing to give the opinion of Governor John H. Mickey, of the State of Nebraska, who says on this subject:

"Yes, it is the truth; I do not favor dancing. I declined to have an inaugural ball. I was not brought up to believe in dancing. My church, the Methodist Episcopal, is against that form of amusement. I have taught my children—four girls and three boys—that it is an indulgence which they should avoid, and I could not very well consent to an inaugural ball in my honor and be consistent with the practice and teachings of my life and my home.

"As a form of amusement or indulgence I believe that dancing is one of the greatest social evils with which we have to contend. It is not an innocent amusement. It is the cause of the downfall of more girls and women than any other thing which is permitted within the pale of social life of to-day.

"It was surprising the number of letters I received from leading physicians all over the country commending my course. They are the ones who are called upon to know the sad results which follow in the wake of the dancing evil. They know the sorrows which come to young women and their families as a result of the excitement of the ball room, but it is a lamentable phase of social conditions that the women must bear the burden of their errors, while the men, to whom the blame belongs, go scot free and unhumiliated.

"The woman bears the disgrace throughout her life, but the man—well, he has no thought or care for the future."

THE YELLOW FEVER

Several cases of yellow fever have been brought to the city of New Orleans through the immigrants who are landed at this port. As a result the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Texas and Florida have quarantined against Louisiana, particularly New Orleans. There need be no fear on the part of our friends, as the yellow fever discovered is not of a very vicious type and the cases are few. Scientific medical investigation has gone so far as to prove that yellow fever is transmitted only through mosquitoes. The mosquito biting a yellow fever patient can transmit the disease to other parties, otherwise the fever is not contagious. Hence there need be no fear as on previous occasions from the use of the SOUTHWESTERN. It is not possible to transmit the germs with the paper. At any rate, the Board of Health of the city of New Orleans will exercise every possible means for not only preventing the spread of the disease but to stamp it out. It is to be expected that within a short while the quarantine will be raised; in the meantime our friends in those states that have quarantined and to whom we are thus prevented from coming to visit district conferences, are urged to do their level best for the increase of our circulation.

At Humble, Texas, Sunday, July 23, earthen tanks containing nearly 3,000,000 barrels of oil were in a blazing fire, and it is believed that a number of the men in their efforts to save the other tanks of 4,000,000 barrels were lost. The loss of oil will total not less than $1,000,000: the mules that perished were valued at $5,000. Many families are homeless.

Rev. G. W. Baker desires that correspondents address him at Kilmichael, Miss., Box 17.

Doings of the Workmen.

MISSISSIPPI.

Nettleton, Mrs. W. C. Hilliard.—On April 27 the pastor and family were pleasantly surprised by a number of the members of Palestine church, led by Mr. J. H. Talbert. They left with us quite a lot of nice groceries.

Clinton, W. L. Mills, Pastor.—A storm visited the parsonage March 20. Its approach was heralded by sweet music. The host of ladies and gentlemen composing this company left on the table numerous good things for the comfort of pastor and wife.

Fayette, P. H. Rembert, Pastor.—Our revival closed with our second quarterly conference May 7, with 44 conversions and accessions. Our missionary convention May 4 was a great meeting. Dr. G. G. Logan was at his best. His lecture in the interest of the cause of missions was excellent. The quarterly conference reports were good. Paid the presiding elder $26.30; pastor, $86.40; missions, $50; Woman's Home Mission, $2; total for all purposes, $203.45. Conversions and accessions, 46. Our beloved presiding elder, Revs. B. S. Williams, C. S. Williams, of the A. M. E. Church, W. N. G. Lipscomb, and W. P. E. Morrison rendered good service during our revival. Bro. B. S. Williams preached during one week for us.

TENNESSEE.

Lebanon, B. F. Anderson, pastor—The first Sunday in April we began our protracted meeting, continuing the same two weeks; the results were 41 conversions and 31 additions to our church. Rev. T. B. Blackman, of the Cherry Valley Circuit, assisted in the meeting and his sermons were greatly enjoyed by the large congregations, the church being crowded every night of the meeting. The membership was greatly revived.

White Bluff, J. M. Huddleston, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held April 22-23, Presiding Elder A. Phillip being present. Easter Sunday morning the elder preached and in the afternoon the program was carried out, with songs and recitations by the young people and talks on Easter and Missions by Revs. Phillips, C. L. Lewis of Dickson and A. Wyley of the Baptist church. At night Rev. Lewis preached. Collected for all purposes, $10.33. The ladies of this charge are doing excellent work. We have made some improvements on one of our churches since conference.

Tip Top and Mud Fork Circuit, Rev. J. H. Gardener, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference met at Mud Fork, April 29th and 30th. Presiding Elder R. A. Swan arrived on time. The written reports showed improvements on all lines. The pastor's report was an excellent one. The general organizer of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the East Tennessee Conference, was present, Mrs. E. E. Gardener. The Southwestern was presented to the people by the pastor. Collection was $31.20. Paid the elder in full $11 Sunday Rev. Swan preached at 11 o'clock a. m., to the delight of the people; at 8 p. m., sermon by the pastor; the Sacrament was administered by the elder, assisted by Rev. H. H. Harris and pastor. Six persons were received into the church. Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Gardener, has been in very ill health for quite a while, but is much improved now. Our Epworth League's report showed at the Conference a marked advancement among our young people, under the direction of our worthy president, Miss D. A. Thompson, and Secretary R. B. Dickerson. An auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was organized January 10th, with 16 members, Miss L. M. Anderson, president. The general organizer is planning to have a mass meeting in the near future.

Flat Rock, F. N. Collier, Pastor.—The second quarterly conference of Flat Rock convened April 8-9. Rev. W. R. Smith, our presiding elder, was not able to be with us, but he sent Rev. J. M. Lyle, of Hubbard's Chapel, whose service was well rendered to the satisfaction of all. The quarter proved a decided success. Paid the P. E. in full. Peace and religion ruled the occasion. The old heroes were greatly in evidence. Rev. B. J. Meredith, P. C., of Seay's Chapel, Rev. Jas. A. Scott, of the A. M. E. Church, visited us during the quarter. Rev Lyte preached an able sermon. The attendance was above the average, also the collections.

McMinnville, Mrs. R. W. Speers.—Our third quarterly conference convened May 6-7 in Clark Chapel M. E. Church, with Rev. W. R. Smith presiding. A pleasant session was held. The elder preached a helpful and practical sermon Sunday morning. In the evening, Rev. H. Prim, a former pastor, preached a reviving sermon. Fifty-six partook of the Lord's Supper. Paid the elder $17.00. Rev. S. M. Utley, our pastor, is preparing to entertain the District Conference which convenes at this place July 25-29. Our revival has begun. We are praying for the conversion of souls and a spiritual revival among the membership.

Clifton, A. Ransom, Pastor.—Sunday, May 7th, was a day of pleasure and profit with us. Preaching at 11 a. m., and 8 p. m.; general class at 3 p. m. Raised during the day $56.40.

TEXAS.

Queen City, L. L. Neal.—I came to my work, just after the adjournment of my annual conference, and found it in a condition which showed that much hard work was needed. We were without a parsonage, all four of the churches needed repairing, and a small membership with which to do it. With good, hard, solid work we succeeded in securing lumber to repair the churches and in putting electric lights in the Queen City Church. At this church, which is at the head of the circuit, we have just finished a beautiful little cottage for the parsonage. Our work seems to be spiritually alive. We are praying for a great revival this year throughout the circuit. The pastor will begin an evangelical meeting in August, which will continue for 14 days. We invite all of our ministers who can make it convenient to come and be with us.

East Calvert, Aaron Taylor, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held April 22nd. It was a success along all lines. Raised on Sunday $16.25 for the elder and $3.50 for missions. Collected $33.46 during this quarter for the pastor. Although he has been down with rheumatism all the year, the churches have rallied to him. We hope for great success in the future.

Wolfe City, J. E. Beal, Pastor.—A very profitable meeting was held at Warren's Chapel, April 6-9. Rev. Parker, presiding elder, and Revs. G. W. Baker and Chas. Wofford were present. Helpful suggestions were made for the good of the church and the spread of the gospel by the visitors. Sister Reeves, president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, Paris District, made very encouraging remarks touching the work of the women of the M. E. Church. At 4:30 p. m., Saturday, Rev. Parker held the second quarterly conference and the majority of conference members were present with very good reports. Finances good. On Saturday, at night, the banquet given under the control of the pastor and sisters, was a success. Excellent Sunday services. Sunday school conducted by pastor and presiding elder. At 11 a. m. Rev. Parker entered the pulpit and held the interested attention of his audience. Love feast conducted by Rev. Wofford. At 3 p. m., the Christians entered heartily into this meeting and God's presence was felt. Following this service came Sister Reeves' address on the work and duty of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. At 8 p. m., Rev. Chas. Woffords preached an able sermon. Thursday night, Rev. Baker, an ex-pastor preached. The pastor has everything well in hand and is working earnestly. Collection $40.21. Paid the elder in full for the quarter.

"La Creole" Hair Restorer contains the ingredients used by the most famous Creole beauties. It will restore gray hair to its original color, stop falling hair, cure dandruff, keep the hair clean, soft and glossy and will make curly or kinky hair lie straight and smooth for a long time.

MISS NANCY RICE.

Nothing Takes Its Place.

This is a photograph of Miss Nancy Rice, 185 Beale street, Memphis, Tenn., who has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for years, and who says:

"Nothing I have ever used will take the place of your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer, as it keeps my hair in a splendid condition."

Miss Rice is a woman of striking personal appearance, which is owing very largely to her fine hair, the result of using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT

Has Done Wonders.

This is a photograph of Mr. Louis Nemore, residing at No. 10 Turley St., Memphis, Tenn., one of the most highly respected colored men in the city. He is implicitly trusted by his employer for the last ten years—Dr. Heber Jones, one of our most prominent physicians, and now president of the Memphis Board of Health. Mr. Nemore says he takes pleasure in stating that our "La Creole" Hair Restorer has done wonders for his splendid head of hair. "It has kept my hair from falling out, and has kept my head and scalp in a clean, healthy condition. I recommend it very highly."

MR. LOUIS NEMORE.

Doings of the Workmen

MISSISSIPPI.

PEARLINGTON—On the evening of April 15 a storming party visited the parsonage and filled our table with many pounds of various assortments of choice groceries; also a purse of $4.00 was presented to the pastor. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society were the instigators of this kindly act. The leaders were Brother W. A. Daniels, Sisters Belle Young, Josephine Isaac, Margaret Holmes, Rebecca Burton and Celest Simmons.

CLARKSDALE, William Bell, pastor—I found here a loyal set of members, tho few in number, and also an old debt of $150 of several years' standing. Through the assistance of our worthy presiding elder, Rev. B. F. Woolfolk, we received from Bishop Mallalieu and Dr. Foster each $25, and Rev. Sewell turned over to us $70 of the amount collected last year. With these sums, together with what I have been able to raise we have liquidated the debt and Church, April 1-2, Dr. B. F. Woolfolk terly conference was held at Magnolia have the notes in hand. My first quarpresiding. The reports of pastor and officers indicated a live work both spiritually and financially. To the membership of 18 there is an addition of 9. We are planning to build a new church at a cost of $1,000 and ask that all friends of Methodism will contribute something. The elder preached Sunday and administered the sacrament. Raised for presiding elder, $12.75; pastor, $50; other purposes, $30; total, $92.75. On the 11th ult. a party of thoughtful friends visited the parsonage, bringing with them contributions to the amount of 60 pounds.

COMO, D. L. Wilson—The new Prospect Church is in better condition now than ever before under the administration of our new pastor, Rev. P. H. Jackson. He is a strong and capable leader. Under his direction we have raised money and ceiled our church, put in a bay window and bought a bell. Rev. Jackson is loved by all and thro his able leadership we expect to accomplish a good year's work.

SHUBUTA CIRCUIT, C. W. Jones, pastor—My second quarterly conference convened April 14, with Presiding Elder J. B. Brooks in the chair and all officers but one present with good reports. The elder preached an able sermon and administered the sacrament to 60 communicants. Paid the elder $10.65; pastor, $22.60; total, $33.25. Two yearly subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN. Our work here is on the up-grade.

EUPORA, C. L. Wall—The first quarterly conference was held on this charge April 15, by Presiding Elder T. W. Davis. Good reports were presented. The elder preached twice while with us and met the Epworth League in the afternoon and a very enjoyable time was had. Raised in conference, $26.85; raised during the quarter, $101.70; this was all raised from March 1st to April 16th. This is my fourth and best year on this work.

OKOLONA, W. C. Weatherall, pastor—We held our first quarterly conference at Snowtown Church, of the Okolona Circuit, April 1-2, Rev. W. C. Clay presiding. This was the best quarterly conference ever held at the beginning of the year on this circuit. Dr. Clay's lecture stimulated the brethren and members all to more active work for the Master. We have started out to do more along all lines this year than ever before. Raised for the presiding elder, $17.60.

TUPELO, M. S. Pulley—At Spring's Chapel M. E. Church our quarterly conference was held April 8, by Presiding Elder W. C. Clay. The majority of officers were present with good reports which indicated spiritual and financial improvement. Total collection, $38.03. On Sunday, April 9, Rev. Clay preached a powerful sermon in the Methodist Episcopal Church of Houston, Miss.

SHEPPARDTOWN, B. L. Roberts, pastor—On April 8-9 ur first quarterly conference was held with Rev. Grant Orange presiding elder pro tem. Sunday Rev. Orange preached one of his best sermons. Three persons joined the church, one convert was baptized and the Lord's Supper administered. We reorganized the Epworth League and all departments are doing nicely. The presiding elder's assessment was raised. We have $45.75 in hand for church improvements. Raised this quarter for all causes, $60.35. Rev. J. W. Winbush loves his work and guards carefully every interest.

HARSTON, M. Young, pastor—On this work I found one church with seven members and another one with nineteen members, and tho few in number they have proved themselves to be great workers. We raised on Easter $9; paid pastor $19.75, and the elder $5, and all are well pleased.

WINONA, D. A. Bragg, pastor—Rev. S. H. Nevils was with us April 28-30 and held our second quarterly conference, and notwithstanding the downpour of rain the people came out to hear the message this minister of the Gospel had to deliver. Every interest of this charge is receiving careful attention, and peace and good will prevail between pastor and people. We paid the elder his assessment.

WATER VALLEY, S. D. Troupe, pastor—On my arrival here the members received me kindly. The work is alive and souls have been added to the church. Dr. N. H. Williams held my first quarter April 8-9. The conference was a success. The elder preached Sunday before a crowded house; we paid him in full. Raised for all causes, $42.10.

COUPARLE, H. Henderson—Our first quarterly conference was held, Rev. J. C. Hibbler presiding. Paid the elder in full, $25; pastor, $45.50; total for the quarter, $70.50. The elder's salary for the year was fixed at $100, and the pastor's at $500.50. The officers and members are standing by the pastor.

PELAHATCHIE, J. Butler, pastor—Since the Annual Conference held at Natchez, we have purchased a lot and built a neat church on the Lynwood Mission, which we entered the fourth Sunday in June. We are only a few in number and we have worked hard to accomplish this. I trust that this will be a good year for the saving of souls. I want to do my best for the benevolent cause. Have joined in marriage six couples within four weeks.

PARIS DISTRICT.

The forthcoming session of the Paris District Conference will meet at Mt. Zion M. E. Church, Paris. The conference will meet jointly with Epworth League, Sunday School and Woman's Home Missionary Societies Wednesday, Aug. 16 at 9 a. m. Opening sermon Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 8 p. m., by Rev. L. H. Barnett. Our pastor, Rev. G. A. Deslandes, and his membership are arranging to entertain our ministers and their delegates. I learn that the pastors and church officers are preparing to make this the best financial and spiritual session since our term of office. I have extended an invitation to Drs. M. W. Dogan, G. G. Logan and R. E. Jones to be present. These brethren are accomplishing much good in their respective fields of labor and we should look upon their visit with pleasure and delight. I desire to call your especial attention to the SOUTHWESTERN. All our pastors in charge of congregations are subscribers. I have urged that all our local preachers and exhorters subscribe to and read the paper because I have felt that it would tend to increase their knowledge of the doctrine and polity of their church. To bring about the much needed increased circulation on the Paris District, I desire to ask our pastors to take up this matter with their church officers and members before the conference convenes, with a view to bringing a list of cash subscribers to Paris from each appointment.

CHILDREN'S DAY REPORTS.

Washington, La.—Miss L. Perkins, superintendent, and Miss Josephine Walker, assisted by Miss Annabell Green, conducted a fine program . Children's Day. Collection, $6.00.

Starkville, Miss.—The Children's Day observance was a pleasant one. Superintendents Glover and Rogers deserve much credit for their earnest efforts to make the occasion a financial success, which it was, $61.00 being raised. The Easter collection was $15.00.—D. W. Calvert, Pastor.

Brinkly, Ark.—Sunday, July 9 Children's Day was observed. The program was well rendered. Dr. J. M. Cox, president of Philander Smith College, was present, and spoke, to the delight of all. Rev. G. N. Johnson, of Cotton Plant, Ark., preached an excellent sermon Sunday night. Collection for the day, $33.00.—A. T. Stephens, Pastor.

Indianola, Miss.—The best Children's Day program in the history of the church was rendered Sunday, July 2. The services were conducted by Prof. B. T. Lewis, Miss M. L. Davis and Mrs. N. C. McCoy, the faithful superintendent. Excellent papers were read and the little folks acted well their part. The congregation was large. Collected for the day, $13.00.—E. H. Holmes, Pastor.

Shuqualak, Miss.—"Our Easter and Children's Day services were carried out according to the program. The following amounts were raised: St. Peter's, $15.00; Asbury, $20.00; Mt. Ara., $7; total $42; of this amount Brother Ferd. Jordan paid $1, A. D. Harris, $1.55; Mrs. Evalena Dobson, $1.10; Mrs. Nina Gillespie, 50 cts.; others 25 cts." writes G. J. Dobson, the pastor.

Brownsville, Ala.—"The Children's Day program was well carried out. The superintendent, Mr. G. W. Wood, conducted the services and the children did nicely. Collection, $10.25," writes Willie Wood.

Charlotte, N. C.—Our Children's Day exercises were deferred till Sunday, July 9th. The programs, "The Pathway of Wisdom" and "Comrades of the Cross" were used. Miss Cora E. Collett, a musical adept, presided at the organ, and our choir united in song. The audience was very large. A timely and appropriate address was given by our colored attorney, F. Fredrick, on "Education," at 8:30 p. m. Collection, $12.27.—A. B. McLean.

Colwell and Wynne, Ark.—Children's Day was observed the first Sunday in July. The children rendered an excellent program, which was due to the faithfulness of their superintendent, Bro. Henry West. An excellent sermon was preached by Rev. J. W. Clay, of the C. M. E. Church. Collection, $30.00.—W. A. Smith, Pastor.

Turnbull, Miss.—Children's Day was observed with a good program. Educational address by C. S. Stewart, superintendent, and other good addresses were delivered. Educational sermon by Rev. J. D. Gilbert, the pastor. Collection, $19.50. The following night, the sisters gave a feast and cleared $18.55, with which to ceil the church.

Caledonia (Miss.) Circuit. — "We held Children's Day service July 9, at each church, in connection with a benevolence rally. Collected during rally, $50.02; Children's collection, $6.13; Frisco, Brownlee and Millintery Chapel, $12.24, $15.80 and $15.85 respectively; a friend contributing $1.10. —L. F. Jones.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

If you read this paper you know about Drake's Palmetto Wine for the Stomach, Flatulency and Constipation. We continually praise it, as hundreds of our readers do. Any reader of this paper can have a test bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine free, by sending a letter or postal card to The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

One dose a day of this tonic, laxative Palmetto medicine, gives immediate relief and often cures in a few days. Drake's Palmetto Wine is pleasant to take and is a wonder worker for the Blood, Liver and Kidneys.

Seventy-five cents at drug stores for a large bottle, usual dollar size, but a trial bottle will be sent free and prepaid to every reader of this paper who writes for it.

ENQUIRY.

I wish to inquire for my brother, Jacob Simmons, a native of Kershaw county, South Carolina. There were three sisters of us, Nora, Selina and Margaret, and two brothers, Mack and Jacob. Nora has died since Jacob left. Mother died in 1896. Jacob was last heard of in Birmingham, Ala., 20 years ago. All information will be gladly received by Margaret Smith, Houma, La.

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Wilson.—Baton Rouge District Preachers' Meeting adopted the following resolutions, commendatory to Bishop W. F. Mallalieu, D. D., and the Will Not Club: "Whereas, we have read, through the SOUTHWESTERN, of the Will Not Club, and believing it a wise suggestion and plan, that would go forth to help turn the minds of our young people; therefore, be it resolved that we recommend the Will Not Club to all our pastors, superintendents and League presidents, to put every effort forward to foster this very important feature of our Temperance societies. Signed by Revs. M. F. Franklin, president; G. A. Payne, J. W. Turner, P. E., J. H. Thompson secretary.

Winsboro.—D. S. Kilbourne, Pastor. —On May 9 my quarter was held with the presiding elder in the chair. Each department presented reports showing much improvement along all lines. The elder preached an able sermon. Twenty persons came to the altar for prayer. A grand reception was tendered the elder under the leadership of Sister M. Burrel and Miss Adie Brown.

MISSISSIPPI.

SUMMIT AND MAGNOLIA, H. J. Jordan —The work of this charge is alive along all lines, with the coming of spring new life seemed to be infused into all. There is much work to be done here, and we are making some headway against sin.

ELLIOTT, J. W. Terrell, pastor—My first quarterly conference convened April 22-23, at Green's Chapel, Rev. N. H. Williams, D. D., presiding. The quarter was a success in every way. The outlook is brighter than for years. A new parsonage built since the Annual Conference. The old regulars are standing for pure Christian ideals. All the departments of the church are at work. The elder preached an acceptable sermon. He was proud of the improvements made. Collected, Saturday and Sunday, $30. The best showing in the history of the work. Collected for this quarter, $82.47. Dr. G. G. Logan was on my work April 2 and brought greetings from the Missionary Society, which had its effect. We intend to stand by all the causes of the church.

EBENEZER, G. W. Hunt, pastor—Our first quarterly conference convened April 15-16, with the Rev. S. H. Nevils, presiding elder, in the chair. Nearly all officers were present with written reports, which showed some advancement along all lines. The elder preached Sunday at 11 o'clock and at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night. The sermons will live long in our hearts. Paid him in full, $16.

HANDSBORO, A. M. Trotter—Our first quarterly conference, April 8, has gloriously gone into history. Presiding Elder R. N. Jones was with us and worked manfully in our revival. Fourteen were added to the church. All officers were present except three. All assessments and plans for the year's work were carefully made. Many communed in the Lord's Supper and all were inspired to a higher life. Our faith looks forward for success.

BUFORD CIRCUIT, Jno. H. Johnson, pastor—On April 3 we were aroused by kind friends who brought us meal, flour, lard, sugar, ham, etc. The ladies who presented these things were Sisters R. C. Foxworth and Louisa Scarber. Our hearts were made to rejoice.

LILLIAN, A. B. Britton, pastor—We arrived on our new work April 1, and a storm visited us that same evening, led by Sister Amanda Carr and Miss Lottie Williams. More than 100 pounds of produce was the result, also one subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN, and we felt that it was good to be here.

TURNBULL, C. S. Steward—Our second quarterly conference was held at Merrill Chapel M. E. Church, April 29, with a representative number of officers present. Reports showed advancement on all lines. Saturday night after conference we had an immense crowd out. Sunday, the 30th, the elder, Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, preached an able sermon; also Rev. D. Johnson and our pastor, Rev. J. D. Gilbert. Collection for the day, $34.35. Paid elder in full.

BROOKHAVEN, S. Collins—The Rev. L. W. Price is succeeding nicely. He and his faithful members have built a magnificent church edifice. Mrs. L. P. May was present during the convention and held her missionary meeting. She is the founder of the Woman's Home Missionary Society on the Mississippi Conference. She is a great church worker. The good that she has and is accomplishing among our people will never fully be known. Her pleading for the Girls' Industrial Home at Meridian is so strong and forcible that one can not hear her and not give. If the brethren of the Conference will continue to assist her in the work in the future as in the past she will soon be prepared, with the assistance of the National Board, to purchase land for the building. But we can not build as long as we hold the general funds at home. Send the same on to Cincinnati.

Corinth, R. R. Gipson.—On a recent Sunday Rev. E. C. Cocks, an able young minister who entered the ministry from this place, was with us and preached two strong sermons. Rev. Cocks has many sincere friends here. A collection of $20.30 was taken. This church is progressing under the leadership of Rev. H. B. Hart, pastor.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.
Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 176, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.

CONSIDER COLORADO
as a sort of half-way house between you and the PORTLAND FAIR.
It is the break in the journey where you may "unspan" so to speak, pull off your coat, climb the mountains, whip the trout streams, or, if preferable, do a little plain loafing. When two so great attractions, one artificial, the other natural, lie thus in the same direction, it's a mistake to let pass the opportunity to see them; especially if it be remembered that one fare covers both.

They Live in Our Memory.

HENSON.—On Sunday afternoon, July 2, memorial services were held at St. Paul M. E. Church, Littig, Tex., in honor of our departed friend and brother, Rev. Mack Henson. In the services his life was ably discussed from many practical views. Many songs of his particular liking were rendered. "His life as a citizen" was spoken of by Bro. A. J. Campbell; a short history of his life was rendered by Miss Lena Morrow; a beautiful paper was read by Mrs. Meeks, of the Baptist Church, on "his life as a father." Mrs. Pauline S. M. Johnson read a paper setting forth "His life as a Christian." Then Rev. A. M. Mason depicted "His life as a Minister," having known him in that capacity for 25 years. Bro. Mack Henson was a man of strong convictions. In the true sense he was a race man, earnestly seeking the upbuilding of his people at all times and in this respect stood foremost among the leaders of the race. Not alone did Bro. Henson lend his energies to the church but found time by precept and example to benefit others. He was an ardent supporter of the Masonic and K. of P. Orders. Our brother will be missed as a citizen, a father, counsellor and guide. To the wife and mother we say, trust on, for only a few more days and you will see each other again; to the young men—follow well the advice of your father, strive to make the high mark in life that he achieved; to the church, strive ever to uphold the counsel given by our brother. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of the friends everywhere and particularly of the people of Littig. Dr. Chas. P. Washington, of Littig, acted as master of ceremonies.

CHAS. P. WASHINGTON.

JOHNSON.—Lydia L. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, passed from this life to life eternal May 9, 1905, at Fairfield, Texas. She was but 14 years of age and had been a Christian and member of the church for a year. Lydia was a bright, sunny tempered child and will be missed by all who knew her. ANNIE JONES.

TRIPLETT.—Mr. John Triplett passed to his home eternal from Hopewell, Miss., Saturday, May 24, 1905. His death was sudden, but there was time to take leave of his mother and wife and their two little children.

W. T. WRIGHT, Pastor.

MILLER.—Bertha Miller, aged 11 years, died at the home of her aunt on Peters avenue, New Orleans, La., May 24, in full triumph of faith. She was a student of Leland University. Bertha was buried in the Carrollton cemetery. Two aunts remain to mourn her demise. C. W. REEVES.

KENNEDY.—Little Elvira Kennedy was born December 24, 1892, and died March 13, 1905, at McCool, Miss. She was the baby child of J. M. and Maggie Kennedy, and has gone to meet her sainted mother. She had been ill for about 18 months. She leaves two sisters, four brothers and a father to mourn their loss. J. M. KENNEDY.

MESSIAH.—Mr. George Messiah died suddenly at his home on Hampson St., New Orleans, La. He was a member of the Trustee Board of Williams Chapel. He had great respect for the church and pastor, and did all he could for the church. He leaves two sisters to mourn his demise. May the Father care for and comfort them. His funeral took place at Williams Chapel. Revs. J. McKee, D. Young, A. Brown assisted the pastor, C. W. Reeves.

DON'T BE HYPNOTISED,

Hoodwinked, hoodooed, or over-persuaded into accepting a substitute for Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription with its record of nearly 40 years, embracing hundreds of thousands of cures of woman's peculiar ailments. It's the only remedy for woman's ills sold by druggists, that is not full of "booze"—poor whisky, or bad alcohol.

A guarantee of $1000 is offered that "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, opium or other harmful drug. Keeps in any climate.

"Favorite Prescription" is a powerful invigorating tonic, and imparts strength to the whole system and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to attempt to palm off upon you an alcoholic substitute for this world-famed medicine. You know what you want. It's his business to meet that want. When he urges some substitute he's thinking of the larger profit he'll make—not of your welfare.

$50,000 GIVEN AWAY, in copies of The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book that sold to the extent of 500,000 copies a few years ago, at $1.50 per copy. Last year we gave away $30,000 worth of these invaluable books. This year we shall give away $50,000 worth of them. Will you share in this benefit? If so, send only 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only for book in stiff paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

If out of health, write to old Dr. Pierce He will send you good, fatherly, professional advice without charge.

Pierce's Pleasant Pellets These sugar-coated little Pellets are the smallest, the easiest to take, and the easiest in the way they act. No griping, no violence, no disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. They are the Original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce, over 40 years ago. They have been much imitated but never equaled.

They come in vials, always fresh and reliable: a convenient vest-pocket remedy.

REDMOND.—Charles Wesley Redmond, son of Rev. W. H. Redmond, was born Aug. 13, 1883, at Bellaire, O., and departed this life June 19, 1905, at Lorain, Ohio, aged 21 years 10 months 6 days. His mother fell asleep in Jesus Feb. 2, 1885, leaving Charlie, then a babe of eighteen months. A father and brothers, Theodore and Walter Redmond, survive him. Charlie came to Lorain a stranger November, 1899, finding a home with and mother in Mrs. Bertha Redmond, and by the kind, motherly care that she bestowed upon him united ties of love that only death could sever, which, when it came, found him anxiously waiting. His death was a happy one. The funeral service was attended by Rev. J. T. Leggett, of Delaware, Ohio.

CALLILES.—On March 14, 1905, Sister Martha Callile, aged 21 years, a member of Mitchell M. E. Church, Lomax, Ala., departed this life in peace. She was a faithful Sunday school worker. Her mother, one sister and a host of friends survive her. W. E. Smith, pastor.

MARSHALL.—M. Q. A. Fuller, pastor. Brother Willis Parker, an exhorter of Cedar Grove M. E. Church, departed this life March 22 in full triumph of faith. He was with me on Sunday, the 19th. Brother Parker was an affectionate husband, a kind father and a good neighbor. He professed sanctification nearly three years ago.

WOOD.—On June4, 1905, Brother Harrison Wood, a member of the church for 62 years, died in peace at Birmingham, Ala., and was brought home and buried Tuesday, June 6, aged 98 years, 6 months. Funeral was conducted by the pastor, assisted by Bro. Robert Lyerson, a local preacher of long standing, and Rev. G. Frost, of the Baptist Church. — S. D. Davis, Pastor, Newberne, Ala.

BROWN.—On June 4, 1905, at Hazlehurst, Miss., occurred the death of Dan Dukes Brown, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Brown and grandson of Rev. Dan D. Dukes.—G. P.

TAYLOR.—At Campti, La., little William Taylor, aged two years, fell asleep in Jesus June 12, 1905, leaving loving parents and other relataives to mourn. C. H. CLARK, Pastor.

JOHNSON.—Sam Johnson, aged 22 years, after an illness of more than a year, died at Jackson, La., June 10, 1905. He professed saving faith in Christ and was baptized the day before he died. His triumph is an instance of God's love for the sinner. A mother and several relatives survive him.

DINKEN.—At Fordyce, Ark., June —, 1905, Mrs. Alice Dinken, aged 30 years, sister of Rev. C. W. Whitehead, passed away after a long illness. Her mother, brother and two sisters survive her. Their loss is heaven's gain, for she died in the faith triumphant.—W. T. Pope, Pastor.

BRYANT.—On the 8th of April, 1905, at Summit, Miss., the spirit of Sister Mahalia Bryant took its flight unto its God. Sister Bryant was one of the oldest members of our church, and had lived a faithful, Christian life for many years, and was loved by all, both white and colored. She is at rest. Her funeral service was conducted by the pastor, H. J. Jordan.

FISHER.—On June 1, 1905, at Comite, La., Brother S. Fisher, of St. Luke M. E. Church, died in the Christian faith at the age of 75 years, leaving a wife, sons, daughters, sisters and many friends.—A. Luster, Pastor.

CONLEY.—It has pleased God to call from labor to reward our beloved sister and dear friend, Miss Lelia Jane Conley, who was a loyal member of Vincent M. E. Church, Grenada, Miss., and was an officer of the Epworth League and Sunday School. She was born September 19, 1884, and died June 3, 1905. She was patient during her long suffering and realizing that she came not in this world to live always was ready and willing to go to her Savior. Miss Conley leaves a mother, grandmother, and friends by the score to mourn her death, which shall not soon be forgotten. The funeral was attended by the pastor, Rev. E. C. F. Troupe. To the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy. — A Friend.

LEONARD.—Miss Effie Leonard was born February 23, 1889, and died in peace June 11th, 1905. She was a member of Vincent Chapel M. E. Church, Grenada, Miss. A mother, father, four sisters and five brothers and a host of friends survive her. Her funeral sermon was preached by E. C. F. Troupe, Pastor.

MARTON.—On May 5, 1905, Brother Ranal Marton, a faithful member of Macedonia M. E. Church, Clinton, La., fell asleep in Jesus, after five weeks' illness. He leaves two sisters, one son, two daughters and a host of friends. W. C. Turner attended his funeral.

ERNEST.—Richard D. Ernest, grandchild of Sister Fannie Williams (deceased), died June 21, 1905, calling his grandmother and saying that he was going home to heaven where she was. He was about seven years old, and a very apt boy. He loved his Sunday school, and was there very often full of life. He was buried from Mallalieu Chapel by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright.

GEORGIA.

COVINGTON.—I. B. Brooks.—The third quarterly conference of the Union Grove Circuit convened at Gaither's Chapel Saturday, June 17, with Rev. Z. K. Gowen, P. E., in the chair. The session was a pleasant and profitable one. Our pastor, Rev. E. C. W. Cox, is the man for this place. All are pleased with him.

COVINGTON. — Henry Green. — The third quarterly conference convened in Grace M. E. Church June 16, Rev. Z. K. Gowen presiding. Business was dispatched with great rapidity. The conference was the best held during the year. Our pastor, Rev. H. E. Burns, is a faithful worker, and the people are loving him more and more.

HOGANSVILLE.—W. H. Towns.—We held a grand rally last Sunday, June 4 at St. Mary's Church, for the purpose of seating and painting the church. We raised $131 and are thankful to our pastor, Rev. W. G. Alston, and the good people for our success. We hope Rev. Alston will continue to lead his church to victory.

INDIAN TERRITORY

SOUTH MCALLISTER.—G. W. Walton, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held, with Rev. Dr. A. J. McAllister, presiding elder, in the chair. Reports indicated success. Accessions 42; mission money, $5. The prospects are bright for the future. Dr. McAllister preached at 11 a. m. and 3 and 8 p. m. to large congregations. Elder McAllister captured the town. Many old M. E.'s came back to the fold.

LOUISIANA.

Houma, William S. Harrison. —The rally at Wesley Chapel, Sunday, July 2, resulted in a collection of $205.00. Our presiding elder, Rev. W. R. Butler, was with us, and preached a glorious sermon.

Nachitoches, W. J. M. Price, Pastor. —We have just closed our revival meeting here with 28 conversions and 54 additions to our church. The Holy Spirit is among us, and His influence is potent. The church is greatly revived. Collection, Sunday, June 4th, $36.70.

MISSISSIPPI.

OXFORD, E. F. Scarborough, pastor—Our first quarterly conference was held March 17-19, Dr. N. H. Williams, presiding elder, in the chair. The quarter was a success in every way. The doctor preached an able sermon Sunday night to a large and appreciative audience. This is truly a loyal and devoted set of Methodists. Collection $30.

MAGNOLIA, H. J. Jordon, pastor—Our recent rally was a grand success. There were six tribes. The leaders were: Sisters Ellen Allen, Lily McCown, Opnelia Low, Nora Reese, Emma Brown, and Sarah James. We had with us Revs. I. S. Thomas, pastor of Hazlehurst church; S. Jones, of China Grove; Forest, of the Baptist church of Holmesville; P. S. Evans, of Magnolia, and B. Crawford. Our total collection was $75. Magnolia is booming.

OWENS—Our first quarterly conference convened at Spring Hill M. E. Church, April 8-9, with S. H. Nevils, presiding elder, in the chair. Nearly all of the brethren were present with written reports, which showed marks of improvement on all lines of church work. Our work under the leadership of Rev. H. N. York, our able pastor, is in good condition. Paid presiding elder in full; raised for all purposes, $130.20; paid pastor, $55.20; paid on parsonage lot, $30; benevolences, $4. Eighty-nine communed. Elder Nevils preached to the delight of all present. Five new subscriptions to the SOUTHWESTERN.

Crescent City Notes

Mr. Simon Randall recently presented to Mallalieu Chapel, of which he is a member, a nice church clock. This was, indeed, an acceptable gift.

A successful rally was held Sunday, July 16, at Pleasant Plain Church. Ministers present: Revs. D. B. Phillips, Martin, E. W. Ewell, F. T. Chinn, T. J. Johnson and Father S. Davage. The members and friends rallied generously and the sum of $46.25 was realized. Father Davage preached at night and a large audience was in attendance.

Sunday morning, at Wesley Chapel, Rev. Felix Castry preached. The Sunday school contest was good. Each child received a present from the pastor. At night the annual sermon was preached by Rev. T. J. Johnson. The society collected $10.47; total collection for the day, $32.

LOUISIANA.

LINDSAY, T. H. Jones, Pastor.—The pastor of Thomas Chapel M. E. Church and family were aroused at a late hour the evening of May 31st by the arrival of a host of friends. They presented the pastor 50 pounds of groceries and $5.60 in cash. Refreshments were served and a pleasant hour was spent socially. Our work here is in good condition. Have paid the elder up to date.

Hurst M. E. Church, PLAQUEMINE, J. O. Richards, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference was held April 11th, Rev. J. W. Turner presiding. This was his first visit to Plaquemine. Evered Hills was elected secretary. The officers were all present, with written reports. The steward sisters, with Sister Julia Irwin, president, and Sister Dora Hills, secretary, made a good report, as did also the King's Daughters, Sister Tinna Baily, president, and Sister Malisa Woods, secretary. The elder presided with ease. He preached an excellent sermon. All are pleased with him. We were glad to have Rev. H. Williams, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. Church of this city, with us. Just after the sermon a grand reception was given in honor of the new presiding elder by the Steward Sisters and King's Daughters, which was enjoyed by all present. On retiring to the parsonage we were surprised to see the tables laden with many valuable pounds, which T. M. Sears presented to the inmates. The pastor responded, also the presiding elder. Too much cannot be said in praise of the Steward Sisters, King's Daughters, brothers, members and friends for the excellent manner in which the reception and surprise were conducted.

NATCHITOCHES, T. Larkins.—A party of young ladies and other members of the church gave their pastor an agreeable surprise recently. Their contributions were numerous and generous. The prime mover was Mrs. Flora Hall, assisted by Misses M. Davis, Virginia and Margaret Hall.

CENTREVILLE CHARGE, C. C. Landry, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held June 11, in Butler's Chapel. Reports showed improvement along all lines and the work being pushed forward to the satisfaction of all concerned. Paid presiding elder $16. The elder preached two noble and inspiring sermons. Under the direction of Mr. Paul and friends an outing was planned for the elder and his esteemed wife, who were the guests while here of Mrs. Charlotte Chambers. Misses Nellie V. and Lillian B. Landry also enjoyed the outing.

PINEVILLE, L. Green.—The Steward Sisters of Wesley M. E. Church desire to extend their sincere thanks to Mrs. Clara Compton, Addie Gaines and Julia Robson for their financial assistance toward the beautifying of the church. The same was raised by means of an entertainment. Excellent results are bing accomplished here, under the administration of Rev. J. C. Brown.

LUTCHER, M. S. Harrison.—We take this method to thank our kind friends who called at the parsonage on May 22 and greatly surprised us with many pounds, also refreshments. Mesdames B. Walker, Agnes Hood, Mr. G. Moore and S. O. Williams. Mr. Moore made the presentation speech. The pastor responded.

FORDOCHE, O. Melvin.—Wiley Chapel M. E. Church under the leadership of Rev. E. V. Taylor, is doing good work. During his two weeks' revival 37 persons were happily converted, and were baptized the first Sunday in July.

LAKE CHARLES, Rev. B. J. Reddix, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held May 20th and 21st, with Rev. J. J. Obee, presiding elder, in the chair. A majority of the officers were present with reports, which showed that the work is progressing both financially and spiritually. The presiding elder preached Sunday night. His sermon was inspiring and beneficial to all. There is a great work to be done in this place. Collection for the day, $45.85.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves
Read this Letter to you about the
Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from overwork or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnish the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

Address: TAYLOR REMEDY CO., Louisville, Ky.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

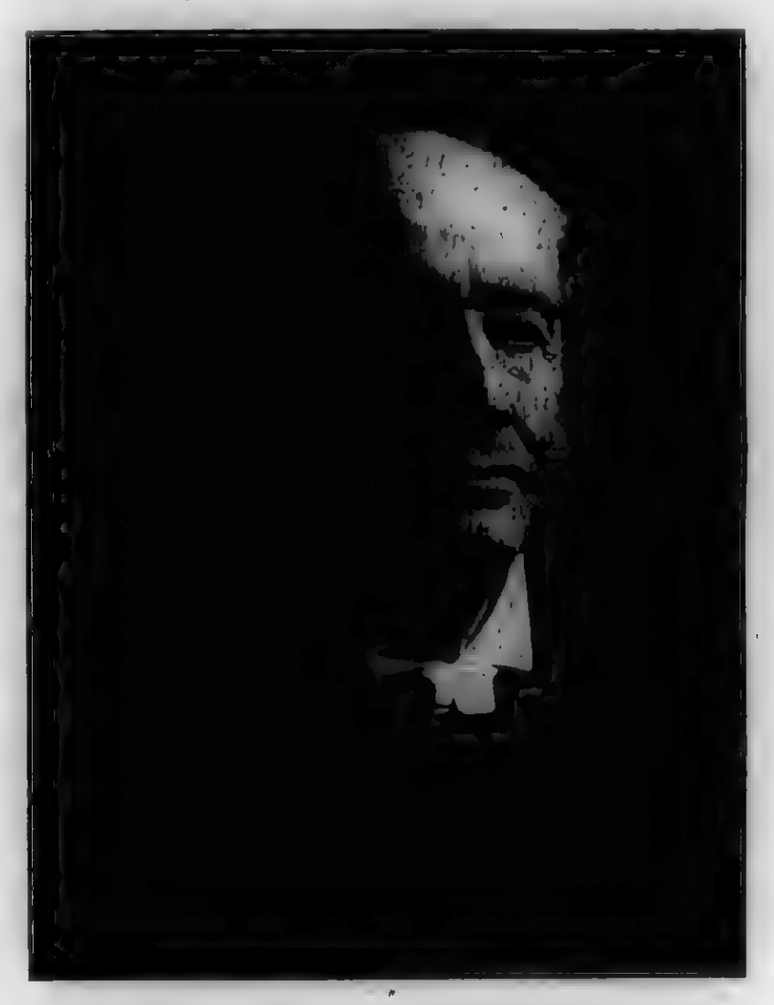
BISHOP JOYCE PASSES TO HIS REWARD



Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, after an illness of twenty-six days, died on Friday, July 28th, at Minneapolis, Minn., in the home of his son, Col. Frank M. Joyce. He suffered from a paralytic stroke, which he sustained at the Redrock Camp-meeting ground while preaching Sunday morning, July 2, when he fell suddenly and was conveyed to the home of his son, some eighteen miles away. From then to the time of his death the Church watched anxiously for any news telling of his condition. He regained consciousness, but was never able to speak distinctly because of paralysis. As he was being borne from the platform of the Redrock Camp-meeting ground he said, "If this is God's way, His will be done." Bishop Joyce died, practically, in the harness. And such was his desire. His life was full of labors, even up until the last.

Through the kindness of the Northwestern Christian Advocate we are privileged here to give certain biographical facts which Bishop Joyce wrote with his own hand, under the date of October 22, 1900:

Isaac Wilson Joyce was born in Colerain Township, Hamilton Conuty, Ohio, October 11, 1836, son of James W. and Mary Ann Joyce, and grandson of William and Margaret Wilson Joyce, and a descendant of William and Hannah Joyce of Dublin, Ireland.

With his parents he removed to Tippecanoe County, Indiana, in April, 1850. He was educated in Hartsville College, a school belonging to the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, but he received his degree of A. M. from Asbury, now DePauw University. He was converted and united with the Church in the year 1852. In the year 1859 he was received into the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the Northwest Indiana Conference, and filled several of the most prominent pulpits in that conference for several years. He received the degree of doctor of divinity from Dickinson College, and that of doctor of laws from the University of the Pacific.

When thirty-three years of age, Bishop Clark appointed him presiding elder of the East Lafayette District in the Northwest Indiana Conference, which he served for four years. He represented his Church in the General Conference of 1880 which met in Cincinnati. In September of that year he was transferred to the Cincinnati Conference and appointed to St. Paul's Church, Cincinnati. After serving that church a full term of three years he was appointed to Trinity, Cincinnati, and after a full three-year term there was re-appointed to St. Paul's, from which, in 1888, he was elected to the episcopacy. In 1886 he was appointed by the bishops to represent the Church at the General Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada, which met in Toronto. After his election to the episcopacy, he spent two quadrenniums in Chattanooga, where, in addition to his supervision of his conferences, he was the chancellor of the Grant University, located at Athens and Chattanooga. In 1892 he visited and presided over the five conferences of the Church in Europe. In 1894 he had charge of the Church in Mexico. In 1896 his episcopal residence was changed to Minneapolis, but for the first two years of that time he was in charge of the Church in Eastern Asia, making two tours through Japan, Korea, and China, presiding twice over the sessions of the conferences and missions in these three countries, returning to the United States in 1898 via Malaysia and India. He has presided over nearly all the conferences in the United States. In March, 1861, he married Miss Caroline Walker Bosserman, of La Porte, Ind.

BISHOP ISAAC WILSON JOYCE, D.D., LL.D
Born Oct 11, 1836. Died July 28, 1905.

To this it should be added that he made two Episcopal tours of South America, holding both Conference session in 1903 and 1904.

He was elected the fortieth Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1888, which was the first time in the history of Methodism a two-third majority was required for an election to the episcopacy. Five general superintendents were elected at this time in this order: Vincent, FitzGerald, Joyce, Newman and Goodsell. Thoburn was also elected Missionary Bishop at this time. At the time of the election, Vincent was Secretary of the Sunday School Union; FitzGerald, Recording Secretary of the Missionary Society; Goodsell, Secretary of the Board of Education; Joyce and Newman were elected to represent the pastorate.

He came into prominence before the Church by his unqualified success in our leading pulpits at Cincinnati. He might have been elected as well because of his pulpit ability. For Bishop Joyce was a great preacher. He was always full of his message and had great strength and force in conveying it to his audience. He was exceedingly popular as a preacher among our people. Evangelical and spiritual, he won his way into the hearts of all his hearers. His first important charge was St. Paul Church, Cincinnati, having been transferred from the Northwest Indiana Conference to the Cincinnati Conference for this appointment. If there was any doubt as to the wisdom of the appointment, it was soon dispelled by his ready grasp of the situation and his easy capture of the hearts of his parishioners. His ministrations in Cincinnati were not limited to St. Paul Church. He was known throughout the city as an eminent preacher and a friend to the poor and needy. It is said that he was often seen going into tenement houses carrying relief to those in need. This was but characteristic of him, for he had a sympathetic heart and was easily touched by pathetic cases. He served a full term at St. Paul at the end of which he was appointed to Trinity, Cincinnati, and after a full term here was re-appointed to St. Paul, which was a signal tribute to his success as a pastor. In all the charges he held there were gracious revivals, which had a quickening effect upon his immediate church and upon the community at large. It is a matter of history that his pastorate at Greencastle, Ind., the seat of DePauw University, proved beyond a doubt his ability as a pastor. For here he was exceedingly popular both with his parishioners and the students, leading the church not only to a high spiritual life, but building a fine edifice.

Bishop Joyce held nearly all of our Conferences in the South, and was assigned to hold the South Carolina Conference at its forthcoming session. He understood very clearly the particular embarrassments under which our colored membership labors, appreciating the thrusts that the distinctively colored branches of Methodism make upon the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. We can never forget how he used to stop in the midst of his conferences and meet these objections and how he would bring the brethren to their feet with shouts of cheer. He was popular among us and much beloved. As Dr. I. G. Penn said one day before the recent session of the Central Missouri Conference, referring to Bishop Joyce: "Bishop, if we never get a colored Bishop, you will do."

His first episcopal residence was at Chattanooga, Tenn., where he served in the capacity also of Chancellor of Grant University, and took an interest in every phase of the work. It was in 1896 that he took up his episcopal residence at Minneapolis, where he entered into the spirit of Methodism in that section with his characteristic enthusiasm and energy. It is said that he visited ninety-two places in the Northwest where a

Some Problems of a Young Pastor.

By Rev. W. C. Thompson, D. D.

Some problems of young pastors are intricate, difficult and indeed insolvable. Some of them we master, others master us. To only a few of these problems is our thought directed now.

The young man completes a course of preparation of some kind for his holy calling, and starts out in his vehicle, drawn by balky and unbroken steeds, for heaven. His mission, as he conceives it, is to ride and guide, for the most part, but often in the very muddiest places in the road he is forced to get down and lift both his horses and his vehicle out of the "miry clay." His ideals are high. He preaches strictly (?) homiletical sermons to a congregation that exists in his mind only. He makes a futile attempt to address a discourse to Prof. A., Dr. B., and Lawyer C., when his congregation is made up of Brother Jim, Sister Susan and their families. The real congregation, consequently, goes away still hungering to be fed with "milk," and a few morsels of "meat," and are wondering at what they have seen and heard that day. So that it becomes a problem to a young pastor as to what he should preach with the best advantage both to the congregation and to himself.

Many parishioners are caused to think what a good Christian woman expressed of her pastor, who had closed the Bible and spoken eloquently. Her compliment was that "Our preacher don't need the Bible." It is highly probable that the preacher is often more interested in heathen philosophies and the latest excavations, as such, in "theological cemeteries," than the masses of the people are. The opinions and speculations of infidels, agnostics and skeptics are valuable to us so far as they furnish an elevation for lifting men toward divine truth. All academic and theological instructions are but side-lights along the way to the Christ. What shall we preach? Preach Jesus and Him crucified! Preach the "Faith of our fathers! holy faith! We will be true to Thee till death!"

"For none of us liveth to himself," says the great apostle of the Gentiles. The young pastor must necessarily be associated with his brethren in some way; although his innocence, frankness and confidence in everybody might prove to be serious and mysterious barriers to a very commendable beginning in pastoral labbors. He is liable to expose too many of his unmatured plans and confide in and get unwholesome advice from the proper persons. And yet these perplexing problems ought not wreck his ambition nor daunt his courage, for "If God be for us, who can be against us?" It pays, therefore, to be true to God, faithful to whatever is committed to our care, to be somewhat conservative and to study men. Every man is an open book, one has said.

"It is not good that man should be alone," say the Scriptures. When a young pastor ought to get married is a mooted question. The differences of opinions are often confusing and misleading.

The temptations, the liabilities to besetments and the yawning pits of destruction cannot be discussed here, and yet out of all these there is "a way to escape." It may be said further that "I can do all things through Christ which strengthenest me." There is a positive benefit which could be well discussed in the solution of this problem; however, it is enough to say with the poet, "Why do you wait, dear brother; oh, why do you tarry so long?"

One has said of a pastor: "He is under the most sacred obligation to devote some hours every day to study. The student days of a pastor do not end with his scholastic career. He must be a student all his life, not only of men but of books. The library may be small, the number of books limited, and the variety of books far below his ideal, yet the young pastor must have books and must read them; for "reading maketh a full man," says Bacon. By study it is possible for a man to keep out of ruts, to render better service to his people, and to better prepare himself for a larger usefulness in the church. Would it not be wise therefore to cultivate more thoroughly the habit of study? Is there any reason why a beginner in the ministry should not have a time, a place and a system for study? The charge may be small, the parsonage not so spacious and commodious as desired, and the congregation easily satisfied, but in the name of self-culture, in the interest of the general church, and for the sake of Him whose we are, let us develop all the good that may be found within us. However, there is a proper precaution to be taken. A great preacher has said: "A pastor who is invisible all the week is generally incomprehensible on Sunday." Deliver the people from intellectual dyspeptics, who spit out hunks and chunks of knowledge undigested and unassimilated, which are no less nauseating to the lookers-on than to the performers. An important problem of the young pastor, therefore, is, "How shall I best husband my time and give due attention to pastoral labors and to private study?"

Personal and practical applications to a solution of these problems must have unmeasured influence upon the future church. Young pastors are called upon to make every possible effort to get ready for the great work to which our fathers must assign them. Their (our fathers') unwillingness to surrender their mantles to an unprepared, unconsecrated and improvident leadership of weaklings is wise and is to be commended. Let us, therefore be "Up and doing, with a heart for any fate, still achieving, still pursuing, learn to labor and to wait."

The India Missionary Jubilee

By Bishop J. M. Thoburn

Forty-nine years ago, Dr. William Butler was on his way to India, to lay the foundations of what has since become a great and growing group of Mission Conferences in Southern Asia. He was a courageous man, brim full of energy and zeal, strong in faith, and assured that God was calling the Church to a new evangel of missionary enterprise. The whole Church knows the story of his landing in India, his choice of a field, his flight in the Mutiny, and his return and successful organization of a Mission which has developed into nine Annual Conferences, and is still expanding steadily. A hundred missionaries are enrolled, and the converts, including children, amount to more than 150,000! It is doubtful if a record equal to this can be found in the annals of modern missionary enterprise, and it is no wonder that the brethren in India are moved to call upon the Church to join with them in celebrating the first half-century of their splendid work. At the last General Conference attention was called to the fact that this great Mission was about to close its fiftieth year of successful work, and on motion of Robert Laidlaw, the lay delegate representing the Bengal Conference, it was ordered that the Church be called upon to celebrate in a fitting manner the close of the first, and the opening of the second half-century of the Mission's progress. In other words, it was decided to hold a great Jubilee of praise and thanksgiving not only in India but in the United States as well.

Dr. William Butler landed in India, September 23, 1856, and entered his chosen field in North India on November 29 of the same year. In accordance with the action of the General Conference, the Missionary Board at New York has appointed a Commission consisting of twenty-five ministers and laymen, representing different parts of the Church, with authority to make all needed arrangements for the celebration of this Jubilee in the United States. The undersigned has been appointed President of the Commission, while three Secretaries have been appointed to represent the Eastern, Central, and Western sections of the country. The fullest sanction has thus been given; first by the General Conference, second by the Missionary Society, and lastly by the missionaries in India, to the proposed movement, and no doubt can be entertained that the result will fully come up to the somewhat sanguine expectations of its promoters. As one note of thanksgiving to God for His wonderful blessing bestowed on this work, it is proposed to ask the Church for a thank-offering of such proportions as will enable the brethren and sisters in India to start on the new half-century not only with renewed gratitude, but with renewed strength and increased means for the prosecution of their work, and the sum of $250,000 has been named as a fitting token for such a purpose. The proposed movement will be continued throughout the present and coming year, and no doubt will create not only increased interest in the work in India, but also act as a stimulus to our missionary work in other fields. It cannot be said too often, and too emphatically, that our foreign work is one. The interest of one mission field is the interest of all, and our foreign missionaries in other lands as one body will pray for the success of this movement, and watch its progress with almost as much interest as if it were their own.

Treat your friends for what you knew them to be. Regard no surfaces. Consider not what they did, but what they intended.—Henry D. Thoreau.

By desiring what is perfectly good, even when we don't quite know what it is, and cannot do what we would, we are part of the divine power against evil—widening the skirts of light, and making the struggle with darkness narrower.—George Eliot.

The Missionary Spirit

By Rev. Thomas Cole.

It is a question of prime importance to a reflecting mind as to whether the missionary spirit has its foundation in the religious constitution of the Christian, or in his natural propensity for romantic, hazardous and untrodden paths, especially when associated with benevolence, either real or apparent.

The spirit of missions exists only in the minds of those whose souls are lighted from above, those who have tasted that the Lord is gracious and under the impelling influence of the love of God shed abroad in the heart. All this is the very spirit of heaven, of pure benevolence, of impartial love. It was the simple acting on this principle that led the Son of God to die for the happiness of millions.

The very genius of the Gospel, all its eternal provisions, all of its promises, all its moral power, all its magnificent and unfading rewards, are directed by an undeviating aim—the salvation of sinners—to pour into their minds the light and joy of heaven.

What, then, we ask, would be the natural and the inevitable tendency of the all-powerful intensely active principles, if fully and cordially received into the immortal minds. They do not center in the bosom of believers alone, but rather in the immense field of sin and suffering discovered on every side. These principles go forth like the spirit, to seek out and minister to the heirs of salvation. Most evidently, then, the spirit of mission is the divine energy of the Gospel.

And to the cultivation and diffusion of this principle, the missionary consecrates his powers, and this is the way in which he becomes a worker together with God. It is the work of the spirit to convince of sin, and to lead the minds of men into all truth. To these efforts, also the labors of the missionaries, are constantly devoted. Thus we see that the spirit of missions finds correlation in that mighty power, wherewith Christ will subdue all things unto Himself. The missionary spirit is most strongly intrenched behind the sacred Scriptures, so that it cannot be successfully attacked until a thousand declartions of the Bible are obliterated and forgotten. The life of Christ and of the Apostle Paul must ever stand as practical illustrations of what a missionary should be, and the very first attempt to copy their exalted example would inevitably lead to a missionary life. The farewell commission given just before the heavens received Him out of the sight of mortal eye is a perpetual injunction from the Lord of Glory to foster and maintain the spirit of missions.

Helpful Books

By Bishop W. F. Mallalieu, D. D

Every preacher ought to be a reader of good books. Every man is known by the company he keeps. This is an old and true proverb. It is just as true a proverb, but perhaps not quite so old, as that just quoted, that every man is known by the books he reads.

Life is altogether too short and the fleeting moments are too precious to read poor, frivolous books. If one wants good blood and brain and brawn and bone, good food must be eaten, digested and assimilated. If one wants to be able to do first-class intellectual work, the mind must have good food. Good books are food for the mind. Here follows a list of helpful books that ought to be owned and read by every preacher who hopes to rise in his profession and do the best possible work for God and his fellow men. Every one of these books can be bought at the office of the SOUTHWESTERN. If they are not in stock they can be ordered at short notice.

Brethren, read good books, master them, and you will grow thereby and your ministry will be a success.

Letter From Dr. W. D. Godman

Letter From Dr. W. D. Godman.

I congratulate the Louisiana Conference upon the excellent quality of the Minutes recently issued. With the best temper we can command, we can admit that this excellence compensates for the long wait.

I beg leave, through your columns, to make a correction in the printed statement of my financial work for Gilbert College. The items are as follows:

Cash endowment from Mr. Gilbert..	$40,000.00
Cash endowment from Mrs. Barney.	1,000.00
Lots and lands from Dr. Godman...	1,500.00
Personal donations and gifts from Dr. Godman.....	18,658.13
Given for Orphans' Home by Miss Godman	2,300.00
Given for Orphans' Home by Mrs. Godman.....	1,000.00
Improvements and buildings, from many contributors.....	48,400.00
Total.....	$112,858.13

The printed total of $102,858.13 is in error to the sum of $10,000.

The library which I left to the college is of the very best quality. Of its size (2,000 to 2,500 volumes) there is no better reference library in the United States. Knowing that the young people of the colored race have access to few good libraries, I have sought to furnish those who desire to investigate, and to widen their knowledge, an opportunity to do this under favorable circumstances.

There is in the hands of the Freedmen's Aid Society, for the erection of a Library Hall, the sum of $2,440. This sum, added to the above total, will make the entire result of my labors $115,298.13.

This good result is not to my credit; it is God's answer to prayer. W. D. GODMAN.

Lexington Conference Academy Board

At call of the president, this board met in Ninth Street M. E. Church, Covington, Ky., July 14th. A majority of the members were present. A committee of Revs. Courtney, Tate and Robinson was appointed to draft resolutions, nominate a board of trustees, etc. The necessity for such a school was never more apparent than now. The African church has five, the Christian church has six, the Congregational has six, and the Baptist church has nine institutions of learning in the State of Kentucky alone, and we have none. Our intelligent young people are not looking to us, as there are not twenty from our territory in both Walden University and Gammon Theological schools. There ought to be more, and would be if we had an academy as a feeder for these. We are compelled in many instances to look to these churches for our organists and literary talent, under existing circumstances. The above named committee nominated a board of trustees to serve, two, three and five years, respectively, viz.: Stanley, J. P. Shaw, P. T. Gorham; Mr. Norteman, L. M. Hagood, E. A. White; J. Courtney, C. C. Stoll and G. A. Sissle; J. P. Shaw, treasurer; E. A. White, assistant.

On Location—Hagood, Stanley, Zeigler, Robinson and Courtney.

On Constitution and By-Laws—Robinson, Tate and White.

On motion, no further action will be taken until $1,000 cash be in hand. Each brother seemed to know what was needed to make such an institution a reality. Many plans were suggested. The committee adjourned to meet when found necessary.

L. M. HAGOOD, President.
D. E. SKELTON, Secretary.

Faithless Prayer

Faith does not belong to prayer any more than to preaching, teaching, and singing. It has as great a place in business and social life as in the religious. Somehow, our common method of expression has given prayer almost an exclusive right on faith.

It is true that prayers should not be faithless, whether faith is regarded as general trust or expectation of receiving blessings asked for. A boy who requests his father for a pony, believing that the father lacks the power of love to respond favorably, is not of much credit to himself or to his parent. But he might be employed to illustrate the faithless hearts which belong to the same bodies whose lips often pray. Petition is a small part of prayer, and grows out of confidence begotten of communion. Its place, though not large, is important, and should not be minimized by disbelief. To use a homely illustration, which is said to be based on fact, when we gather at a church to pray for rain, we should take our umbrellas along. In all petitions, however, we should not presume too much upon our own diagnosis of our needs. It is God that is infallible, and that should have the right to give or to withhold according to His infinite wisdom. Religious Telescope.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

A Cry of the Heart

BY THE REV. FRANK P. RENO.

With pilgrim staff I seek a fairer country,
But I'm so frail, so blind, so prone to stray;
The shards and thorns my weary feet encounter.
But One there is who guides me all the way.

Mayhap my path will lie across the mountains,
Where gorges cleave, midway, the dizzy height;
Or elsewhere thread the broad, inviting valleys—
Whate'er befalls, O, lead my steps aright!

Should false ambition woo from tasks of duty,
Or pleasures vain begin the siren song,
Hold Thou my hands, nor let my spirit falter,
Impart Thy strength and make me doubly strong.

I cannot know what calms or storms await me,
Nor where nor when shall close this mortal scene;
It matters not; if Thou reveal Thy presence,
E'en desert wastes will be as pastures green.

When fall life's crucial hours, when death approaches,
Or friends prove false, and bow at Mammon's shrine,
O, come Thou near with Thy resplendent glory,
And fill my soul with symphonies divine!

Real Evidences

In our more youthful days, the theological debate was a frequent occurrence and a popular attraction. Two subjects seemed to be of prime importance—the nature and purpose of baptism, and the various implications of the universalist doctrine. The prevailing idea was that men needed instruction more than example, that argument counted for more than lives. Very often in the heat of debate things were said and done which revealed little relation to the spirit of Jesus Christ. More effort was put forth to entangle an opponent, and to make him seem inconsistent and ridiculous, than to uphold the Christian banner. Tricks were resorted to under show of fairness, and almost any method employed to gain an advantage, the conscience being promised that good use would be made of the power acquired by crooked plans.

It is all different now. Outside of a half-dozen or less belligerent sects, the old debate is not a respected inheritance. A good thing that it is so! Religion needs a better foundation than argument, and a stronger bulwark than an ability to say something more shrewd or cutting than the other man. The evidences which are now read most are the lives of professed Christians. If they are up to the standard, no polemic defense is necessary.—Religious Telescope.

Our Sunshine

BY ANDREW M'CLINTOCK.

There's sunshine in the truthful word
That speaks the Master's love,
Who came to earth to plead our cause,
From glory's height above;
It warms and quickens into life
The cold and deadened heart,
And tells us of His tender care,
That will not from us part.

There's sunshine in His gracious words,
And in His loving tone,
I go to make a home for you,
I will not leave you lone;
For soon a Messenger will come,
To comfort and to cheer,
And in your daily toil and strife
I will be very near.

To guide and strengthen you through life,
And at your death receive,
To peaceful mansions fair and bright—
So do not doubt or grieve;
For days will come and days will pass,
And time will have an end;
And then I'll come in mighty power
And claim you as My friend.

The Struggle for Victory

PROF. N. E. CORNETET, A. M.

The victor's laurels, who would not wear them? Yet many a head is uncrowned with the glory of triumph. Many will to gain the victory who apparently are without the crown. Such often reach the goal of their high purpose and sublime endeavor unseen except by the divine eye. They also see Him whose eye runs throughout the universe to observe the good and the bad. For the pure in heart shall see God.

Contests are often different from what they seem. Contestants do not have equal chances. You may look upon the runners in a race on our athletic fields, and feel confident that a certain man will win. They all run. All have been in training. Your man does not make first place in the course. Why? Perhaps because by heredity he had not the inherent elements to make victory possible to him.

Now, we are all in a pell-mell struggle for ultimate victory. I refer to the mental and moral plane. Some start with the best chances. They can win. Many of these do not. Others have the odds against them. Many of these gain the goal. Some of these cannot make first place, yet they attain the purpose in their lives.

I am impressed more and more every day with Paul's expression of a stupendous fact in life. I refer to the tragedy of the soul. He says, "For what I perform, I do not recognize; for I do not accomplish the thing which I will, but that which I hate I do." How many have breathed out his exclamation, "I, a wretched man"! Then who can save, give us the victory in this unequal contest? "Gratitude to God through Jesus Christ our Lord." He is our Savior and Victory.

Recent experiences lead me to be more lenient and compassionate towards those in this awful conflict. This has come about, largely, by a clearer revelation of myself. I know myself better than a few years ago. If we can but run so as to obtain, who have the grace, guidance, and gifts of Jesus, how can men overcome in this stadium who have not the impetus of His help? They cannot. But we, His messengers, need to tell them so in such a tactful and loving way as to win for them confidence in our Victory, Christ. The most splendid crown in this life is the consciousness that "now there is no condemnation to those in Christ Jesus; for the law of the Spirit of the life in Christ Jesus has absolutely freed them from the law of sin and death."

To Duty

BY FRANK MOORE JEFFERY.

Hark to the voices!
One bids us Wisdom learn,
One says, "Through duty learn
Thy best reward."
"Seek Truth," another cries,
"Be good; withal, be wise;
Aim high; point to the skies.
Good deeds accord."

Help, O ye lavish,
Humanity to rise.
See that no genius dies
Crushed by chill want.
Give knowledge without gold;
Give art to young and old;
So shall Time's scroll unrolled
All memories haunt.
Who are the greatest?
They who uplift the race;
They who in God's wise grace
Rule for the best.
Hear! O ye sons of men,
Use wealth that power again
May gild Time's future when
Ye are at rest.

Postal Card Sermon

By Rev. B. F. Witherspoon, D. D.

Text—Eccles. 5:4. Theme—Importance of a Vow.

A vow is a solemn promise made unto God. To be really a religious person each man must make and keep three vows: that he will live a chaste life; that he will live a life that shall always be poor in spirit; that he will live a life of willing obedience. Vows in a moral and religious sense are promises to God, and they appeal to Him to witness their sincerity, and the violation of them is a heinous sin, a terrible offense.

A vow is a solemn promise to be steadfast in love, and to be unchangeable in fidelity and devotion. It is also a solemn pledge to give, consecrate, or dedicate something to God. In this sense Jacob vowed a vow unto the Lord to give one-tenth of his substance and all of his future devotion to Him.

There are vows that must be kept under all circumstances; they are those made with a purpose to honor God, and those made with a sincere intention to serve Him.

We have made many vows and have promised to live each day for Him; that we would deny ourselves, forsake the world and patiently and humbly follow Christ; that we would live a chaste, obedient, holy life; and that we would give of our earthly substance to the support of the Gospel, and the various enterprises of the Church of God.

As to time, our vows should be performed punctually; as to manner, kindly and gladly; as to spirit, conscientiously.

Vows are very important, and God recognizes them as such in His sight. Men honor and highly respect those who keep their vows. The world will only be better when men respect their own vows and faithfully and constantly perform them. The communion service is an important religious vow, and when we take part in it we renew our vow and declare that we are the followers of the despised Nazarene; that we are the children of the most high God; that we are brethren engaged in one common cause; that we are gladly and obediently keeping God's commandments; and that we are daily expecting our Lord and Master to appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

"To Him we make our solemn vow,
A vow we dare not break."

YOUNG FRIENDS

A Boy Wanted

Monday—
Wanted—a boy that is manly,
A boy that is kind and polite,
A boy you can always depend on
To do what he knows to be right.

Tuesday—
A boy that is truthful and honest,
And faithful and willing to work;
But we have not a place that we care to disgrace,
With a boy that is ready to shirk.

Wednesday—
Wanted—a boy you can tie to,
A boy that is trusty and true,
A boy that is good to old people,
And kind to the little ones, too.

Thursday—
A boy that is nice to the home-folks,
And pleasant to sister and brother,
A boy who will try, when things go awry,
To be helpful to father and mother.

Friday—
These are the boys who are wanted
In the worshop, the home and the store;
The world needs such boys in business,
For them there are places galore.

Saturday—
These are the boys we depend on—
Our hope for the future, and then
Grave problems of State and the world's work await Such boys when they grow to be men.

The Playground of the Boy Jesus

By Rev. Arthur P. Vaughn.

We do not know what the face of Jesus looked like. We have the pictures of emperors that lived when He did, but Jesus was a workman, and portraits in those days were only for the very rich. But we do know how He dressed when He was a boy, for they wear the same sort of clothes in Nazareth still; we know some of the games He played, and we can still see the places where He played. As you sometimes watch children at a distance, and enjoy their game, though you do not recognize their faces, so we can look back across the distance of nineteen hundred years, and see the boy Jesus quite well at His work and play, even though we cannot recognize His features.

Nazareth is built in the Galilean hills and a dry creek bed runs through the town. By the creek is the old threshing-floor, where the ground is beaten hard, so the grain will not be trampled into it. Here in the harvest the wheat and barley are thrown, and the goats are driven round and round upon it until the grain is all trampled from its husks. Then they separate it from the chaff, and store it away in the granaries. But all the year except threshing time the children of Nazareth have the threshing-floor as their play ground. These threshing-floors are not often changed, and there are not many level places in Nazareth to make another, so it is quite possible that Jesus and His friends had their games on this very spot. I suspect it was here the Nazarene children played wedding and funeral. Jesus tells of it in Luke 7: 32. Marriages and funerals were then, and are still, the greatest events of the village life, and so the children, in playing "make-believe," may have played these oftenest. Sometimes, I doubt not, the other children were sulky, and wouldn't agree.

"Let's play wedding, and we'll be the pipers," some would say.

"No, we won't do it!"

"Well, let's play funeral, then, and you can be the chief mourners."

"No, we don't want to!"

But when a real wedding came, everybody was ready. Their finest clothes were gotten out, and they went to the house of the bride, often filling the streets for a long way from the door; for their streets are seldom as wide as our narrowest alleys. Then they talked and laughed and told stories constantly until the procession started. The pipers on their reed flutes and the women on their tambourines began their music, and all the company clapped their hands in time, and the children! —they were the happiest of all. They scampered about in front of the company, dancing and turning somersaults, and playing every sort of trick on each other. Later on, at night, came the wedding feast. Jesus had been among the merrymakers and at the feasts often in Nazareth while a boy, and John tells us of one He went to Cana to attend after He became a man.

The hillside on which the older part of Nazareth is built is very steep. At one place there is a straight rock-face—a high bluff, or precipice. Of course, that was the best play-place about town for the boys. If they ever picked flowers they picked those that grew there out of the rocks, because it was dangerous. When they played battle this was the fortress that was attacked and taken. I am quite sure Jesus knew the hill well, and remembered it, as we always do the places where we have our best times. But after He became a man, and was preaching in the cities around, He came back to Nazareth, and in their synagogue confessed that He was the Son of God. Then the men took Him up to this same hill where they had played together as children, and intended to cast Him down and kill Him; but He escaped from them.

While I was wandering along one of the crookedest, narrowest streets of Nazareth I heard some one using a saw. "I wonder if this can be a carpenter shop!" I thought. A moment later I was at the open door. The shop was rather dark, for the only light came in through the door; there were no windows. There were carpenter's benches along the sides of the room, and above them racks of tools. Pieces of boards were piled up here and there in the corners. Two men were making a large chest. The work was very neatly done, but with only the simplest tools. A hammer, a saw, and a chisel are about all they have. There, on the floor, two boys were sitting, working, smoothing up some ox-bows. All about them were the shavings and chips from the chisels. And I fancied this carpenter's shop—the dark room, the simple tools, ox-yokes, chests, shavings, boys, and all—was very like the one Jesus worked in, just here on this hillside somewhere, nineteen hundred years ago.—Sunday School Times.

But a Little Child

(Luke 18: 16. Prov. 20: 11.)

I am but a little child,
Yet I should like to be
A faithful worker for the Lord;
What work is there for me?

A little child can watch,
And keep his actions pure;
A little child can love—
God's love is ever sure.

A little child can walk
With Jesus all the way
That leads from earth into the joy
Of everlasting day.

Thoughts as Lovely as Flowers

The pains that the world takes to grow flowers are gladly undertaken and suffered because of the loveliness of the blossoms that rival in beauty the colors of the sunset. Think now of the care taken to have planting done at the right time, the pains taken to have the soil fitted to the plant. Then comes the watering in the mornings, the shielding of the flower from too hot a sun, the careful watch lest the very small insects gather on the plant and eat out its life. But if the flower thrives and gives promise of blossoming all this labor is forgotten and an equal amount of similar labor will be given if necessary before the time of blooming. Thoughts may be as lovely as flowers. The thoughts of your own and those which you receive from others may have all the charm of those forget-me-nots which hang upon the plants of our gardens and which all—man, woman, and child, love. Use now as good sense in selecting your thoughts as you do your flowers. Ask those who ought to know what are helpful and lovely thoughts and learn from them. In your own reading seek out those thoughts that arouse the best in yourself; remember them; linger with them as you do with the roses and pinks.—The Classmate.

Since Thy Father's Arm Sustains Thee

Since thy Father's arm sustains thee,
Peaceful be;
When a chastening hand restrains thee,
It is He.
Know His love in full completeness
Fills the measure of thy weakness;
If He wound thy spirit sore,
Trust him more.

Without murmur, uncomplaining,
In His hand
Leave whatever things thou canst not Understand
Though the world thy folly spurneth,
From thy faith in pity turneth,
Peace thy inmost soul shall fill
Lying still.

Therefore, whatsoe'er betideth,
Night or day,
Know His love for thee provideth
Good always.
Crown of sorrow gladly take,
Grateful wear it for His sake;
Sweetly bending to His will,
Lying still.

To His own thy Father giveth
Daily strength;
To each troubled soul that liveth,
Peace at length.
Weakest lambs have largest share
Of this tender Shepherd's care;
Ask Him not then, "When?" or "How?"
Only bow.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson V 1—August 13 1905. Title—"Josiah and the Book of the Law."—(2 Chron. 34: 4-8.) Golden Text—"I will not forget thy word." (Psa. 119: 16.)

I. Finding the "book of the law." (Ver. 14.) The money, as it was raised to repair the temple, was brought into the house of the Lord and stored away with care. As it was being brought forth a "book of the law" was found. This roll was probably written by Moses, or an exact copy of the one written by him, and given to the priests to deposit and keep in the side of the ark. We may reasonably infer that this was the entire Pentateuch, and not the book of Deuteronomy only. The statement that it was the "book of the law of Jehovah, by the hand of Moses," likely caused the profound impression made by the finding of it. Moses had been dead only about eight hundred years. We have to-day manuscripts that have been in use a much longer time. It is not likely this was the only copy of the law then in existence. But from the beginning of Manasseh's reign down to this time—seventy-five years—the law had been greatly neglected, and knowledge of it was very limited. We know not in what part of the temple this roll was found. Rabbinical tradition is that it was found beneath a heap of stones, under which it had been hidden when Anaz burned the other copies of the law. It may have been hidden in the ark, which Manasseh had cast aside into some of the many cells or chambers around the temple. The Bible would have been destroyed long ago had not the providence of God prevented it.

II. Reading the "book of the law" to the king. (Vers. 15-18.) When Hilkiah, the priest, found the "book of the law" he gave it to Shaphan, the scribe. When Shaphan went before the king he took with him this roll. After he had told how the money, committed to his care, had been paid to the overseers, and by them to the workmen, he spoke of a roll given him by Kilkiah, the priest. He did not call it the "book of the law," or in any way indicate that there was anything extraordinary about it. Yet he no doubt knew what it contained. Josiah likely expressed a desire to hear the roll read. It is generally believed, from the impression made on the mind of the king, and from the words of the prophetess, that Shaphan read chapters 28 to 31 of Deuteronomy. This would be very natural, too, if the book was in the form of a scroll and the scribe unrolled the last part first.

III. Some effects of reading the "book of the law" on the king. (Vers. 19-28.) 1. He was greatly moved, and said: "Great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the words of the Lord, to do after all that is written in this book." (Ver. 21.) His father Amon and his grandfather Manasseh had been intensely wicked. His father was assassinated in the second year of his reign because of his great evil conduct. When the mercy of God has fled, and His justice has full control, then His wrath is poured out on the people. The nation, or individual, that sins may expect to suffer for it.

2. He rent his clothes. (Ver. 19.) This was done by seizing the robes over the heart with the right hand and tearing them till the flesh was left bare. It was an expression of great grief, and indicated that nothing was hid in the soul from God, and that sorrow was rending the heart as he thus rent his clothes. The reading of God's word brings conviction of sin. It shows our departure from the true standard. It is a mirror that reflects our depravity. It is a measuring line by which we learn how far and wide we have strayed.

3. He commanded that farther investigation be made about the meaning of the roll. (Ver. 20.) He sent a delegation of his greatest men to learn more of the matter. He would honor the message by employing those of the first rank to bear it. There was Kilkiah the high priest; Ahikam, the friend of Jeremiah, and father of the governor of the cities of Judah; Achbor, whose son, Elnathan, was one of Zedekiah's chief ministers; Shaphan, the scribe, at this time a venerable old man, and Asahiah, a servant of the king, likely his cupbearer. These were to inquire of the Lord for Israel and for Judah concerning the things of this book.

4. This delegation was not told of whom they should inquire, but they went to Huldah, the prophetess. (Ver. 22.) There were Jeremiah, Zephaniah, and Habakkuk, prophet in Judah at this time. We know not why they were passed by. Perhaps they were out of the city, teaching and collecting money for the temple. Perhaps they would inquire of the older persons rather than of the young men who were just beginning to prophesy. Perhaps they felt that Huldah would be more gentle and sympathetic than those who had been uttering such terrible anathemas. The spirit of prophecy was not only put in earthen vessels, but sometimes in the weaker vessel, that the excellency of the power might be of God. Miriam helped to lead Israel out of Egypt, Deborah judged them, and Huldah instructed them in the "book of the law." The fact that she was a wife did not prevent her from being a prophetess. Marriage is honorable to all. All we know of this celebrated woman is recorded here and in Second Kings. Neither her husband or ancestors are named elsewhere. But she has been immortalized by this short narrative. Her utterance on this occasion has given her a place above many of the prophets of Judah. The high priest, and the king's most honored ministers, sought knowledge at her hands. God is no respecter of persons or sects, in the bestowment of spiritual gifts, yet in the field of prophecy woman has appeared less frequent than man. Only two other women of the Old Testament, Miriam and Deborah, have borne the title of prophetess. And they seem not to have attained the spiritual elevation of Huldah. Her husband, Shallum, was the keeper of the wardrobe, either of the king or of the priests. Huldah dwelt in Jerusalem "in the college," or house of instruction. Many believe she had charge of the school of the prophets. Others are of the opinion it should be rendered "in the second part," or later addition. The Revised Version has "second quarter"—that is, the new or outer city.

5. The message this delegation received was two-fold: (1) To the people (Vers. 23-25). She begins with a "Thus saith the Lord." Her words are of the highest authority. Jehovah will bring all the curses that are written in the "book of the law" upon Jerusalem and upon the inhabitants thereof. These maledictions are found chiefly in the twenty-sixth chapter of Leviticus and the last chapters of Deuteronomy. These evils would come upon them because they had forsaken the Lord, had burned incense to other gods, and had provoked the Lord to anger. The decree had gone forth. There was no help for them. God's wrath would be poured out and would not be quenched. If we sin and do not repent we need not hope for mercy. (2) To the king (Vers. 26-28). In wrath God remembered mercy. He would not bring this evil upon the king in his day, but an after generation would see it. God showed Josiah mercy because his heart was tender; because he humbled himself before the Lord when he heard the words of the "book of the law"; because he rent his clothes, and because he wept before the Lord. The king was very penitent, therefore God would gather him to his fathers, and he should be gathered to his grave in peace. Josiah was slain in battle by the king of Egypt, but was brought to Jerusalem and peacefully buried in his own family tomb. Thus he escaped the bitter woes that befell his city and people a few years later.

This message made a very solemn impression on Josiah. The people were assembled, the "book of the law" read, idolatry solemnly renounced, and the worship of Jehovah firmly established by a royal decree. A great passover was appointed. Priests and Levites were sent throughout the country to instruct the people in the nature of this great feast. Multitudes assembled in Jerusalem, not only from Judæa but also from the ten tribes. The feast lasted eight days. During each of these days the services of the temple choir were brought into use. The singers of the famous clan of Asaph chanted the Psalms for the season.

Lesson Topic August 13.

The Building of Character

Scripture Reference—2 Pet. 1: 1-11; Jud 20: 21.

The Word. This chapter from Peter is a so emn appeal for the exhibition of the Christia graces and diligence in bringing forth the frui of the Spirit. Here is God's "sum in addition where are enumerated the various graces whic make us "fruitful in the knowledge of Jesu Christ." Only thus can we build up a characte that shall stand the test of eternity, and mak our "calling and election sure." Only thus ca we have the "abundant entrance" into the kingdom. The two verses from Jude teach the sam important truth. There must be a "building up, and the four elements are faith, which must b personal; prayer, which must be in the Hol Ghost; the love of God, in which we must kee ourselves; and mercy, resulting in eternal life.

Our Homily: Character-Building. From al that the Scriptures say about character-buildin certain facts may be confidently stated. Read i connection with this lesson the last part of th seventh of Matthew. The building of a charac ter must be like the building of a house. Ther must be a foundation; there must be a plan there must be proper material; and there mus be strict following of the plan. All of this Go has provided for us, and His grace will help u to succeed. Notice certain facts:

All Men Are Builders. Whether we will i or no, we have the shaping of a character place in our hands. Well or ill as we may carry ou the plan, we must take the responsibility of ou own characters. We may go up into the moun as did Moses and get the pattern of a perfec building. We may take the matter carelessl and fail in the work. But build we must, an building we are. Thoughts are finding expres sion in words; words are taking shape in ac tions; actions are forming character; and char acter is the foreshadowing of destiny. It is a solemn truth that unconsciously we are daily an hourly forming those characters which determin eternal interests. Life and character must tak shape. Every Epworth Leaguer is exceedingly busy just now in character-building. How im portant that we build rightly!

The Only Safe Foundation is Jesus Christ Men are building for eternity on others. They will prove of sand. Only one rock is laid, and that is the "Rock of ages." A man who places his life and character on any other foundation will fail. Pride and ambition may lead us to build up certain factors, but the "love of Christ" is the one sufficient motive for a true and real building of character. The storms of adversity, the winds of temptation, will overturn our character unless founded on the rock. We must get upon the sure foundation if we would build safely. The only basis of eternal safety is Jesus Christ. Not membership in the church or league, but personal faith in Jesus, is the solid ground of hope.

Even on the True Foundation We May Build Cheaply. Paul in the third chapter of First Corinthians gives us a vivid picture of the difference between building "wood, hay, stubble," or "gold, silver, precious stones." A man may so build on Christ that his work shall abide. But, on the other hand, he may so build that his work shall be burned and he suffer loss, though he be saved so "as by fire." The exhortation of our lesson is that we not only build on the true foundation, but that we build "for eternity."

If we build up the graces mentioned by Peter, if the elements which Jude names are incorporated into our building, we may have an abiding work. We are not to build cheaply—"Queen Anne front and Mary Ann behind." We are not to build for applause or personal aggrandizement, but for the glory of God. We are to build ourselves up into a temple of the Lord. We are to be God's building. We are to shape a character that shall remain as eternal as the heavens. —From Notes on the Epworth League Devotional Meeting Topics.

Forthcoming Conventions

ANNISTON DISTRICT.

The Ministers' District Union met in St. Thomas M. E Church, July 13-15, Rev. G. W. Reeves, presided, conducted the devotional service. A number of the brethren were present and engaged actively in the work, reading papers and discussing questions of importance, which made the meeting interesting. We were also favored with the presence of the Rev. Orgasteene, of the M. E. Church, South, who delivered a fine lecture on missions, which I think helped the cause. Sunday's services were good and attended by large audiences. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., by the writer. Rev. G. W. Reeves preached at 3 p. m. Raised during the session, $26.66. Wm. Perry, secretary.

OPELIKA DISTRICT.

The Opelika District Missionary Convention held its second annual anniversary at West Point, Ga., June 1. Many pastors and delegates were present. The spirit of the convention was one of activity throughout the entire proceedings. After permanent organization the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That this organization shall be known as the Opelika District Missionary Convention.

Resolved, That the constituency of the convention shall be composed of the members of both the quarterly and district conference delegates and Sunday-school Missionary committee.

Resolved, That each delegate of the convention be required to bring or send twenty-five cents to the convention for mission work.

Resolved, That each delegate shall be appointed by his respective body and confirmed by the quarterly conference.

Resolved, That these conventions shall meet the fourth Thursday in May of each year, the place of meeting to be determined by the convention assembled.

Resolved, That each pastor shall bring ten cents from each member of his charge and report same the first day of the convention, to the presiding officer, and take receipt for same; said money shall go to his credit on his missionary appropriation.

Resolved, That the program committee of the District conference shall provide for a special session of the district convention, when making out its program. Said program to be furnished by the program committee of the District Missionary Convention.

The convention is the result of a tremendous conviction on the part of the pastors of the Opelika District that enough effective work for missions is not being done. C. L. Dunn, A. G. Jenkins, J. J. Harrison, Committee.

Six things are requisite to create a happy home. Integrity must be the architect, and tidiness the upholsterer. It must be warmed by affection, and lightened up with cheerfulness, and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere, and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all, as a protecting canopy and glory, nothing will suffice except the blessings of God.—Rev. Dr. Hamilton.

John Ruskin, in counting up the blessings of his childhood, reckoned these three for first good: Peace—he had been taught the meaning of peace in thought, act, and word; had never heard father's or mother's voice once raised in any dispute, nor seen an angry glance in the eye of either, nor had ever seen a moment's trouble or disorder in any household matter. Next to this he estimated obedience—he obeyed a word or lifted finger of father or mother as a ship her helm, without an idea of resistance. And, lastly, faith—nothing was ever promised him that was not given; nothing ever threatened him that was not inflicted, and nothing ever told him that was not true —Hurlbert.

A CALL

TO THE

Pastors and Churches

Have you begun work for the 5000 new subscriptions by October 31? Don't wait, start at once. Write us for sample copies. Begin with local preachers, exhorters and church officials. Get these to subscribe, then secure the heads of all families for your charge.

Organize clubs to help you with the work. Think of it, get the matter at heart, pray for it, preach on it, then go from house to house and talk and take names,

Brother, the call is to you and your church—it is from God, the work is yours and his. Wont you lend a hand? You can do no greater work on your charge than to place the SOUTHWESTERN with every family. Try it on your charge and note the increased interest of your people in public affairs, in general church matters and in your sermon and labors for their good. God has called you to help the people to a larger, happier and more progressive life. Nothing will aid you more in this than making them more thoughtful, and no one can be thoughtful who has not the habit of reading.

Our people need the SOUTHWESTERN, the SOUTHWESTERN needs their support; 5000 new subscriptions this fall will be felt throughout the church—felt in more generous giving of the people to the church, felt in an increase of pay to pastors on small charges, felt in increased funds for superannuates, orphans and widows, felt in increased joy around our firesides and at our church altars.

Join the movement at once.

We do not think the Niagara Movement is free from all adverse criticism. It has some points of weakness. The Outlook observes one. It says: "Most unfortunate of all, however, is the tone, almost of petulance, which marks this address. Even when a child makes a just request, he gains nothing by uttering it with a whine; and grown men are not more likely to be heard by determining to 'complain loudly and insistently.' As a matter of fact, these colored men, mostly of the North, represent a small element in the race. The real leaders of the American Negroes are not complaining; they are too busy inculcating habits of thrift, energy and self-control among the people to whom they are proud to belong."

Bishop of our Church had never gone before, bearing his own expenses. He was president of the Board of Control of the Epworth League for the quadrennium ending May, 1904, and was much loved by the young people throughout the Church. His absence at Denver was a source of great disappointment to the Leaguers.

He was a man of a beautiful temperament, making fast friends of many who were fortunate enough to know his inner life. For to get close to him was to be blessed with the revelation of a character that was tender, beautiful and rare. When it was his judgment he was positive in administration, which some took to be severe. But whatever he conceived to be his duty for the good of Methodism, from this he never flinched. As a cabinet officer he was brotherly, patient, considerate, and yet firm and positive. But as the men came close to him he was all the more loved.

His conferences partook of the spirit of his pastorate. They were pre-eminently spiritual conferences and particularly did the people look forward to the Sabbath day when they would be blessed with his sermon. It was not infrequently that conversions were made during the conferences held under his charge.

It was his desire to wind up his work in the effective rank. At the last General Conference some felt that it would have been a mercy to him and a blessing to the Church if he had been given the superannuated relation. For he never reserved his strength; he worked always to his fullest limit, and whenever it was possible for him to serve he did so. In his pulpit ministrations, particularly, did he consume much of his strength. Had he been relieved of the taxing and arduous duties of his episcopal office no doubt the Church would have been blessed for several years longer at least with the benediction of his spiritual and holy life. His life, however, remains a benediction to us. Some one had named him "Bishop Rejoice," and truly now he rejoices in the bosom of his Father.

The funeral was held Tuesday, of this week, in Hennapin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Minneapolis, Rev. F. C. Thompson, D. D., the pastor, having charge of the service. The principal addresses were made by Bishop J. F. Berry, of Buffalo; Bishop S. M. Merrill, of Chicago, and Bishop John M. Walden, of Cincinnati.

THE CASE WON

Contending that the separate car law was class legislation the Negroes of Jacksonville, Fla entered their protest and instituted a suit and have won their case. The case was conducted by Messrs. Wetmore and Purcell, two colored attorneys, Judge R. M. Call presiding. The facts are these: The law provides for separate apartments for white and colored, but colored people may sit in the white appartments if they are servants. Holding that this was class-legislation Judge Call declared that this law was unconstitutional, and of course the colored people are elated. Led by the colored ministers of Jacksonville the colored people instituted a boycott. In referring to the boycott the Jacksonville Times-Union says that "it was the most complete in the history of this or perhaps any other city in the South. The colored people have conducted themselves without any attempt to make trouble and not since July 1st have they been seen to ride the cars. They observed the boycott to the letter." The State Solicitor will carry the case to the Supreme Court of Florida, and if the decision is reversed, Messrs. Wetmore and Purcell will take the case to the United States Supreme Court. In the celebration of this decision, an inter-denominational thanksgiving meeting was held under the auspices of the colored ministers of Jacksonville, Dr. J. S. Todd presiding. It was a religious meeting and after a program resolutions were adopted, which were singularly religious and spiritual in tone. The people of Jacksonville say that they owe their victory to God, who answered their prayers, and that the mass meeting was held for the purpose of thanking God and acknnowledging his goodness. The colored people were advised in riding the cars to take special pains "to be quiet, orderly, and mindful of the rights of fellow-passengers, and remember, we and our race are on trial, and the least indiscretion on our part will be used against us by our enemies.

"Resolved, also, That we call the attention of our people to the fact that we owe our victory in this fight for manhood-rights, fair-play and justice to the help of our God, and that we cannot hope to have His loving favor continued towards us as a people if we desecrate the Sabbath by going to the parks on Sundays, and engage in worldly and questionable amusements on His holy day.

WHAT IS THE VALUE OF NEGRO WOMANHOOD?

It is truly said that no race rises above its womanhood. Of all the women of this country the Negro woman has the hardest time. There are few opportunities for her employment, many for her downfall. But there is a low estimate placed upon Negro womanhood, even sometimes when compared with the brother of her own race. Again and again it is heralded to the public in bold headlines of the assaults made upon women by Negroes and, thanks to the press that gives the information, they are all "burly brutes and beasts," the most desperate and despicable type of man that can be presented. Mark you, they are the worst sort; even according to the press, just the kind to be guilty of immoralities and these deserve no apology whatever at our hand. Isn't it remarkably strange, however, that nothing is said on the other hand of the good women of the Negro race who are seduced, traduced, outraged and maltreated again and again. Now, the fact is, it depends upon the womanhood in question. An illustration to the point:

A traveling man outraged a most respectable colored girl recently, in a hotel at Salisbury, Maryland. Our pastor there for it: "She was one of the very best, to be trusted by every one, recommended by both white and colored.". She was employed in the hotel, naturally, of course, because little or no other avenue was open to her for employment. She was outraged in a most brutal manner. The testimonies of the proprietor and clerk were conclusive beyond dispute.. The assaulter was found guilty and a fine of $50.00 was imposed. If it had been a Negro who had outraged a white woman his neck would have been broken, and he would have deserved death at the hand of the law. But a Negro woman is outraged and the fine is $50.00. It is a question of the estimate of the worth of the womanhood. No womanhood is safe so long as it is so lightly estimated as that of Negro womanhood. Dr. Bowen recently uttered a very true and striking statement: "A womanhood that is supported by the opposite race will be at the mercy of the supporter."

AN UNWARRANTED ATTACK

The Atlanta Independent is an interesting weekly sheet published at Atlanta, Ga.. Its editor, Mr. B. J. Davis, is one of the most thrifty men of the race. He makes an interesting write up of the National Teachers' Association, which met in Atlanta recently, and complains considerably as to the smallness of attendance and then proceeds to administer a thrashing to some of the representative leaders of the race. They were absent, and all had good excuses. There is something else in existence besides the National Association of Colored Youth, and the leaders of the movement ought to recognize that. It is characteristic of the Negro that when he fosters a movement and every other Negro does not get up in the band wagon and ride for him to cry out "race disloyalty." It is also characteristic of the Negro to seek to browbeat his leaders whenever they do not comply with his petty wishes. The complaint of Editor Davis as to the absence of Drs. Washington, Bowen, Council and DuBois is much after the fashion of a crying baby. When the National Teachers' Association of Colored Youth, with its present leaders, reaches the point where it deserves it, it will have the unqualified support of all our people. That these men were absent may be a reflection rather upon the association than upon these gentlemen themselves. Dr. DuBois was busy arranging for the Niagara Movement, which meant much for the race; Dr. Bowen was busy filling an important lecture tour in the interest of Gammon Theological Seminary, which is his rightful and legitimate sphere; Dr. Washington has more invitations in the interest of the race than he can possibly accept. Let's not appear so small in our criticisms.

Most persons have a common weakness for seeing their names in print. A schooboy writes it every chance he gets. There is an old saying that was given birth to by this same desire to see names in print, which runs: "Fools names, like their faces, always seen in public places." It is supposed that only a weaker sort of mortal is given to such a desire. But there has been considerable discussion lately on a book to be published under the title, "Fads and Fancies," and some revelations have come to light. It is the purpose of this book to publish the doings and sayings of a limited number of rich people, and it is said that the promoters received some $200,000 from about one hundred persons. The amount contributed determined the amount of space devoted to the person. Among those who entered into the enterprise were Mrs. C. P. Huntington, to th amount of $10,000; Chauncey M. Depew, $2,500; J. J. Astor, $2,500; Perry Belmont, $1,500; Clarence H. Mackay, $2,500. These are expensive sums to pay to get one's name in print.

We called attention recently to the sermon of the Rev. Dr. Henry S. Bradley, of Atlanta, Ga., on "Christian Fraternity." It now comes to light that Dr. Bradley actually practices what he preaches. Trinity Church has a membership of 1,406, among the most fashionable and aristocratic people of Atlanta. On a recent Sunday evening, while singing the closing hymn, Dr. Bradley observed Bishop H. M. Turner, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, in his congregation. At the close of the hymn he called for Bishop Turner to come forward, the Bishop did so, and Dr. Bradley invited the Bishop to pronounce the benediction. This incident may be viewed as rather insignificant, but taking into consideration all the settings of the case it is remarkable. It is a splendid example of Christian Fraternity. May the tribe of Dr. Bradley increase.

THE LAUNCH FUND

Rev. John W. Fisher, presiding elder of the Brunswick District, of the Savannah Conference, has set our presiding elders a very worthy example in the matter of the Bishop Scott Launch Fund. Elder Fisher took the time at his recent conference to explain the necessity of a launch for Bishop Scott and took a collection resulting in $21.50 toward its purchase. If every District Conference would do this the Launch Fund would be materially increased. The following are the sums given and the charges from which the contributors come:

Rev. J. W. Fisher	$3.00
Bailey Charge—
Rev. J. W. Green	2.00

Personal and General.

Rev. F. D. Bowers is sick at Monroe, La. He has a severe case of malaria fever. His daughter, Miss Maggie, is attending him.

Rev. W. R. Chase, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, Gulf Conference, is spending a while at his home in Columbus, Ohio.

The Arkansas State Epworth League and Sunday School Convention will be held at Brinkley, Ark., October 26-29. Mrs. A. T. Strickland is the president.

Mr. Charles Banks, cashier of the Bank of Mound Bayou, of Mound Bayou, Miss., delivered an address recently before the Memphis (Tenn.) Business League upon the subject of "Negro Banks."

The article that appeared on the second page of our issue of July 13th, under the title of "The Divorce Evil," should have been credited to Rev. W. L. Duncan, of Honey Grove, Texas, instead of Rev. W. L. Reno.

Rev. Horace Reed, presiding elder of Decatur District, Illinnois Conference, has been appointed field secretary for the Illinois Woman's College at Jacksonville, and has accepted. He will begin October 1, and will devote his entire time to it.

Paul Thomas Gilbert, son of Editor Gilbert, of the Western Christian Advocate, and Miss Louise Dainty were married in Chicago, July 1. Mr. Gilbert is on the staff of the Chicago Tribune, and is a regular contributor to one of the departments of the Western.

In the story of "Self-help," which appears in our issue of July 20th, the statement regarding the organization of the Florida Conference by Mrs. J. L. Whetstone and Mrs. William Runyan was incorrect. The organization was effected by Mrs. J. L. Whetstone and Mrs. J. L. Blaylis.

Dr. S. A. Steele, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, writing to the Pittsburg Christian Advocate, under the title, "A United Methodism," says: "Seldom do we meet a member of either church, minister or layman, but would rejoice in a united Methodism in fact. Doubtless 90 per cent. of both ministers and laymen would be glad to vote for union if a chance were given them. A few narrow-minded members would object, but should a very small minority control a very large majority?" The statement is rather optimistic, Doctor. The spirit of fraternity may be growing, but it is not galloping at such a rapid rate.

NEWS NOTES

According to report, North and South Carolina have asked for 200,000 immigrants.

The Presbyterians of Korea claim to-day after twenty years of Christianity, 3213 congregations, more than 20,000 adherents and between 6,000 and 7,000 communicants.

The question as to the highest mountain in the world has been settled by Capt. H. Wood, who has demonstrated that Prof. Schlagintweit's Gaurisankar and Mt. Everest are two distinct mountains, Gaurisankar being 23,388 feet high. Mt. Everest 29,002.

Employees of the United Street Railways Company, of St. Louis, and they number about four thousand motormen and conductors, have been notified that they who frequent saloons, either on or off duty, or attend the races or other gambling places, rooms, or resorts, cannot remain in the service of the company. A wise and safe precedent.

MISSISSIPPI.

Osborn, M. A. Wesley.—Our second quarterly conference met at John's Chapel May 13-14, Rev. F. H. Henry, presiding. Rev. L. J. Terrell, pastor, is a good leader, and large results are expected on this charge this year. Raised this quarter $92.25; paid the elder in full, $15. Sunday Rev. Henry preached a wonderful sermon; 40 partook of the Lord's Supper. One subscription for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Durant, N. H. Whitlock, pastor.—On a recent Sunday, Rev. C. E. Moody, pastor at Lexington, changed pulpits wtih us. He preached two excellent sermons. Our people appreciated his resence. Forty dollars were contributed on pastor's salary. We hope to report at conference many conversions, all benevolence raised, all indebtedness cancelled and many subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Vanwinkle, S. S. Edwards.—The 2nd quarterly conference convened May 13-14, Rev. W. L. Marshall presiding as Presiding Elder Hibbler could not be present. His services were highly appreciated. The officers submitted good reports. Sunday Rev. Marshall preached to a large congregation The elder's claim was raised in full, with a balance for the pastor, with whom the people are so pleased that they ask his return.

Meridian, N. W. Ross, Pastor.—On the evening of May 18 the members of Haven Chapel, the Sunday school superintendent and his scholars united in a storm party, the result of which was 100 pounds. The pastor and family greatly appreciated this visit of their friends.

Cotton Plant, J. W. Johnson, Pastor.—We are doing fairly well on this work so far. Second quarterly conference convened May 13-14. Raised for presiding elder $2.49; church, $7.50; pastor, $17.25.

Ocean Springs, A. M. Quinn, Pastor. My quarterly conference was held by Presiding Elder Jones. We were in the midst of a revival when the elder arrived and much good had been accomplished. Twenty-three souls were added to the church. Raised during the quarter $32.50; paid the elder, $15.50; pastor, $16.50. The fifth Sunday in April we raised in our rally $58.15; paid pastor, $37; trustees, $15. Easter was a successful day. Raised $10 for missions.

Hicks, I. C. Rucker.—The Harriston Circuit convened in its second quarterly conference at Crown's Point, May 13-14, Elder Threlkeld conducting the business in his usual systematic way. The written reports indicated improvement on all lines. After the regular routine of business the writer by request addressed the conference. Paid the elder this quarter $19.30; pastor, $75; raised for benevolence $13; total, this quarter, $107.30. Sunday the elder preached and administered the Sacrament.

LIBERTY, H. Judson Brown, pastor—Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, our presiding elder, held his second quarter here April 23rd. The elder preached in the morning and at night. In the afternoon we held our Easter service. The Baptist people of Liberty and vicinity took an active part on our program. Prof. A. T. Sterling and others of the Baptist Church here, delivered instructive addresses. The Misses Rebecca Bates and Lucinda Gardner brought in the highest amount in their envelopes, and were awarded prizes. We succeeded in raising $20. The church is alive. We have more than $1,000 in the bank, with which to build a new edifice. The contract has already been let. We are moving onward and upward. Our Sunday school attendance has reached the 100 mark.

MISSOURI.

TUNICA—Our first quarterly conference convened April 29-30, with Dr. B. F. Woolfolk in the chair. Nearly all officers were present with written reports. The Doctor preached at all the points on the circuit. The Lord's Supper was administered to 35 persons. The elder preached soul-stirring sermons. Raised for all purposes during the quarter, $57.25, and seven persons have been added to the church.

FREDERICKTOWN.—A. R. Martin, Pastor.—The leaders of the tornado that visited our home the evening of June 22 were Bros. James Matthews and A. White, Sisters Sarah Villars, Hannah Winiger, Laura Bollinger, Sophronia Dinwiddie, Mary Winiger, Ruth Matthews, Christian Clark and a host of others. And the outcome of this unexpected visit was good things too numerous to mention.

TENNESSEE.

Manchester, Mrs. Eva Hibbill.—The third quarterly conference was held at Manchester, May 13-14, presided over by our most worthy presiding elder, Rev. W. R. Smith. The choir rendered most excellent music, under the leadership of Mrs. Josie Joice, of Columbia. Collected during the meeting $18.00, which far exceeds any previous collection for such an occasion. Collections for the whole quarter, $60.00. The young people generally (most of whom are sinners) are doing a great deal of work for the church. They now have a movement on foot to buy an organ for the church. The Sunday school was never more prosperous than how under the superintendency of Sister Matilda Vanay, one of the founders of our church in this place. The pastor's wife, Mrs Hattie Rucker, is of very great service to her husband in his work.

ABBEVILLE, E. D. Cameron, pastor—My first quarterly conference was held April 1-2, Rev. N. H. Williams, D. D., presiding and all conference members present but one, with good reports. Dr. Williams preached to a good and appreciative congregation Sunday at 11 o'clock. Quite a number communed at the Lord's table. Dr. Williams spoke on all lines of church work and did not forget the SOUTHWESTERN. Raised $30 and added seven members to the church.

BENTON, H. May, pastor—I came to my post of duty January 27th. The people received me gladly. We started to make this one of our best years on all lines of church work, and from what we have done up to date, April 3, I believe we will succeed. Our first quarterly conference was held with Rev. J. C. Hibbler in the chair and many of the members present with written reports. Additions to the church, 13; deaths, 2; Sunday schools, 3; Epworth Leagues, 2. We have added three nice rooms to the parsonage and bought for it a $14 stove. Paid the presiding elder $26.25; pastor, $69.15. Elder's salary for the year, $105; pastor's, $750. We have put a $90 organ in one of the churches. The people are very pleased with our ne presiding elder.

SHUQUALAK, G. J. Dobson, pastor-The first quarterly conference for th charge was held April 1-2, with Re F. H. Henry, presiding elder, in t chair. Every official of this char was at his post with a well prepar report, which showed that the wo was alive to every interest of t church. Elder Henry took a deal pains and presided with much eas On Sunday he preached two able s mons which will live long in the hear of the many hearers. Assisted by t pastor he administered the Lord Supper to a goodly number. Raised the quarter, $30. Total raised for t quarter, $74.56. We are praying f many souls to be saved this year.

Brethren, double what you have in hand. You have wise plans laid for your work, but remember that no plan will work itself. Push every cause in your charge. Make conversions and the saving of souls the central feature in your church work. Don't be satisfied without a revival of religion in your congregation. Remember the District Conference, Epworth League and S. S. Convention, which will meet in Newport Aug. 30-Sept. 3. Each pastor, local preacher and exhoter is expected to bring $1 extra for Philander Smith College. Each president of Epworth League Chapter, S. S Superintendent is expected to bring $1 extra and all delegates 50 cents for the Epworth Farm. Let us have a delegate from every charge. Let each member of the District Conference be in the opening Wednesday morning at 9:30. Drs. J. W. E. Bowen, I. L. Thomas, G. G. Logan and Dr. J. M. Cox will be with us. We will get one and one-third rates on the certificate plan.

Yours,

A RELIABLE HEART CURE.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

UPPER MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Brethren: Inasmuch as you passed a resolution in the late session of the Annual Conference designating a certain day to help us meet the payment of the pressing debt on our church at Greenville, by taking a collection for same, please do not fail to do so. We have received the following amounts: Minter City, $3.00, L. F. White, pastor; Oxford, $5.00, E. D. Scarbrough, pastor; Gunnison, $1.00, R. L. Lee, pastor; Stephenville, $1.00, from Mrs. A. McCaulley. Our church will be advertised for sale in a few days if we cannot meet the payment at once. We, the trustees, are making this appeal by an unanimous vote. Brethren, this is the second appeal we have made to you this year. You must come to our rescue now, or our beautiful Revels Memorial M. E. Church will be sold. We have only one more chance and are making a desperate struggle. Please help us at once. The fourth Sunday (August 27) is set apart for this "offering" for our church. Sincerely, C. M. Griffin, H. B. McKay, S. P. Agee, W. M. Yarbrough, E. C. Pierce, W. M. Allen, J. S. McDill, A. J. Cassacaloo, trustees; J. M. Marsh, pastor, to whom send money; J. W. Winbush, P. E.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT.

I have secured one and one-third fare on the certificate plan to the St. Louis District Conference at Troy, Mo., Aug. 16-20, over the St. Louis and Hannibal, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and the Missouri Pacific system, including the Iron Mountain railways. Ministers, please see that your delegates get a certificate showing that they have paid full fare one way, that they may return for one-third.

FOR CHILDREN, TOO.

Mr. Wiley Hunt, Ennis, Tex., writes: "We gave Drake's Palmetto Wine to two children who were afflicted with bed wetting. Two bottles of Drake's Palmetto Wine cured both. It is now a month since they took the last of the Wine and no return of their trouble. I told a neighbor who had a child troubled same way what the Wine did for our children. They got a bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine and in one week their children had no more trouble with bed wetting. The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., will send a test bottle free and prepaid to any reader of this paper who wishes to test Drake's Palmetto Wine without expense. A test bottle often cures Drake's Palmetto Wine will cure any Bladder or Prostate Trouble to stay cured.

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Franklinton, R. W. Young, pastor—second quarterly conference was held in Winan Chapel by Presiding Elder J. F. Marshall. The officers presented reports which indicated progress. The following Sunday the elder preached to a crowded house. The Sacrament was administered to 48 communicants. Collection for the quarter, $15.25; paid elder, $12.00. On June 17th the members brought to the parsonage about 52 pounds of groceries, also a safe, which was the gift of the stewardess sisters. These sisters desire to thank all friends who assisted them.

Gray, J. Benn, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held June 19, Rev. W. R. Butler, our presiding elder, presiding. The reports indicated a live work. Rev. Thomas McCary, conference evangelist, is here, doing a good work with the pastor, Rev. J. Benn. We have now at the mercy seat 25. The Ladies' Aid Society has presented to the church a fine pulpit Bible.

Bluff Creek, B. Carr, pastor — A party of generous friends visited the parsonage not long since and contributed to the comfort of pastor and family by their gifts of various and useful articles. Mrs. Lizzie Robins and Mrs. Rhoda Weatherspoon led the host.

Lutcher, M. C. Harrison—The largest crowd that has yet visited the parsonage on such an occasion were our guests on June 26, bringing with them many pounds and a nice purse of money. Speeches by Mr. G. Moore, Holmes and the pastor. Refreshments were served. Sisters Walker, C. Payne, Mrs. S. Jackson and others were the leaders of this affair.

Washington, S. Green, pastor—The land has been purchased, paid for, and $200 raised for the new church which is to be erected in a short while on the Little Tech, St. Landry parish.

Cheneyville, H. C. Gair, pastor—We received recently from the members and friends of St. Paul M. E. Church about 125 pounds of nice groceries.

Bastrop, F. D. Bowers, pastor—The second quarterly conference of Mt. Nebo Church was held June 24-26, Presiding Elder Rev. J. O. Brown presiding and all officers present with written reports. The church seems to be in a splendid condition. Sunday, the 25th, the elder preached a very instructive sermon, altho the inclement weather prevented the night service. The collection was $15.00. Arrangements are being made to commence building on the new church. The pillars and cornerstone are already laid.

New Roads—Officers of Alert, the Yorist Chapter and Cabinet of Taylor M. E. Church: President, Mrs. Gracy Burns; first vice-president, Mrs. Robertha Thompson; second vice-president, Miss Emeline Sansee; third vice-president, Mrs. F. Amy Yoist; fourth vice-president, Miss Gertrude Mitchell; treasurer, Mrs. Victory Jones; secretary, H. J. Yoist, M. D.; librarian, Mr. Simon Page; Junior Epworth League superintendent, Mrs. M. Turner; Robert Jones, pastor.

Washington — Our second quarter was held June 19th. Presiding Elder Brown preached a strong sermon Sunday night and administered the Sacrament to 74 communicants. Rev. R. H. Harvey, our pastor, is succeeding nicely.

Baton Rouge, D. S. Smith, pastor—At Jordan Chapel, Sunday, June 11th, the Sacrament was administered to 50 persons, and a collection of $8.00 was raised. We have here loyal members and they are earnestly striving to complete the church.

Rayne, T. A. Hampton, pastor—We raised on the debt of our church, recently, $20.00, and planned for another effort on July 30th. Let the pastors all come to Rayne and help us.

Patterson, L. S. Smith, pastor—A rally was held on this charge April 9th. Raised $34.45. Revs. Wm. Johnson, St. Luke's Baptist Church; W. H. Jones, Morgan City; David Shelby, Berwick, and Rev. Whittenburg, of Patterson, were with us. A number of members and friends presented the pastor and family some days ago, about 55 pounds of groceries.

Marksville and Cottonport, M. D. Williams—Presiding Elder J. J. Obee held our second quarterly conference June 27-28, and preached at both churches. The work on this circuit is in good shape. The elder's claim was met. Rev. J. J. Obee and Rev. J. D. McCain preached at Bunkie on July 4th. A pound party was tendered the pastor, recently, under the direction of Sisters Stella Gaines, Francis Young, Henry Adams and others.

Brownlee, I. B. Henderson, pastor—Our work continues to improve. The church has been painted on the outside and inside and is now quite an attractive building. We have here a loyal people.

Wilson, D. S. Smith, pastor—On Sunday, June 4th, excellent services were held at Mt. Zion. Revs. I. G. Perrey, P. Hill and S. Green were with us. Collected $33.60, and we were able to liquidate a debt of $31.40.

Doings of the Workmen

ARKANSAS.

BENTONVILLE, W. M. Levi—Rev. G. W. Jackson has organized a Woman's Home Missionary Society here with the following officers: President, Miss Ella Sanford; vice-president, Miss Olive Schrempscher; recording secretary, Mrs. Katie Rich; assistant secretary, Miss Flora Evans; treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Jackson. The first meeting was held at the home of Miss Ellen Sandford and $1.35 was collected. Our Epworth League is doing good work.

CENTER POINT, W. E. Pruitt, pastor—My second quarterly conference was held June 3-4, Rev. D. B. Harston presiding. The reports and work in general showed some improvement. Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., Elder Harston preached a stirring sermon. Fifty or more persons partook of the Lord's Supper. Raised for all purposes this quarter, $49.20. The people are working earnestly to repair our church at this place. Since being here we have built a neat four-room parsonage and fenced our church. Our benevolences are in good shape.

MISSISSIPPI.

BRIDGEVILLE, R. H. Patton, pastor—A successful quarterly conference was held here April 29-30, by Presiding Elder G. W. Smith. The work is in good condition. Raised $23.00 during the month. Paid the elder $16.00. The elder preached two able sermons Sunday. Communicants, 62; additions, 1. Our Easter observance was good; collection, $4.10.

Harriston, W. N. G. Lipscomb, Pastor.—This work is improving along all lines. The churches are in very good condition. On a recent Sabbath, after a glorious service, four persons were converted and joined the church.

Goodman, R. A. Watkins.—Our 2nd quarterly conference was held June 3-4 by Rev. J. W. Parks, as our presiding elder could not be with us. The written reports presented by the officers indicated improvement in the work.

Bowerton, J. J. Goodwin.—Our second quarterly conference convened at New Hope Church May 6-7, with Presiding Elder G. W. Smith presiding. Most of the officers were present with reports. The business of the conference was conducted nicely. The elder addressed the officers on their duty and responsibility as members of the quarterly conference. At 9 o'clock a. m. he also addressed the Sunday school and at 11 o'clock preached a strong sermon. At 3 o'clock Sacrament was administered by the presiding elder, assisted by the pastor, J. I. Garrett; 99 souls communed. Collection for this quarter, $83.98; for pastor, $65.98; for elder, $18.

New Augusta, P. F. Robinson.—Our second quarterly conference was held at Bolton M. E. Church May 7-8, Presiding Elder R. N. Jones in the chair. The reports showed success. The presiding elder's sermon and lecture were effective and inspiring. Sacrament was administered to a goodly number at night. We had quite a revival; 18 joined the church. The committee on missions, Mrs. Florence Kitpatrick, Julia Bolton and M. Bolton, reported $5 for missions. Collection during quarter, $29; paid presiding elder $19.15. This work is spiritually and financially alive. Two cash subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Hicks.—Rev. W. M. Lipscomb, pastor of Crown's Point M. E. Church, preached a stirring sermon at Pleasant Hill Baptist Church on Sunday night, May 14. His text was from the 1st Book of Ruth, 16th verse.

TEXAS.

Yorktown, G. E. Tyler, Pastor.—Presiding Elder J. W. Weakley held our second quarterly conference May 1-2. It was a successful session. Raised for missions $7.75, making a total of $16.75. Yorktown is forging ahead. Rev. Johnson was present and Monday night preached a noble sermon. Rev. Weakley preached Tuesday night.

Children's Day Reports

BALDWIN—Our Children's Day program, as rendered by thirty children, was indeed a success. Collection, $2.00. Too much praise cannot be given to our superintendent, Mrs. E. Dright, and her able assistants. E. B. Richard, pastor.

BRADLEY, MISS.—Children's Day was observed with good results at Berea, New Light and Bradley, each superintendent taking great interest. The program was presented in full. The pastor, Rev. N. B. Bell, lectured to the children at each point. Total collection $30. Judge High, R. D. Esters and I. M. Quinn, superintendents.

PAULDING CIRCUIT, MISS.—Children's Day was observed at each church on this circuit. The superintendents did their work well and deserve much credit. Collections: Spring Hill, $9.01; Oakbourg, $13.25; Leonia, $10.50.; Magnolia, $7.25; total, $40. This work is improving. All of our schools are well attended. B. W. Robinson, pastor.

CENTERVILLE, MISS., J. D. Gilbert, pastor—Children's Day was a high day at Merrill Chapel. The program was executed to the letter. We raised $15.00. Everything was carried out nicely under the direction of our efficient Sunday school superintendent and Mrs. M. Bradford. Ruben Beverly.

BAIRD, MISS., E. M. Byrd, pastor—Children's Day was carried out according to program. Raised $10.00. Too much praise cannot be given to our efficient and accomplished superintendent, Mr. Joe Cotton, for his untiring efforts. Total for benevolence up to date, $16.00.

RIPLEY, W. M. Lester, pastor—Children's Day was observed with great credit. The program was carried out to the letter. Raised $15.00. Mattie Green, superintendent.

AMORY (CT.) MISS., N. B. Blackman—Children's Day was observed. The program was carried out in part. Collections: Newpoint, $3.35; Birdine, $1.00; Smithville, $2.40; total, $6.75.

TUPELO (CT.), MISS.—The Children's Day program was satisfactorily carried out at Hopewell Sunday school. Total collection for the day, $12.07. Frank Jackson, superintendent.

HUMBOLDT, TENN.—Children's Day services were rendered at both churches with good results. The work bids fair for the future. Jesse T. Price, pastor.

WILMINGTON, MISS.—Children's Day at Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church was a decided success under the direction of Superintendent Mrs. Carrie Garrison and Mrs. Amy Walton, with the teachers. We raised $5.50; raised for missions on Easter, $4.25. Raised this year up to July 10th, $299.80 for all purposes and have taken in five members.

PINE BLUFF DISTRICT CONVENTION.

One of the greatest meetings of the young people of the Pine Bluff District convened June 22-25, in Dumas, Ark. Those present took great interest in the meeting. This was the ninth annual session and carried with it many new features. More reports from the Sunday School and Epworth League than ever before. The programme held quite a prominent place. Many interesting subjects were discussed. Rev. Brown, of the A. M. E. Church; Prof. C. S. McBane, ex-president of the Presbyterian Seminary, of Monticello, Ark.; Prof. Reed and others were with us. Dr. J. M. Cox was also present. Mrs. Annie F. Strickland, president of the State League and Woman's Home Missionary Society, made quite a talk on the work of the Society in the State. Reports from the official members indicated that much interest had been taken throughout the district. At 11 o'clock Rev. S. McDonald preached a logical and forcible sermon. At 3 p. m. a testimony meeting was conducted by the presiding elder. At night Rev. J. W. Burns spoke. These services proved to be seasons of great joy. Rev. J. C. Adams is doing much for our people at this place. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres., J. W. Burns; second vice, Miss Bessie Higgins; third vice, Mrs. Eddie Box; fourth vice, Mrs. Maggie Johnson; Junior League president, Mr. J. H. Bechworth; treasurer, Mrs. O. Wagner; secretary, Prof. A. N. Pegun. Thus ended one of the best sessions of the district. Collected more than $40.00 for the E. L. F.. To meet at Ladd, Ark., June, 1906.

INQUIRY.

I want to find my son, George Banks, who left me about the year 1870 when I was living at Hoe Arnold in slavery; I belonged to Tom Banks, who lived in Coweta county, his wife, Mrs. Sarah Banks, being a neice of Charley Arnold, from Tharpe county. I married Allet Brooks; since I have married Claborn Milner. Dear reader, if you know of such name, please let him or me know at once. Mrs. Mary Ann Milner, R. F. D. 2, Villa Rico, Ga.

INQUIRY.

I inquire for my relatives, whom I have not heard from since the civil war. My father's name is James William Shelton; mother's, Susan Gracie Shelton. After separating from one another my mother became by name Christmas. My oldest brother's name is Charles William Shelton; one named Winston Hudson Shelton. Oldest sister, Mary Christmas; one brother by the name of Phil Christmas; Overton Christmas; Louis Christmas. Any information will be gladly received. Robert James Shelton, Ocean Springs, Miss.

They Live in Our Memory.

KEMPER.—June 13, 1905, marked the end of the earthly career of Bro. Albert Kemper, who was 64 years old. He was an invalid for nearly two years but not one of the whining sort. His faith in God kept him so cheerful that it was an inspiration to visit his bedside. A few hours before the summons, speech left him, but he assured his family and friends of his final abode by clapping hands and frequently pointing upwards. Verily the Christian's death is not an occasion for tears. He was buried from Magnolia M. E. Church. H. T. L. JOHNSON.

YEATS.—At West Point Circuit, Upper Mississippi Conference, Mr. J. Yeats died in full triumph of faith, leaving a host of friends to mourn his going. He was a deacon of the church. His funeral was attended by the pastor, L. J. Terrell. He was 96 years of age. L. J. TERRELL.

MARILONO.—At Magnolia, La., June 1, 1905, Mr. Nelson Marilono passed into the Beyond. He was 22 years of age and a member of Plain View M. E. Church. He leaves a father and mother, sisters and brothers and many friends to mourn his death. Rev. A Luster officiated at the funeral service.

BAYLOCK.—Mr. Thomas Baylock died at his home in Yazoo City, Miss., on Thursday morning, June 15, 1905. He was a member of St. James M. E. Church. Bro. Baylock was a man, a Christian, a neighbor, a faithful husband, and loving father, who will be missed. P. H. DAVIS.

DANIELS.—Mr. Richard Daniels, of Fayette, Miss., departed this life June 20, 1905, at the age of 82 years. He leaves several children, four sisters and other relatives, also many friends to mourn his going. It is said that his funeral was the largest colored funeral ever witnessed in Fayette. He was highly esteemed by all. During the funeral service at the church we had with us the Rev. Forsythe, pastor of the M. E. Church South here. Rev. Steward, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and the pastor of the Christian Church. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. H. Rembert.

MCLENDON.—Mrs. Mattie McLendon departed this life June 18, at La Grange, Ga. She was a faithful member of Union Chapel and died in full triumph of faith. She leaves a dear father and mother and husband and a host of friends to mourn her passing. Her funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. H. Lennon, assisted by Rev. R. B. Hindsman and Rev. White.

DIXSON.—After 25 years of faithful service, Mrs. Sallie Dixson, a member of Stone Chapel M. E. Church, Cumberland, Tenn., departed this life on June 2, 1905. She died as she had lived—a Christian. To her husband and seven children she was a loving and faithful wife and mother. She leaves a host of friends. J. R. Reasonover, Pastor.

ROSE—Gladys Madeline Rose, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rose, of New Orleans, La., died Tuesday morning, July 18, 1905, after a brief illness. She was just ten years old, but because of her sweetness of disposition had made a host of friends. The funeral took place from First St. M. E. Church, where Gladys was an interesting Sunday-school scholar, and though tender of years yet a member of the church also. The casket was borne into the church by fifteen little girls. Beautiful music was rendered by the Sabbath-school choir. Revs. J. M. Young, H. J. Wright, W. R. Butler, and her pastor, Rev. J. A. Tircuit, officiated. She was interred in the Washington cemetery. The floral offerings were profuse.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our little friend and Sunday-school scholar, Gladys Madeline Rose; WHEREAS, Our loss is Heaven's gain; Therefore be it Resolved, That our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the bereaved family and that we commend them to Him who doeth all things well.—First St. M. E. Sunday School.

GORDON—On March 18, 1905, from McCool, Miss., Mrs. Susanne Gordon, aged 64 years, was called to her eternal home, after 40 years of service in the Methodist Episcopal Church. She leaves her husband, one son, one daughter and two grandchildren, as well as many friends.

ESSEX—Mr. Napoleon Essex, after an illness of 9 months, died Sunday night, June 18, 1905. He was happily converted before he died. A mother, sisters and brothers survive him. T. B. Cooper, pastor, Hahnville, La.

A NIGHTMARE

Gives point to the fact that excessive or irregular eating disturbs the digestion. Nightmare or night hag has its day time correspondence in the undue fullness after eating, with the belchings and sour or bitter rising so often experienced after too hasty or too hearty eating.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia or bad stomach. When the weak stomach is strengthened and invigorated the whole body shares in the increased strength derived from food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"I was a victim of sleeplessness and extreme nervousness induced by chronic indigestion and I felt heavy, tired and worn out continually," writes Miss Mary Smith, of 1613 No. Wahsatch Street, Colorado Springs, Colo. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the only medicine which relieved me. Within a week after I began using it that heavy oppressed feeling after meals had left me, and I found that I was able to sleep better than for months previously. My appetite was gradually restored, general system was toned up, nervousness became a thing of the past and I have now been in splendid health for over nine months."

Sometimes a selfish dealer tempted by the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines will offer the customer a substitute as being "just as good" as the "Discovery." It may be better for him because it pays better, but it is not as good for you, if you want the medicine that has cured others, and which you believe will cure you.

BALDWIN-RANKIN — At Handsboro, Miss., at the home of the bride, on the evening of July 13, 1905, Mrs. Martha Rankin and Rev. J. B. Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin is an acceptable preacher and member of this church. The bride stands first among our official members; she is our efficient Sunday school superintendent. The prayers and best wishes of our entire community are extended this happy couple.

A. M. TROTTER.

CAMPTON-PINKARD—At the home of the bride's parents, Mexia, Texas, Sunday, June 18, in the presence of many witnesses, Mr. Wiley W. Compton, of Texarkana, and Miss Elizabeth Pinkard, of Mexia, by Rev. N. J. Moore. Miss P. J. Kelly preceded the bridal party. Immediately after the ceremony a sumptuous repart was served. The presents were numerous and beautiful. The young couple will reside at 315 E. 9th street, Texarkana, Texas.

EDWARDS-SEALS—On the Kilmichael (Miss.) Circuit, Monday night, July 17, 1905, a very beautiful marriage occurred at the residence of Rev. A. A. Hamers, that of Miss Bettie Seals, their cousin, and Mr. T. E. Edwards, of Mt. Zion M. E. Church, and a prominent planter of Montgomery county. Mr. Edwards has been the district steward of this circuit for several years. The bride is one of the leading young ladies of Salem M. E. Church, French Camp, Miss. She is the daughter of Bro. Chas. Seals, a large land holder of that community. G. W. Baker officiated.

BRUNELL-EVANS—At the home of the bride's parents, June 15, 1905, Mr. Willie Brunell, of Magdalen, Miss., and Miss Isabella Evans. Mr. Brunell is of one of the best Methodist families of Turkey Creek settlement. The bride is of a leading Baptist family of Handsboro, Miss. A. M. TROTTER.

LOUISIANA.

BATON ROUGE—The members of Wesley Chapel tendered their pastor and family a pleasant surprise on April 27. Many pounds of choice groceries were presented him. Several short addresses were made. The pastor made timely and appropriate remarks.

PINEVILLE—Rev. J. C. Brown desires to thank the members and friends of Wesley M. E. Church for the pound party tendered him on June 1st.

FORDYCE—Mr. John Sealey presented, recently, to Rev. E. V. Taylor, pastor of Wiley M. E. Church, about 150 pounds of choice groceries.

TORRAS, J. J. Courts—Our second conference was held at Union Chapel M. E. Church, Rev. J. W. Turner presiding. The pastor, Rev. E. J. Harrison, made an excellent report. All officers presented written reports, showing improvement on all lines. Sunday the elder lectured to the Sunday school and at 11 o'clock preached a noble sermon. Collection, $3.65. Paid Rev. Turner in full, $13.50; paid pastor, $23.00. Easter Sunday, sermon by Rev. E. J. Harrison. Services were well attended. Baptized four. Collected for missions, $19.85.

MT. CARMEL CHURCH, (Mrs.) Annie Carroll—On Friday evening June 9th, a party of ladies and gentlemen, led by Mrs. Rosanna Lonnon, Ruthie Jackson, Maggie James, Mariah Washington, and others, visited the parsonage, bringing with them a large variety of pounds and packages.

CAMPTI, E. H. Clark, pastor—On the evening of June 1st, at a very late hour the inmates of the parsonage were aroused by the arrival of friends, who brought many appreciated tokens. The prime movers were Messrs. P. Mitchell, E. Hathaway, Misses L. Oneal, Mary LeBran, and others.

Crescent City Notes

Mr. A. W. Wilson conducted the early morning prayer meeting at Pleasant Plains last Sabbath. The annual sermon of the Helping Hand Aid Circle was preached at night by the pastor, Rev. William Harrell. A solo was rendered by Mr. D. B. Phillips; paper by Mr. H. S. Williams, response by Mr. F. Branch. Collection for the day, $6.

The New Orleans North District Conference, to have convened in Lutcher, La., July 26, has been postponed on account of quarantine regulations. Due notice will be given whenever arrangements can be made for holding the conference. J. F. MARSHALL, P. E.

At Wesley Chapel, Sunday the day was one of great interest. At 11 o'clock Bro. Robert Williams, an exhorter, preached his trial sermon, which met with hearty appreciation. He received $5.27. Collection for the day, $30.74. Thursday evening, July 20, Wesley's delegates to the Denver Convention were tendered a reception. The pastor, Mr. Robt. Williams and Mr. Charles Dale, all spoke interestingly and instructively of their trip and the convention. Altogether, the affair, under the direction of Mr. A. Y. Johnson, was very pleasant indeed.

The members of Ross Chapel, Camp Parapet, recently presented their pastor, Rev. A. B. Harris, a suit of clothes, hat and shoes. Committee: Mrs. Tilda Small, Mrs. Josephine Williams and Mrs. Dora Eavens.

St. Matthew is alive. Services are good. The pastor and his family are now installed in the new parsonage, the same being built in six months, and the members rejoice, for it was much needed. The trustees are planning to pay the last dollar due on it by Aug. 8, 1905. The Sunday school is doing nicely. A Home Department is now conducted by the pastor which promises to add much to the growth of the school.

CURE YOUR OWN KIDNEY

And Bladder Diseases at Home at a Small Cost—One Who Did it Gladly Tells You How.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock (Clothing Dealer), East Hampton, Conn., wishes us to tell our readers who are suffering from any kidney or bladder diseases, that if they will send their address to him, he will, without any charge whatsoever, direct them to the perfect home cure he so successfully used.

Knowing, as he so well does, the failure of almost every other treatment in stubborn cases, he feels that he ought to place in the hands of every suffering man and woman this simple, inexpensive and withal positive means of restoring themselves to health.

Our advice is to take advantage of this most generous offer while you can do so without cost.

Doings of the Workmen

BELLE ROSE, Philip Hawkins—Our presiding elder, Rev. W. R. Butler, held our first quarterly conference April 17, and the written reports presented indicated that the work had advanced along all lines. The elder preached a fine sermon and on the 18th ult. Rev. M. S. Goins, of Napoleonville, preached to the satisfaction of all. In behalf of the stewardess board, Sisters Georgianna Wiggins, president, and Francis Winfield presented the pastor and wife, recently, a fine rocker, as a token of their regard. One precious soul was converted recently and the church has been revived.

WASHINGTON—St. Mark M. E. Church has about forty loyal members. On Thursday night, June 8th, the quarterly lovefeast was held. A good collection was raised. The members and friends brought with them one hundred pounds of choice groceries. We expect to build a new church this year.

SLAUGHTER AND RYLANDER—The members and friends of Marshall Chapel, led by Brother Lawrence, Sisters E. Bradford, M. Johnson, E. Richard and others, pleasantly surprised the pastor, Rev. J. H. C. Means, and his family, recently, by many serviceable gifts.

SPRING CREEK, J. S. Weaver, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held May 28th, Rev. J. J. Obee presiding. All officers presented good reports. This quarter was the best held in twenty years. Never before has this church done so well. Raised this quarter, $114.35. Paid presiding elder up to the fourth quarter. Missionary collection, $10.00. Have on hand for building purposes, $64.10. We intend to have our pastor report at conference a full benevolent collection, a new church, and a band of united Christians.

TEDDY, D. M. Taylor—The first Sunday in June, at Mt. Carmel, was an enjoyable day. Service was conducted by Rev. S. Carroll, who has charge of the work. Each department is active. The Sunday school is in excellent condition. It has an average attendance of 136. Rev. Carroll is loved by the people. Collection for the day, $15.00.

GUEYDAN CHARGE, J. P. Oville, pastor—Williams Chapel M. E. Church leaders and stewards raised on third Sunday in June $14.00. We were presented a beautiful swinging lamp by Mr. J. E. Fortier, one of our worthy merchants. The people are more than pleased with their pastor. The sisters are planning to present their pastor a nne suit.

CLARENCE, James E. Harrison—Mt. Zion of the Campti Charge is on the upgrade. The first quarterly conference was held and things bid fair for a bright future. With Rev. E. H. Clark, our pastor, the people are delighted, who thus far has shown himself to be an exemplary man in every respect and we shall stand by him.

BOOTH, L. W. Jefferson—Dr. J. F. Marshall held our second quarterly conference at Wesley Ray M. E. Church. The officers presented good reports. A new parsonage has been built and paid for. Paid presiding elder in full. Raised this quarter, $171.40; paid pastor, $91.50; seven subscriptions to the SOUTHWESTERN. Our work is in good shape under the leadership of Rev. A. C. Mitchell, who is appreciated and respected by all.

ZACHARY, J. W. Lewis, pastor—The second quarterly conference of Albert Circuit convened at Jackson Chapel, May 27, Rev. J. W. Turner, presiding. The reports of pastors and officers were among the best ever presented here. The sermon delivered by the elder on Sunday will linger long in the hearts of those who heard it. Raised this quarter, $63.85; paid presiding elder, $13.25; pastor, $56.25. Geo. Washington, Phil Fields, Simon Cage and E. Henderson, local preachers, have had their licenses taken from them.

CLINTON—Rev. J. Tutson, pastor of Macedonia Church, desires to thank the following named pastors and their congregations for their presence and aid on the fourth Sunday in May: Revs. S. Carroll, F. Walker, N. Ford, W. W. Hunter, D. Shelby, and Brother Douglas. They preached strong sermons. Rev. Carroll led in the collection, which amounted to $46.55.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves

Read this Letter to you about the Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from over work or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnish the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

VANCEVILLE—W. H. Long, pastor, and family were aroused Tuesday evening, June 6th, by the voices of many friends who brought to the parsonage probably one hundred and five pounds. The visit which was, of course, a pleasant surprise, was led by Mattie Stinson, Lue Wiley, Nancy Johnson and others.

LEESVILLE—The quarterly conference was held recently and quite a sum was raised for all purposes.

SLIDELL—The two churches on this charge are doing well. The parsonage has been repaired and other improvements made. At Pearl River on June 3rd, through Mrs. Lilly Clark, quite a number of pounds were collected for the pastor. Here at Slidell, through the energy and push of Mrs. Annise Dunlap, one of the leading members of our church, a room of the parsonage has been beautifully furnished and converted into a sitting room. On the evening of June 29th, this same sister led a large and pleasant crowd to the parsonage, and Mr. C. W. Henry presented to the pastor the many pounds of choice contributions.

Methodism as an Educotional Force

By Dean E. W. S. Hammone, D. D., Bladen School of Theology

By DEAN E. W. S. HAMMOND, D. D., Braden School of Theology.

In this article the term Methodism as a generic term applies to the great ecclesiastical system which for nearly, or quite, two centuries has taken a leading part in directing the religious energies of the largest Protestant constituency in the world.

The latest statistics show that in the United States alone there are in the various Methodistic bodies 39,977 ministers, 58,530 churches, and about six and a quarter millions of communicants. Numerically, it would seem that Methodism has been a forceful and diligent agency in the acquisition of members at least. A distinguished writer has characterized Methodism as "Christianity in earnest," and right royally has this great aggregation earned the title. I think we may assert, without fear of successful contradiction, that the followers of the immortal Wesley are fulfilling their divine mission in the conquest of the world for Christ, by a loving and enthusiastic adherence to the principles of the Gospel as taught by those illustrious founders who are numbered to-day among the world's greatest benefactors. From the very start Methodism was providentially and peculiarly fitted for the work of the salvation of the masses.

The launching of a great ecclesiastical system at the time of its origin was a matter which required both diplomacy, skill and the Spirit of the great Being who was its inspiration. It meant a religious reformation; a quickening, so to speak, of the religious zeal of the people, who had already regarded themselves as the custodians of the "Faith of the Fathers." To found a spiritual empire, whose spirit and genius, and sentiment should be everywhere the same, required more than human genius and skill. It was the work of God. The world was ripe for Methodism, and it was a part of the plan of its Divine Author that the established church should contribute of its very best material toward the spread of its doctrines. It has been said that the mother of John and Charles Wesley, was the Mother of Methodism. While it is true that these great names are inseparably connected with the origin, history and progress of Methodism, the true birth of this great movement antedates the advent of the Wesleys, and claims Jerusalem and the Pentecost as its natal inspiration. It was a long stride from Jerusalem to Epworth, but the Class Meeting Era of 1739 was the climacteric adumbration of the Pentecost. Behold! What hath God wrought! That peerless queen sends forth from that famous rectory John, who was to be the world's greatest church organizer, who was to set the pace and give new inspiration to the greatest evangelical movement of the times. And Charles who, with sacred song and story, was to thrill the thousands and tens of thousands of the faithful with the inspiring songs of the soul. And thus Methodism steps out of Jerusalem fresh from the baptism of "Power" at the Pentecost, out into this great world as a mighty force to lead, and guide, and govern, and inspire.

What talismanic names! Epworth: The Charter House: Oxford! What an alignment! What strategic positions in the great field!

If a Divine call stands for anything, if equipment, spirit and opportunity count, Methodism must go forward in the future, as in the past, with ever increasing momentum. Every impartial student of church history will acknowledge that Methodism has kept fully abreast with, if it has not led, the Christian forces of the century in the education of both her ministry and laity. The question of education, Christian education if you please, is the foremost question. It must and will hold the pre-eminent place which Providence has assigned it, and to such the solemn voice of duty calls, "God's best are those who stand the test," and we assert here without fear that from our firesides, our altars, Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues, God's best training schools, have come the best trained, best officered, most thoroughly equipped and consecrated army of Christian workers in the world. The report of the Board of Education at the General Conference in Los Angeles was a mo inspiring document. It was such a presentatio of facts as sent a thrill of joy throughout o great church. The report showed that in o church alone there were 22 Theological Institutions, 52 Colleges and Universities, 52 Classic Seminaries, 9 Institutions exclusively for wome 23 Foreign Mission Schools, 4 Missionary an Bible Training Schools, 1 Normal Universit Schools of all grades, 144. Value, 21 million Endowments, 17 millions. Teachers, 3,100. St dents, 50,000. Add to these from the oth Methodist bodies so far as correct statistics ca be obtained, and we have a grand total of schoo of all grades, 237, valued at 29 millions in roun numbers. Pupils, 58,000. Teachers, 3,00 These schools, as a rule, are admirably locate and in the most strategic positions, faithful sen tinels, veritable magazines of literary and inte lectual power, giving emphasis to the spirit o Methodistic progress and achievement. Verily Methodism is a force in the world: Ethical, Dynamic, Moral, Spiritual, Economic. Her pupi are everywhere. They are the advance guard i the marching column. To them there is n North or South, no East or West, but a whol land redeemed, purified, saved. It will put itsel in touch with every great movement which prom ises the overthrow of all the evils which bligh our Nation's escutcheon. And as the chime ring out from the bell towers of the hundreds o our institutions of learning, giving notice of th blessed hour of consecration to the work of in struction; they will also give new inspiration t the aspirations, the hopes, and the energies o the tens of thousands of young men and wome who are preparing to march under our conquer ing banners. The millions of dollars consecrate to this holy cause is God's money, every cent o it, and no money has ever been given to a holie cause. Our educational work is, after all, th foundation of all our past successes, and it must continue in all the future to be the chief corner stone.

Nashville, Tenn.

Why Go to College?

For every young man or young woman, and especially for those who are seriously considering their work in life, the question—Why go to college?—is a vital one. Anyone who receives a high-school education has a chance to go to college if he will, but the opportunity usually does not remain open for long. A decision must be made once for all, and the results of that decision are bound to affect materially every day of one's future life. It is worth while, then, not merely to view a college education as something vaguely desirable, but to consider what definite advantages it offers as a preparation for the various activities of life, in business, in a profession, or elsewhere.

It is a good business investment. College men draw better salaries than other men and succeed better in business undertakings. Every year requests come from the important commercial houses of the country, asking for college graduates, because in the judgment of experienced men they have received a training that fits them for success in business. Statistics, in fact, show that a surprisingly large proportion of the high salaried men were trained in college; and there will be a still larger proportion in the future, for the college of to-day is offering courses that give not only general but also special preparation for banking, insurance, transportation, and other departments of business. How the most successful business men estimate a college education can be seen from the enormous sums that they are contributing to college endowments. With all the emphasis of millions of dollars, they are saying to the young people of the country, Go to college.

It is essential for first-rate professional efficiency. In engineering, law, medicine, or any other profession, the man without a college education is handicapped at the start. He lacks knowledge and training that many of his competitors possess and that are necessary for the best achievement. The man who goes to college may select those studies that are of importance for his future work and thus lay his foundations broad and deep. One year of work in a professional school is now generally accepted toward the college degree, and every hour of the college course may be made to count toward professional efficiency. The difference between six or seven years in college and professional school combined and three or four years in the professional school alone is the difference between a first-rate and second-rate training. There is no use in being purposely second-rate.

It introduces one into the aristocracy of talent. It secures an acquaintance, friendships, and common interests with the most intelligent, most cultured, and most efficient in the land, those who are to be the leaders in the thought and activities of the next generation—the only aristocracy worth belonging to. A college degree confers on a young man no superiority over his fellows, except what anyone may earn, but it does confer a promotion deserved by four years' work; it is an insignia of fitness to go ahead and be somebody in the world.

It develops all that is best worth developing in one. The American college aims to provide a well rounded development for each student. This development does not come merely from books or from a narrow range of studies. It is physical, social, moral, religious, as well as intellectual. It makes for intelligence, and also for power, for happiness, and for righteousness. The college course to-day comprises a wide range of subjects and supplies varied information to suit the various abilities of students and their different careers in life. It offers an education for the politician as well as the clergyman, for the electrician as well as the philologist. And outside of the class-room instruction, there are the associations, the habits, and the ideals that come from a common endeavor after what is true and worthy. A college education can be put to effective service in the home, in business, in the church, or in the state.

It opens the doors of opportunity. It will not make a man, but it gives a man an opportunity to make the most out of himself and to fit himself for the greatest usefulness. The race of life comes largely after college, but an education enables one to start with the first relay. The four years are a succession of opportunities; the libaries, the laboratories, the professors, are at the service of the student in order that he may profit from them as he will. Some unfortunately fail to make good use of this wealth; few can tell when they enter college which of its manifold opportunities will prove most valuable; but those who do not go to college refuse a gift of some of the best things in the world and close for themselves the open doors of opportunity.

Are there any reasons for not going to college? Two are often advanced—a lack of time, and a lack of money. But are these good reasons? No one in good health and willing to work need turn back for lack of money. Thousands are working their way through every year, and large funds are available to help those who deserve it. And the time lost in going to college will be time gained in the end. "It will take you less time to go through college," President Eliot is reported to have said to a student, "than to explain in after life why you didn't go." It will take less time to go through than to make up in after life the deficiencies in knowledge and training. Can you spend four years more advantageously to yourself, or with better results for your future than in college? Can you afford not to go to college?—Issued by Northwestern University.

The Influence of New Orleans University

By President F. H. Knight, PH. D.

Scarcely more than half a hundred men and women have graduated from the full college course of New Orleans University since its beginning. Thousands have been enrolled for longer or shorter periods as students, but have been prevented from continuing until graduation. The half-hundred have gone forth with diploma and degree and have made their record as the years have passed. The names of some of them are known wherever the progress of the Negro is studied. A remarkably large proportion of them have become famous for good work done, while none have been made notorious by evil deeds.

A glance at the list of graduates as it appears in the annual catalogue is most suggestive. Professors in colleges and universities, preachers of national reputation, government officials in positions of great responsibility and honor, physicians of extensive practice and others who, although less widely known, have been living examples of high thinking and noble living, all are here. It may be doubted if many institutions North or South can show as large a proportion of graduates of distinction and real worth to society as can New Orleans University. There are two points of contact between the colored representaives of our university and the white representatives of other institutions, namely, examinations before State Boards of Registration for the Practice of Medicine and the Civil Service examinations. The medical college whose graduates fail most frequently to pass the required State examination is not a colored school, while in the results of the Civil Service examinations our students have been very conspicuous for their success in the competition with their white brothers. The influence of New Orleans University upon the mental development of its students is shown to be decidedly potent when studied in the light of the after careers of those who have been under that influence a sufficient length of time. This brings me to speak of the great army of students who have not graduated. Many of them, all too many of them, have been students but a few months or even weeks. These have been in a measure benefited. They are found everywhere throughout our section and in all walks of life. They are better preachers, teachers, parents, citizens, than they could have been had they never come under the influence of the school. The time and money expended have been very far from wasted, but they are not graduates. It is not just either to them or to the university to think of them as graduates, or to expect them to do what they might have done had they continued to the end. It may be true, however, that because of their great number, the sum total of good accomplished by them is greater than that accomplished by the more favored and more famous few. It is said that the amount of light which reaches the earth from the great host of invisible stars is greater than that which shines upon us from the visible stars. Who would attempt to estimate the influence of New Orleans University in the hundreds of homes which our students have made for themselves? Higher ideals of life, wider and better activities, increased power of thought and many good things to think about, these are some of the results of even a shortened stay at a good school. Eternity alone will reveal all that has been accomplished. And now what of the session about to open? A great throng of students will be enrolled. Will your son or daughter be in the number? It is quite within the bounds of possibility to have one thousand bright young men and women in attendance at New Orleans University the coming session. Let every parent in our territory who reads these closing sentences ask himself in all seriousness: Can I afford to have my son or daughter left out?

The Methodist Congress

By Rev. T. W. Euster.

The congress held by Methodism upon the Pacific coast in connection with the Lewis and Clark Exposition, at Portland, Oregon, beginning July 11th and closing July 21st, was a greater success than was anticipated by many of the most hopeful in the ministry and laity. In giving a report of this, we can only skim off the richest cream, leaving the rest, as it would require many pages of any paper to tell everything interesting and helpful that took place and was given during the sessions of the congress. The meetings were held in the old Taylor Street M. E. Church, organized in 1848. A morning session lasting from nine o'clock until noon and evening session from eight until ten o'clock was the order accepted. This gave all the members opportunity to visit the exposition every afternoon. Bishops Moore, Hamilton, and Thoburn were present and took an active part in the work. The fact is that the Resident Bishop Moore has been the leading spirit, along with Editor Rader, in making a success of this great undertaking. The work of the congress can mainly be divided into historical, educational and missionary. It brought out much of a purely historical character. The coming of Jason Lee in the early times and those who labored with him, the conditions then existing and the marvelous results from their work. Judge Fenton, of Portland, gave an exhaustive paper of an historical nature in which he lauded the work of Lee and expressed the belief that but for him this great Northwest territory would now belong to England instead of these United States. Lee was the first missionary and the church erected at Oregon City the first church building erected west of the Rocky Mountains. The church is still standing and the ashes of Jason Lee were in Portland during the sessions of the congress, awaiting a suitable place to rest, which will undoubtedly be the historic cemetery at Salem, the capital of the State. The patriotism of Lee was brought out clear and beautiful and the fact that he had a very decided ambition to save this great and ever increasing territory to the Union. The friendship of the staunch Catholic McLoughlin, who then ruled supreme in this region under the direction of the great Fur Company, and the ups and downs of pioneer life, including the death of Mrs. Lee so far away from home and its amenities were eloquently set forth.

Many papers of a historical nature were read and addresses made druing the congress. One session was devoted to the pioneers yet living, and a number of them gave addresses, and such a tender feeling pervaded the audience as to cause this to be pronounced the best of all the sessions. White Swan, an Indian chief, who was converted in a meeting held by Jason Lee, and baptized by him later, and who is now with the Yakima Indians as chief, was there, and gave a very good and interesting address in his own language, which was eloquently interpreted by Rev. Watters, an Indian minister of the church, who was present. One of the interesting features of the address was the description of the great revival held by Lee at the Dalles, Oregon, some sixty years ago. Runners were sent out to all the tribes and they came until some fifteen hundred were present. They were all in different parts of the great meeting-place, each tribe by itself and each one having its own chief present to lead it. They at first were obstinate and would not listen to the truths of the Gospel, but after four days of silent determination to resist, a strange warming came to their hearts and they cried bitterly and within two days more over 500 of them knelt before Lee and his helpers, and renounced war and their peculiar sins, and the chief said that many times since then when he felt himself slipping back he would pray and remember Jason Lee, and take courage, and so it has been with scores of those converted then, whom he had known, and nearly all of whom are on the other side of the river of death. He declared that the Spirit took possession of them all, and they were so very happy when the load of sin had rolled away and so much light came to them as to make all things new. The birds, the flowers, the stars were new to them, and they were so very happy. To hear him become warmed up in his own tongue, which none of us knew, and to see the man at his side who interpreted for him take fire was a sight never to be forgotten. Two of the squaws had favored the audience with songs from the hymnal sung in their own tongue. This was a meeting never to be forgotten. It was a fresh breeze from the distant past fanning our faith and religious zeal and helping all to realize the wonderful works of God in the spirit realm.

Bishop Thoburn was at his best one night, when he gave us an inspirational address on the present outlook for missionary work, and whoever went away from that meeting without an increase of faith in the great missionary work of the greatest church, must have been asleep! The leading pastors and presiding elders from Idaho, Montana, Washington, Utah and Oregon were present, with others from various portions of the Union. Mormonism was pictured to us by the pen of Rev. Talbot, of the Utah Mission. Rev. W. W. Van Orsdel and Rev. F. A. Riggin, of Montana, rendered fine service in bringing the old story of pioneer days from Montana. Rev. LeSourd stirred every heart in recounting pioneer times on Puget Sound.

A lively educational discussion was had when one speaker from Spokane spoke about a university for higher education being about ready to be established there. The schools at Tacoma, Salem and Helena have had such a hard struggle as to lead many to believe that the policy of expansion in this matter is unsound, and yet the fact that a dozen years ago Methodism had a college of higher education, with 335 students enrolled and a dozen theological students there at Spokane, with a property valued at $500,000, which would still belong to her had it not been for negligence on the part of the trustee board, which accepted a very one-sided deed from the original donor. This gives an idea of what may be when the time is ripe again in the future.

The evangelistic note and hostility to the very shallow criticism of the Bible which works such evil among our uninformed, and which casts doubt and never increases faith, was a decided manifestation of the congress. Near the close of the congress an afternoon was taken in which to view the first church ever erected west of the Rock Mountains, at Oregon City, some fifteen miles above Portland. The people met in the new church on the same lot as the old building, which still stands. Bishop Moore and Bishop Hamilton made very fine addresses. Bishop Hamilton spoke of a scene he had witnessed where Dr. Cummings, Bishop Jaynes and Dr. Punshon spoke. It was a missionary meeting held in Boston long ago, and it thrilled the hearts of all present. It was held in the interest of this great Northwest, and the very section which we now honor so much and see to be the great kingdom for Methodism in the future. With a population of 1,000,000, which it can easily sustain, and with wealth unbounded and with China, Japan and the Orient on the west and the teeming and ever-increasing multitudes from the east, this will be a greater and a larger region than any other portion of the land. With all the resources, and these in great abundance, and with every opportunity for thrift and progress to reap golden harvests, and then the church building the great spiritual temple, this will be the golden west so rapidly being transformed into a new east.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Toil and Rest

BY THE REV. DUNCAN J. MC MILLAN, D. D.

O Lord, I lay my idols down
  At Thy dear feet,
And toil through life from cross to crown,
  Though rest is sweet.

I do not ask that Thou wouldst make
  That cross a toy,
Nor that my weary heart should find
  My toil a joy.

Thou hast not said my burdens great
  That press me so,
Nor that my crosses' galling weight,
  Should lighter grow.

But Thou wilt help me in the toil
  Till work is done,
The Tempter's every effort foil
  Till victory's won.

Then I shall see in clearer light
  That it was best
To be with Jesus day and night,
  In toil and rest.

Through Judgment

Mild measures have proved to be utter failures in the efforts which have been made to bring some people to a practical recognition of God's claims upon them. This fact has been shown many times in all Bible history. Mere exhortations, affectionate pleadings and reasonable arguments have had no practically persuading effect upon a large number of obstinate transgressors. And hence, if any of them were induced to yield in obedience to God, it was through judgments of unusual severity. I have just been reading anew the Bible history of Nebuchadnezzar, the king who ruled in Daniel's day of captivity, and I observe, as never before, that no manner of mild means could induce him to humble himself before the God of heaven and acknowledge Him as the Supreme King of all worlds. Daniel tried such means, as may be seen in these words: "O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by showing mercy to the poor, if there may be a lengthening of thy tranquillity." The king had seen enough of the manifestations of God's power in behalf of Daniel to convince him that the young man was divinely authorized to offer such a proposal to him, but he remained so proud, obstinate and independent that it was needful that he be subjected to very severe judgments.

Then Daniel told him of the nature of the correction which would be administered to him, and very speedily, too. He was driven from men and had his dwelling among beasts, remaining there a considerable length of time. After suffering from that crushing judgment, the king was so humbled that he openly acknowledged God as being "the King of heaven," and said, "All His works are truth, and His ways judgment, and those that walk in pride He is able to abase." No fine words would have induced that conceited and vain king to thus reverence and submit to God. And there are many people to-day who need to hear and feel the terrors of God's judgments, else they never will bow before Him in penitence and faith.

Love

BY E. F. M. SOUBS.

Love knows not self, except for power to bless.
  Love knows no toil, but to enrich some heart.
  Love knows no friends, but to use every art
To give that friend some help or happiness.
Love? all unselfish, never glad unless
  Some dear one feels relief from sting or smart—
  To lighten care and pang, that is love's part.
To comfort sorrow, or to soothe distress.
No word unkind, impatient, ever falls
  From love's dear lips; the law of kindness dwells—
  Like a pure fountain, crystal is its stream—
No word that pains another, or recalls
  A fault lamented—no, love's impulse tells
  Of love enthroned, crowned, love, and love supreme.

The Battle of Life

Not in his circumstances, not in his habits, not in his hereditary station, but in himself, in a heart ready to give itself up to the worse instead of to the better powers of the world, in a soul that loves baseness, frivolity and falseness, there lies the real enemy. Oh, the great strength which comes when that discovery is made! And, feeling that now at last the real battle has begun, the man solemnly, solidly settles himself down to the conquest of himself. The army which has carried by storm one fortification after another, and found that it has only gained possession of an outpost, more or less insignificant, now sits down before the central citadel and the real siege begins. Then comes the true calling up of all the powers. Then comes humility, and by humility self-understanding, and in self-understanding strength. Then comes that earnest cry for God's help which always brings its answer. Then comes the giving of the soul's own weakness into the abundant strength of Christ. Then comes the great reality of prayer. All of these, when the man has at last got to the center of the his sin, and is at last fighting with himself for his own soul.

My friends, do you know the meaning of all that? Are you fighting that battle for self-conquest? If you are, you know with what a true exhilaration that which seems such a cruel and unnatural necessity of life may occupy and inspire the soul. Almost with a shout the man exclaims, "I will subdue myself for goodness and for God" And though no shout is heard, though men beside him do not hear a sound, though the battlefield is in some inmost secret chamber of his most secluded life, though the fairest flowers of his own self-content are being torn to pieces by the wrestler's feet, yet still there is—do not you know it, many of you?—a deep, strong, solemn joy as the night draws nearer to the day, and the self with which we fight grows weaker, joy deep and strong and solemn with which no other pleasure in human living can compare.

And also there grows up a great charity and hope for every other man who is fighting the good fight with his sins—a charity and hope which is alone reward enough for all our pain!

May God lead all of us speedily in, through all the outer struggles, to this inmost fight of all! May we begin it now and never end it till our sin is dead! May the Captain of our salvation be our leader and our strength! May we be full of courage, because the battle which we fight is not our own alone, but God's, and at the last may we be conquerors in Him!—Phillips Brooks.

Fear and Trust

BY S. R. CALTHROP.

When last beneath the midnight stars I trod,
  An awe fell upon me from those depths afar,
  Great seas of silence 'round each separate star,—
Fathomless distances, filled full of God!
  Heaven beyond heaven without bound or bar,
And thus my lips: "Thy love I dare not claim,
  Infinite Heart, whose pulses, like a sea,
Strike shore of sun and star, yet onward flame,
  Unspent, unbroken, everlastingly!"
So spake I, by Infinitude oppressed.
  Yet ever, wrapt in peace for thought too deep,
  Like some small sea-bird on the waves asleep,
My steadfast heart all unaware did rest,
O Father! on the ocean of Thy breast.

—From the Outlook.

Bishop Vincent says: "It is a good motto: Three hundred and sixty-five holy days every year. And it does not change its significance to say three hundred and sixty-five working days every year! For through the grace of God the Sabbath 'work' will be no less arduous, although in different lines, than the week-day work. And the high levels of life thus attained will guarantee three hundred and sixty-five days for happy, holy, holidays every year!"

The Step Towards God

Heaven is not gained at a single bound;
  But we build the ladder by which we rise
  From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round.

I count this thing to be grandly true—
  That a noble deed is a step toward God—
  Lifting the soul from the common sod
To purer air and broader view.

We rise by things that are 'neath our feet;
  By what we have mastered of good and gain;
  By the pride deposed and the passion slain
And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

We hope, we aspire, we resolve, we trust,
  When the morning calls us to life and light,
  But our hearts grow weary, and ere the night
Our lives are trailing the sordid dust.

We hope, we resolve, we aspire, we pray,
  And we think that we mount the air on wings
  Beyond the recall of sensual things,
While our feet still cling to the heavy clay.

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text: Mark 16: 16. Theme: The Damning Sin

There is forgiveness for all sins that a man may commit, except the awful sin of unbelief. For the sin of unbelief there is no forgiveness in this world nor in the world to come. Provisions have been made in the glorious, yet mysterious, plan of redemption for sins heinous and crying, enormous and far-reaching, murderous and calamitous; sins of all kinds against God and against man except for the sin of unbelief, and for it Christ has made no provision whereby He can grant pardon to any man in his own unbelief. Of all sins in the sight of God, angels and men, the sin of unbelief is the most unreasonable, sinful and damning. Jesus at His home in Nazareth could not do many mighty works there, "because of their unbelief."

Unbelief is a self-imposed indisposition to believe the Word of God; a determination not to admit a fact, the truth of the impressions of the Holy Spirit; a point blank refusal to utilize the God-given power to believe; a disbelief of divine revelation; an utter rejection of Christ Jesus as the only Savior of mankind; a malicious spurning of the offers of salvation and the doctrines of grace as taught by Jesus; a wilful, prejudicial distrust of God's promises and faithfulness, and an unreasonable standing out against God's only way of salvation. "Of every species of incredulity, religious unbelief is infinitely the most irrational."

The cause of unbelief is a malevolent intention to insult God; a settled purpose to cast reproach on all Christ's claims to have done for man, an upheaval of viciousness out of a rebellious heart, a wilful, stubborn disposition that has been most carefully cultivated and cherished. Bald unbelief has undertaken to strike a blow at the Sovereignty of God the Father; to destroy the divine Sonship of Jesus by making all prophecy a myth; the manger an hallucination; His temptations in the wilderness a fake; His life of self-abnegation and unique ministry of power and glory a fable; His deep agony and sacrificial death a dream; and His glorious resurrection a false statement; to discount the Holy Spirit, by resisting His loving appeals of mercy, by quenching His loving influence and grieving His sympathetic heart, thus forcing Him to depart.

Unbelief is the reigning, damning sin of sins in the Christian world to-day, and yet few men ever think of it.

Rust University

By President W. W. Foster, Jr., D. D.

Rust University is particularly fortunate in her graduates. Two hundred and seventy-five persons have received degrees and diplomas. Of this number one hundred and twelve were men and one hundred and sixty-three were women. Fifty-eight of these received degrees from the College department, one-third of whom were graduated during the past eight years. These graduates are out in the world, busy with the duties of an active and useful life. Seventeen of ther are preaching the Gospel with earnestness and success. Nine are practicing medicine, one or two of these with conspicuous success. Among those who are known somewhat widely are Dr. S. D. Redmond, of Jackson, Miss., and Dr. Irvine E. Wills, of Walden University, Nashville, Tenn. Five are practicing law and gaining a reputation for an intelligent grasp of the profession, and a great moral purpose in promotiing the right. The seven who are in government employ are men who passed the Civil Service examinations and gained their places by competition and worth. Five graduates are trying their metal on the editorial tripod, and are holdig their own most encouragingly. Two colleges are presided over by Rust men. Dr. Dogan is making a marked success at the head of Wiley University, honoring his Alma Mater, who honored him and sent him out with her authority to do his life work. The same number of graduates are professors in colleges as are preachers. They are doing their work according to the standard set for them at Rust University. One fundamental principle taught them there, was to do honest work, not slighting a single subject nor wasting a single moment in the class-room. They feel their responsibility and do their work accordingly, therefore these men are among the best educators of the South, irrespective of the schools training them, and recognizing that the Freedmen's Schools have done splendid training. One of the graduates is the Field Secretary of the Missionary Society and Rev. Dr. Logan is doing effective work for the church.

The University has retained three graduates as professors. Prof. E. H. McKissach is at the head of the Science Department and also Secretary of the Faculty. No one could be more deeply interested in the growth and success of the University than he is. Prof. J. A. Q. Williams has stood nobly by his Alma Mater in all her struggles, and to-day is ready to speak or teach, and he is recognized as a promoter of the interests of Rust. Recently two young men, sone of these professors, have graduated. They were especially bright students, and are studying medicine. Professor J. B. F. Shaw succeeded Dr. Logan as teacher of languages, and is a bright, energetic man, growing and increasing in wisdom and abilities. Prof. D. D. Powell, Jr., is Director of Industries at Rust, and is doing fine work.

Besides these three teachers, there are a number of instructors from the graduates in the various departments of the University doing profitable work.

Were a catalogue made of men and women out in life, doing good and making splendid progress in the world, among preachers would be Revs. Dr. Cowan, of Meridian; Williams, presiding elder of the Holly Springs District, Upper Mississippi Conference; Fergurson, of Aberdeen; Clay, presiding elder of the Tupelo District, Upper Mississippi Conference, and Rev. N. R. Clay, of Holly Springs. We are glad that Rev. Dr. J. M. Shumpert was a student at Rust and is one of the trustees of the University.

Among teachers we find Professors M. H. and H. Avant, of Arkansas; W. A. Holmes, Crystal Springs; Peter Davis, Sturgis; Miss F. McGee, Philander Smith College; H. G. Grant, J. F. Dawkins, Florence K. McPherson, Texas; G. W. Perkins, Ala; Mrs. Ada Sewell Davidson, Memphis; Mrs. Annie T. Strickland, Philander Smith College; J. H. Brooks, Mrs. Effie T. Battles, Okolona, Miss.; W. J. Echols, Birmingham, and J. C. Bullin, of Alcorn College.

Among physicians are thirteen: Drs. Strickland, Wobbaseka, Ark.; J. W. Holmes, of Meridian; H. L. Jordan, of Miss.; John M. Davis, of Muskogee, Ind. T., all very successful in their profession, and others are preparing themselves to be surgeons and doctors.

Among business men are Messrs. C. A. Green, of Holly Springs; I. H. Hunt, of Grand Junction; Andrew J. Howard, of Ebenezer; S. P. Harris, of Nashville; R. H. Hightower, of Sardis; T. Wesley, Memphis; B. S. Humphrey, of Cotton Plant, Ark.; C. C. Clifton, Ala.; R. R. Green, Miss. These all have made places for themselves in the communities where they live, and those who are following after them are striving to enter into lines of abundant blessing to others, and thereby they know that they will reach the highest good for themselves.

Call for Meeting of National Afro-American Council

At Detroit, Michigan, August 30, 31 and September 1, 1905.

To the Members of the National Afro-American Council, Delegates from Local Councils and Affiliated Organizations, such as Colleges, Benevolent Societies, Newspapers and other Race Organizations, Greeting:

The eight annual session of the National Afro-American Council will be held at Detroit, Michigan, August 30, 31 and September 1st.

The Necessity for the Meeting: The recent dangerous (and, on the part of the police officers, scandalous) race riots in New York City, the lynching of seven Negroes at Watkinsville, Georgia, the demoniacal ravings of Gov. Vardaman, of Mississippi, and the Jim Crowing of the street cars of the leading cities of the South, call loudly to the derelict members of the Afro-American Council and the friends of fair play to arouse themselves and to do something to check this onslaught upon their civil and political rights.

The hostility upon the part of the enemies of the race have been so persistent, that many of our friends have become timid and indifferent in our defense. It is with the view of combating this opposition of our enemies, strengthening the hands of our friends and working for the absolute undoing of all discriminations against the race, that this meeting is to be held, and we ask the hearty co-operation of every Afro-American who is interested in the welfare of the race.

Why They Should be Supported: It has been stated again and again that the Council has not done anything worthy of support, therefore it should not be sustained. This is a mistake. We know of no civic organization in our history that through annual addresses sent to the public has done so much to create favorable public sentiment as the Afro-American Council. What other organizations of Afro-Americans have had the hardihood to meet at the Capitol of the nation and in the shadow of the White House to openly and above board criticize the president (Mr. McKinley) for refusing to make some utterance against the massacre at Wilmington, N. C., of a number of inoffensive and innocent Negroes. A committee of the Council was sent to visit the President and to call his attention to this dereliction of duty; he said he had been advised by some prominent Negroes to keep quiet on the subject, but promised in his next message to Congress that he would advise against lynchers, which he did. The Afro-American Council was the first organization to institute a test case against the constitutionality of the election laws of the Southern States. It was the Afro-American Council that was successful in getting an expression from President Roosevelt against the Lily-whiteism of the South. Indeed, the representatives of this body were present at the White House when his manifesto breaking the backbone of this heresy was issued.

Basis of Memberships Article III of the Constitution.

Section 1. The Afro-American Council shall be composed of members as follows:

1st. All persons who hold life membership.

2nd. Council Delegates, representing organizations duly accredited. Local Councils.

3rd. Affiliated Delegates, representing organizations of similar plans and purposes co-operating with Afro-American Councils.

Disfranchise the Paramount Question.

As far as possible all the rights of the race will be considered, but disfranchisement is to be the paramount question.

Speeches Must be Short and to the Point: By the action of the Afro-American Council, each speaker is limited to twenty minutes, and in view of the fact that a portion of the Caucasian press of the country is ever ready to misrepresent the words of Afro-Americans, all speeches must be in manuscript, in order that there may be absolute proof of just what each speaker said.

It is our earnest desire that every church, college, benevolent society and other race organizations should send representatives. We have every reason to believe that the Detroit meeting will be the largest ever held within the history of the organization. Let all the organizations named above elect their delegates as soon as possible and send their names to Cyrus Field Adams, secretary, 934 S. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

The citizens of Detroit are preparing to entertain the Council in first-class style, and the trip promises to be a delightful one.

Special Rates: All delegates can secure a special rate, if they will only get a certificate from the agent at the point where they purchase their ticket. Remember the date of the meeting, August 30, 31 and September 1st.

WILLIAM H. STEWARD,
President.

ALEXANDER WALTERS,
Chairman Executive Committee.

CYRUS FIELD ADAMS,
General Secretary.

The Freedmen's Aid Society as an Educational System for a Race.

By Secretary W. P. Thirkle'd, D. D.

An organization that maintains over 40 institutions of learning, distributed over the sixteen Southern States, correlated as preparatory, normal, collegiate and professional schools, with more than 600 teachers, and which brings under the refining and uplifting influence of its work about 11,000 students every year, may well be called "An educational system," as the editor has designated it in the theme assigned above.

The beginnings of this educational system were humble and unpretentious enough. It started in an abandoned gun factory at Nashville. It aimed to meet an imperative call for help from a destitute people. It was begun on faith. Its founders had no conception of the magnitude to which their work would grow. Multitudes of the freedmen were flocking into the old "Mother Church." They needed preachers, teachers and trained helpers. The church responded to the call.

The marvel now is that these schools, beginning as they did with the opposition of whole communities against their location and work, have such eligible locations in such strategic centers. This is largely due to the sagacity and foresight of the Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust—magnum et venerabile nomen—who was raised up of Providence for this great task.

The methods of the work in this system show the wisdom of a genuine educator. First, there was the teaching of a race the rudimentary three "Rs." Then came the demand for trained teachers. Through our normal schools about 12,000 have gone forth to teach the masses. Without teachers from such Christian institutions, work in the common schools of the South would have been paralyzed. To the 40,000 teachers from such schools is due the fact that the illiteracy of a race has been reduced to less than 45 per cent. in forty years. Among the Russian serfs, liberated at an earlier date, illiteracy is nearly 70 per cent. Why? Not because the American negro has greater natural capacity, but because the Christian church of America gave to the freedmen an opportunity never before given to any destitute race. They have shown their native worth by taking that channce and making, as I believe, progress without parallel.

If a race was to be lifted to the higher levels, there must be the higher education for the elect and gifted sons of the race. And so courses of collegiate study were offered. This work has often been crude and sometimes superficial. Many without natural capacity have been dragged along through classical studies who would be stronger to-day if they had been given a mastery of English. But admitting all defects, the wisdom of the higher education in this system of schools has been vindicated.

It has given leadership for a race—men of larger vision and disciplined powers. What would our church to-day be without its Scott, Mason, Bowen, Jones, Thomas, Logan, Jacobs, Penn, and Wragg, in positions of general church leadership, and such educators as Crogman, Cox, Lovingood, Dogan, Lucas, Trigg and Chavis? These are the legitimate outcome of a system which provided for the education of men in their highest capacity.

Then came the demand for a trained ministry. The Society met this by opening Biblical departments in several schools. For some reason these gradually declined. But call the roll of the Conferences, and scores of strong and effective preachers who here gained right methods of Bible study and church work will respond.

Its first theological school, with a regular post graduate course of study was opened in 1883—Gammon Theological Seminary. Now every Conference has felt the influence of this school of the prophets. As secretary, editor, agents of the church, pulpit leaders, its graduates are found. Even in Africa five of the "sons of Gammon" lift up the torch of Christ, bravely sustaining Bishops Hartzell and Scott in their great work.

No more effective work has been done by this system than through its medical schools. From Mehary have gone forth about 700 physicians, pharmacists and dentists. Flint Medical is also rising in influence. Think of the effect of the work of these physicians in averting disease and pestilence and in improving insanitary conditions, which were decimating a race. The moral influence of such educated leaders and helpers on the physical and home life of the people in a thousand centers is beyond estimate.

Here, then, is an educational system that has been fundamental to the entire work of the church in the uplifting of a race. Without the educated preachers, Sunday school teachers, church officers and leaders sent forth from this system of schools the work of the Missionary and Church Extension Societies in the South could not have been permanently effective. This system of education has been the very soul and inspiration of our entire church movement among the colored people.

Founded in 1866 we now come to the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. At the late annual meeting of the Board the writer proposed a plan for signalizing this anniversary year by the payment of the debt and the reinforcement of the work of the schools. It was adopted with enthusiasm and will be formally inaugurated at the meeting of the General Committee next November when Senator Dolliver will give the anniversary address. Let every church and Sunday school, let every preacher, helped to larger life through this Educational System respond by giving from one penny to one dollar each for every year of the forty years of the history of the Society.

Corresponding Secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education from Its Organization in 1866 to the Present—All of Whom are Living.

Seated—Former Secretaries, J. W. Hamilton, R. S. Rust, J. M. Walden, J. C. Hartzell, Standing—Present Secretaries, M. C. B. Mason, W. P. Thirkield.

Prize Offer for 40th Anniversary Song Service

The Secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, in view of the approaching Fortieth Anniversary of the organization, offer a prize of $50 to the one sending in the most acceptable Song Service for use during the cominganniversary year. Apply to the Secretaries for full information as to character of Service desired, material, tec. Manuscripts to be in by November 1st. Address the Secretaries, 222 W. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rust University Growth.

Durinng the summer two new buildings have been erected on the campus and this will provide for one hundred more students than last year. The heating plant has been thoroughly remodled, a new kitchen built, the capacity of the dining room increased, McDonald Hall connected with the steam plant, Machinery Hall finished, and all the departments of the Industrial work enlarged.

The improvements have all been made necessary to accomodate the increasing number of students. The faculty has been increased, and especial facilities will be given the college classes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson VIII—August 20, 1905. Title—"Jehoiakim Burns the Word of God."—(Jeremiah 36:21-32.) Golden Text.—"Amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord your God." (Jer. 26:13.)

Jeremiah, "exalted of the Lord," was the son of Hilkiah, probably the high priest, who found the "book of the law" in the house of the Lord. He was born about B. C. 640, in the priestly city of Anathoth, four miles north of Jerusalem. He began to prophecy when about twenty-one years of age. He was a priest, and was never married. His public life lasted more than forty years. tI began about B. C. 620 and continued until after the destruction of Jerusalem, B. C. 580. He was timid, shrank from public life, and was sensitive to a painful degree. He possessed a despondent nature. The great work he had to do was contrary to his disposition, but it was done better on that account. He was timid in resolve, but unflinching in execution. He often stood almost alone, and was fearless when he had to face the entire kingdom. His work required great courage, faith and strength of will. No coward would have undertaken his mission, and no weakling could have performed it. He has been called the "Weeping Prophet," not because he was melancholy, but because the sins of his people were great, and their punishment swift and sure. He was removed by force to Egypt, and some say was there stoned to death by the Jews. Others believe he survived till Nebuchadnezzer conquered that country, and then with Baruch, made his escape to Babylon. The book of Jeremiah treats of his call to the prophetic office; his rebukes, threatenings, and promises, in the days of Josiah, Jehoiakim, and Zedekiah; the future redemption and glorification of Israel; his special prophesies upon Judah and Jerusalem; his shorter utterances caused by particular occurrences; historical sketches of Israel after captivity, and a number of predictions against the Gentiles. The last chapter was probably written by some other person.

1. Producing the Roll. Jeremiah was shut up, but we need not suppose he was in prison. He was likely prevented from entering the temple, or forbidden to speak to the people. The Lord commanded him to take a roll and write in it all the words he had spoken against Israel, Judah and surrounding nations. It may be that Judah will hear, turn to the Lord, and be forgiven. God desired to save them, and prevent the destruction of Jerusalem. Jeremiah commanded Baruch, his secretary, to secure a roll and write therein the words he should speak. This was done. He then told the scribe to take the roll into the temple and read the words of the Lord to the people. It may be they will present their supplication and return from their evil ways. When the people, elders and princes, heard the words of the roll, they were afraid, and said they would tell them to the king. They feared an evil result, for they told Baruch and Jeremiah to hide themselves, and let no man know where they were. Note—See here the source of the inspiration of the Bible. The word of God should be read in the churches. Those who hear should fear its threatenings and cling to its promises.

2. Reading the roll to the king. The princes laid the roll up in the chamber of Elishama, went into the court of the king, and told him what was written in it. Jehoiakim sent Jehudi to bring to him the roll. He probably examined it and returned it to Jehudi, to be read for him and all the princes present. Jehudi seems to to have been a page, and a ready tool of the kings to do evil. He likely could not read the roll intelligently. It was casting pearls before swine to read this book to the king.

3. Pleading for the roll. Jehoiakim listened to the reading for some time, and then expressed his intention to destroy the roll. Eluathan, Delaliah and others pleaded for it. They likely defended it as the word of God, showed the obligations they were under to obey it, and urged the king to treat it kindly. All except the king, and his servant Jehudi, were likely friendly to the roll. An angry man bent on evil is not influenced by reason.

4. Destroying the roll. This was in December. The king was in his winter house. The brazen pan, full of live coals, was on the hearth. When Jehudi had read two or three columns of the roll the king snatched it from it, seized the knife which hung at the girdle of the scribe, cut them out and cast them into the fire. This he continued to do until the entire roll was destroyed. He was surely angry, and acted thus in a fit of madness. We may destroy the word of God by forbidding to read it; by speaking against it; by neglecting it; by persecuting those who teach it, and by not obeying it.

5. Trying to punish those who produced the roll. The king commanded his servants to arrest Jeremiah and Baruch. He no doubt meant to cast them into prison, or put them to death, for speaking such anathemas against himself and his kingdom. But the Lord had hidden them away. He had more work for them to do; therefore He would not suffer them to fall into the hands of their foes. God takes care of His own.

6. Reproducing the roll. The word of the Lord came a second time to Jeremiah, commanding him to take another roll, and place it in the hands of Baruch. The prophet then spoke, and the scribe wrote all the words of his mouth in the roll. Thus the old roll was reproduced. The words spoken were against Israel, Judah and other nations. The old roll had been destroyed because Jeremiah had prophesied that the king of Babylon would come up against Jerusalem, overthrow it, and lay the land in waste. The same is here repeated. Note—Many will not hear the gospel, because it condemns their course in life. If a minister would be popular let him prophesy unto the people smooth things. But the Lord added to the words of the first roll. He spoke directly against the king. Jehoiakim should not have a descendant to sit upon the throne of David, and his dead body should be cast out and lie unburied. He would punish him and his family for their iniquities, and would bring upon Jerusalem and Judæa all the evils He had spoken against them. None of these things moved the king. They that will not heed the warning of God must bear the consequences.

With Christ at School

HERMAN S. REICHARD.

"Come learn of me!"
The words so wondrous sweet,
Fall from the Master's lips—
With tender love replete.
"Come, leave dull dross behind,
And learn of me."

Teacher divine!
In Thy great school of prayer
Kneel we as suppliants meek.
Meet us, as humbly there
Thy richest grace we seek,
Master divine.

Our stubborn will
Melt with Thy love so warm.
'Mid life's absorbing stress
Keep safely from all harm;
Close to Thy bosom press—
Thy peace instill.

Then let the joy
Sweeter than aught of earth
Flood with a radiant power
Lives filled with carnal mirth.
Songs born in heavenly bower,
Our lips employ.

Lesson Topic

The Duty of Winsomeness

Scripture References—Prov. 15: 13-15; 17: 22; I Cor. 9: 19-22.

The Word.

"A merry (joyful) heart maketh a cheerful countenance"—literally, does good to the face; makes it comely, attractive. The secret of real winsomeness is a good heart. A good heart has a "continual feast." The man with a good heart and a good conscience has a winning way. He is the winner. Further, it makes a good medicine. This is an early recognition of that well-known psychological fact that a happy frame of mind gives health to the body, and nothing hurts it more than grief, anxiety and a bad temper. Paul's law of becoming all things to all men seems to mean the cheerful and glad adaptation of one's own ways to the needs of another to "win him to Christ." Only the happy, cheerful, and optimistic man can do this.

Our Homily: Winsomeness.

We adapt our homily this week from the Daily Readings. They illustrate the various phases of this wonderful faculty or grace. Nothing is quite so popular as a "winsome" person. He need not be handsome or rich, but if he is of a glad heart he is attractive.

1. The Elements of Winsomeness. These are enumerated by Paul as long-suffering, kind, unselfish, not boasting nor egotistic, unruffled in temper and pure in thought. It is gentlemanly, "behaving itself having itself seemly," and puts the best construction possible to any action. It is patient and full of faith and hope.

2. The Example and Motive. Paul and Barnabas are good examples of winsomeness. They caused "joy" in going through a community, and at the council giving their experience and telling of God's dealing with them won the council to their views. The motive to all this is the love of God shed forth in the heart, making a glad and happy heart. God's love to us is the impelling cause of our love to others.

3. The Reward of Winsomeness. The very grace of winsomeness will give compassion and pity. It will be our letter of recommendation to others. It will give access as to the hearts of men. It will change us into the image of our Master. It will give us health and long life. It will bring recompense on earth and reward in heaven. Every good promise is to him who has the real winsomeness of a Christian heart and life.

Winning Ways.

The glad hand and real smile.
A cheerful optimism and faith in God.
A habit of looking on the bright side.
A charitable judgment of friends.
Always putting the best construction on acts.
A real healthy and hopeful spirit.

Qualities Which Fail.

A gloomy look and sour face.
Envy of another's good fortune.
Excessive egotism and jealousy.
A quick temper uncontrolled in expression.
Rude and unbecoming behavior in public.

The lack of that love which "beareth all things."—From Notes on Epworth League Devotional Topics.

Southwestern Christian Advocate

1—All business letters should be addressed to Eaton & Mains, and all communications intended for publication to the Editor.

2—In sending matter for publication, write plainly on one side of the paper, and make your communication as short as the subject will allow.

3—When the ADVOCATE does not arrive regularly, notify us promptly.

4—Methodist pastors are our authorized agents, to receive subscriptions and collect dues for the ADVOCATE.

THE PLAN ENDORSED

The plan for 5,000 new subscriptions by October 31st is meeting with approval. Encouraging letters are coming from all sources, Bishops, Presiding Elders, Pastors and Laymen. We are pleased to give this week encouraging words from two of our Bishops. The first is from Bishop Warren:

"AN APPEAL TO READERS OF THE SOUTHWESTERN.

"I beg you to take an active personal interest in the circulation of your paper. I do this for three reasons: (1) To develop the intelligent interest of our people in church affairs. God's complaint of his ancient people was, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." Especially should no official member be without the official organ.

"(2) The paper ought to be entirely self-supporting. Be independent. Do not lean on friends too long. Have a just pride in taking care of your own organ.

"(3) Increase your own interest in the paper by working for it.

"Your brother in labor and love,

"HENRY W. WARREN."

This movement is gathering strength from all sources. Brother, if you have not written us do so at once and let us know.

Bishop McCabe has in many ways helped in pushing the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN. Concerning the plan for the 5,000 new subscriptions by October 31st, Bishop McCabe says: "The SOUTHWESTERN is one of the very best family newspapers in the country. I read it constantly and am greatly pleased with it. The presiding elders and preachers by a combined effort could send its circulation up to where it would more than pay expenses.

"We cannot build up a great, harmonious, drilled Methodism in the South without the help of the press. Non-Methodist papers will not do it, no matter how good they may be otherwise. Let us stand by our own paper."

It is sometimes alleged that prizes are awarded to Negroes who are students in white schools on the ground of favoritism and sympathy, and not on the ground of genuine merit. It is remarkably strange, however, if this be the case, that the Negroes continue to carry off the honors. Miss Matilda Winslow, a young colored girl recently graduated from the University of Brunswick, Canada, winning the prize for the best student in the classics of the senior year, receiving her degree of bachelor of arts with the highest honors of the class. In addition to this, Miss Winslow led her class every year in the High School and winning all the prizes offered during her course. She has also taken honors every year she has been in the University and led her class throughout the course in both Greek and Latin. Miss Winslow is only 20 years of age, being the first colored lady to graduate from the University of Brunswick, and the second person, Mr. Arthur Richardson graduating from the Edward Waters College being the first.

THE YELLOW FEVER SITUATION

New Orleans is battling with a firm hand against the yellow fever. Up to Monday noon of this week the total number of cases had reached 565 and total deaths 113, while there were 97 infected places. The fever is practically within the Italian quarter and the cases that are not within that territory may be directly traced to it. An instance of this is the case of Archbishop Chapelle of the Catholic Church, who does not live within the Italian settlement, but is stricken with the yellow fever as the result of his ministrating to yellow fever patients.

The fight is a hard one. The situation now being in charge of the United States Marine and Hospital Service by the request of the State authorities of Louisiana and the authorities of the city of New Orleans. Surgeon-General Wyman is in charge and ten assistant surgeons have been despatched to this city, who will be in direct charge of the situation. The indications are that the fever will soon be stamped out and New Orleans again on the high road to progress.

One fact has been settled once for all, that the stegomyia fasciata, a species of mosquito, is the only transmitter of yellow fever. The yellow fever visited this city in an epidemic in 1878; it recurred in 1897 and 1898. During the last two times the fright of the people was something intense, but the situation now is marked by the lack of fear on the part of the people of New Orleans. The theory of the mosquito transmitting the yellow fever is almost universally accepted and hence the fight is now against the mosquito and this is done through the placing of oil in the cisterns which contain the water supply for the homes, as well as oil upon all cesspools and gutters where water may be standing. This is being done mostly through voluntary contributions on the part of citizens. The situation now being in the hands of the United States Marine and Hospital Service, it has estimated that it will take $250,000 to control the fever.

The quarantine regulations have been quite annoying. Calcasieu parish of Louisiana prohibited the passing of any trains whatever, freight or mail, that started from New Orleans. Similar quarantines were placed on in other localities and hence railroad business is practically suspended. The shotgun quarantine for the most part prevails. Mississippi being most strenuous in its requirements. On Lake Pontchartrain and Lake Borgne, which are within Louisiana territory, came near being the scene of conflict between the authorities of the States of Louisiana and Mississippi. All is now quiet, the United States having charge of the situation.

It should be said to our readers that there is absolutely no reason for any fear whatsoever in the transmission of yellow fever by means of mail, whether letters or newspapers. Greenville, Miss., refuses to accept any mail whatever that comes from New Orleans without fumigation, and hence the SOUTHWESTERN for last week was returned. Those who take time to investigate will find out that this is unwarranted and we say to our readers that there need be no fear whatsoever along this line.

OUR WORK IN LIBERIA, AFRICA

Encouraging reports are coming in showing the progress of our missions in Africa. It is very gratifying indeed to have our work recognized by others. The African Methodist Episcopal Church Review, H. T. Kevling, A. M., editor, contains in its last issue an editorial on Liberia, from which we take the following paragraphs:

" * * * At one time African Methodism seemed destined to compass that whole field, but there has been a change. Then we had the United States consul-general and our moral influence with the Liberian government was powerful. Now, the M. E. Church has taken our place, both as an influence and as the coming Church. Bishop Hartzell, with great wisdom, has gone to his work and taken pot luck with his African brethren, winning their hearts and inspiring confidence. A college has been established under the presidency of Dr. Camphor, which is really doing better work than Liberia College, the government school. Men and women, trained in the best American schools have, from time to time, gone out to do missionary service, most of the men graduates of Gammon Theological Seminary, and their efforts have told and are still telling powerfully for their Church.

"But more than all these, the election of Bishop I. B. Scott and his assignment to that field have given the M. E. Church a leverage that puts it far in the forefront; a position which, with plenty of money and a host of eager and trained workers to draw upon, it will hold for many years to come. Rev. Ernest Lyon, a leading divine of the same church, is now United States consul-general, and there are few men of more energy and shrewdness than he. These men are not talking, but doing things and planting their church so deeply in the hearts of the people that their place is secure; while we seem to be chiefly engaged in trying to evade assignment and appointment to that field. It is true there are some in our ranks who want to go to Africa as missionaries, but they are without the kind of special training indispensable to success there."

NEGRO BUSINESS LEAGUE

There will be held in the Palm Garden, New York City, August 16, 17 and 18, the annual session of the National Negro Business League. This movement is having a widespread influence for good in the development of business enterprises among the Negroes and the revealing to the Negro his strength in the commercial and business world. The movement has as its chief promoter Dr. Booker T. Washington, who is the president of the organization. The movement is objected to by some because it materializes, they allege, the race. If providing the Negro with income and business rating so that he may have comfort for his family and means for the education of his children, is materializing, then let the race be materialized; the more the better.

The program itself makes some revelations. The men who have been successful in business will do the speaking. They will tell how it was done. Mr. H. C. Haynes, of Chicago, will speak on "Manufacturing Razor Strops," and Mr. W. E. Hooper, of Paterson, N. J., on "Manufacturing Mechanics' Tool Handles." Mr. William Hardin, of Quincy, Fla., a practical electrical engineer, will speak of "Owning and Controlling An Electric Plant." There are eight Negro towns in this country, namely: Mound Bayou, Miss.; Langston City, O. T.; Boley, I. T.; Buxton, Ia.; Hobson City, Ala.; Cassopolis, Mich.; Eatonville, Fla.; and Booker City, Ala. Each of these towns will have representatives to speak.

Extensive preparations are being made for the entertainment of the delegates and friends who may visit the National Business League. Every enterprizing Negro who can possibly attend should not fail in doing so.

Bishop Bowman, who is in splendid health, was eighty-eight years of age July 15th.

SERVICES APPRECIATED

Our office force regrets very much that we were unable to visit the district conferences as we had planned. It was more of a disappointment to us than it possibly could have been to the district conferences. Notwithstanding the SOUTHWESTERN was unable to send representatives from the office to the district conferences, those that have met within the past few weeks have done most nobly in pushing the circulation and we desire to give honor to whom honor is due.

We give the names of the district conferences, the presiding elders and the brethren who represented the SOUTHWESTERN and number of subscriptions sent. The Marion District, Central Alabama Conference, H. N. Brown, presiding elder, A. G. Glenn, representative, 8. The following came from the Mississippi Conference: Jackson District, J. C. Hibbler, presiding elder, William McMorris, representative, 14; Meridian District, J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder, H. R. S. Erby, representative, 32; Shubuta District, J. B. Brooks, presiding elder, R. Howze, representative, 26; Brookhaven District, G. W. Smith, D. D., presiding elder, H. J. Jordan, representative, 20. The following came from the Upper Mississippi Conference: Greenwood District, S. H. Nevils, 4; Tupelo District, W. C. Clay, A. B., presiding elder, H. B. Hart, representative, 12; Holly Springs District, N. H. Williams, D. D., presiding elder, N. R. Clay, A. B., representative, 13. The Savannah District, Savannah Conference, J. W. Fisher, presiding elder, L. J. McLendon, representative, 19; Huntsville District, Texas Conference, W. A. Fortson, presiding elder, P. L. Jackson, representative, 10. Greensboro District, North Carolina Conference, M. J. Bullock, presiding elder, 4.

We are very grateful to these brethren for their services, and it shows what could be done if the brethren would bend their strength to this purpose. We are absolutely depending upon the brethren at the district conferences to do their best, the office force being unable to travel on account of quarantine regulations.

The Supreme Court of the State of Florida has sustained the decision of Judge Call of Jacksonville, in declaring the separate street car law unconstitutional. It was thought in some quarters that the Supreme Court of Florida would reverse the decision. The final decision, coming as it does from the highest tribunal of the commonwealth of Florida, the law is now a dead letter and no doubt sentiment will be increased against separate cars throughout the State. But the separate car idea is not altogether dead, for already there has been introduced in the city of Pensacola an ordinance looking toward the establishment of separate cars for that city. It was hoped that in view of the injustice and discrimination of separate cars and in the light of the recent decision that it would be some time before the separate car idea would gain ground in the State of Florida.

Live Oak School at Baton Rouge, La., under the leadership of Prof. F. C. Blundon, is still showing signs of vigorous and helpful life. This institution was recently given by Hon. R. A. Hart, a southern white man, 15 acres of land and buildings in the southern part of Baton Rouge. One of these buildings is of brick, 45x115, and will be remodeled for school purposes. The gift is an indication of the sentiment on the part of some of the southern whites who are liberally disposed to Christian education among the Negroes. It is also an endorsement of the work done by Prof. and Mrs. F. C. Blundon, who have given themselves unreservedly to this work for the uplifting of God's poor. Prof. Blundon was in the city recently and was the guest of Mrs. Elizabeth Washington.

Personal and General.

Miss Maud M. Donnell, stenographer to the editor, is visiting her people in Delaware, Ohio.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. T. Foust are still in Brooklyn, N. Y., detained on account of Mrs. Foust's illness, who is recovering.

Miss M. I. Hardwick, of Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., is visiting Dr. and Mrs. P. O'Connell, who are spending a while at Ocean Grove, N. J.

The General Committee of Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet in Philadelphia on Thursday morning, November 2nd, 1905.

Presiding Elders W. R. Butler, H. Daniels and J. W. Turner are quarantined and will have the unusual pleasure of spending quite a while with their families in the city.

Rev. Hubbard Daniels, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, announces the postponement of his district conference until further notice.

Rev. J. W. Turner, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District Conference, announces that his district conference will be postponed on account of quarantine regulations.

Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Chavis, of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., are in the North. During their trip they will visit Washington, Atlantic City and other resorts for recreation.

New Orleans has a new race paper under the name of the New Orleans Compiler, with Mr. H. Benjamin Francois as editor and proprietor. We wish this new journal abundant success.

Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, presiding elder of the Vicksburg District, Mississippi Conference, announces the postponement of his district conference until further notice on account of quarantine restrictions.

A card from Rev. J. O. Brown, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, announces that his district conference, which was to convene August 9th, is postponed until further notice on account of quarantine restrictions.

While Mississippi was busy keeping up quarantine against yellow fever it was not too busy to lynch two Negroes. Mississippi knows how to conduct both a shotgun quarantine campaign and a mob for the lynching of Negroes without trial before judge or jury.

Dr. L. G. Adkinson, So. Atlanta, Ga., desires the Annual Conference Secretaries who have not done so to send a copy of the Conference Minutes to Gammon Seminary. Please do so at once, marking price, with postage added, on the book, and Dr. Adkinson will remit by return mail.

Dr. John B. Hall, Jr., of Boston, Mass., has been visiting his parents in this city, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hall. Dr. Hall is a practicing physician in Boston and enjoys the confidence of the people in general and has a very large practice. He rteurned to Boston this week by way of Chicago.

Rev. I. H. Fulton, the brilliant pastor of our church at Orangeburg, S. C., was elected vice-president by the last session of the International Sunday School Union held in Toronto, Canada, and recently has been elected president of the Interdenominational Sunday School Union of South Carolina.

Henry W. Nivison, the famous English war correspondent, has been conducting an expedition in Africa for the past eight months and startling revelations have come to light on the slave trade as it exists in Africa to-day. It is said the slave trade is on a more insidious and dangerous form than ever.

White girls employed in the office of A. J. Logan & Co., mattress makers, of Pittsburg, Pa., went on a strike because Estelle Wells, a Negro gril, was employed as stenographer. The Negro girl was not discharged, but all the white girls were, and at the expiration of thirty-six hours the majority returned and were reinstated.

The Mobile Weekly Press is making a vigorous, timely and just fight for the proper equipment of colored schools in Mobile. Editor Johnson of the Press is showing enterprise and sparing no pains to prove his side of the case. There is evident discrimination against the Negro both in buildings furnished and in salaries of the teachers.

Rev. Moses Smith, our pastor at Wesley Chapel, Austin, Tex., has sustained a great misfortune in the loss of his household effects as a result of the burning of the parsonage which occurred recently. In this great loss the pastor is being assisted by the friend who have contributed to the re-establishment of his home and the church parsonage.

The Pittsburg Christian Advocate says that Dan. B. Brummit, assistant editor of the Epworth Herald, was the most cosmopolitan delegate at the Denver convention. He was born in England, learned to speak American on the streets of New York, hoed corn in Kansas, went to school in New Jersey, learned to preach in Arkansas and lives to-day in Illinois.

Rev. W. C. Hughes, Ph. B., is meeting with splendid success at Sharp Street Memorial, Baltimore. The recent Spring rally, which is said to be the best in the history of the church, netted $1,900. This pastor is setting his pegs for $7,000 on old indebtedness this year. Rev. Hughes' success at Sharp Street Memorial and his newly-born first baby boy ought to make him a happy man.

It is announced that the degree of doctor of divinity was conferred by Rust University upon Rev. E. P. Jones, A. B., secretary Baptist State Convention of Mississippi. Dr. Jones is one of the most prominent men of the race; standing high in his own denomination and enjoying also the confidence and high esteem of the fraternal orders, he being at the head of the Odd Fellows of Mississippi.

T. A. Walker, A. M., M. D., of Baton Rouge, La., unless quarantine restrictions prevent, leaves Saturday, August 19th, for Richmond, Va., to be in attendance at the National Medical Association, before which body he delivers an oration on the history of the organization and reads a paper on a case of tetanus resulting from a burn by phosphorus successfully treated by him with the use of the antiseptic serum.

The SOUTHWESTERN is pleased to announce that Rev. I. E. Lowery, A. M., has been added to our staff as correspondent for the State of South Carolina. Rev. Lowery is a man of wide experience as a newspaper correspondent and editor and the SOUTHWESTERN feels honored in announcing him as among its regular contributors and feels sure that we will now have regularly from the Palmetto State fresh news of our work there.

Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes, First Assistant Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, will represent the Board at the following Conferences: Norwegian and Danish, August 25th; Northwest Nebraska, August 31st; Northern Swedish, Sept. 7th; West Wisconsin, Sept. 13th; North Nebraska, Sept. 15th; Nebraska, Sept. 20th; West Nebraska, Sept. 28th; Minnesota, Sept. 30th; Northern Minnesota, Oct. 6th; Rock River, Oct. 6th; and North Ohio, Oct. 12th.

Miss Mary Cantwell, of Corsica, Ohio, who was graduated with high honor from Ohio Wesleyan University this year, sailed from New York on the steamer Tennyson, Thursday, Aug. 3rd. Miss Cantwell has been approved for missionary work under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and will be connected with the North American Academy at Montevideo, Uruguay, where her sister, Miss Eulalia Cantwell, has been a teacher since the fall of 1903.

Mr. S. Earl Taylor, the Missionary Society's Field Secretary for Young People's Work, arrived in New York on the steamer Oceanic, Wednesday, Aug. 2, after a brief stay in England, where he went to visit certain missionary conventions for young people, one held under the auspices of the Church Missionary Society and the other under the auspices of the Mission Boards of the Nonconformist Churches in England. Mr. Taylor speaks enthusiastically of the awakened interest among the young people of Great Britain in the subject of missions.

Doings of the Workmen.

ALABAMA.

LAFAYETTE CIRCUIT, W. E. Smith, pastor—Our rally, which closed at Mitchell, June 4th, was very successful. Two conversions; one Epworth League Chapter organized. Collection, $41.42.

WEBOWEE CIRCUIT, (Mrs.) B. S. Kirk—Our second quarterly conference convened at Mountain Grove, June 17-18, Rev. J. W. Thomas, presiding elder, in the chair. He preached an able sermon at 11 a. m., June 18th. Sunday evening and at night he preached at Union Chapel. Reports showed the work alive spiritually and financially. Mrs. Thomas spoke Friday night in regard to the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Sunday evening she was successful in organizing an auxiliary. Paid the presiding elder $10.

HEFLIN, Wm. Perry, pastor—Our second quarterly conference met at Salico Church, with Rev. J. W. Thomas presiding. The conference was a success. Altho services were not so well attended Sunday, owing to the rainy weather, yet we had good meetings. Rev. J. Y. Thomas preached a wonderful sermon. His wife, who was with him, plans to organize the Woman's Home Missionary Society here. No services at Heflin owing to the rain. Raised for the elder, $7.82; pastor, $35.50; benevolence, $4.00; total, $47.32.

MISSISSIPPI.

SYCAMORE, Mack Robinson—Our rally held at Mt. Pisgah Church, July 9th, was indeed successful. The pastor preached a choice sermon at the morning service. The contributions were generous, Siller Buckenham contributing $10.00, Henrietta Croomp $6.65, Messrs. T. Rodgers and T. Croomp $2.00 each, Liner Croomp $1.55; a number of others giving from 30 cents to $1.00. Raised at night, $2.13, making a total of $40.00.

DESOTO, Larra Horn—The work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society at this point is succeeding nicely. At a recent meeting, held at the residence of Mrs. C. Anderson, a very interesting and instructive talk was given by Miss Angie M. Hough. We are indeed grateful to Mrs. W. McNeal for the good she has done by organizing this society in our midst. We are striving for a good report.

MASHULAVILLE, D. L. Tubbs, pastor—On July 16th we had the cornerstone of New Zion M. E. Church laid by the Odd Fellows of Macon, Dr. D. W. Sherrod and Prof. L. L. Ivy conducting the ceremonies. Rev. F. H. Bunton, one of the State Grand Officers, preached the cornerstone sermon. The good people of New Zion M. E. Church and our friends of the Baptist church strove to make the occasion pleasant for all. Brother John Dunn, a member of our church, made the stone.

LIBERTY, W. D. Spears—Sunday, July 9th, was a great day for Methodism in Liberty, the occasion being the dedication of the new church which has just been completed at a cost of about $1150. The Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, presiding elder of the Vicksburg District, preached the dedication sermon to a crowded house, at 11 o'clock a. m., and at night he preached another excellent sermon. Work was begun on our church about one month ago. The same is now clear of debt and we are now planning to paint it. Rev. H. J. Brown is wide awake and will succeed. We have also built a new parsonage this year. The pastor is making a canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Athens Ct., A. C. Franklin, Pastor.—My second quarterly conference convened at Valley Chapel May 6-7, Rev. F. H. Henry presiding. At 12 o'clock Brother H. Harris, a local preacher, preached a good sermon. This is my third year on this work and perfect peace prevails between pastor and people. Rev. Henry is pushing every interest. Raised in the quarter Saturday evening, $21.50. The steward of Tabernacle Church, Bro. A. Barker, surprised the pastor and family April 29. The members met and turned over to the steward more than 300 pounds of choice provisions. Pastor's salary, $650; presiding elder's, $80.

Minter City, L. F. White, Pastor.—Last Thursday night, after class was over a party of twenty-nine persons stormed the pastor with many choice groceries.

PHILADELPHIA, H. E. Morgan, pastor—Presiding Elder J. M. Shumpert held our first quarterly conference April 1-2. The officers presented good reports. Everything bids fair for a good year's work, altho one of our churches was destroyed by fire in February. Sunday, Rev. Shumpert preached a strong sermon; quite a number partook of the Sacrament. Collection, $23.

Morton, A. Reid.—According to the reports of officers presented during our second quarterly conference held by Elder J. M. Shumpert, the work of this charge is in good condition. Paid the elder up to date, $30. Sunday, May 21, Rev. Shumpert preached and administered the Sacrament to a large number of communicants. The work moves on nicely. One subscription for the SOUTHWESTERN.

HATTIESBURG, H. W. Woops—St. Paul M. E. Church is in better condition now than it has been for many years, under the pastorate of Rev. J. K. Comfort. The people of both races are well pleased with him. Members are now at work that have been inactive for a great many years. In his revival a few days ago he added to the church 101 souls, and 19 who came from other churches. This church feels blessed by having such a man as Rev. Comfort at this place. Have paid him up to date $650. The Sunday school has 280 scholars. We are moving along nicely on all lines of our church work.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other kind

MISSOURI.

IRONTON.—A. J. Williams, Pastor.—OuOr first quarterly conference convened June 10-11, Elder C. M. Keeton presiding. The conference was well attended. This is my first quarter in the Central Missouri Conference. The elder spoke very highly of all arrangements and plans and found the work in first-class condition. Sunday at 11 o'clock Elder Keeton preached, it seemed, as never before. At 7:30 o'clock the choir rendered several beautiful songs, which the large audience greatly enjoyed. Sermon by the pastor. Paid the elder in full and we are now arranging for a $100 rally.

"LA CREOLE" HAIR RESTORER

"La Creole" Hair Restorer contains the ingredients used by the most famous Creole beauties. It will restore gray hair to its original color, stop falling hair, cure dandruff, keep the hair clean, soft and glossy and will make curly or kinky hair lie straight and smooth for a long time.

MISS NANCY RICE.

Nothing Takes Its Place.

This is a photograph of Miss Nancy Rice, 185 Beale street, Memphis, Tenn., who has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for years, and who says:

"Nothing I have ever used will take the place of your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer, as it keeps my hair in a splendid condition."

Miss Rice is a woman of striking personal appearance, which is owing very largely to her fine hair, the result of using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT

Has Done Wonders.

This is a photograph of Mr. Louis Nemore, residing at No. 10 Turley St., Memphis, Tenn., one of the most highly respected colored men in the city. He is implicitly trusted by his employer for the last ten years—Dr. Heber Jones, one of our most prominent physicians, and now president of the Memphis Board of Health. Mr. Nemore says he takes pleasure in stating that our "La Creole" Hair Restorer has done wonders for his splendid head of hair. "It has kept my hair from falling out, and has kept my head and scalp in a clean, healthy condition. I recommend it very highly."

MR. LOUIS NEMORE.

If your dealer cannot supply you, we will send by prepaid express, to any station in the United States or Canada one bottle for $1.00; 6 bottles for $5.00.

TALK IS CHEAP; ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

To any reader of this great paper who will send me their name and address (a postal will do), I will send (not a sample) but a full-size box of

GLOSSINE

Queen of all hair tonics. This, the greatest and most meritorious remedy for the human hair, causes the hair to grow with rapidity and gives to it that rich glossy tone so much desired by all. No matter how short or harsh or curley your hair may be, Glossine will make it long and straight, soft and fine, and of so rich and pliable a texture that it can be dressed in any prevailing style desired. Glossine cannot fail. I stake my honor on its great merit and prove its worth by sending a full-size box free to all who write to me. Address MISS HELEN MARTIN,

ARKANSAS.

Mardell, C. L. Kyles, P. C.—Children's Day was observed third and fourth Sundays in July, on the Mardell Circuit. Midway Baptist Church Sabbath school took a part in the exercises. The fourth Sunday exercises were held at Thompson Chapel and there we enjoyed the presence of the Spring Lake Baptist Church Sunday school.

Bledsoe, D. W. Johnson, P. C.—Second quarterly conference met June 26-27, with Elder B. J. Griffin. All officers had good reports. Sunday was a high day. At 11 o'clock the elder preached and at night 40 partook of the Lord's Supper. Paid elder, $10: pastor, $26.

GEORGIA.

Cedartown, Dessie M. Lowery.—Our second quarterly conference was held June 3-4 in New Hope M. E. Church, with Rev. A. Owens, of Austell, presiding. The reports showed the work to be in a prosperous condition. Sunday morning at 10:30 the experience meeting was interesting and inspiring. At 11 o'clock Rev. Owens preached. Quarterly collection, $6.65. Our pastor, Rev. G. A. Viel, is pushing the work to success. And we are proud of our new presiding elder, C. W. Adams.

South Atlanta, Robt. N. Johnson.—The South Atlanta M. E. Church, under the pastorate of Rev. L. H. King, is doing a great work, especially toward winning souls for Christ. During our recent revival more than one hundred souls have enlisted in the great and mighty army of which about one-half were young people. We attribute the greater part of our success to the Sunday school, which is under the supervision of Mr. L. J. Price.

Malaria Makes Pale Blood.

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic, drives out malaria and builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

KENTUCKY.

Moorefield, F. White, Pastor—A wonderful camp meeting just closed at Moorefield, Ky. Considering the weather, it was one of the best ever held here. Raised over $250. We are moving our church on our own lot just purchased; laid our corner stone July 8 Several churches and one lodge were represented. Rev. Mrs. Sallie A. Ramsey, Missionary Evangelist, conducted our services with splendid success. Pray for our work.

WILL IT CURE ME?

That's the personal question a woman asks herself when she reads of the cures of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Why shouldn't it cure her?

Is it a complicated case? Thousands of such cases have been cured by "Favorite Prescription." Is it a condition which local doctors have declared incurable? Among the hundreds of thousands of sick women cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription there are a great many who were pronounced incurable by local doctors. Wonders have been worked by "Favorite Prescription" in the cure of irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"I commenced taking your medicine, 'Favorite Prescription,' nearly a year ago for chronic inflammation of womb, and can truly say it is the only thing that ever did me any good," writes Mrs. L. C. Wagner, of 125 Edwin Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. "I could not walk any distance before using it. After taking six bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I find I can walk without difficulty and am greatly benefited in general health. Would advise all suffering women to use Dr. Pierce's medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets These are the Original Little Liver Pills, first put up over 40 years ago, by old Dr. R. V. Pierce. They've been much imitated but never equaled. Smallest, easiest to take and best. They're tiny, sugar coated, anti-bilious granules, a compound of refined and concentrated vegetable extracts. Without disturbance or trouble, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, sick and bilious headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured. Permanently cured, too. By their mild and natural action, these little Pellets gently lead the system into natural ways again. Their influence lasts.

Dear Brethren—Half of the year is past and we have entered upon the third quarter. Remember our motto is to double the membership on the South Florida Mission by end of the year. Try and raise every dollar of the benevolent collections during this quarter and do not forget that every pastor is an agent for the SOUTHWESTERN, therefore solicit subscribers for the same. It ought to be self-supporting by this time. Let us do our duty. Yours for progress,

JEFFREY GRANT, Supt.

Doings of the Workmen

ALABAMA.

Mantua, V. D. Oatman, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held June 24, at Union Grove M. E. Church, Presiding Elder Rev. W. H. Nelson in the chair. The conference was largely attended. On the Sabbath the elder preached two soul-stirring sermons. Ten souls were received into the church. Collection, $26.10.

Sylacauga, G. N. Reeves, P. C.—The second quarter was held with Rev. J. W. Thomas, P. E., in the chair. Rev. Thomas preached two sermons that will not be forgotten. The Bishop had the right mind about him when he assigned Rev. J. M. Thomas as presiding elder. Paid pastor this quarter, $60.10; paid elder, $15. Raised on Children's Day, $12, and raised for the sick, $10. Grand total, $97.10.

FLORIDA.

Cotton Plant, A. R. Rutlege, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference convened June 10 at 11:30 a. m. in Wesley Chapel, Rev. S. A. Huger presiding. The pastor and my faithful flock are pushing all lines to make this the most successful year of the present administration. The attendance has increased considerably. Some additions also to the membership. Every department of the church received the attention of the elder. On Sunday, Children's Day, Rev. Huger preached two able sermons. Paid him his full assessment of $10. Total collection for the day, $29.

GEORGIA.

Douglasville, R. J. Simmons.—Our third quarterly conference, held at Liberty Grove Church June 24-25, was a success. It was held by Rev. A. J. Noland of Carrollton, Ga., sent by our presiding elder, Rev. C. W. Adams. Rev. Noland preached a noble sermon on Sunday. Children's Day exercises were held. Program well rendered. Total collection, $22.06. The Children's Day collections on the charge were as follows: Douglasville, $6.50; Liberty Grove, $6.56; Mt. Carmel, $6.60; total, $19.16. The condition of the charge is prosperous and hopeful under our excellent pastor, Rev. J. O. Smith.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

Mrs. S. T. Roberts, Clinton, La., sent a postal card request for a trial bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine to The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., and received it promptly by return mail without expense to her. Mrs. Roberts writes that the trial bottle of this wonderful Palmetto Medicine proved quite sufficient to completely cure her. She says: "One trial bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine has cured me after months of intense suffering. My trouble was Inflammation of Bladder and serious condition of Urinary organs. Drake's Palmetto Wine gave me quick and entire relief and I have had no trouble since using the one trial bottle."

Drake's Palmetto Wine cures every such case to stay cured. It is a true, unfailing specific for Liver, Kidney, Bladder and Prostate Troubles caused by Inflammation, Congestion or Catarrh. When there is Constipation, Drake's Palmetto Wine produces a gentle and natural action of the bowels and cures Constipation immediately to stay cured. One small dose a day does all this splendid work, and any reader of this paper may prove it by writing to The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., for a test bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine. A letter or postal card is your only expense.

They Live in Our Memory.

McNeil—Mrs. Margaret McNeil, the mother of Rev. W. McNeil and grandmother of Mrs. T. R. McWilliams, of Dekalb, Miss., died at her home at Crystal Springs, Miss., April 1, 1905, aged 67 years. She leaves a husband, three sons, one daughter and a host of friends. Her funeral was largely attended at Mt. Zion M. E. Church, of which she was a faithful member for a good many years. She followed closely the footsteps of the Master and lived an exemplary Christian life. The family has lost its most precious jewel, and the community has lost a friend.

A Friend.

Gilmore—At Eola, La., on June 10, 1905, occurred the death of Brother George Gilmore. The funeral service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. S. M. G. Taylor.

Roundtree—On the morning of April 8 1905, the Lord called from our midst a very useful young woman, Miss Francis Roundtree, the eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. Roundtree. She was an example worthy of imitation. As a Sunday-school teacher she was faithful, always at her post of duty. She was a member of the Senior Class of the City High School for this year, but died just a few weeks before the commencement. We miss her and our hearts go out in sympathy for the bereaved family. Her funeral was largely attended. Each of the city schools turned out in a body, the members of her class serving as pall-bearers. Prof. G. M. McIntyre, her teacher, spoke of her life and Miss Harris read a very impressive paper. She leaves a father, mother, three brothers, one sister and a host of friends. W. L. Lamb officiated,

Wilkins—Bro. Robert Wilkins, of New Iberia, La., departed this life June 1, 1905. He was one of the foremost members of the church, which he served for 32 years. He was a local preacher for 25 years, class leader 24 years, president of the trustees board for 20 years. His funeral was largely attended. A paper was read by E. S. Gullett, touching his life as a Christian. Prof. Jonas Henderson, Revs. J. A. Horton, R. V. Sims, J. B. Livingston and Dr. A. V. Bouttee assisted the pastor. Bro. Wilkins leaves a widow, three sons, and many friends. Interment by Olive Branch Lodge No. 37, F. and A. M. E. S. Gullett.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst Bro. Robert Wilkins, an officer of St. James M. E. Church, we bow in submission to His will and heartily sympathize with the family in the hour of their bereavement, and can only commend them to God who doeth all things well. By order of the official board: E. S. Gullett, Scott Obee, Melvina Lee, committee.

Allman—Sister Mary Allman, daughter of Mr. J. C. Allman, of Bennettsville, S. C., departed this life in perfect peace May 22, 1905. She was a model Christian and by her sweet disposition won the love and admiration of all who knew her. She was a true and tried member of Wesley Chapel. She bore her afflictions patiently. The deceased was a graduate of Claflin University, class '93. Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, assisted by Rev. W. S. Thompson, pastor of the Bennettsville Charge. J. P. Robinson.

Thompson—At Hahnville, La., June 19, 1905, Sister Emily Thompson, a member of St. James M. E. Church, died in great peace.

McCall—At Scooba, Miss., Sister Fannie McCall, one of Blue Chapel's faithful members, departed this life June 8th. She leaves eight children, three sisters and a host of friends. P. R. Crump, pastor.

Preyor—During the month of May, Sister Winnie Preyor, an aged member of Eola Charge, Eola, La., was called home. S. M. G. Taylor, pastor.

Doings of the Workmen

GEORGIA.

English Eddy, E. J. Kimball, Pastor.—Our 2nd quarterly conference was held at Ebenezer M. E. Church May 27-28, Rev. J. W. Fisher presiding. The business session was good. Sunday the elder was at his best. The church was crowded to it utmost capacity. His sermon was both logical and spiritual. Many bowed at the altar. Paid presiding elder in full, $17.50; raised for all purposes, $23.46.

Summerville Circuit, W. C. Bryant, Pastor.—The second quarterly conference was carefully looked after, finding the work in very good condition. Sunday at 11 o'clock Elder Adams preached a wonderful sermon to a large congregation. The Sacrament was administered to 117 communicants. Rev. Adams preached again at night. Collection during the quarter; For the pastor, $67.66; presiding elder, $15.50; for other purposes, $27.35; total, $110.-51.

Tarboro, L. G. McLendon, Pastor.—My third quarter was held June 17-18 by Presiding Elder J. W. Fisher. The business of the conference was disposed of with ease. The reports showed an advancement. The elder said some good things in his lecture, especially in behalf of the Bishop Scott launch fund. On Sunday he preached two able sermons to large audiences. Collection, $22.

Marietta, H. L. Phillips, Pastor.—The first Sunday in June we had with us Dr. I. L. Thomas, Field Agent of the Church Extension Society. His sermon at 11 a. m. was one of great strength and inspiration. At the close of our afternoon service the doctor addressed the congregataion in a way that interested and pleased all.

LOUISIANA.

Baton Rouge, Robt. Davis, Jr.—Our first quarterly conference was held May 5, Rev. J. W. Turner presiding. Raised during the quarter, $213.18; paid pastor, $107.45; met the elder's claim in full. The Sunday school is in good condition. Raised for missions, $18.03. We hope to close one of the best year's work in the history of the church.

Pelican, Sallie Ogletree.—On Sunday, May 20, our pastor, Rev. W. A. Hilton, was with us and preached an able sermon. We raised $12.25.

St. Martinsville, N. R. Randolph, pastor.—Our rally was held May 21, and although we had an almost steady rain during the entire day our collection was $60.75; we hope to raise $100 for all purposes. Rev. Coulton of New Iberia was with us. The church is in excellent condition.

Washington, J. S. Green, Pastor.—As the presiding elder, Rev. J. J. Obee, could not be present, the Rev. P. W. Clark held our second quarterly conference. Officers were present with reports. The weather being unfavorable the congregation was small, but Rev. Clark preached an excellent sermon to those present. Total amount raised this quarter, $240.

Abbeville, E. E. Braggs.—Our second quarterly conference was held by Rev. J. J. Obee. According to reports the church is in good condition. The elder spoke highly of the work accomplished. We paid him his apportionment. The Rev. J. P. Oveial was present and preached at night before a large congregataion.

St. Martinsville N. R. Randolph, Pastor.—Led by Mesdames W. Colson, A. Simmons, and others a host of friends, visited the parsonage the evening of May 18, bringing with them many appreciated tokens. Addresses by Mrs. Colson and Mrs. Simmons.

MISSOURI.

Elsbury Circuit.—J. C. Guyton, Pastor.—Presiding Elder C. M. Keeton held our first quarterly conference May 28-29. Reports of the officers showed the work to be improving. The pastor reported ten conversions during the quarter. Collection $20.42; paid the elder $15; pastor $5.42, making a total of $51.95 paid him during quarter. Total raised for the quarter, $66.95.

Rolla, T. W. Fulghen, pastor—The second quarterly conference convened June 24-25. It was a successful session and well attended. Raised the elder's quarterage in full; also the pastor's. The presiding elder was well pleased with the condition of the work.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Marion, L. B. Borge, Pastor.—My 3rd quarter was held at Mt. Marie May 20. For some reason the elder could not be present, but sent us Rev. I. W. Wells. His service was enjoyed very much. This was the first service held in our new church. Collection $10.65. I had a rally at each of my churches not long ago, and raised a total of $57.45.

Fairview, P. W. Horton, Pastor.—My third quarterly conference was held in Mitchell Chapel June 24-25, by our presiding elder, Rev. R. Smith. Raised for elder $9; for pastor $30.39. The work is moving on.

Advance, D. McRae, Pastor.—The Winston District Conference was a grand success. Much praise should be given to the pastor, Rev. S. L. May, and faithful members for the way in which they entertained the conference. We had many visitors among them. Drs. I. L. Thomas, C. C. Jacobs, M. M. Jones, Rev. H. L. Ashe, A. H. Newsom and Debery. These brethren brought with them tidings of great joy which were worthy of our acceptance. Every interest of the district has been looked after. The presiding elder leaves no stone unturned. The pastors are at their post. Methodism is gaining ground on this district.

Guilford College, J. W. Jones, Pastor.—The sisters of Raleighs Cross Roads Church, on the 16th day of July, had a rally known as Woman's Day, on pastor's salary. Sister M. L. Huton was queen of the occasion. Total raised, $14.23.

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Franklinton, R. W. Young, Pastor.—Much praise is due Sister Alice Irvin and Sister Martha Crane, stewardesses, for surprising their pastor with 12 linen collars and 8 pairs of linen cuffs. Mrs. Young is quite a worker, helping them to have things in order. Sister Judia Magee is president of the Stewardess Board. Also Mrs. Z. A. Smith is quite a help to this work.

Woodland, Mrs. S. Carroll, Reporter.—Our second quarterly conference was held July 15, with our worthy presiding elder, J. W. Turner, in the chair. On Sunday the elder preached quite a reviving sermon. Collection for the day, $24.30.

Waterproof, E. W. Harden, District Steward.—Our second quarterly conference was held here July 21-23, Rev. J. O. Brown, P. E., in the chair. Reports were all in order. Rev. H. C. Wilson, our pastor, made an excellent report, which showed that he has things well in hand. Our Sunday school here now numbers 25. A reception was tendered our presiding elder. Those prominent in the affair were Mrs. Hattie Cooper, Patsy Ross, John Byrd, Margaret Manuel, Mrs. Givens and Mrs. Barber.

Crescent City Notes

July 30th was a high day at Pleasant Plains. At 7:30 Rev. G. W. Forest preached a noble sermon for us. July 31st the W. H. Aid Circle tendered their newly elected officers a grand reception. The pastor delivered a special address.

WM. HARRELL, Pastor.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to extend my heartfelt gratitude, in behalf of the old folks, to the following members of Mt. Zion M. E. Church: Mrs. F. Williams, L. Taylor, C. Smith, V. Davis, E. Jackson, B. Butler, A. Sercey and Mr. F. Miller for the grand surprise for the old folks on Thursday, Aug. 3d. There were five gallons of cream, and cake in abundance. May God ever send his blessings upon them.

MRS. E. GRANT, Matron.

Services were excellent all Sunday at St. Matthew. The concert given by Mrs. Rosa Tumer and others for the benefit of the parsonage was a financial success. A heroic effort is being put forth by these loyal Methodists to make this charge one of the leading ones of its kind and grade. The parsonage, which cost $520 in cash and donations, is all paid for, except a small debt of $50, and the trustees are laboring faithfully to pay that amount at once. Communion administered to 68. Collection for the day, $15; from concert, $25.70.

WILLIAMS CHAPEL.

Services Sunday, August 6, 1905: At 11 a. m., speaking meeting continued, led by the presiding elder, Rev. W. R. Butler. At 3 p. m. the Sons and Daughters of Conference held their monthly meeting, led by Brother H. Parker. At 8 p. m. the holy communion was administered to a large number. Rev. W. F. Waters assisted the pastor. Two joined the church. One subscriber for the paper. Collection, $27.04. The pews have been enameled. Mrs. L. E. Brooks led in the work. The pulpit set has been overhauled and made to look new. Mrs. A. E. Brazely, president of the Stewardess Board, led in the work with the steward sisters. A new foundation has been put under the belfrey. Screens are being made for the front doors of the church. The King's Daughters and Daughters of Conference are having the work done. The parsonage is being painted by the trustees. The King's Daughters and Daughters of Conference have purchased matting for the floors of the parsonage. The Sunday school children had their annual water-melon eating on the evening of Aug. 4. The second quarterly conference was held on July 22 by Rev. W. R. Butler. Reports showed good work. Over four hundred dollars raised during the quarter. The Rev. Butler preached an able quarterly sermon.

"Waiting for a Bite" is the apt title of the front page picture of the August American Boy. "The Last of the Moravian Indians" are fine stories of fights with the red men. Other stories are: "Easier to Supply a Good Manager Than a Good Office Boy," "A Remarkable Boy," "The Boy Who Works and the Boy Who Shirks."

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Plaquemine, J.I. Richards, Pastor.—At a late hour in the night the inmates of the parsonage were aroused by a continual knocking at the front door. On opening the door the visitors led by Bro. A. Bolden, entered. Bro. Bolden briefly stated the object of the meeting and presented the pastor with some cash. The pastor responded and we prayed. The following were present and contributed to the affair: A. Bolden, J. B. Foster, Jack Woods, Henry Walker, Mike Johnson, A. Randall, Wm. Truehill, V. L. Walker, N. Gray. We take this method to thank the visitors. Come again.

Newton, J. Coleman, P. C.—The second quarterly conference was held at Newton, with the presiding elder, J. J. Obee, in the chair. His advice to the conference was grand and helpful. Collection was $10. We hope to have a new church by the time he gets back.

Mt. Zion, D. S. Smith, P. C.—On the third Sunday in May I preached to a large congregation and administered the Lord's Supper; 8 came forward for prayer.

Abbeville, J. W. Pierce, P. C.—On May 9 a grand storm came to the parsonage about 10 o'clock at night and waked me and my family with the sweet songs. Many good things were laid on the table. It was led by Mrs. Mary Jackson. After the reception we had prayer and asked them to call at any time.

Pine Grove, B. Carr, P. C.—Sunday, May 28, the leaders and class rally was grand. Baskets full of good refreshments. Raised $7.10. A. Steward, Clark and Ebey Steward, Samuel Milet Jack Bell, M. Carner preached. the pastor was sick but present. This work is alive. The stewards' rally at Beach Grove was grand for the times. All of the stewards raised $10.35. Revs. J. D. Banks and Curry and their members came to our relief. Refreshments were served to all present.

Patonville, S. Tillman, Pastor.—Presiding Elder W. R. Butler held our second quarterly conference May 17. His sermon was appreciated by all. All departments are in excellent condition. We are now planning to renovate our church.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerve
Read this Letter to you about the
Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from overwork or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnishes the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to their natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural dischargos, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, last of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine, happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

Editorial

There has been a notable cessation in certain quarters of the southern press in calling for Italian labor since the spread of the yellow fever. It seems as though we have a little bit of the "yellow peril" within our own borders, and inasmuch as this foreign population jeopardizes the life and health of the community there is at least a little sentiment in favor of Negro labor. In what devious ways are the battles of the Negro fought and how oft on ill winds doth God come to the black man! After all, Negro labor on the southern plantations may not be supplanted by foreign immigrants.

We pray repeatedly "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us." And if this prayer were answered literally many of our trespasses would be unforgiven, and yet the only legitimate interpretation to be placed upon this paragraph of the Lord's prayer is that God the Father forgives us as we in turn forgive others. The forgiving spirit needs much cultivation for it is foreign to the soil of the unregenerated, unsanctified human heart. We should so maintain ourselves even towards those who have wronged us in such a spirit that we can pray unreservedly the prayer, "Forgive us as we forgive others."

When God made this world evidently it was not His mind to create merely a place from which men should go to heaven; for heaven existed before the creation of the earth. But what the Father wanted was a kingdom on earth like unto the kingdom of heaven wherein His will should be done even as it is done in heaven. Notwithstanding the disobedience of man has hindered the purpose of the Divine towards the establishment of a kingdom of righteousness on earth, all the plans of heaven are bent towards what God wants, and what He finally will have, a kingdom on this earth, thoroughly righteous in spirit and under the absolute dominion of Jesus Christ, His Son.

Again and again we hear the Gospel referred to as cheap. A second thought will convince one that the church is the most expensive institution on earth. The moment the individual accepts Jesus Christ, then and there his earthly belongings come under the dominant principles of the Gospel and it is no longer left for the individual to decide whether he may or may not give; it becomes his absolute duty to give as God has prospered him. If he has much, much of him is required; if he has only a little, little of him is required. The church cares little for money in itself, but for the propagation of the faith and in answering the command of the commission to preach the Gospel everywhere funds must be coming forthwith, and the only legitimate source is that of those who have allied themselves to the faith. Every Christian therefore is under the sacred obligation to give of his earthly store for the maintenance and for the spreading of his faith.

WAS HE INNOCENT?

More and more lynchings furnish conclusive evidence that the participants lack self-control, if indeed they do not substantiate the charge that they are incapable of self-government. All lynchings are not for assault or even attempted assault. That blood runs warm when the honor and virtue of a woman are assaulted is not strange, but men should harness their feelings and yield to the higher authority of law or else by the notoriety they obtained on account of lynchings hold themselves up to be ridiculed by the public.

There was a lynching recently at Sulphur Springs, Tex. A Negro was accused of assault. Here is the bill of indictment, as furnished by the Associated Press: "He took hold of the girl and the latter, realizing her predicament, told the Negro he had better release her as her sisters were near by. This evidently frightened the Negro and, the girl, seeing that he hesitated, started up a scream and he loosened his hold on her and ran as fast as he could." Upon the face of it it does not appear that the specifications bear out the alleged charge of attempted assault. Here is a lynching absolutely unjustifiable from all appearances and even unjustifiable from the standpoint of the mob. The determination of guilt or innocence requires investigation. There was no sort of investigation in this case and there is a notable lack of the absence of the usual confession on the part of the criminal. All the mob wants is a victim and any excuse to furnish him will do.

PEACE TERMS

The Peace Commissioners of Russia and Japan are holding the Peace Conference at Portsmouth, N. H. They were received with becoming dignity by President Roosevelt and now, as the guests of this country, are the recipients of marked attention and every convenience is offered to facilitate the work of the Commission. Just what the peace terms are is all a conjecture, but it is understood that the twelve peace conditions proposed by Japan are:

1. Recognition of Japan's preponderance of influence in Korea. 2. Cession of Russian-Chinese Railway from Port Arthur to Harbin. 3. Transfer of authority over Port Arthur and Liao Tung peninsula. 4. Cession of Sakhalien. 5. Granting of fishing privileges at the mouth of the Amur. 6. The evacuation of Manchuria. 7. The granting of commercial privileges at Vladivostok. 8. The transfer of interned warships. 9. Limitation of Russia's naval strength in the Far East. 10. Remuneration for the cost of the war. 11. Recognition of the independence of China. 12. Return to China of Russian mining privileges in Manchuria.

The dispatches of Tuesday state that the first two items have been agreed upon. The bone of contention will be the yielding by Russia to the sovereignty of Japan the island of Sakhalien and the remuneration of Japan for the cost of the war. To these two items it is reported that Russia strenuously objects. She may be forced, however, to yield to both. Japan claims Sakhalien by right of discovery years ago, being too weak to hold it then against Russian aggression. The granting of the indemnity would simply be following the precedent already set by several peace treaties. The indications for peace are not particularly bright. While the negotiations are on there is, practically, armistice at the front; both the Russian and Japanese armies are cautious in their movements.

THE RISE OF JAPAN

Russia now alleges that the outcome of the present war in the Far East is due largely to the fact that Russia was not prepared and that Japan had been making preparations for years. Even this statement is complimentary to Japan. But there comes a recognition of the Island Empire from another source. This time Germany pays a tribute to the little brown man. Prof. Belz, who was formerly medical adviser to the Emperor of Japan, and who is regarded as the foremost German authority on the Mikado's country, is reported as saying: "Although it is hard for me, as a German, to admit it, I am nevertheless of the opinion that if the war had been between Germany and Japan instead of between Russia and Japan, the Japanese would have been victorious. The only difference would have been that they would have paid more dearly for their victory."

According to an agreement, the question of dissolution was submiited to a popular vote of Norway on August 13th. The sentiment in favor of dissolution is pronounced and practically unanimous. There are within Norway 450,000 voters, and it is estimated that on the day of voting 350,000 votes were cast, and only one in every 3,000 was opposed to dissolution. The government is to remain a monarchy, since the people do not desire a republic. What seemed at one time would be a clash of arms has been averted. Of course it was not expected that Sweden would yield to the secession without some effort to retain this important part of its dominion. Inasmuch as it is now evident that Norway is determined to secede, it would at least show strength on the part of Sweden and its sovereign to submit to the inevitable gracefully.

The Rev. C. H. Parrish, D. D., an ex-slave, treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board, appeared to have things his way in the Baptist Congress in London, England. In Exeter Hall, before an audience of 3,000, he was lionized. In addressing them he said that out of ten million Negroes in the South, 2,110,000 were Baptists; they had 16,000 Baptist churches, 15,000 Baptist preachers, and 36,000 black teachers. When first introduced, he said: "I suppose that I am here to add color to this occasion. Well, while the ethnologists are trying to determine my origin, and the theologians my destiny, I have the inestimable satisfaction of knowing I am here."

The New Methodist Hymnal

By The Editor.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which met in Chicago in 1900 authorized the publication of a Hymnal to be jointly edited by a commission of our church and a commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. At the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Dallas, 1902, similar action was taken and authorizing the appointing of a commission.

The commissioners representing the Methodist Episcopal church were:

Bishop D. A. Goodsell, S. F. Upham, C. M. Stuart, C. M. Cobern, R. J. Cooke, C. S. Nutter, W A. Quayle, H. G. Jackson, C. W. Smith, C. T. Winchester, J. M. Black.

Those representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, were:

Bishop E. E. Hoss, George B. Winton, H. M. Du Bose, W. F. Tillett, Paul Whitehead, John M. Moore, Edwin Mims, H. N. Snyder, F. S. Parker, James Campbell, R. T. Kerlin.

The commissions of both churches were strong and representative. They have done their work well and deserve the unstinted thanks of the church. The Hymnal is of a higher order than the old, both as to the literary merit of the hymns and of the music selected. There is a greater variety of hymns, which will tend towards popularizing the church hymnal. It will now be a book of the young people as well as the old.

There ought to be a careful preparation of a church hymnal, for next to the Christian Bible comes the Hymn Book, which enters largely into the development of Christian life and character.

This hymnal is historical. It is one step, if not the first tangible step, of the spirit of federation. On its title page appears these words: "Official Hymnal of the eMthodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." May the spirit of fraternity of song become more and more apparent in the life of the two churches. Of course, if the spirit of fraternity grows, and such is our prayer and intense desire, we will have in the course of a few decades a hymnal for our world-wide Methodism without regard to geographical and racial lines.

The Publishing Agents are executing their part of the publication of the hymnal with rare artistic taste. The mechanical appearance of the hymnal is all that could be desired. It is superbly printed and bound. Altogether the first edition contains 122,600 books, which would more than fill four freight cars, and piling the books one upon another would make a stack two miles high.

CLASSIFICATION.—A comparative study of the classification shows considerable change which is for the better. Under the paragraph, "WORSHIP," instead of three sub-headings, as heretofore, there are six. No doubt the change from "Sabbath to "The Lord's Day" was made with design.

THE TRINITY appears in the classification for the first time; instead of "God" is found "The Father," instead of "Christ" is found "The Son." These changes are in harmony with the new interpretations in Theology. Instead of "The Scriptures" the sub-heading appears "The Holy Scriptures." A new heading appears—"The Institutions of Christianity;" the sub-headings of this paragraph, "The Church," the "Ministry," "Baptism," "The Lord's Supper," appeared formerly under the general heading of "THE CHURCH." The general heading, "THE SINNER," in the old Hymnal falls out and is succeeded by a better title—"THE GOSPEL," with a decidedly better sub-classification.

"THE CHRISTIAN" is changed to "THE CHRISTIAN LIFE," with a finer and more discriminating classification.

The heading, "TIME AND ETERNITY," with its sub-headings, is the only one that passes untouched through the hands of the committee.

Instead of "MISCELLANEOUS," we now have "SPECIAL SUBJECTS AND OCCASIONS," a subheading of "Education" appears for the first first time. The sub-headings, "Missions," "Erection and Dedication of Churches," "The Children and Youth," and "Charities and Reforms," were transferred from the general heading "THE CHURCH" to that of "SPECIAL SUBJECTS AND OCCASIONS." Besides the hymns, we now have the Psalter, prepared for responsive readings in the Sunday services. This Psalter is prepared in accordance with the order of the General Conference, and "is printed in parallelims after the Hebrew original," the Authorized Version being practically the one used. The selections were made and edited by Prof. Robert W. Rogers, D. D., of Drew Theological Seminary, at the special request of the agents.

It was understodd that the new Hymnal would contain less hymns than the old one. The old hymnal had 1117 hymns and 19 doxologies. The new Hymnal has 717 hymns and 11 doxologies. There are 400 less hymns in the new Hymnal than in the old, and with the introduction of a large number of new hymns, necessarily there was an elimination of many of the hymns that appear in the old Hymnal.

This forms an interesting study. In the old hymnal Charles Wesley had 308, in the new he has 121. John Wesley had 31 in the old, as against 19 in the new; Samuel Wesley had two in the old, and now only one in the new; Isaac Watts furnishes 53 in the new, while in the old he furnished 78. James Montgomery has 47 in the old Hymnal and 19 in the new. Philip Doddridge seems to have fared better at the hands of the Commission on the Revision of the Hymnal than any of the authors contributing a large number of hymns. In the old Hymnal he had 23 hymns, while in the new he has only one less. John Newton has 15 hymns in the old Hymnal, and yet furnishes 13 in the new.

In the elimination, the only hymn by Bishop Thomas Coke passes from the Hymnal. Not even sentiment could keep his name in the list of authors. Mrs. Felicia Dorothea Hemans falls from the list of authors, while in the old Hymnal she contributed three hymns. The name of Alexander Pope also disappears. Samuel Wesley, Jr., was the author of one hymn in the old Hymnal which could not stand the test.

The Commission is to be congratulated on its admirable selection of new hymns from the almost unlimited store of hymn literature and poetry at its command. The new hymns embrace many of the favorites. Especially are we pleased to see the names of Fannie Crosby and Frances Ridley Havergal.

Among the new hymns are five by the blind hymn writer: "Pass me not, O gentle Saviour," "Close to Thee," "Saviour, more than life to me," "Blessed assurance," "Rescue the perishing;" while Francis Ridley Havergal contributes eight Among them are: "Take my life and let it be," "True hearted, whole hearted," and "Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is King." John Hay's poem, "Defend us, Lord, from every ill," is found in the table of contents, also "God be with you till we meet again," Kipling's Recessional, "God of our fathers, known of old," "Jesus, Saviour, pilot me," "Peace, perfect peace." Tennyson furnishes a hymn taken from the introduction of his "In Memoriam"—"Strong Son of God, immortal Love;" Whittier furnishes five new hymns, while Tennyson has three, instead of one, as in the old Hymnal. Wm. Cullen Bryant has eight, an increase of four.; while William Cowper furnishes 13, an increase of three. Thomas Moore has two, an increase of one.

OLD FAVORITES LEFT OUT.—Of course it was expected that some of the old time favorite hymns would be eliminated. Some that are left out will be greatly missed and the old folks will be inclined to cling to the old Hymnal because of them. These hymns were of immense service to pioneer Methodism, and were dear to the fathers. Here is a partial list of the omissions: "Vain man, thy fond pursuits forbear," "The day is past and gone," "That doleful hour before His death," "That awful day will surely come," "My Saviour, my Almighty Friend," "'Mid scenes of confusion," "Stand up and bless the Lord," "Awake and sing the song," "Go spre my Gospel, saith the Lord," "Hark, from t tomb the doleful sound," "Hark how the wat man cries," "How beauteous are the feet," evil long I took delight," "Jesus, great Shephe of the sheep," "Equip me for the war," "I lo the Lord, he heard my cries," "O, for an ove coming faith."

AUTHORS.—There is a decided change in t list of authors. Some of the old historic nam are dropped out. New ones appear. New on that deserve a place in the hymn literature the church. We give a complete list of t new authors. The first seventeen names will of special interest. The figure after the nam indicates the number of hymns by the autho otherwise the author has only one hymn in t table of contents.

To stand up and say as Paul did, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel," requires a Gospel life back of the words, otherwise they are an empty proclamation. The argument from theory and from history is good, but the argument from personal history counts for even more. If, in a modest way, one can say: "I really am not ashamed of the Gospel. I have tried it long enough to know that it helps me to be steady, pure, loving and brave, and that it can help others too," then our testimony has the right ring. We want to be able to say with Paul, "I am ready."—Rev. H. A. Bridgman.

Wherever we are, our lives may be made beautiful and fragrant for God. This is rarely the fact when one is dissatisfied with one's surroundings and thinks that a more beautiful life could be led in some other place. Just where we are is the best place, at the present time, to glorify God by our lives.—A. H. McKinney.

Bishop I. W. Joyce

By Rev. L. M. Hagood, M. D., D. D.

He was a man, as much so after his election to the Episcopacy as when working his way toward the renown which subsequently came to him. Change of relation or elevation to office made no change in his manly bearing toward his brethren. He was a man among men, anywhere and everywhere the same. If he knew you before he was elected Bishop he never tried to forget you. He was too great to ever be little even in the face of a galling prejudice; he respected manhood wherever found and assumed no unnecessary superiority over his brethren of whatever hue. He detested cant and everything which looked like compromise of principle for policy's sake. He was a faithful churchman in the truest sense of that word. Whatever the church commanded he tried to obey without explanation, apology or evasion. While he loved his own church the best he never found it necessary to hedge up the way of any other church because of that love or to compromise the principles of his own to merit the favors or honors of other churches.

He was a progressive and model pastor whose success has seldom been excelled. At God's altar he never allowed caste prejudice to come between the Savior and the penitent—"Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature" seems to have been his commission. In his pastoral calls he went to all whom he could help who needed it. His pulpit ministrations were seasons of great help to all who heard him; his appeals to sinners were fervent, earnest, faithful to his commission, eloquent, logical and mighty through God to the pulling down of the walls of sin whether at Nazareth or at Babylon. His church was open to any child of God who wished to pray or any sinner on the hunt for the Savior.

He was not afraid of caste prejudice even in its native habitat. After his election to the Episcopacy he went South to hold a colored conference, and soon one of the Southern newspapers sent the news abroad that he was being entertained in the home of a Negro preacher. He was doubtless advised that his actions were not in keeping with public sentiment, and that if he continued he would lose prestige. Afterward he came to Louisville to reopen Jackson Street Church, where the writer was pastor, and, despite the protests of our white pastor then in charge, was entertained by the colored pastor. He was an honor to our illustrious bench of Bishops and was loved and honored by the church he served so faithfully and well.

He was unassuming but dignified, without pomposity; earnest without being a bore; a hater of sin but not intolerant—he never considered suggestions from his brethren different from his own as an intrusion upon his dignity or as an impertinence. His appointments were made under Divine direction and hence he never ran away from them but was always ready thereafter to hear complaints or suggestions and correct mistakes. He reserved the right to correct any mistakes without being afraid his dignity or ability would be questioned. As a presiding officer he was neither austere nor haughty. He came to the conference with full information, as far as possible, but always ready for suggestions from others. He had no time for the time-serving visitors who came to speak to "the dear colored folks" or "our dear colored people." He seemed to believe that God's children in ebony were as much worthy as any other, and should receive the same attention. Sympathetic without being partial, discriminative without trying to appear a seer; a reader of men without assuming infallibility, and resolute but open to conviction by facts. He never played with the appointments and never permitted it if he knew it; open and frank and at the same time accessible to any who had business with him, he got the desired information necessary to make his appointments impartial.

He had the true spirit of philanthropy, but was not easily duped by sanctimoniousness or assumed "conference religion:" he could see through it like a glass. Impressionists, "cliques" or "conference rings" went down in a heap before this iconoclast. Character and ability with him were preferred before duplicity and personal appearances. Can he do the work? was his password. No matter what prejudices were shown, if he could do the work he got a chance. He believed in his cabinet when it was all right, but would not allow the work to suffer to gratify some one's whims. He will be greatly missed in the work of the church of his choice, but he died with the sword of the Spirit in his hand. He has gone to join the illustrious colleagues in that better land.

The words of Coleridge are applicable to him:

"Greatness and goodness are not means, but ends.
Hath he not always treasures, always friends,
The good, great man?—three treasures, love and light,
And calm thoughts, regular as infant's breath:
And three firm friends, more sure than day and night—
Himself, his Maker, and the angel Death."

Indianapolis, Ind.

Rev. George Standing

W. Atlanta.—Mr. Standing's presence is not only tolerated, desired, enjoyed, but it is solicited. No occasion is too great for the faculty of any one of the five colleges to request him to grace its program with his presence and timely remarks. Atlanta contains five leading Negro colleges, standing for the intelligence and prosperity of their clientage. All of them know Mr. Standing; know of his works; feel the results of his labors, and vie with one another in heaping upon him the many honors he so richly deserves. His presence is welcomed and sought by them all. When the barometers of our social and intellectual, as well as our material progress, show such an appreciation of a man's deeds, how much more should we, the direct recipients of his good gifts, convey to him the impression that his life and actions have made upon us

When the nineteenth century was in its youth, Rev. George Standing was born in the little town of Steyning, England. There he passed his early years and there he secured the rudiments of an education that has influenced thousands. There also he experienced the liberty of his physical being, but his soul breathed the tainted atmosphere of a bigoted and cramped spiritual life. He learned what it was to have his heart placed in bondage by that great octopus, the English Church.

In all of the tributes paid to Mr. Standing, the strongest link in the chain of his life is noticeably lacking. That is the ability he has to form and hold the esteem and friendship of everyone with whom he comes in contact. The crust of his outer bearing is easily dissipated in favor of those who are worthy of his friendship. He can go nowhere unless he is met by some of his disciples of the days of long ago, who eagerly pour out to him the oft-repeated story of his help in fashioning and perfecting a life.

Mr. Standing's friendliness for the Church of Wesley caused him to leave his home for the untamed wilds of Australia. After spending some years there, he took sail again for England. On board the ship, he formed a friendship with a young man bound for New York. The friendship was so strong that, after parting in England, Mr. Standing followed in the wake of the young man to New York. After arriving there, through confusion and a misunderstanding of addresses, he was unable to locate his friend. His thoughts were hedged in on all sides. Should he return to England, or remain here? The time was following closely upon the heels of the Civil War. Everything, North and South alike, was in a chotic condition. The gloom was too dense to distinguish the headlines of the future. The East needed men of brains and action to take hold of and develop her industries. Big money was to be paid for their services, and a man with the right qualifications could amass a gigantic sum in a short while.

The West was an unlimited possession, rich in natural resources and inviting able-bodied men to stand by her and place her upon the shelf of civilized worth. The rewards would be large.

This was truly a time for indecision; to be decided by strong and reasoning thought. A life was at stake.

But from the South came a call that found a response in the heart of Mr. Standing. The wail and moan of an elephantine baby was wafted upon the breeze of public sentiment to his heart. A new people had come into existence—the Black Man of the South—and he needed the help of those replete in intellect, in fortitude, in long suffering, and in self-sacrifice.

Mr. Standing's friendliness overmastered his other emotions, and he took train for the state of Georgia. Here he began work and here he has toiled ever since.

He taught school and preached to the colored people all over the state, but principally in Atlanta, Newnan and La Grange. The difficulties he had to contend with seemed insurmountable. The prejudice of the white people to the race of darker hue enhanced by two hundred years of absolute ownership was the greatest bulwark. Then the scarcity of mens, for the people hardly owned their clothes, regardless of such things as schoolhouses and books and money to pay the teachers with.

But, with these trials, the eagerness of the colored people clamoring for an education was compensation enough. On one bench in the schoolroom, presided over by the same bunch of hickory switches, would sit the little daughter of six and the big brother of twenty-six; the father of thirty and the son of seven; the mother with her well-worn speller in one hand and her babe in the other suckled to her breast; and numerous other contrasts, all eagerly drinking at the newly discovered fount of education. Such was the school-room operated by Mr. Standing; and, as one student would drop out, two would take his place.

He toiled and labored, and, as the boy and pupil would grow into manhood his children would hold down the little blocks of wood, called seats, in his stead. Their fathers learned to read and went to work. When their children received such education as Mr. Standing was able to give them with his limited means they would be bundled off to such schools as Clark, Atlanta, Fisk University, and many other such schools.

A mighty work and gloriously executed. Amid sorrows, disappointments and hindrances Mr. Standing labored, but has he labored in vain?

The little acorn srouts and grows into a large tree, itself bearing acorns which, in turn, become large trees bearing other acorns, which continue to grow and multiply and support the industries of a people. So the little seed Mr. Standing planted years ago in the heart of Georgia sprouted and bore fruit in like manner in the hearts and heads of the Negro.

The woodsman goes into the forest with his ax and measures the fruit of that acorn in sticks of wood by the cord. But the fruit of the little seed planted by Mr. Standing cannot be so measured. It has borne its fruit in the morals, intelligence, material worth, and, in fact, in all the stable elements united to make a people recognized and felt.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

The Way

BY MARY MCGEE HALL.

The Way is narrow, straight and long,
I go in tears—sometimes in song,
  But not one step of joy or pain
  Shall evermore be walked again.
For only once I pass this way
In traveling to the Gates of Day.

'Tis only once. Shall my heart break
Because no more this Way I take?
  Shall I bewail that every night
  Forever shuts the past from sight?
When sunset comes the stars arise,
And morning never fails the skies.

Upon this Way of earthly sod
Are tented angels sent of God!
  So on I go—the Way is straight,
  The cross of Christ my only weight—
The weight of wings the lark must bear
In soaring heavenward through the air.

Unload Your Cares

A very beautiful thought is brought out by the French translation of a verse in the First Epistle of Peter. The words are: "Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you." Where our version reads "casting" the French translation is unloading (dechargeant). The difference of meaning is made plain by an illustration we have somewhere seen. The writer said: "The word 'cast' might seem to bring to our mind the action of taking up something and throwing it over on Jesus; but many times, dear friends, have you not found the cares too heavy to lift? Have you ever seen a coal cart unload? The man took out of the front of the heavy cart a little pin, and the cart was so balanced on the axle that then, with a slight pressure on the back of the cart, it would tip up, and the whole load slide off to the ground, and the pony would trot away with a light step. You do not have to take it up; just take out the little pin of your endeavors to help matters, and, with your big hands of faith and committal, tip up the big load and then run on, for 'He takes care of you.'" Unload the cares you carry on your head. Unload the cares you carry on your heart. God has no children without sorrow, and in many cases the load seems too heavy to be borne; but His own invitation is, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee."

But the thing that can most surely unload the heart is to come into consciousness of the fact so plainly stated, "He careth for you." That means that He loves us and sympathizes with us and will exercise His strength in our behalf. Whatever the burden that bears down upon us, to know that God has not left us out of mind or out of sight, but that He is "keeping watch over His own." and "will make all things work together for our good," cannot fail to lighten the weight and give a sense of security and a glad hope of final good. Unload your cares!—G. B. F. Hallock, D. D.

Keep Thy Heart With All Deligence

A wretched thing it were to have our heart
  Like a thronged highway or a populous street,
  Where every idle thought has leave to meet,
Pause or pass on as in an open mart,
Or like some roadside pool, which no nice art
  Has guarded that the cattle may not beat
  And foul it with a multitude of feet,
Till of the heavens it can give back no part.
But keep thou thine a holy solitude;
  For he would walk there would walk alone,
He who would drink there must be first endued
  With single right to call that stream his own:
Keep thou thine heart, close-fastened, unrevealed,
A fenced garden and a fountain sealed.
  —Archbishop Trench.

A Message for To-Day

The Great Apostle—who seems to take on larger proportions as we get farther away from him—exhorted his fellow Christians at Philippi to think upon things that were true, honest, just, pure, lovely, and of good report. The emphasis was not more on the category of things than upon the necessity of thinking. There is not much deep and thorough thinking done by people generally concernning the real motives and purposes of life. How carelessly responsibility is assumed, and with what cool indifference it is put aside!

Not very many persons get below the surface of things in their thinking. As Phillips Brooks said: "The great mass of people are stunted nnd starved with superficialness." If we thought more upon life, studied its problems more seriously, analyzed its purposes, weighed its obligations, and sought to ascertain its motives, we would live to better advantage and render higher and more unselfish service; life would have larger and nobler meanings, and its responsibilities would be interpreted in the royal terms of solemn duty to God and man.

Clear thinking on the majesty and mystery of life will lead the mind to a consideration of the deep things of God; and this in turn will stir up worthy impulses in the heart: and these impulses will blossom into acts; and these acts will give depth and fullness and richness and sactity to character and to every utterance of life.—From Epworth Herald.

The Voyage

BY REV. J. T. M'FARLAND, D. D.

I go not where I will, but must;
  This planet-ship on which I ride
  Is drawn by a resistless tide;
I touch no pilot wheel, but trust.

That One who holds the chart of stars,
  Whose fathom-lines touch lowest deeps,
  Whose eye the boundless spaces sweeps,
Will guide the ship through cosmic bars.

My soul goes not a chosen way;
  A current under-runs my life,
  That moves alike in peace or strife,
And turns not for my yea or nay.

Not on the bridge, but at the mast,
  I sail o'er this far streaming sea;
  I will arrive; enough for me
My Captain's smile and word at last.

Diversity of Character

In the world of soul, God is not a God of uniformity. Just as there are no two blades of grass alike, and no two faces precisely identical, so there are no replicas in the realm of the spirit. Every man has his own story and, indeed, his own secret with God. No two of us have come by precisely the same way, and to-day no two of us are quite alike. Each man has his own temperament and tastes and dispositions; each has had his own cross and temptation and conflict; each has his own grace and combination of graces; and every true man is himself and no other. In all that there is a profound suggestion of individuality. It is a stern protest, never perhaps more needed than to-day, agaisnt uniformity of character and life, against a tendency to make every man like every other man, and to divest human life—aye, and even Christian character—of that individuality which is one of its most daring glories and finest attractions. In the vast world of character there are many kinds of excellence, and none of them is to be despised. There are some that lure us with a subtler spell and hold us with a tighter grasp than others; there are some that seem to us to approach more nearly to the divine ideal—but no one is vain. We may prefer the grace of the lily to the arrestive glory of the sunflower; but some like the sunflower, and for the present, and without sarcasm and without conceit, we must be content. Let not the violet quarrel with the rose, nor the peony mock the whiteness of the narcissis; nas its own grace, its own power, and its appeal.

Nor let us fall into the snare of the ready and think that ours is the only kind of excell We are always just as far away from and quite as unintelligible to the man from whor differ as he is from us. The unenthusiastic not always understand the enthusiast, and spirits do not always appreciate the though Our peril is lest we exalt our excellence doubt a very gracious thing!) into an inexo criterion by which all other excellence has judged. It is well that we have a noble vi it is wrong to put it to so ignoble a use. I kingdom and fellowship of Jesus there is for all—a place for dreamers and seers and tics and even visionaries; room also for tical men, to whom two and two always four, and a bird in the hand is always b than two in the bush. Do not let us be disc aged because we are not like others. Peter always unlike John, and nothing could have Mary into Martha. The great thing is that man nourishes his spirit at the very hear Christ, and lets his life grow into the noble metry which God's predestined purpose has pressed upon it as its high possibility, its ideal, and its consummate glory and strengt Wesleyan Magazine.

Postal Card Sermon

By REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text—Mark 16:6. Theme—The Dam Sin.—II.

The damning effect of unbelief is seen in fact that it destroys the sensibilities of the man body: it blinds the eyes of the soul; it s the ears of conscience; it binds the capacit the will; it turns hope into despair; it br into fragments the mighty wings of faith; it ever drowns the glowing fire of love; if e nally closes the pearly gates of heaven, an opens wide the gate of hell, rushes the stupi soul through it, where it must forever exis its misery, while in wretchedness and awful spair it beats itself against the rocks of d damnation.

The unbelief of the people of the city of Na reth obstructed the miracle working power Jesus, deprived them of His marvelous prea ing, and caused Him to withdraw a second t from their town. Unbelief slew Absalom, hung him up to the limb of an oak tree by hairs of his head; utterly destroyed Judas Is riot, hung him high in the air, and then dash him into pieces down the side of an awful vine; and with subtlety put Felix to death causing him to indefinitely postpone his sal tion.

Unbelief is the only sin that will in itself da the soul, and is the only iniquity that God can and will not pardon.

God does not blame man for being a sinn but blames him who will not cease to actua commit many transgressions while refusing accept the offered terms of salvation throu Christ Jesus, His Son.

Man is a natural born believer. He is a phys logical believer; an agricultural believer; a m chanical believer; a scientific believer; and sociological believer. Man needs only to be spiritual believer, and then will he be a faithf true, and hopeful believer in God. Unbelief the only sin that seemed to have greatly affect Jesus on several occasions.

Let me vehemently urge every reader of the lines to immediately accept the Gospel which preach, with a faith productive of love to Go and with a heart filled with obedience to t divine will of Christ. "He that believeth on t Son hath everlasting life; and he that believe not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath God abideth on him."

YOUNG FRIENDS

The Graduate

REV. CHARLES CAMPBELL.

Be brave as you face the future,
Remember that in His hand,
Are both the cloud and the sunshine,
The bare and the plenteous land.
Follow His leading and fear not,
His path is the way to the goal,
Tho' ofttimes rugged and tortuous,
'Tis the homeward way of the soul.

Be strong as you enter the conflict
In the world's arena of strife;
For him who overcometh
Shall be given the crown of life.
Faint not, neither be weary,
Tho' often pressed by the foe;
God's angel guard is ever around
The righteous here below.

Be faithful in toil, and in keeping
The charge intrusted to thee;
The service may not be brilliant,
But the servant must faithful be.
To the Master belongeth the issue
Of the charge, the toil, the strife;
'Tis him to be faithful always
Who would win the crown of life.
Be patient and wait with calmness,

The unfolding of His will,
When the skies grow dark and the storm-cloud bursts
Remember His "Peace be still."
After the cloud comes the sunshine,
After the storm the calm,
Be patient then for the darkest hour
Is the herald of the morning dawn.

Speak It Out

LUCY ELLIOT KEELER.

"Run and tell her or she may hear it from somebody else," said a young man laughingly to the pretty sister at his side. "There she stands. I will hold your impediments and entertain Fred until you return." The girl tried to frown upon the speaker, but ended by handing him a bouquet and fan, and moving off toward a severe-looking woman at the opposite side of the room.

"She would not condescend to gossip," he said as both youths looked admiringly, and one questioningly, "but she dearly loves to retail a compliment. I believe in every chamber of her brain is stowed away some nice thing she has heard about somebody, to be delicately imparted to the particular person when he or she appears. It was your remark about that lady's classic profile which has just taken my sister away. She does not do it for effect either. She says it is stark selfishness: she likes to see the pleasure on people's faces."

"That is the reason, then, that I seem to grow an inch taller whenever I talk with her," Fred replied. "It is like 'Alice in Wonderland.' When I have to swallow warnings about my faults, jokes about my blushing, and so-called frankness in general, I wither all up. Your sister makes a shy fellow think he amounts to something."

No wonder she is a popular girl, and that all kinds of persons make opportunities to meet her. She never thinks it her duty to tell people unpleasant truths, or to declare her whole opinion of them, or to carry any unkind intelligence. Metaphorically speaking, she never treads on one's toes. She never croaks. She never gives social stabs. She prefers the oil and wine treatment of wounds. She sees no virtue in making enemies. She agrees with Oliver Wendell Holmes in thinking that friendship does not authorize one to say disagreeable things. She openly declares that she would rather be loved than hated.

"See, now," exclaimed Fred, who had been watching the girl while he was thinking this: "that stern profile is transformed! It does pay to speak out the nice little things one thinks."—From "If I Were a Girl Again."

A Girl's Garden

Will you cultivate your garden, or will you neglect it? There is no spot of ground, however bare, that cannot be tamed into a state of beauty. It cannot be done easily, but many things worth doing are not done easily. We must be willing to take trouble to be industrious, vigilant in our gardens, and to dig, plant, and to weed intelligently. In our gardens there must be plants worth growing, the hardy cheerfulness, willingness; and the good old-fashioned plants—simplicity, patience, courtesy, modesty, sympathy. I call these the dear old-fashioned virtues worth cultivating, because in these modern days there is danger that opposite characteristics are being planted in your lives.

Enemies find their ways into our gardens. Weeds must be pulled out without delay. They are troublesome faults in character thrusting themselves where they have no business to be. Weeds are idleness, vanity, envy, carelessness, and many other traits which destroy beauty. Indolence is a great defect in character. Its real name is sloth, and it has its root in self-indulgence, lack of thoroughness, putting ease before effort and pleasure before duty. I think our gardens should not be shut-in, narrow, inclosed places, but from them we should have a broad view where we can look out and beyond, and learn largeness of heart, generosity, and that there are many other gardens in the world besides our own.—Delineator.

A Notable Man Honored

In Richmond, Virginia, a handsome shaft costing several hundred dollars has been erected recently in honor of a man who was of lowly life, but was held in peculiar honor by many people. The monument bears the name of Jasper, and stands over the grave of the late Rev. John Jasper, who for so many years was a faithful preacher of righteousness and a zealous knight errant in defense of what he believed to be the truth. For several years his resting-place has been unmarked, but now a monument costing eight hundred dollars has been placed over it. This sum would not be considered large if coming from a millionaire's treasury, but having been raised from the scanty purses of a large number of poor Negroes, it assumes fair proportions. John Jasper was one of the last of his kind—an old-fashioned colored preacher. He attracted widespread attention by his self-constituted championship of certain literal biblical interpretations as against modern scientific beliefs. He preached against the rotundity of the earth, and his proof, irrefutable in his eyes, was the Scriptural declaration that the earth has four corners. To be sure, how could an object with four corners be round? Several other similarly crude beliefs were prominent in his creed. But he won his lasting fame by his sermon on "De sun do move." He had no patience with the theory which says that the earth moves about the sun. If such were the case, how could the sun ever have been commanded to stand still? This dusky prophet was a good man. It is said that in all his long career the breath of a suspicion was not raised against his moral character. He had a certain native wit and a swaying eloquence which was magnetic and irresistible. Great crowds came to hear him preach, and while he was in some sense a curiosity he had a strong hold on the hearts of his race, and was powerful for good. They were proud of him, and fully appreciated his untutored force. Such a man in his proper place is a splendid example of the divine selection of men to fill all the varied positions in the world. He did as good service in his sphere as the learned and consecrated orator across the way did in his field of labor.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Recent Meetings, Woman's Home Missionary Society

CENTRAL MISSOURI CONFERENCE.

July closes the twenty-fifth anniversary of this society, but only the second organized year in our conference. When this work was reorganized two years ago the ministers had gathered $9.00 for this cause. The reports for this year show $93.35 as dues sent to Cincinnati; $41.59 for contingent fund; $25.00 to Adeline Smith Home, and $14.50 Silver Offering. Total, $174.44. The St. Louis District organization will hold its second meeting at Troy, Saturday evening, August 19, 1905, in connection with District Conference. Miss Joiner, a deaconess from St. Louis, and other ladies will make addresses. Mrs. Jas. M. Harris, of Kansas City, will have charge of this cause for the St. Joseph District at Independence, in August and Mrs. Katy Smith, of Sedalia, will conduct the work for the Sedalia District at Carthage, also in August. Following is the report of the treasurer for the quarter ending July 15: Dues—Troy $3.00, Sedalia $3.00, Burns' Chapel (K. C.) $1.75, Rolla $1.50; Silver Offering—Troy $2.50; gathered by Mrs. Katy Smith, $12.00; Adeline Smith Home at Little Rock, Ark.—Louisiana $5.00, Troy $3.00, Fredericktown $3.00, Union Memorial (St. L.) $3.00, Sedalia $3.00, Burns' Chapel (K. C.) $3.00, Asbury Chapel (K. C.) $2.15, St. James Chapel (St. L.) $1.50, Clark's Chapel (K. C.) $1.00, Mrs. Bettie McKee (Chicago) $1.00, Mr. Milton Collins (K. C.) $1.00. The conference president and corresponding secretary are expecting to represent Central Missouri Conference at Indianapolis at the annual meeting of the Board of Managers, Oct. 18-25. Auxiliary membership is eighty, with nine auxiliaries. The journal of the nineteenth annual session of Central Missouri Conference contains an interesting summary report of the coference Woman's Home Missionary meeting at St. Louis last March. Any friends and well wishers of the Woman's Home Missionary Society in Central Missouri conference are requested to make donations and bequests through the treasurer, who will credit the giver and see that all funds are judiciously applied to very needy places. Yours for love of Christ, Mrs. Anna A. Healey, corresponding secretary and treasurer, 216 S. 9th St., Louisiana, Mo.

GREENWOOD DISTRICT.

The first District Conference of the Greenwood District, Upper Mississippi Conference, convened at Sallis, Miss., July 27-30, 1905, Rev. S. H. Nevils presiding. Rev. G. W. Hunt was chosen secretary, O. W. Crump and E. J. Turner assistants. Rev. W. H. H. Gallion was elected statistical secretary, with H. Y. Saulters and N. L. Lackey assistants. All pastors were present except two. The reports of pastors and delegates showed progress along all lines, especially in benevolence, which was reported over two-thirds collected. Rev. J. H. D. Robinson, of the Baptist church, was introduced, and his kind and brotherly remarks were appreciated by all. Prof. Adams, of Magnolia, Ala., principal of the Helen Gould Normal Institute, made a strong speech in behalf of his school. Rev. E. M. Jones, field agent of the Sunday School Union, discussed, and also illustrated, "How to Grade the Sunday School." Various literary subjects were ably discussed. The preaching services were very beneficial. Two souls were converted and received into the church. Dr. E. M. Jones organized a District Sunday School Convention, with the following officers: President, G. W. Hubbard; vice-president, J. J. Johnson; corresponding secretary, Miss M. V. Austin; recording secretary, Mrs. S. C. Phillips; treasurer, Miss Maggie Newton.

Able sermons were preached by Revs. G. W. Hunt, E. J. Turner, O. W. Crump and D. A. Bragg. On Saturday afternoon memorial services were held in honor of Rev. C. P. Head, who has died since the annual Conference.

Drs. I. L. Thomas and W. W. Foster, Jr., sent letters of greeting and strong pleas for the causes they represent. Rev. J. W. Parks and his people gave the conference generous entertainment. Dr. E. M. Jones delivered an able sermon Sunday morning.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson IX—August 27, 1905. Title—"Jeremiah in the Dungeon"—(Jer 38:1-13.) Golden Text.—"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for their's is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt 5:10.)

Josiah, king of Judah, was killed in battle at Megiddo, by the king of Egypt, and was brought by his servants to Jerusalem and buried in his own tomb. The people annointed Jehoahaz, a son of Josiah, king in his stead. He was twenty and three years old when he began to reign, and reigned three months in Jerusalem. He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord. Pharaoh put him in bands and took him to Egypt; there he died. The king of Egypt also put the land under tribute, forcing the people to pay a hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold. He farther made Jehoiakim, another son of Josiah, king over Judæa in the room of his brother Jehoahaz.

Jehoiakim was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord. During his reign Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came up against Jerusalem, and caused Jehoiakim to become his servant three years. When he rebelled the Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites and Ammonites came against Jerusalem to destroy it. Jehoiakim slept with his fathers, and Jehoiachim, his son, reigned in his stead. He was eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months. He did evil in the sight of the Lord and was carried away to Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar made Zedekiah, the half-brother of Jehoiakim, king over Judæa. He was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. The events of to-day's lesson occurred during his reign.

I. Jeremiah cast into prison. (Vers. 1-6.) The prophet's imprisonment at first was no doubt the fruit of personal malice. He had become offensive and the object was to get him out of the way. But when the king took him out of the vaults, and allowed him the liberty of the prison courts, this gave him access to the people. His words became displeasing, and a new effort was made to get rid of him forever.

1. The princes of Judah. (Ver. 1.) Shepatiah, the son of Matton, was a prince and of the king's court. Gedaliah was of the sons of Aaron, and was likely a chief priest. Jucal and Pashur were likely also of the priesthood. This company was from among the leading men of the kingdom. The princes and priests were at this time divided. The earnest worshipers of Jehovah felt that faith should be kept with the king of Babylon, while the idolatrous class thought it best to become vassals of the king of Egypt. This company was opposed to Jeremiah and the worship of Jehovah.

2. The words of Jeremiah. (Vers. 2, 3.) Jeremiah began with, "Thus saits the Lord." No one could speak with higher authority. When Jehovah speaks we should be silent, give close attention, and obey promptly. The army of the Chaldeans would camp about the city, cut off its supplies, and cause famine and pestilence to prevail. If they went out to battle they would fall by the sword. The only safe way was to surrender the city to the king of Babylon. Jeremiah did plain speaking. What he said was unpopular, but he spoke it in love. It is better to submit to the judgments of Jehovah than to war against them, and try to defeat them.

3. The charge against Jeremiah. (Ver. 4.) "Let this man be put to death." This was a very strong request. "He weakens the hands of the men of war that remain in the city, and also the hands of all the people." He does not seek the welfare, but the ruin of the city and nation. He was in their judgment a traitor, and as such should die. No king or prince had been more loyal to their country than had Jeremiah, while their country was true to God. But when the people continued to rebel, until their day of grace had passed, he warned them of their danger. And in choosing between two evils he exhorted them to accept the lesser. He was for the people, and desired to save them from all possible suffering. Their charge that he weakened the hands of the men of war was true. He kept them, as far as his influence extended, from going out to battle against the king of Babylon. But their charge that he sought not the welfare of the people was absolutely false. No man sought more earnestly, or labored more faithfully, for the good of the nation than did Jeremiah. It is very common for wicked people to look upon God's faithful ministers as their enemies.

4. The result of their charge. (Vers. 5, 6.) Zedekiah delivered Jeremiah into the hands of these princes. A worse thing he could not have done. They had already passed sentence of death upon him. But it is said: "The king is not he that can do anything against you." Zedekiah was rather weak than bad. He was without force of will to take and keep his position at the head of the nation. Anxious to follow the counsel of the prophets, but without the moral courage to do so. He was the sport of factions, and was at last brought into ruinous conflict with the king of Babylon, against his own better judgment and convictions. The princes took Jeremiah and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah, which was in the prison courts. This was likely a cistern in which there was soft mud, but no water. The prophet was let down with cords. He sank deep into the mire. There he was left to die, and there he was expected to remain after death. They dared not put him to death openly, because they feared the people. Matters here are very much as they were with John the Baptist. Many of God's true witnesses have thus been privately made way with, whose blood will be brought to account in the day of disclosing. We are not here told what Jeremiah did, but in Lamentation (3:55-57) we read: "I called upon thy name, O Lord, out of the low dungeon." We should call upon God in the day of trouble. At their wits' end all men pray.

II. Jeremiah taken up out of the dungeon. (Vers. 7-13.) Ebed-melech was an Ethiopian, and a servant of Zedekiah. As we read of him we think of another Ethiopian who was riding in his chariot, who heard the gospel as it was preached by Philip, who believed, was baptized and went on his way rejoicing. He became a missionary to the people of his own country. Ebed-melech was a friend of Jeremiah, and when he heard that the prophet had been cast into the dungeon, he began to work immediately for his release. The king was sitting in the gate of Benjamin, in the northern wall of the city. He had likely gone there to hold court, or to preside in a council of war. Ebed-melech did not think it well to wait until the king returned, or was alone, but went from the house and spoke immediately unto him. His statement is remarkable: "These men have done evil in all they have done to Jeremiah, the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon; he is like to die for hunger in the place where he is." This was a bold statement from a servant. He was probably a black slave, holding his place at the pleasure of the king, and to accuse the princes of doing evil was rather remarkable. The hand of the Lord was in the whole matter. This Cushite was sent in answer to prayer. The king commanded Ebed-melech to take thirty men of the life guard, and lift up Jeremiah out of the dungeon. Zedekiah had been wonderfully changed. Thirty men was a much larger number than necessary to do the work. Some think we should read three, but there is no authority for this. Probably a part of these men were used to guard the dungeon, while others did the work. Ebed-melech secured some cast-off clothing, let them down to Jeremiah, who put them between the cords and his armpits, and they drew him out. The prophet remained in the court of the prison where he was before they cast him into the dungeon. God can make a prison a refuge and a hiding place for His children.

Woman's Work For Missions

Scripture References—Mark 14: 3-9; Acts 36; Rom. 16: 1-2.

The Word—

The woman who anointed Jesus; the pat saint of all Ladies' Aid Societies, Dorcas; Phebe, the "succorer of many," furnish us lesson basis. These were all noble women poured forth their love to Christ in help others. They are worthy types of those no bands of Christian women who in our day h banded themselves together to carry the Gos to the neglected and secluded women of heat lands. It has crystallized itself into the Wom Foreign and the Woman's Home Missionary cieties. Inasmuch as our theme next mo takes in the Home work, we confine oursel largely in this lesson to the work of women the foreign mission field.

Preliminary Organizations—

Ninety days after the organization of t Parent Missionary Society in 1819, a "Woma Auxiliary" was organized in New York by Nathan Bangs and others. An address was sued to the "Female Members of the Metho Episcopal Church." But in time the society came almost inactive and crowded out by the ganization of other societies. It has been es matled, however, that they contributed at le $20,000 to the Parent Society. When the Chi Mission was planted in 1847, a society of wom in Baltimore was organized as the "Ladi China Missionary Society." For some twen years this did a noble work. It granted $5,0 for a "Female Academy" in Foochow, and ga for ten years $300 per year to the Parent Socie The Union Woman's Missionary Society was ganized in New York in 1860, and many of o church women were active in it until the organ ation of our own Woman's Foreign Missiona Society.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society—

The organization of this society was effect in Boston in 1869, by a few elect ladies, son of whom are still living. They raised the wate word, "Two cents a week and a prayer." The rapidly grew in numbers and in favor with th church. The present work of the society is im portant and growing rapidly. Their income about $500,000 a year. They support missio aries in all our foreign fields. About 250 are no at work under their direction. Some 6000 auxil aries at home with nearly 150,000 members in sure a still larger advance in the future. Twenty five thousand copies of the Woman's Missionar Friend go into the homes of our people. In com mon with other church boards of Woman's So cieties they are taking a systematic study o missions from text-books prepared for the pur pose. This society is only one of many othe church societies of women who are sending th Gospel to the heathen women who are inaccess ible save through Christian women.—From Notes on Epworth League Devotional Topics.

Hearers who sit under the ministration of the truth without the Spirit, may be likened to a man standing upon the brow of a hill which commands the prospect of an extensive landscape. The varied beauties of flood and field are before him; nature is clad in her richest livery; there is every varitey calculated to interest and inspire; rugged rocks frown as if they would keep sentinel over the sleeping valley; the earth yields to her increase; the crystal streamlet leaps merrily along; impressions of the beautiful are everywhere visible. There is just one drawback to the picture, and that one drawback is, that he who stands upon the summit of the hill is blind. That is precisely the case in reference to the truth in the Bible. It is there in all its grandeur, but the man has no eyes to see it.—W. M. Punshon.

Recent Conferences and Conventions

DALLAS DISTRICT.

The Dallas District Conference met July 18th, in Pilot Point, Texas, with Rev. L. H. Richardson in the chair. After devotional service and roll call a strong appeal was made for the SOUTHWESTERN. The third Sunday in October was set apart as rally day for this cause. An earnest appeal was made in behalf of our school. Collected $85.00. The reports of pastors showed that a fair year's work had been accomplished. The presiding elder's report was an encouragement to all. It spoke well for the future of the District. The pastors' reports were good also. Many able speeches were delivered, and as the Sunday School and Epworth League Convention were held in connection with the District Conference, the session was very pleasant and profitable, indeed.

SHUBUTA DISTRICT.

The Shubuta District Conference convened at Laurel, Miss., July 26, 1905, with Rev. J. B. Brooks presiding. R. Howze was elected secretary, with B. W. Robinson and S. McDavis assistants. C. W. Jones was elected statistical secretary, G. W. Arnold and S. T. Gavin assistants. The business session of the conference was well conducted by Preiding Elder Brooks, whose ruling was gentle and kind, yet firm. The following pastors preached able sermons: C. W. Jones, J. E. Wibs, G. W. Arnold, Lofton, S. McDavis, T. A. Carter, and Dr. G. G. Logan. Rev. E. D. Hubbard, pastor of the Baptist Church here, was introduced and made timely remarks. Dr. J. W. E. Bowen was with us and spoke on the 26th. Dr. G. G. Logan was also present and spoke encouragingly on missions. The following brethren applied for admission and orders: T. A. Carter, M. Anderson, Jas. Robinson, Br. Jordan, and were recommended to the Annual Conference. Seven young men were granted license. The conference was a success. The yellow fever scare became so exciting, we edjourned Saturday evening.

R. HOWZE, Secretary.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

The Wilmington District of the North Carolina Conference convened at Hamlet, N. C., July 26, 1905. Welcome address by Rev. R. P. Hairston, the pastor. Response by Rev. S. F. B. Peace. Both addresses were well delivered and heartily received. The excellent choir rendered sweet songs of praise. Presiding Elder I. Wells introduced Rev. W. W. Pope, of Lumberton, N. C., who preached an interesting and profitable sermon. Thursday morning, after organization of the conference, the work of the Institute was taken up. Rev. W. W. Pope conducted the same. At 3 p. m., Rev. L. D. McQueen preached a good sermon.

The evening service was a very profitable one. Missionary addresses were made by Revs. R. P. Hairston and W. W. Pope, and $13 were raised for missions. The papers rendered by Misses Estella Graham, Mattie McEachin, Rhetta McClellan and others on Friday afternoon were splendid productions. Rev. L. W. Thomas, of Huffman and Vass, delivered a sermon which was listened to by all with interest. At 8:30 Mesdames Wells, J. P. Morris, A. E. Peace and Hairston, interested the great audience with their songs, prayers and addresses.

The local preachers and delegates numbered about 120, including the pastors.

Elder Wells was made happy because of the interest all manifested and also because of the fact that the district is succeeding over past years, and this was evidenced by the $700 of benevolence reported. Bro. J. C. Robbins, of Rowland, proved a faithful secretary. Four were recommended for trial in the traveling connection. Elder Wells looks carefully after every interest of the church. The SOUTHWESTERN was represented by the writer, and three cash subscriptions were secured. If preachers keep their promises we will get about twenty cash subscribers in the next two weeks. The pastors will see to this, of course.

The Institute work was conducted by Revs. Pope, Robbins, Peace and Hairston. Rev. Hairston with tireless energy and painstaking care cared for "the stranger within his gates." Sunday was a great day spiritually. The writer preached at 11 a. m. Intelligence was received of the death of the mother of Mrs. Fannie Thomas, wife of Prof. Thomas, A. M. Rev. C. W. Walton, of Wilmington, preached at 3 p. m., to a crowded house; and at 8:30 p. m. Rev. J. C. Robbins preached. These brethren made splendid impressions on their audiences. The Wilmington is a great district in point of numerical strength and intelligence. At the head of this district is a great and good man, and Elder Wells in many respects stands second to none on the list. His motto is "Onward!" G. B. MCLEAN.

LOUISVILLE DISTRICT.

The 24th session of the Louisville District Sunday School and Epworth League Institute of the Lexingtn Conference, met in Bowling Green, Ky., July 20-23, Rev. J. Courtney, D. D., presiding elder. Introductory sermon by Rev. H. M. Carroll, of Morgantown, Ky. On Thursday, at 8:30 a. m., the presiding elder conducted the devotional services, after which he administered the Lord's Supper, assisted by Revs. J. L. Franklin, pastor of Bowling Green, A. A. Woolfolk and L. C. Harris. Rev. A. A. Woolfolk was elected secretary; assistants, Rev. J. S. Bailey and Misses E. B. Kay and May L. Woolfolk. Rev. J. W. Hall, a presiding elder of the Kentucky Conference of the A. M. E. church, made the welcome address in behalf of the people of Bowling Green. He spoke of the dignity of the ministry and the good work it had accomplished. An able response was made by Rev. J. S. Bailey, of Coke Chapel, Louisville, on "The divine call of the minister and his moral worth in the community." A large number of city pastors and visitors were introduced, among whom were Rev. Prime, of the M. E. Church South, who delivered a short address; Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, dean of Braden School of Theology, Nashville, Tenn, made an eloquent address, subject, "The need of a better educated ministry." He set forth the work of his school, making a strong appeal for the co-operation of the pastor. The forenoons were devoted t the business sessions. Nearly all the brethren were present and their reports showed an increase in the benevolences and also an advancement in all church work. The afternoon sessions were devoted to the Sunday School and Epworth League Institutes. Many interesting papers were read and discussed. Dr. J. Courtney is a wide awake and energetic presiding elder. Instead of preaching each evening a number of pastors read papers on the living issues of the church, which, we feel, gave new life and inspiration to all who were in attendance. Rev. T. L Wilson, of Springfield, Ohio, who was appointed by the annual conference to represent the Conference Claimant Fund of the Lexington Conference was present. He made an eloquent and earnest appeal in behalf of his cause. Rev. J. W. White, representative of the Anti-Saloon League, made an able address. Master French Wilson, the nine years' old son of Rev. T. L. Wilson, delighted the conference by rendering several of Paul Laurence Dunbar's poems. On Saturday the young people rendered a splendid literary program. On the Sabbath the brethren filled many of the pulpits of the various churches of the city. The pastor, Rev. J. L. Franklin, and his god people and friends of the church deserve great credit for the manner in which they entertained the conference. Th presiding elder, Dr. J. Courtney, endeared the brethren to him by his impartial ruling and fatherly advice throughout the sessions. J. S. BAILEY.

MAYSVILLE DISTRICT.

The Maysville District, of the Lexington Conference, convened at Cynthia, Ky., July 26-31, 1905. Rev. G. Zeigler presided. The majority of preachers and delegates were present. W. H. Riley was elected secretary. Rev. E. S. Hilton, D. D., of St. John's Church, Cincinnati, was introduced and spoke in behalf of the presiding elders of the Ohio District. Thursday—Drs. E. W. S. Hammond and L. M. Hagood were introduced and spoke of their work; they also spoke encouragingly of the work of the Lexington Conference. Thursday evening Dr. Hammond delivered a fine lecture before a large and interested audience. The benevolent report showed an increase. Rev. T. L. Wilson was presented to the conference and made a good speech on "Conference Claimants." A collection of $5.00 was raised for this cause. Letters of greeting were received from Presiding Elders J. Courtney of the Louisville District, and G. A. Sissle of the Indiana District. Sunday morning Rev. Ziegler preached an excellent sermon. The following brethren preached acceptably during the session: W. J. White, James Allen, C. H. Pyles, B. J. Ward and L. W. Flore. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. F. D. Breckenridge. The conference was a success, spiritually and financially. Paid presiding elder in full up to date and paid out of money raised during the conference $106.00, leaving $46.00 in the hands of the trustees.

G. W. STAPLES.

TUPELO DISTRICT.

The District Epworth League Convention of the Tupelo District, Upper Mississippi Conference, met in Farr's Chapel M. E. Church, Houston, Miss., Wednesday, July 19, 1905, with Rev. P. S. Bowie, the District president, presiding. The District president made his report, which indicated marked improvement along all lines of League work. One hundred and fourteen dollars had been raised for the Rust new building fund. Rev. B. J. Robertson preached the introductory sermon. The annual sermon was preached by Rev. H. B. Hart. A number of good papers were read by the different delegates. The following officers were elected and installed: Rev. P. S. Bowie, president; Mesdames Mary Ingrame, first vice-president; Anna R. Tubbs, second vice-president; Fannie Blackwell, third vice-president; Misses Diana Mayo, fourth vice-president; Mandozie Lusby, secretary; Charlotte Crawford, assistant secretary; Stella E. Davis, corresponding secretary; Irene Slack, organist; Anna Camel, treasurer; Amanda McFarland, librarian; Mattie Bolden, Junior League Superintendent. Thus closed one of the best sessions of the Tupelo District League.

MANDOZIE LUSBY.

Southwestern Christian Advocate

1—All business letters should be addressed to Eaton & Mains, and all communications intended for publication to the Editor.

2—In sending matter for publication, write plainly on one side of the paper, and make your communication as short as the subject will allow.

3—When the ADVOCATE does not arrive regularly, notify us promptly.

4—Methodist pastors are our authorized agents, to receive subscriptions and collect dues for the ADVOCATE.

What Will Be the Result? That's The Question.

The canvass for the 5000 new subscriptions by October 31 is on. It is a battle for self support and self respect. The victory will be ours if we will "stretch every nerve and press with vigor on." Our Bishops are interested in the success of the canvass. Our movements are watched by them and they send us occasionally a word of encouragement.

Bishop McDowell Says:

An uninformed Church is pretty nearly no Church at all. One of the agencies established by the Methodist Episcopal Church for the information and inspiration of its membership is its system of Advocates. I therefore commend most heartily to all your people in the Little Rock Conference the Southwestern Christian Advocate, not for its sake, but for their sakes and for the sake of a better Church. I wish the subscription list in that and all other Conferences might promptly be doubled. It would be good I believe for every interest of the Church.

Admiral Togo

On the eve of the battle of Japan said to his men: "The destiny of our empire depends on this action. You are expected to do your utmost."

Brethern--"YOU are expected to do your utmost."

The Motto--THE SOUTHWESTERN in the home of every official member and as many others as possible.

THE PRACTICAL WORK OF A DEACONESS

The Deaconess Movement is no longer an experiment. It has become a permanent factor in the development of our Methodism. The movement is justified in every way by the wisdom of its plans and the success of its operations. On returning from Denver a good lady had unfortunately left her ticket and was embarrassed. Who should come to her relief, and who could come more appropriately, but a deaconess of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The deaconess ascertained her trouble and set about at once to help her. After some telegraphing the ticket was found in the home where the lady had sojourned in Colorado Springs, and in company with the lady the deaconess got off at Goodland and remained till the next morning, the ticket coming on the next train. The deaconess brought help and security to the unfortunate lady. This was womanly sympathy, Christlike helpfulness, and modern-day Christianity. Miss Sara E. Doeble was the deaconess in this case. God bless the deaconess movement.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The last half century has seen the practical emancipation of woman from the restrictions that had been forced upon her by tradition. The grant of freedom has been for the betterment of society. The emancipation, however, that has come to woman came not without her contention and ceaseless agitation. Woman suffrage is no longer visionary, it is in full force in some states and exists in a modified form in others. Woman suffrage is gaining ground. That Justice David J. Brewer should speak in favor of the movement is itself significant. Justice Brewer gave out recently an article on the question, and among other things said:

"In a recent address at Vassar, on the problems facing the American citizen, I answered a possible objection on the part of the young lady students that they were not voters and therefore not interested in those problems, by suggesting that the future might, ere long, bring to the sex in this republic full and universal suffrage, with all the accompanying rights and duties, including therein the holding of office. The suggestion was taken by some facetiously, by others seriously and with approval or condemnation.

"Was the suggestion either visionary or absurd? The achievements of the past throw light on the possibilities of the future. In the beginning of the last half century woman's suffrage in this country was unknown. Within that time a limited suffrage, especially in education matters, has become quite common, while full suffrage has been accorded to them in four states, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah and Colorado. If fifty years have brought so great a change, establishing so much of suffrage where none existed, is it visionary to suggest that the next half century may extend full suffrage throughout the Union? * * *

"The question is not so much one of abstract right as of practical results. One thing is clear, that if it tends to the better life of women it will bless all and should be adopted. If it injures her it will injure society and should not be extended."

AFRICAN METHODISM IN SOUTH AFRICA

Bishop Hartzell has been observing the Ethiopian movement in the Transvaal, South Africa. In a recent issue of the Umtali Advertiser the Bishop makes the following pertinent statement: "The Ethiopian movement, unfortunately has been intensified by the organization in Cape Colony, the Transvaal and Orange River Colony of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. This is a Negro American organization which began nearly three-quarters of a century ago. Some black people in Philadelphia who did not receive full social and church recognition, as they thought, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, withdrew from it. They now have a Negro membership of several hundred thousand. Their bishops are black men. The present leader living in Capetown is Bishop C. S. Smith, a level headed, sensible man. If he had been the first representative of his church in South Africa the present unfortunate relations between his people and the governments would never have obtained. Under him denominational fraternity and international good will would have been promoted. As it is his church is under the ban of the law; properties bought on credit are being sold by the sheriff, and Bishop Smith is advising his people to wholly withdraw from South Africa."

Dr. I. L. THOMAS' CHURCH EXTENSION TOUR

This new officer in the church has been given a marvelous welcome wherever he has gone. Ministers and people have been greatly helped by his addresses, able sermons and by the masterly way in which he presents his cause. For the last five weeks he has been making a tour in the states of Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia and South Carolina. Everywhere he goes the preachers and people pledge a most definite support to the cause that he represents. Presiding elders, preachers and people rejoice together that God has sent him forth to do a work so much needed among our people, the result of which is having a telling effect in the advancement of the collections and in the spirit of the people to pay the Church Extension loans. To the Conferences which convened in July that Dr. Thomas could not attend he sent a special message.

It is a great loss to the race that John Mitchell, Jr., of the Richmond Planet, does not write weekly the vigorous editorials as of old. He is a fresh thinker and has the courage to speak his convictions. May be Editor Mitchell is on a vacation; if he is, the vacation is a long one. If he has given his strength to secret societies, he is diverting his ability, which is much needed, from the defense of the race.

Personal and General.

The Afro-American Council is to meet in Detroit, Mich., August 30, 31 and September 1.

Mrs. Callie D. Newman, of Yazoo City, Miss., is visiting her people in Washington, D. C.

Prof. and Mrs. M. S. Davage are summering at Covington.

Our readers next week will be favored with an article from the pen of Bishop Scott.

Mrs. Elvira Darias, wife of Rev. W. L. Darias, is spending the summer at Union Springs, Ala.

Miss Clara Baquie, of this city, has gone to Atlanta, Ga., where she will be stenographer to Dr. I. G. Penn.

Mrs. A. M. Morrow and Miss Beatrice H. Morrow, of Texas, called at our office recently. They are sojourning awhile in New Orleans, taking advantage of the school facilities.

Bishop L. B. Wilson, of Chattanooga, has been selected to take the place of Bishop Joyce on the Commission of Aggressive Evangelism, and also on the Executive Committee of the commission.

The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred by the McKinley Memorial University of Vincennes, Ind., upon Rev. J. M. Harris, pastor Burns Methodist Episcopal Church, Kansas City, Mo.

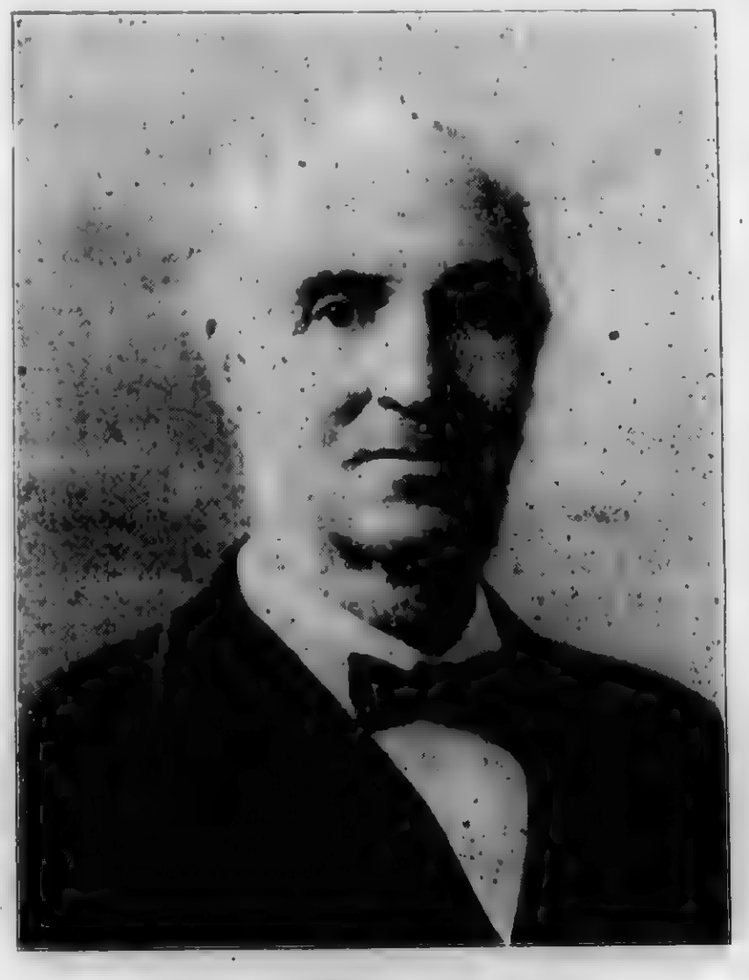
Dr. Pierre Landry, of Gilbert Industrial College, desires to thank, through the SOUTHWESTERN, his many friends for their congratulatory letters upon his reception of the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Miss Carrie V. Barnes, of Denver, Col., graduated from the Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York City, at the last commencement. Miss Barnes has already accepted a place on the faculty of Tuskegee Institute.

Mrs. Dr. J. P. Morris, of Greensboro, N. C., has spent three weeks on the Wilmington District, North Carolina Conference, organizing the ladies in local Home Missionary Societies. Each charge on this district has been organized and much is expected of the ladies of this district.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Adlaide, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. L. Williams, of Chattanooga, Tenn., to Mr. John R. Harris, the ceremony to take place the evening of August 22d at Wiley Memorial Church, Chattanooga. The SOUTHWESTERN is pleased to extend in advance heartiest congratulations.

The editor had the privilege of spending a few days recently at Greenwood, Miss., and preached at our church, of which Rev. C. W. Walton is pastor. A splendid subscription list was secured through the efforts of the pastor and Dr. N. L. Lackey. The subscription list continues to grow, and the pastor says there are others to follow.



The degree of doctor of divinity has been conferred by the Trustees of Rust University, and confirmed by the Board of Managers at Cincinnati, on the Rev. D. Lee Aultman, presiding elder of the Hillsboro district, Cincinnati Conference, and also on the Rev. W. C. Clay, presiding elder, Upper Mississippi Conference. These honors were worthily bestowed and will be worn with becoming dignity.

Miss Camille M. Cohen, the charming and accomplished daughter of Hon. Walter L. Cohen, of this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Alvah H. Bell, of Atlanta, Ga., at the romantic hour of 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The marriage was to have taken place the evening before, but the groom was detained by a wreck between here and Atlanta. The bridal party left Sunday evening for Atlanta, where they will make their future home. Mr. Bell is a young and enterprising business man.

Miss Jane Anna Granderson, A. B., one of the most talented young women of the race, who for several years has been a professor in Spellman Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., died Saturday, August 5th, of typhoid fever, in the sanitarium of Spellman Seminary, where she was undergoing treatment. She was accomplished in domestic science, music, vocal and instrumental, and was a speaker of great acceptability. Her spiritual life was deep and fervent and made a great impression upon the student body.

Prof. and Mrs. E. H. McKissack, of Holly Springs, Miss., will celebrate their silver wedding August 24th. It has been a quarter of a century of a happy union and of active service for the people. Prof. and Mrs. McKissack are blessed with one son who graduated from college at nineteen, and is now pursuing a course in medicine. After the celebration Prof. and Mrs. McKissack will visit Washington, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York. Prof. McKissack goes to Philadelphia on business, being the Grand Auditor of the Odd Fellows. The SOUTHWESTERN extends congratulations. We wish that this happy couple might be privileged to celebrate their diamond anniversary.

On page three we are publishing an interesting article on the career of Rev. George Standing, a man who has given himself unreservedly and unselfishly for the uplift of God's poor in the South. He is approaching the time when the silver cord will be broken; he can look back upon a life well spent in the Master's service and a life that has yielded abundant fruitage in the development of men and women. In many places of the South, and particularly in Georgia, there are young men and young women who owe their spiritual and intellectual birth to the efforts of Mr. Standing, who was the first teacher sent out by the Methodist Episcopal Church through then Doctor but now Bishop Walden, to labor among the colored people. May Brother Standing's last days be his best; days full of sunshine and of joy, with pre-eminent satisfaction of work well done, and of holy anticipation of the reward to be received.

See Article Page Three

THE JOHN C. MARTIN EDUCATIONAL FUND

This movement is accomplishing much for the betterment of the Negro ministry; much that otherwise would not be accomplished. It is interdenominational in its cope and has behind it sufficient funds to guarantee its success. Local institutes are established, the territory divided into districts and competent superintendents are appointed and biblical departments are opened up in several schools. A Summer Bible and Divinity School is being conducted at Little Rock, Ark. Dr. S. T. Clanton, D. D., president. There is an enrollment of 130 ministers and lay workers. These are instructed by a group of competent and well-trained professors; among the number is Dr. D. W. Boatner, who has the chair of Exegesis and Elocution. The meeting is proving not only an intellectual inspiration to those who attend but alike a spiritual uplift.

NEWS NOTES

Merritt Memorial Church, Denver, Col., has a rare treat in store for them for August 28—"Bright Side of Life in Libby Prison," by Bishop McCabe.

Bishop Andrews, tho eighty years of age, is yet heard with delight wherever he goes. He recently gave a course of lectures on Christian Evidences before the New York Training School.

The World's Baptist Congress is now in session in London, England. The colored wing of that great body has thirty-eight able and creditable representatives.

Despite the hardship caused by hatred, ignorance and superstition of twenty-seven years of faithful labors in the mission work in China, Robert Morrison, the first Protestant missionary to that country, passes to his reward, strong in the faith that God would some day crown his efforts spent in that land.

The recent victory won by the Negroes of Florida against the "Jim Crow" car legislation has caused The Texas Freeman to start a movement in Texas to test the constitutionality of the same with reference to street cars. The Freeman favors the employment of colored attorneys like Messrs. Wetmore and Purcell of Florida, and subscribes $5 to the fund.

Mormonism, like all sin, must ultimately give way to the mighty strokes of truth and righteousness. Frederick W. Smith, grandson of Prophet Smith, son of Joseph Smith, head of the reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, is trying to convert the Mormons of Utah to the former principles of the church, pleading to them to put away polygamy, commercialism, and political interference.

The Negroes of Washington, D. C., operate ten drug stores, seven wood and coal yards, twenty-seven restaurants, one book store, four employment bureaus, five newspapers and nine job-printing establishments. They have more than eighty churches, many lawyers, teachers, doctors, dressmakers, trained nurses, a multitude of writers and a superabundance of orators.

The fight against the yellow fever continues. Up to Monday 6 p. m. the total number of cases had reached 1,018, with 166 deaths; these cases were located in 210 places; 496 cases had been discharged as cured. A large per cent of the cases as well as a very large per cent of the deaths occur among the Italians. The Marine Hospital Service, Dr. J. H. White in charge, is pushing vigorously the plans for the stamping out of the fever. For Friday and Saturday of last week the cases reported for each day were over 100. Present indications are that the fever will be conquered.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Shelly and Miss Edna M. Grover, all under appointment as missionaries for work in the Andes Conference, sailed from New York on the steamer Havana, Tuesday, Aug. 8. Mr. Shelly, who is a native of Galveston, Ind., and a Bachelor of Science from DePauw University, class of 1903, goes out to teach in the Iquique (Chile) English College. Miss Grover is a graduate of Lawrence University in the class of 1901, and has had experience in high school teaching in Waupaca, Appleton, and Stevens' Point, all in Wisconsin, her native state. She will teach in the Santiago (Chile) Girls' College.

Rev. David Lyle Thoburn, of the North India Conference, the news of whose death reached the Mission Rooms in New York City by cablegram Saturday, Aug. 5, was a nephew of Bishop J. M. Thoburn. Mr. Thoburn was graduated from Allegheny College in the class of 1885 and from Boston University School of Theology in 1893. In the latter year he sailed for India, arriving upon the field Dec. 3. During the more than eleven years in which he has served as a missionary for the Methodist Church, he has been connected with the Publishing House at Lucknow, and for various periods has taught in the Reid Christian Colllege and served as pastor of the English-speaking church at Lucknow. At the time of his death Mr. Thoburn and his family had been in India but a few months after a furlough spent in the United States.

Doings of the Workmen.

ALABAMA.

Anniston, B. J. Brooks, Pastor.—My third quarter was held on Thursday night, July 6, with Elder J. W. Thomas in the chair. The reports showed a grand increase on all lines. A large attendance was at the quarter. Bro. Clark Gardner has the banner class. The W. H. M. Society is doing well with Mrs. Julie Brooks, president. They raised this quarter $7.05. Other collections good. Grand total raised for all purposes, $133.05. Sunday was a high day with us. Elder Thomas was not able to preach at 3 p. m., so Rev. W. J. Smith, of Haven Chapel, preached. Forty-eight partook of the Lord's Supper.

Oneanta, E. L. Gary, P. C.—Our third quarterly conference was held July 15. It was a success. Total amount raised during the quarter, $135.93. The Ladies' Aid is doing a great and good work. We are looking for company on the 9th of August. I have ceiled the church since the last quarter. Rev. W. H. Nelson, P. E., did not leave a stone unturned in regard to the interest of the church. He preached a wonderful sermon.

Roanoke, Mrs. L. H. Hunly, Reporter.—The month of June has been high tide for this circuit. Each Sunday school had its Children's Day service. The collections for the circuit amounted to $50. An increase of interest is shown along all lines. We have had the honor of having two of our distinguished men visit us this summer in the persons of Drs. G. G. Logan and E. M. Jones. We are hoping to have Dr. I. Garland Penn with us before the summer is over. Our second quarterly conference was held the 1st and 2d of July. All officers were present with written reports. The elder, Rev. J. W. Thoms, was at his best and preached two great sermons. We were very glad indeed to have Mrs. J. W. Thomas with us during the quarter. Raised this quarter for pastor, $95; for elder, $13.50; total for all purposes, $165.

Theodore, J. T. Tomkins, P. C.—My third quarter was held July 1-2, with Presiding Elder A. W. McKinny in the chair. Sunday night services closed with the success of $41.46; 37 communed. Our church is in a spiritual bloom as never before. One subscriber for the SOUTHWESTERN. Five sisters are worthy of praise, Sisters Mary English, Laura Johnson, Nancy McKinny and Silay Jones, and our Sunday school can't be surpassed under the leadership of Sister Sarah Washington.

Alexander City Circuit, G. H. Godfrey.—Our third quarterly conference was held July 8-9 at Mount Godfrey M. E. Church. Our presiding elder was absent, but Rev. R. E. L. Beasley presided. Total collection, $25. On Sunday Rev. Beasley preached a stirring sermon and the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

ARKANSAS.

Polk, R. B. Fagan, P. C.—We organized the first Epworth League ever planted in this part of the country. The officers, Mrs. George A. Draten, president; Mrs. Dora Sims, 1st vice; Mr. Isaac Draten, 2nd vice; Bro. Sollie Shell, secretary; Sister Mary Hiland, treasurer.

Lewisville, P. W. Bobo.—The second quarterly conference met at McDonel Chapel July 1. The presiding elder, D. B. Harston, was at his post. The pastor, Lee Nelson, and his officers made pretty fair reports. Sunday we had Bros. G. A. Hall and G. I. Izard. Bro. Izard preached at eleven and made a lasting impression. Bro. Hall preached in the afternoon; 25 came to the altar for prayer. Bro. Lee Nelson appointed working tribes to raise money for ceiling the church. They reported: Sister Captora Gant, $20; Sister Callie Bush, $9.15; Sister Charity Brown, $8.15; total, $27.30. The total moneys raised this quarter, $75.66.

Warren, R. B. Henry, P. C.—My second quarterly conference was held June 10-11, by Rev. S. McDonald, P. E. Sunday at 11 a. m. Rev. S. McDonald preached a grand sermon and administered the Lord's Supper. He preached again at night in Wilson Chapel. Total raised this quarter, $28.85.

GEORGIA.

Cave Spring, F. M. Gordon, Pastor.—This charge, under the pastorate of Rev. S. B. Beauford, came up on all lines. His wife should have the credit for the influence she has over these people. She is a Christian woman of high standing. She does everything to assist her husband to succeed. The members and the people are standing by their pastor. The report of the stewards showed that $70 was paid the pastor, $32 was raised in the third quarter and $33 was paid on the Church Extension claim. Rev. C. W. Adams, P. E., who held the quarter, preached excellent and inspiring sermons. The full assessment was met and $7 more than what they owed him. Dr. Thomas was with Bro. S. B. Beauford on the fourth Sunday in June and rendered valuable services.

Griffin, Griffin Hecks, Reporter.—Heck's Chapel is on the upward glide. Sunday, June 25, was a great day. Five weeks before hand the pastor announced a rally for the church and spent two weeks taking subscriptions, so on the day appointed we raised $250. This gives us an average of $96.50 per month since our present pastor has been here. A year ago we had 50 and 65 to commune, but the first Sunday in July we had 124.

Summerville, W. C. Bryant, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference convened at Menlo July 22-23, with the Rev. F. M. Gordon in the chair. The business of the conference was looked after with much care by Elder Gordon. Paid the elder $15.50; paid the pastor $38.98. For benevolence, $13.53; total amount, $68.01 for the quarter. Rev. S. C. Upshaw, the Sunday School Agent for the Atlanta Conference, was also present on Saturday. Sunday was a great day with us. At 10 o'clock a. m. the Rev. S. C. Upshaw was present in the Sunday school and carried us through the Sunday school lesson. Too much cannot be said of Elder Gordon, who preached at 11 a. m. a most wonderful sermon. All were made to rejoice. At 3 p. m. Bro. Upshaw lectured on the Holy Land with his map. We were greatly helped by his wonderful lecture. Bro. Gordon is much loved by these people here.

South Atlanta, R. N. Johnson, Sec.—South Atlanta M. E. Church has a model Sunday school. Under the supervision of our beloved superintendent, Mr. L. J. Price, we have seen it grow from a few and scattered number to an enrollment of one hundred and forty scholars. His idea is this: By saving the children while in youth you do not only save them from a burning hereafter, but you save their influence, which in all probabilities will be wicked and degrading.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the New Orleans Southwestern Christian Advocate. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

INDIANA.

Shelbyville, Joel Perkins, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held July 2, Rev. J. E. Board in the chair. Reports showed a grand increase along all lines. We have painted our church inside and out and put down new carpet, all at a cost of $59. Raised this quarter, $145.74.

Terre Haute, Chas. Jones Pastor.—My first quarterly meeting began on the 10th and closed on the 12th, with a grand reception to the elder and wife. This, the first quarter, has been very good. We came to the charge on the 18th of March and were received very pleasantly by the members and friends of Salter Chapel M. E. Church, and the Lord has blessed us in all the departments of the church. Six have joined the church; the Epworth League has been re-organized and is in good working order and also the Woman's Home Missionary Society has been re-organized and will do some good work, and also the Sunday school was organized into a missionary society and starts off well. The greatest need of our Sunday school is good books and home instruction. Total amount collected and paid out by the church, $321.25.

To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up The System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out the malaria and the Iron builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Charlotte, G. M. McLean, Pastor.—Elder Wells came promptly and on May 11 19 of the official brethren responded to the roll call, and the temporal interests of the church were looked after by the elder. Reports were as follows: For missions, $8.34; for F. A. S. E., $5; presiding elder, $14; pastor, $97.64; new building, etc., $171.68; conversions, 22; accessions, 24. On Sunday at 11 a. m. we were favored with the presence and an able and instructive sermon by Rev. D. J. Saunders, D. D., president of Biddle University. The doctor was at his best and his sermon will not be forgotten soon. At 3 p. m. Rev. S. D. Watkins, of the Little Rock A. M. E. Zion Church, his choir and congregation were present. Mrs. Bishop Clinton, with her musical voice thrilled and charmed the audience. Dr. Watkins' effort was one of great power. At 8:30 p. m. the father and hero of the North Carolina Conference, and much esteemed presiding elder of the Wilmington District, held forth the "Word of Life" to the special delight of all. Collection for the new church, $238.25. This letter should not close without special mention being made of certain worthies who were prize winners. Mr. J. M. Goode, first prize; Miss Agnes Goode, second; Mrs. Mary Mack, third; Mr. Jas. Mack, fourth; Mr. Chas. Kox, fifth. Miss Agnes Goode gave a most creditable musical concert and the 29th, the occasion of the gathering of some of the most select people. A full church. The participants of the program were of some of the city's best talent, and a rare feast was enjoyed by all. Miss Goode is among the best talent and society and church workers of the race. She is ardent, rendering to the Y. W. C. T. U. and the church unstinted service. Bro. J. M. Goode is among our best laymen and together with such as Bro. Peeler Oliver, and Mrs. R. C. Bearden and a faithful host which space forbids to mention, stand by the pastor here in the work of the church. The walls of the new brick church are completed and ready for the timbers. The building will cost $6,000 or $7,000 when completed. The rally winds up the 29th with a collection of $264.53. Praise the Lord.

Wilmington, Mrs. C. T. Garrison.—Our much beloved pastor, Rev. C. W Walton, has been faithful this year, in fact for these two years he has been with us he has showed himself a model pastor. He has received into the church in these 19 months 15 members. The church was $1,250 in debt He cleared that debt. He is another G. W. Morehead. All of the people love him. The church has also been painted and plastered.

TALK IS CHEAP; ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

To any reader of this great paper who will send me their name and address (a postal will do), I will send (not a sample) but a full-size box of

GLOSSINE

Queen of all hair tonics. This, the greatest and most meritorious remedy for the human hair, causes the hair to grow with rapidity and gives to it that rich glossy tone so much desired by all. No matter how short or harsh or curley your hair may be, Glossine will make it long and straight, soft and fine, and of so rich and pliable a texture that it can be dressed in any prevailing style desired. Glossine cannot fail. I stake my honor on its great merit and prove its worth by sending a full-size box free to all who write to me. Address MISS HELEN MARTIN,

Doings of the Workmen

FLORIDA.

Tampa, Thos. H. B. Walker, P. C.—Our second quarterly conference was held on June 15-17. Rev. J. Grant, our superintendent, was present and preached wto able sermons. The superintendent was paid in full. The stewards reported raised $455.21 during the quarter. The pastor received eight members, married three, and buried four. Bowman is looking forward to the erection of a new stone church, as the present church does not comfortably accommodate our audience. Since we have been here we have purchased a beautiful corner lot for the erection of our church. The lot is worth $2,500, but a friend to our church, through the kind assistance of Rev. P. A. Daniel, let us have the lot for $1,500 spot cash. Glad to say that Brother T. C. Miller and your humble scribe were able through the co-operation of the church, to pay every penny of the $1,500 and get a clean warranty deed, and you may hear some good news from us in short.

Malaria Causes Loss of Appetite.

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic, drives out malaria and builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

GEORGIA.

Riverton Charge, Paul Bryant, Reporter.—Our third quarterly conference was held July 15-16 at Pleasant Hill, M. E. Church by Rev. A. P. Melton, as the presiding elder could not be present. On Sunday at 10:30 o'clock love-feast was conducted by Bro. M. Sumerlin and W. T. Bell. At 11:30 o'clock the Rev. Melton preached a soul-stirring sermon from Isaiah, 26tn chapter and 4th verse. Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to 80. Raised for the presiding elder this quarter, $18.05.

Oxford, Hugh M. Walker, District Steward.—The third quarterly conference of Oxford charge convened in Rust M. E. Church, Friday night, June 30, with the Rev. Dr. G. W. Arnold, presiding elder, in the chair. Rev. J. L. Lemons, of the A. M. E. Church, preached the quarterly sermon. The conference was an unprecedented success, raising $44.72 for the day. The pastor received this quarter, $95; the elder, $19.59. The Epworth League is at high water mark now. The Sunday school is also good. Everybody is at work; hence, the church runs easily. The elder is so polished and refined that the people honor him as a king of righteousness. Oxford is a great classical town, noted for education and good cooks.

Sparks, C. P. Cannon, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference convened July 1-2, with Elder Rev. A. B. Allen in the chair. The reports were good. Bro. Allen is an efficient presiding officer. His lectures on reading good literature were certainly fine.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Caused the death of Doctor Bright. Bright's Disease is simply slow congestion of the Kidneys. In the last stage the congestion becomes acute and the victim lives a few hours or a few days, but is past saving. This insidious Kidney trouble is caused by sluggish, torpid, congested Liver and slow, constipated Bowels, whereby the Kidneys are involved and ruined.

Drake's Palmetto Wine is a foe to congestion of the Liver, Kidneys and tissues. It promptly relieves the congestion and carries it out of the Liver, Kidneys, tissues and blood. Drake's Palmetto Wine restores the Mucous Membranes to healthy condition, relieves the membranes throughout the body from Inflammation and Catarrh, and cures Catarrh, Constipation and Liver and Kidney disease to stay cured. A test bottle always gives relief and often cures.

Write The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., for a free test bottle of this wonderful tonic Palmetto medicine. It is a boon to disease-laden, pain-ridden men and women.

The district conference of the Gainesville District will convene at Winfield, Rev. J. M. Tramell, pastor, Sept. 21 to 24. Brethren, please remember that each one of us started out this year with the promise that we would do more along all lines of our church work than we had ever done in all the past, and I do hope that each one of us will keep our promise and bring a better report to the district conference than ever before. Dr. Chas. C. Jacobs has given me his word to be with us. Now, brethren, get a goodly number of cash subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by the district conference. I have promised that we would help to make the paper self-supporting by Oct. 31. Yours for the good of the cause,

O. F. NIBLACK.

"LA CREOLE" HAIR RESTORER

Much of the physical beauty of man or woman is dependent on the hair. Keep this "crowning glory" in best condition with "La Creole" Hair Restorer, the preparation used by famous Creole beauties. It makes the hair lie straight and smooth for a time, cures dandruff, prevents falling hair and restores original color to gray hair.

UNEXCELLED FOR PURPOSE.

Mrs. Melissa Dancy, of 281 Orleans street, Memphis, Tenn., is one of the most prominent women in the colored society of this city, in both a social and religious way. Mrs. Dancy has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for many years and takes pleasure in saying:

"Your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer is unexcelled for the purposes for which you recommend it, viz., to keep the hair in a soft and glossy condition and to prevent it from falling out."

Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

Monroe, La., Jones Church, D. S. Kilbourne.—On July 1-2 the second quarterly conference was held with the presiding elder, J. O. Brown, in the chair. Every report was in hand. The conference was spiritual and financial. The sermon was helpful and the church had new life and light. Mr. H. W. Harper presented the church a fine lamp. Paid presiding elder in full. Raised $25.

Baker, C. D. C. Bryan, Pastor.— I am having glorious times; 102 took the Sacrament the first Sunday night; two souls were added to the church. The church is crowded every Sunday night. The Sunday school is in a prosperous condition. We expect to make the Epworth League one of the best on the Baton Rouge District. The 13th of July a party, led by J. B. Cooper, Harriet Patterson, Eatha R. Williams, Mary Cooper, Lydia Young, Elizabeth Cooper and others, brought 220 choice pounds, purse and other things to the pastor and wife. Bro. J. B. Cooper, a talented young man, made an able address, welcoming the new pastor to Thompson Chapel.

Mt. Zion, D. S. Smith, Pastor.—I came to this point the third Sunday in last month. I preached and administered the Lord's Supper to a large number. Eight souls came to the altar for prayer.

Palmetto, Jos. Johnson, Pastor.—The church is alive here. Presiding Elder J. J. Obee was with us the 7-9 and preached a rousing sermon to a large crowd. Raised $7.75 and paid the elder his quarter.

Melville, E. V. Taylor, Pastor.—Sisters Maggie Brown and M. L. Robertson gave the pastor a $3.50 hat for the District Conference.

St. James, White Hall, D. J. Price, Pastor.—Mrs. Mary Pardo, district manager of N. O. North District W. H. M. Society, was at this charge during the month of July and organized an auxiliary with Mrs. Daniel Baptiste, president; Mrs. Ann Johnson, 1st vice president; Mrs. Georgie Dimes, 2nd vice; Mrs. Annie Williams, 3rd vice; Miss Anna Dimes, 4th vice; Mrs. Annie Steward, treasurer; Miss C. A. Bibbs, secretary; Mrs. E. M. Ridely, Cor. Sec. Fifteen members in all.

New Roads, R. Jones.—Sunday was a grand time at Tugtal M. E. Church. The Woman's Home Missionary Society is doing a grand work. The district manager, Mrs. Victoria Jones, has organized the following auxiliaries; New Roads, Morganza, Lettworth, Tallulah. We are now building a new church at Morganza and we are moving on.

Houma, W. S. Harris.—Clark and Clay Dramatic Club of Wesley Chapel gave a grand exhibition the 20th of July at the church. Door receipts, $37. Mr. W. L. Mann, a well-to-do carpenter of this city, recently presented to the pastor a fine hat. A host of friends met at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Ford the 24th inst. to witness the christening of their son, Harrison Herman. In connection with the christening the Doctor celebrated his 39th birthday. He received many valuable presents.

White Hall, D. J. Price, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference was held July 22-23. The Rev. J. F. Marshall, D. D., P. E., was at his post doing his full duty. The reports were good and replete, although we have had continued rains since February. Brother Allen Johnson was elected representative class leader. Misses C. A. Bibbs, E. E. Simms, Irene Turner and Messrs. Aaron Price and A. Turner, students from this charge, were attending our schools. Mrs. M. A. Johnson and Mrs. F. Seals, Mrs. T. Braxton and Mrs. E. M. Ridely were elected to represent the stewardesses and King's Daughters.

Fouche, S. McGruder, Pastor.—Our rally at Casper to build the belfrey was a success. Raised $42.29. Mr. H. Williams, leader of class No. 1, raised $20.31; Mr. Price Kyle, leader of class No. 2, raised $19.33.

Washington, S. Greene, Pastor—Sunday, July 30th, we held our Children's Day exercises on the La Teche, at St. Mark M. E. church. Collection $16.35. August 3rd, a goodly number of choice groceries and purse were brought to the parsonage by a pound party. May God bless our people.

Centreville, Charles C. Landry, Pastor Verdunville Charge—Mrs. L. H. Butler and Mrs. Clara Graham assisted by friends presented the church with a very fine communion set. The same was received by the pastor in a few well chosen words. A first-class safe was put in the parsonage by Steward sisters. The fair given by the Sunday school under the direction of Mrs. V. J. Landry, Mrs. Florence Ballansaw and Miss Addie Kertman was a decided success. An Epworth League Chapter was organized by the pastor on last Sunday with an enrollment of 34 members. Mrs. V. J. Landry, first vice president; Mr. H. Richardson, Jr., second vice-president; Miss T. Ballanson, third vice president; Mr. F. Ballansaw, fourth vice president; Miss Addie Kertman, secretary; and Miss Della Ishman, treasurer. The League was named in honor of Miss Inez Godman.

Bluff Creek, B. Carr, Pastor—My Second Quarterly conference was held at Beach Grove by the Pastor. The officials were present with written report. We have not seen our presiding Elder this year. This work is alive, many come to the altar for prayer. We raised for all purposes this quarter $88; paid to Pastor $58; other collections $30.

A company of friends, July 8th, led by Mrs. Martha Wilson and Mrs. Harriet Johnson and Mr. Joe East brought to the parsonage a purse and several pounds of choice groceries. After singing and prayer two subscribers were secured for Southwestern.

Lake Arthur, T. B. Oville, Pastor—A very successful camp meeting, held July 21-30, was conducted by Rev. B. J. Reddix. His sermons were listened to by large and appreciative audiences composed of the representative people of both races, and created sentiment in favor of Methodism and did much for the spiritual uplift of all who attended. The song services were conducted by J. H. McGaffey of Lake Charles, La. Through the untiring efforts of Bros. R. L. Wilson, C. M. Gordon, E. N. Wallace, the King's Daughters, stewardesses and myself, a fine church has been erected, which does credit to the town. Mr. O. E. Austin is the contractor. Presiding Elder J. J. Obee's instructions are wholesome throughout the work. July 16th, through the efforts of Sisters Bettie Gordon, Hannah Wilson and Rebecca Henninson, $29 was raised on our church. Rev. C. C. Dorsey, of Jennings, was with us and some of his members. Also members from the Baptist church. Among the earnest workers are Ada Perry and Emma Muton.

Baton Rouge, St. Mark Church, Chester Cannon.—Our second quarterly conference met with J. W. Turner, P. E., in the chair. Reports showed improvement along all lines. Rev. M. P. Franklin fills his place as captain of the host. Raised this quarter $317.82. Paid presiding elder in full.

MISSISSIPPI.

Harriston, Miss., W. N. G. Lipscomb, Pastor.—We raised with the help of a small crowd and the few clubs able to report, $56.50, the last Sunday in July. This rally was for repairing of the church. The work is in good condition.

Ackerman, Miss.—We have four Sunday schools on this work. Following is our Children's Day collection: Ethel, D. A. Washing, Supt., $13.25; Lenora Chapel, Mrs. Lenora Johnson, Supt., $14.07; McCool, Ed. Quales, Supt., $10.25; White's, Mrs. M. Ashford, Supt., $52.07.

REV. Z. T. GAYDEN.

Rev. Zachery Taylor Gayden died at his home in Clinton, July 22nd, at 5 o'clock a. m., aged 53 years. He superannuated, by his own request, at the Annual Conference held in Monroe, La., January 1905. He was licensed local preacher by Wm. Daily, in 1875. While local preacher he served as pastor at Mt. Carmel, Macedonia and St. Peter, then known as the Comet Circuit. In 1878 he joined the conference and was ordained deacon by Bishop Wm. L. Harris, D. D., LL. D. In 1881 he was ordained elder by Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, D. D., in Shreveport, La. He served the following appointments: White Hall, three years; Thompson's Chapel, two years; Clinton, two years; Plaquemine, three years; West Baton Rouge or Port Allen, three years; Alexandria, two years; Glencoe, Crawford, two years; New Iberia, two years; Laharpe Street or Scott Chinn Chapel, one year; Woodlawn, two years; Slidell, two years. His funeral was conducted at Mount Zion M. E. Church, Rev. F. Walker, pastor. The following ministers took part in the services: Revs. F. Walker, master of ceremonies; Rev. Payne, at the organ. The first hymn was "Asleep In Jesus." Prayer by Rev. Booker of the Baptist Church. The 14th chapter of the Book of Job was read by Rev. J. Tutson. Second hymn, "Servant of God, Well Done." Rev. Walker gave a sketch of the life and faithfulness of the deceased. Rev. William Naylor of the A. M. E. Church spoke of Rev. Gayden's boyhood days and impressed on the great crowd assembled to copy his life, as a rule for them. Rev. Payne gave the history of Rev. Gayden's ministerial life. Capt. Packward, representing the white citizens of Clinton, spoke in high terms of Rev. Gayden's character. Rev. H. James, of Wesley Church, Baton Rouge, preached the funeral sermon. Rev. Ford, of Asbury Chapel, pronounced the benediction. The body was laid to rest in the Harrison Cemetery, Clinton, La.

WILSON—Sister Mary Wilson departed this life June 23, at Rosedale, La. She was a member of Hartzell Chapel 38 years and was a faithful worker, aged 82 years. She leaves many friends to mourn her departure. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, J. L. Augustus.

WALTERS—Sister Hattie Walters departed this life at Brinkly, Ark., April 23. Before she died she shouted and said her way was clear. She leaves a host of brothers and sisters. She was the sister of Dr. J. C. Sherrill, who is in Africa. A. R. STEPHENS, P. C.

[Received July 15, 1905.—EDITOR.]

MEGGS—It was on the morning of the 7th of May (Sunday morning), at Bay St. Louis, Miss., when the soul of Sister Elvira Meggs "shuffled off this mortal coil and went to that bourne from whence no traveler returns." She was a staunch member of St. Paul M. E. Church, and had been since childhood. She died in the full triumph of faith, with glory in her soul, and the everlasting songs of Zion upon her lips. Sister Elvira Meggs, as well as her husband, Brother Peter Meggs, came from the best stock of Bay St. Louis, and by dint of earnest effort had succeeded in acquiring a lovely home with pleasant surroundings. Sister Meggs leaves a husband and five children to mourn their loss. J. E. HOLMES.

[Received July 19, 1905.—EDITOR.]

DAVIS—Mrs. Carolina Davis died at her home in Gainesville, Fla., July 15. She was a faithful Christian and member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at this place, where she lived, for 40 years. She always done what she could for the Lord and His cause. As she lived so she died in full triumph of the faith, ready and willing to depart to a better land. Two sons survive her. Her son Lawrence "supported" and cared for her until she died. He is one of Mt. Pleasant's faithful and willing workers and a wealthy citizen. The funeral services were attended on Sunday afternoon. A large audience was out in token of the respect and esteem in which she was held. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Deas, attended the funeral services.

Cox—Mrs. Anna Eliza Cox died July 10, 1905, in the sixty-second year of her age. She was born in Holly Springs, Miss., and fell asleep in Jesus at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dr. J. R. Francis, Washington, D. C., Pennsylvania avenue. Sister Cox was a member of Simpson Tabernacle M. E. Church of Austin, Texas, and was greatly loved and esteemed by all. She came to Austin eight years ago to see her mother. Sister Cox having lost her health and feeling that she could never regain it, she bade her mother good-bye and left for Washington, D. C., to die with her children. She also stated that she had asked the Lord just to give her fifteen minutes to chat with her children after her arrival. But the Lord always gives us more than we ask for and Sister Cox was spared five days instead of fifteen minutes. A few days prior to Sister Cox's leaving Austin, she raised $8.50 for benevolence and told the writer that she knew she was ready, as she was straight with God and her church. She leaves an aged mother, two brothers, Hon. Wm. Holland, superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum of the state of Texas; Hon. John Holland, Mrs. Kate Long, wife of Hon. Long, of Mexia, and a host of friends to mourn her demise. REV. S. E. JONES...

BURKS—Sister Rhoda Burks, the wife of G. F. Burks, a steward of our church, departed this life July 21, 1905, at Dublin, Va. She was born Dec. 1, 1869; married to G. F. Burks, June 5, 1890. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for twenty years. She leaves a husband and two sisters and two brothers and five children and many friends to mourn her departure. Sister Burks was a president of the Epworth League for four years and at her death she was a superintendent of the Junior League. She was one of the best members of this church and a loyal Christian to the church and pastor.

A. W. RANDOLPH.

MARTIN—Randle Martin, a faithful member and the only local preacher on the Columbus (La.) and Negreet Circuit, died May 5th, 1905. His burial was attended by the pastor, Rev. W. C. W. Turner, assisted by Rev. Walker Lee, of the Baptist Church.

ERVIN—Sister Elcy Ervin was born Jan. 5, 1861, and joined the church August 15, 1875, under Rev. Hubbard Kellum, our pastor at that time, and has been a faithful member ever since,

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signals of Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends.

Such a condition calls for a prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

"I have had so much benefit from your medicines am glad to say a few words that you may use for publication," writes Mrs. J. R. Downes, Crystal Lake, Conn. "Had been troubled with a complication of diseases for over two years, but kidneys and liver bothered me most. Some of my worst ailments were headache, frequent pains around heart and under right shoulder-blade. My hands and feet were cold nearly all the time, and I had such chilliness between shoulders. Some days cared but little for food; I lost flesh; felt so tired and miserable it seemed I couldn't do any housework. Took medicine from my physician, but received no benefit. Bought a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after taking it I felt so much better we determined to give it a fair trial. Appetite soon improved and gradually the disorders disappeared until now I am well."

until taken ill last November, 1904, and departed this life June 28, 1905. She otld her pastor, Rev. Turner, that there was nothing between her and her God. She leaves three sisters and three brothers, one of them Rev. Dave Shelby, our pastor at Morgan City, and a host of friends to mourn. Her funeral was attended by Rev. Snell of the Baptist Church and the pastor, Rev. W. C. W. Turner.

MCCOLLOM—Brother Cary McCollom, a faithful member, class leader and steward of Wesley Chapel, North Marlboro, S. C., after a few weeks' illness departed this life on the 26th of March, 1905, in full triumph of faith. It will be hard to find another to fill his place. He leaves a wife, two little ones, a large family and a host of friends to mourn his loss. Our loss is heaven's gain. His funeral was preached by the pastor on the first Sunday in June to a large congregation, both colored and white.

J. P. ROBINSON.

FLEMINGS—On June 12, 1905, Sister Dinah Flemings, aged 34 years. She was a member of the Mt. Zion M. E. Church for 15 years. After working from early in the morning and returning home at 12 o'clock, she fell dead. It is supposed that she was overheated. The church has lost a loyal member and the community a good citizen. But heaven rejoices over the gain of a saint. She leaves her dear husband, mother, brothers, sisters, children, one a baby three months old, and other relatives and friends to mourn the loss of her. But heaven rejoices. The funeral sermon was preached at Mount Zion M. E. Church at 2 p. m., on June 13th. There was a large crowd in attendance at the funeral. The following ministers assisted in the service: Brothers A. Kempt, W. T. Chapman, N. Roberts. The funeral sermon was preached by the pastor, E. H. Clark.

MOORE—William Moore, eldest son of David and Lizzie Moore, departed this life on the 11th of June, at Clinton, Tenn., after an illness of three months. The deceased was one of our most industrious, progressive and generous-hearted young men. He leaves a wife and one child, one year old, to mourn his loss, besides a host of admiring friends. The funeral was conducted from the Asbury M. E. Church, of which he was an honored member, by the writer, assisted by P. E. W. A. Webber. E. H. FORREST.

DENNIS—Sister Rose Dennis departed this life on June 17th, at Natchitoches, La., and was buried on the 18th, aged about 35 years.

W. J. M. PRICE.

ROBERSON—Sister Victoria Roberson departed this life June 15th, at Dennis Mills, La. She was a faithful member of Andrew Chapel M. E. Church. She was sick but a few days. She leaves three daughters, one son, and husband, Bro. Wm. Roberson, and many friends and relatives to mourn. The funeral was conducted in the church, by her ex-pastor, B. Carr. Rev. Charley Williams; J. D. Banks, P. E.

MANEY—Mrs. Anna Maney fell asleep in Jesus June 4, at Murfreesboro, Tenn., after a protracted illness of several weeks. She had been a member of the church for twelve years. She leaves five children, a sister and a grief stricken husband. Her funeral was conducted by the writer and Rev. Wesley Lillard.

C. E. ALEXANDER, Pastor.

SIMPSON—Charles Wesley Simpson, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Simpson, departed this life June 7, 1905, at Rollo, Mo., aged 8 months and 6 days. The funeral services were held June 8th, at 2:30 p. m., from Elkin's Chapel, conducted by Rev. T. H. Fulghen, and the remains were laid to rest in Rolla cemetery.

Cotton Plant Circuit, S. B. Davis, P. C.—A storm begun about six miles from our house and blew until it struck our home. It brought many good things to us. The origin of this storm was the good sisters of New Bethlehem, who are always ready to do something good for the Master.

Crawfordsville, A. L. Greene.—Our second quarterly conference was held July 15-16, Rev. B. J. Griffin, P. E., in the chair. The pastor, Rev. C. A. Taylor, was present. The pastor seemed to be in good cheer, also the leaders reported cheerfully. Sunday was a high day. The presiding elder preached us another of his able sermons; 26 partook of the Lord's Supper. Total for the quarter, $63.03.

A RELIABLE HEART CURE.

Alice A. Wetmore, Box 67, Norwich, Conn., says if any sufferer from Heart Disease will write her, she will, without charge, direct them to the perfect cure she used.

Doings of the Workmen

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Dennison, Katie Jackson, Reporter.—Dr. N. J. Johnson, the presiding elder of the Austin District, West Texas Conference, visited in Dennison a few days ago. During his stay he delivered three noble sermons to a crowded house. His many friends were glad to meet him again.

Greeleyville, E. J. McCullum.—Our 2nd quarterly conference convened April 14, with our business-like presiding elder, C. R. Brown, in the chair. Reports were intelligently rendered and were fairly good considering the season of the year. Dr. Brown preached one of his powerful and scholarly sermons. Miss Rhoda F. Keels, after completing a course of study at Claflin University, is home to the delight of her many friends. Mr. J. T. W. McDowel, our only colored merchant, returned on May 16 with his accomplished bride, Miss Egrathy Boatwright, of Sumerton, S. C. They are receiving congratulations from their many friends and are at home to the same. One of our oldest landmarks and familiar figures, Adam Keels, was called to his reward April 11. He was 94 years old, being born February, 1811. He was converted in 1848 and joined the M. E. Church, and was a staunch member of the same from then until his death.

Bamberg.—Rev. H. H. Matthews, our pastor, surely took the right step in the right direction when he came on the charge by getting out a directory for the charge that would be creditable to any of our churches in the cities or large towns. Such a directory should be carried out by every officer and member of the charge. Smyrna church has purchased and placed a bell in the tower. When the tower is completed it will cost about $75 or $80. Our pastor, Rev. Matthews, is an excellent preacher and an orator of no mean parts.

Galilee church has collected some funds during the present year for a bell and the young people are determined to raise the balance.

Mary Ann Radcliffe, an aged member, of Galilee church, fell asleep in Jesus since our first quarterly conference. She left a high Christian testimony, stating that she made her peace with God and went sweeping through the gate of the New Jerusalem.

The second quarterly conference of the charge was held at Galilee Church on the 10th of May. The Rev. J. S. Thomas, A. B., presiding elder, presided. Elder Thomas is a disciplinarian indeed, so the charge is blessed in having both elder and pastor as disciplinarians. The annual sermon of the Rosa Beauty Lodge was preached on the second Sabbath of May by Rev. H. H. Matthews. The church was packed until there was no more room within and crowds were on either side of it. The preacher selected his text from Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ." Subject, "Brotherly kindness." The preacher handled the text in a masterly manner and held the audience spellbound for more than one hour.

TENNESSEE.

Sparta Station, I. S. Rucker, Pastor.—Since conference we have erected at this point a parsonage worth $350, of which sum only a small amount remains unpaid. Our two weeks' revival held with the assistance of Rev. A. Wooten, pastor of Bon Air Mission, closed with 38 conversions and 34 additions. The revival held with Rev. Wooten at Bon Air resulted in 13 conversions, making a total of 51 conversions and 45 additions.

Paris, M. L. Easley.—Presiding Elder J. A. Moore held our 2nd quarterly conference April 7-8. Good reports were presented. The following Sunday morning the elder preached a powerful sermon and at night an able sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. R. B. Ross. Forty-seven persons communed at the Lord's table. Collected during the day, $16.50; paid the elder's claim in full. Our pastor will begin soon the erection of a new church in Paris.

Crescent City Notes

Bro. William Fisher, a prominent local preacher of Williams Chapel, visited the business department this week and purchased several books in his course of study, amounting to $4.50.

Mallalieu Chapel.—At the Class Rally on the fourth Sunday in July, the leaders reported $17.50. On the first Sunday in this month 67 communed. Collection, $22.60. On Wednesday, cleaning-up day, the pastor along with Bros. J. T. Jordan, Adam Thomas and Andy Sims, received 80 wagonloads of dirt, filling up the church lot, making a total of about 150 loads put on the lot in all. Bro. Stephen Calhoun led the grass-cutting, thus the place is another looking piece of property, enhancing its value as well as the looks. The departments of Epworth League have paid over to the church this year $25.25; Spiritual Department, $11.55; Mercy and Help, $5.60; Literature, $3.87; Social, $4.23.

Wesley Chapel.—On Sunday morning the funeral service of Bessie Hillburn, one of our Sunday-school scholars, was conducted. On Sunday night the Epworth League held their exercises with solos and several telling of the work done during the week. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, Rev. Jones, addressed the meeting. On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the following exhorters preached their trial sermons: Arthur Anderson, Richard Bolden and M. Thomas. The presiding elder was present. Total collection, $26.69.

The Independent Benevolent Mutual Aid Association celebrated their thirteenth anniversary at First St. M. E. Church on last Sabbath night. The sermon was acceptably preached by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Tircuit. A brief sketch by the secretary showed the society in the most healthy financial condition. It is easily one of the best conducted benevolent organizations among the colored people of this city. This society has never given a ball, or a picnic, or resorted to any of those things characteristic of such organizations in order to make money, and which so often disgrace the race. Our staunch layman, Brother Robert Armstead, is and has been its president for nine years.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting at their last meeting adopted strong and beautiful resolutions on the death of Bishop Joyce.

Wesley Chapel sends in twenty-five subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN this week. Who'll be the next?

Doings of the Workmen

TENNESSEE.

Memphis, S. A. Martin.—Our anniversary day exercises were quite successful. A fitting program was rendered. Each participant acquitted himself creditably. The new music rendered was heartily appreciated, as was also the decorations, which had transformed the church into a bower of beauty.

Sparta, Ann Simbs.—Our Sunday school at this point is in better condition than ever before. Rev. J. L. Massey, our pastor, pays especial attention to the Sunday school work, which he supplied recently with our church literature. This is, of course, a great help.

Lewisburg, G. W. Marsh.—Our presiding elder, Rev. A. Phillips, was with us May 20-21. Paid the elder $13; pastor, Rev. T. W. Pratt, $58.49; total for the quarter, $71.49. All departments of the church are thriving.

VIRGINIA.

Tazewell, John Sinkford.—Our third quarterly conference was one of the best ever held here. Our benevolence is good. Raised for pastor and presiding elder this quarter, $108.69. Sunday's services were good; 46 communicants partook of the sacrament.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves

Read this Letter to you about the

Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from over work or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnishes the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine, happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

Editorial

The yellow fever situation is improving, altho on Monday of this week 61 new cases, 9 deaths and 16 infected places were reported. The total cases to date is placed at 1,446; the total number of deaths, 205; total infected places, 322; cases under treatment at present, 328. The infection has scattered to the uptown section of the city and is no longer confined to the Italians. The Public Health and Marine Hospital Service is energetic in its efforts to stamp out the fever, and it is claimed that within a short period the situation will be under control, if the fever is not entirely stamped out.

The life of Jesus Christ was a constant paradox. He was omnipotent and yet He was the least disposed to manifest His mighty power; He was the Lord of all and yet He was the servant of all, and taught the lesson of humility and service in washing the disciples' feet. Altho "being in the form of God thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made Himself of no reputation and took upon Himself the form of a servant and was made in the likenes of men." The dominant elements in the life of Jesus Christ were service and humility. What are the dominant elements in your life?

An army officer must be extremely careful of his relations with the men in the ranks lest he weaken his authority over his men. It is said that familiarity breeds contempt. One must maintain a dignified distance from those to be ruled or else discipline will be destroyed. How different is all of this to what Jesus Christ taught. He came to establish a kingdom of which He was to be the head, but He ate with publicans and sinners. He made friends with the most lowly. He had nothing to lose in his intimate association with His most humble followers. The closer He got to them the more He was loved, and honored, and revered, and followed. A strong, upright, faultless personality will command respect any time and anywhere.

The government of Russia is an absolute monarchy, but the safety of the Czar depends upon the loyalty and fidelity of his subjects and especially of those who guard the palace. The Czar is supreme and yet helpless but for the support of his body-guard to protect him and his army to enforce his commands. The kingdom of God is an absolute monarchy. The King, however, is secure in His right and power, regardless of the fidelity and loyalty of his subjects. He may be renounced and deserted, but never dethroned. Many may unfaithful prove, but His kingdom abideth. We may deny, desert, assail and rebel, but His kingdom stands. To rebel against Him, the King of all the earth, means a fruitless life in this world and a miserable life in the world to come.

NO DANGER

Some of our readers are refusing to receive the SOUTHWESTERN—indeed, all mail from New Orleans is barred by certain towns. Let it be understood that it has been proven by experiments repeatedly that yellow fever is transmitted only by the mosquito. There is no danger, therefore, in receiving your SOUTHWESTERN. Yellow fever cannot be transmitted through the mail, hence there is no danger.

WORLD CONQUERORS

There is a struggle for world supremacy, hence the constant watch of one nation of all

REV. S. A. PEELER, A. M., B. D.,
President-Elect, Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C.

others; especially are the movements of aggressive nations scrutinized. Defenses are thrown up and navies constructed and armies enlarged. Even then there is a cry of "Yellow Peril," "Black Peril" and the like. That a civilization must be tolerated for the reason that it is white, black or yellow is nonsense, and he who resorts to such a defense reveals the weakness of his claim. A superior civilization will eventually triumph, even tho it be that of black men. There need be no fear of a black peril or yellow peril as such. "The world is to be conquered," says the Saturday Evening Post, "there is no doubt about that. But not by 'Chink' or 'Jap' or any man with a gun, whether yellow, black or red or white. The triumvirate that is to conquer and administer it is Intelligence, Democracy and Industry. Ignoramuses, real and reputed. 'gentlemen' and 'ladies' with aristocratic yearnings, and parasites of every kind, should take note and warning."

"Intelligence, Democracy and Industry"—these are the world conquerors, and eventually all the world will own allegiance to this mighty triumverate. Let these three reign in spite of the color of the possessors.

DISFRANCHISEMENT IN MARYLAND

The campaign is now raging in Maryland under the direct leadership of the Gorman wing of the Democratic party seeking by constitutional enactment to limit the right of franchise in that State. The old-time argument of white supremacy and Negro domination constitute the chief points of their argument. The Baltimore Sun correctly states that "great numbers of Democrats are not worried over the Negro 'bugaboo.'" Any person who is at all familiar with the statistics of Maryland knows that it is not possible for Negroes to dominate. The only reason that this argument is used is because it catches the popular favor of the poorer element of whites. It has no existence in fact. The result of the election cannot yet be told, but strenuous efforts are being made to defeat the proposition. One of the most interesting incidents of the campaign was the meeting held recently in Salisbury, Md., by the Negroes to consider the proposed constitutional amendment. These Negroes assembled, passed unanimously a resolution requesting the Republican party of the State not to nominate or appoint any colored man to office, for the time being at least. The Baltimore Methodist remarks that, "should this action be followed generally by the Negroes of the South, it would change the whole complexion of the race problem in this country." Not a bit of it. If the Negro were to agree to his unqualified disfranchisement, the South would not let up, for there is scarcely any one line on which the Negro is opposed. All say that he must not seek social equality; others say he must renounce his citizenship and yield up his right to vote; others say that he must seek no education beyond the primary grades, many claiming that he is to be only the hewer of wood and drawer of water. In fact, if every Negro in the country were to renounce his ambition to hold federal office and agree to his disfranchisement that would not help the question. That all the Negroes will not consent to this is evident. Why should they?

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

It cannot be stated at this writing, Tuesday, whether the Peace Commissioners now in session at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, will effect a peace treaty or not. The probabilities are that they will not agree. Some things, however, have been settled. Russia has recognized the "preponderant" influence of Japan in Korea, giving Japan the right of preserving order in the civil administration, Japan, of course, binding herself to the territorial integrity of Korea and the policy of the "open door." Manchuria is to be evacuated and restored to the sovereignty and civil administration of China, and an open door for all nations.

II. Where I First Landed on African Soil

By Bishop I. B. Scott D. D.

As I closed my last letter I think I was telling the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN of the employment of native boys on coast steamers. The tribe that is most generally engaged thus is the Kroo. They seem born for a seafaring life, and of all the natives are the most at home on the sea. Give most any Kroo boy who comes paddling along side the steamer a shilling and he will capsize his canoe for your entertainment. As soon as he comes to the surface he will tread water while he rights the canoe and gets the water out. That being done, he goes in again without any very great difficulty and is ready for most any other adventure you name, even though it be to dive and catch a bright coin you may toss into the sea. Working on the steamers is in some respects a rough life, and they learn much that is injurious to them, but it must be admitted that their contact with the rough white seamen is not without its compensations. They learn to do things after civilized methods, and such knowledge stands them well in hand in after years. Not only so, but civilization creeps in upon them in other ways besides. They pick up a little of the English language and some of them learn to have more interest in those who may be in their native towns trying to teach them "book" and "God way." In other words, because they can speak a little English or "'Merican" as many call it, and because they find out that there is something more in the world to learn, they are more easily approached by the missionary, and are often quite helpful to him. But let's go back into the streets of Sierra Leone.

Look at those boys carrying that hammock. It has a shelter made of black oilcloth, roof-shaped, and a stalwart boy at each corner where the frame rests on his head. The hammock swings under the shelter. See how proudly they step and each is is straight as an arrow. The man in the hammock may have them hired by the month, by the day, or just for the trip; I can't tell. Still, no matter which they are not getting much for it, that, is not much from the American standpoint.

Now look about you: here are persons dressed in every style imaginable. See those naked natives; they haven't even the loin cloth, but simply a little piece of cloth about the size of a pocket handkerchief which passes between the thighs being made fast to a string around the waist. And here we are with cork hats on and umbrellas besides trying to keep the sun off, where those fellows not only haven't any hat on but have even shaved their heads. There come some others who have on the clout or loin cloth; there are others who have, in addition to the clout, a clean looking country cloth which they wrap around the body like one would a big shawl and then throw the end over the shoulder. Now look at these fellows with long loose shirts or robes over their great baggy pants; see, too,their little caps, generally red; they are Mandingoes, Mohammedans, and evidently feel themselves better than all the world besides. In that little case fastened to the string about their necks is a few words taken from the Koran, that's a charm. Here come some native women. See what a basket of vegetables and other things some of them have on their heads. And each one has her babe in—no, not in her arms, but securely fastened to her back resting on her hips where he is held by a large country cloth that comes around the body under the arms and is tied across the mother's chest. They walk as erect as any empty-handed lady possibly could along Broadway in New York city. In fact, they seem to have forgotten the basket and the baby too. Well they have come to town to sell their products and don't you think they can't drive a bargain, for they can. These other persons dressed like English gentlemen are the descendants of the original Sierra Leoneons. You notice they all speak politely, very. Well that seems characteristic of them. Some of them are merchants or business men on other lines and many are simply clerks, (pronounced by the English "clarks") in the stores, or departments of government.

Step this way and one of our party says he will go through the form with a native father in arrangeing to marry his daughter. Listen: "Dady, whose gal this be." The man responds, "He be my gal." "Go way now, you know he don't be your gal." The father says: "Yes, he be my gal, ain't I born him?" "Well, Daddy, I want him for be my wife." Then he turned to the girl and said: "You go for be my wife?" She hung her head and made no reply, so the father said, "Tell him yes," and she said yes. Then they went on and arranged that they should meet right there where the father was selling vegetables, the next day at 3 o'clock and the transfer be made. I do not know the price to be paid in Sierra Leone but I find it differs with different tribes. In some it is one bullock and in others it is more. The price of the bullock or cow is just as acceptable, which I find as a rule about $30.

Rum, rum, rum! Rum and gin, what a sway they have in Africa! Many natives would rather have these for their wares than to have the cash. The traders know this and supply themselves accordingly. Hence as we walk along the streets, nearly every store is thus equipped. But in some respects it seems that the civilized portion of the population is suffering more from the effects of rum than are the natives. Or, it is just possible that the natives are being born so fast that t can't be missed when they die.

I learn that the native customs and super tions creep in on the civilized portion of community more rapidly than do the influen of civilization take hold of the natives. It said to be thought that about every other ci ized citizen who dies in some parts of Af was certainly hurt or tricked, otherwise kno as poisoned in some way or another. At any r such is the common belief. The result is t there is little real neighborly fellowship amo the people. They are afraid to drop in on ea other and eat together as people do in hig civilized communities. To the superstitious i persons die natural deaths.

Then there is the subjection of woman, if may so term it. Among the natives she follo her liege lord and bears the burdens. That c tom has crept over just enough to place a keep woman in the background among the civ ized. She seems timid and embarrassed and i presses one that she does not feel herself t companion and associate of her husband. It m come of the fact that she may not be as well ed cated; I know not, but purpose to give the que tion some thought.

I shall never be able to describe my feelin when first I stepped from the little boat th brought me from the steamer to African so This much I do recall, however, that as I look upon the partially clad natives, representativ of the teeming millions yet untouched by eith the teacher or the preacher, an awful feeling my responsibility, of the enormity of the task a signed me, came down upon me. I stood co fronted at last by the work expected of m There they were, naked, chattering, contente happy. Evidently from their standpoint the needed nothing, not even the Gospel. And y as I looked about me and saw what the Gosp had done and is yet doing for Sierra Leone, an have since found it doing at other points, it wa evident to me that the old Gospel, even in Afric "is the power of God unto salvation." The Lo be praised!

Freetown, Sierra Leone, is about 250 mil north of Monrovia, Liberia, a run of twenty four hours for a steamer of the class of th "Oron." We left there about five o'clock on afternoon and made it to Monrovia the nex day about the same hour. Through the cap tain's powerful glass I could see the promontor on which stands the lighthouse many mile away. The promontory is the most northerl point of Cape Montserrado, on which Monro via is situated, and the little city is concealed i the valley just back of that point. It can be see from the harbor on the left of the cape, or from the ocean as you pass south to the right of th cape. This is where I live. Come and se me!

The Great Rally Day of the Sunday School Union

By Rev. E. M. Jones, D. D., Field Agent.

September 24, 1905 has been fixed by the Sunday School Union as its Rally Day.

The other benevolent societies of the church have had their special days, when their claims have been considered and collections taken.

The last Sabbath in September has been designated as the Sunday School Union Rally Day. Upon this day the claims and work of this most important department of the church shall be considered and offerings shall be taken. The noble object of the Sunday School Union, its splendid success in the past and the magnificent work that it is doing now, should commend it to the most favorable consideration of the whole church. As the Discipline directs every church and Sunday school should have a fair chance to contribute to this cause.

Colored Conferences—Especially are we very anxious that every church and Sunday school in our twenty colored conferences shall observe this day. It will afford a fine opportunity to create a new interest and put new life in our Sunday school work. This great anniversary day, if properly and enthusiastically celebrated, will verily prove a blessing and inspiration to our Sunday schools. Therefore, we call upon and urge every pastor and superintendent to observe this Rally Day.

Programs—The Sunday School Union will furnish a fine 16-page service for just 80 cents per hundred. This service will not only be inspiring to the young, but will be helpful to all.

Let the pastors and superintendents send in their orders and begin early to make preparation for this great Rally Day. 500,000 of these programs should be purchased and used by the schools.

Rally Day Collection—It is expected and earnestly urged that every church and Sunday school in our Methodism will take a large and liberal collection for the Sunday School Union. This society should have $75,000 to do the great work that God gives it to do. And $75,000 could not be better invested by the church than in this department. So then the 24th of September (or as near to it as convenient) will give every church and Sunday school an opportunity to give liberally and cheerfully to this helpful and most important society of the church.

We ask all of our presiding elders, pastors, superintendents, teachers and Sunday school workers to join with us in making this one of the greatest days in our great church.

Observe the day, take the collection, and then let us hear from you.

Attacting the Native Problem

By Rev. J. H. Reed, D. D.

Sunday, June 11, 1905, marked a new era in the history of Krootown, Liberia, Africa. The occasion was the dedication of the Georgia Patten-Washington Memorial Building by Bishop I. B. Scott, D. D. For many years our mission work in Krootown has been hindered for the want of a suitable place of worship where the people could be gathered. This building was given by Mr. D. W. Washington, of Memphis, Tenn., in harmony with the wishes of his wife, who gave her life as a medical missionary. The material was sent to Miss Mary Sharp, who had the building erected on the present spot in Krootown, at a personal expense of $313.25. Bishop Scott, after some careful and considerate negotiation, assumed this extra expense and paid the full sum to Miss Sharp, she releasing all claims upon the building.

The building contains two large rooms well adapted to school and church purposes. It is constructed of pine lumber covered entirely with corrugated iron. When entirely completed it will have cost nearly $2,000.

The amount above mentioned for the purpose of satisfying said claim was obtained from our Sunday school of the First M. E. Church, Monrovia, by Bishop Scott. Indeed, a most commendable example of self help.

GEORGIA PATTON-WASHINGTON MEMORIAL
Krootown, Liberia.

When the dedicatory services were held the place was crowded with Kroos and their children, who came to witness this new thing for their redemption. Bishop Scott opened the service. Prayer was offered by Brother Dounce Herman, the pastor, who prayed in the Kroo dialect. The dedicatory service, according to our Methodist Discipline, was then taken up. First lesson was read by J. H. Reed; the second lesson by Dr. A. P. Camphor. Bishop Scott spoke in high terms upon the life and character of Dr. Georgia Patten-Washington. As the Bishop told the thrilling story of the life and consecrated work of this noble woman, these simple folk sat and listened with a profound interest and manifest gratitude.

The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Bishop, and made a deep and lasting impression upon the assembled heathen multitude and betokened big things for rootown Methodism. After the service Dr. A. P. Camphor made appropriate remarks.

A day school for the Kroo children has been organized, also a good Sunday School. This, together with the regular preaching services that will be held in this building will be through all the coming years a fitting memorial to this good woman, who died with a burning zeal for the salvation of these Kroo people.

Evangelistic Power

JOHN P. BRUSHINGHAM, D. D.

We are to regard the Gospel not so much as a thing of beauty or poetry or of enjoyment even, though it is all these— but of power. Christianity is not polished eloquence, not veneering, not the urbanities and courtesies of life, not some fine frenzy or ecstasy. It is something strenuous, manly, all-conquering, which produces a robust rather than a tearful literature. It must appeal to hard-working, practical men, and that emphatically and convincingly, while at the same time it manifests all tenderness and meekness. The lowly Lamb of God is also the majestic Lion of the tribe of Judah. Our evangelism must present Christ in His completeness if our hearers are to be made complete in Him.

We are not ashamed of the Gospel, but it has been well said there would be less shame if there were more power in our work. We are not to despise embellishments—rhetoric, poetry, oratory. But Rev. Dr. Apollos must understand that fine flourishes and elocutionary touches are a miserable substitute for the power of the Highest. What we need to-day in our aggressive evangelism is the preaching of a full, simple Gospel that plain men can understand in its old-time power and efficacy.

The Gospel we need is the energy of holiness flaming with love. We need to see once more the church glowing like the burning bush, revealing at once the holiness of God and His purpose to redeem His people. Love, energetic, jealous, witnessing love. Love never faileth—if only it is blameless, wise, diligent, Christ-like love. This heaven-born passion cannot fail until God shall fail, who is love. As the unseen, voiceless sunbeams deflect Bunker Hill Monument, so the love of Christ shining forth through His witnesses will turn men from their sins.

The essential business of the preacher is to save men from sin and build them up in righteousness. A business man calls this work of aggressive evangelism the main track, and exhorts us not to be side-tracked into profitless discussion, even of doctrinal questions and Biblical interpretation.

The Psalmist said in sublime simplicity: "Power belongeth unto God." Herbert Spencer, from the basis of pure science, has said about the same thing, namely: "Amid the mysteries that become the more mysterious the more they are thought about, there will always remain the absolute certainty that we are ever in the presence of the eternal energy from whom all things proceed." But neither the Psalmist nor the philosopher, each recognizing the nearness of Omnipotence, could utter the kingly assurance of our Lord, YE SHALL RECEIVE POWER. The risen Redeemer, in the hour of His ascension to His Father's throne, promised to His obedient disciples what had before been promised in the prophets, "Behold, I send the promise of My Father upon you * * * the power of the Holy Spirit"—the indispensable power of all effective evangelism.

South Carolina Conference Notes

REV. I. E. LOWERY, A. M.,

(Our Special Correspondent.)

The Methodists of Charleston were highly favored on the fourth Sabbath in July with an official visit from Prof. I. Garland Penn, the assistant secretary of the Epworth League of our great church. He reached the city on Saturday evening, accompanied by his little son, Master I. Garland, Jr., who were entertained by Dr. W. R. A. Palmer, the accomplished pastor of Centenary. Brother Penn conducted four services that Sabbath, and it was a hot day, too. At six o'clock he spoke at the Mission, the Rev. J. C. Gibbs, pastor. At 11 a. m. he preached an able sermon at Old Bethel; at 3:30 p. m. he filled the pulpit at Wesley, Dr. E. B. Burroughs, pastor; and at 8:30 p. m. he preached at Centenary. It was said that his afternoon sermon was better than the morning sermon, and the night sermon was the best of all. Is not this a remarkable day's work for July? On Monday he conducted an Epworth League Institute at Centenary. There were three sessions during the day—morning, afternoon and at night. The night session was a great occasion. It was an Epworth League mass meeting, and a very fine program had been provided. Dr. Crum, the Collector of the Port at Charleston, was master of ceremonies. At the close of the evening's program a reception was given in the lecture room by the ladies of the three churches. Refreshments were served, and after the refreshments, there were toasts and speeches. There was music, and good music, throughout the entire evening's program. Dr. J. E. Wilson, the presiding elder of the Charleston District, was present on Sunday and Monday, and took in the whole thing. The Consolidated Trolley Company treated the delegates to a free excursion out to the Navy Yard and around the city. Brother Penn left on Tuesday morning to attend the Beaufort District Conference, the Orangeburg District Conference, and the Sumter District Conference. It was at the last District Conference at Maysville that Brother Penn took sick and had to return to his home in Atlanta, Ga. After reaching home he telegraphed Dr. Palmer to fill his engagements at Cheraw, and at Latta. Dr. Palmer agreed to do so, and went to these places.

God is on our side. He makes himself responsible for my being. If I will only trust myself to Him with the cordial return of trustful love, then all that He has ever breathed into my heart of human possibility He will realize and bring to perfection.—Charles Gore.

Home Mission Notes

The September number of Woman's Home Missions is devoted to "Work for Neglected Children." The various orphanages under the care of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, together with many other lines of work looking this way, are portrayed in its pages.

Special arrangements are being made to forward the interests of the young people's work at Indianapolis, Ind., at the annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, which opens October 18. It is to be hoped that many delegates from young women's societies will be in attendance.

California Conference, Woman's Home Missionary Society, has raised $12,000 during the fiscal year closing in July. This is a notable record. The Methodist women on the Pacific coast are full of love and good works.

Considerable excitement has been caused by learning that the Mormon missionaries stationed in New York have purchased a headquarters for the Mormon propaganda, which is expected to be the nucleus for a tabernacle of the Latter-Day Saints. The place is near several large and important churches, and the residents of this part of the city are not at all happy in the thought that they are to have these kind of neighbors.

Over two hundred and forty students have been in attendance upon Bennett Academy, Clarkson, Miss., during the past year, and the president and his three assistant teachers have found themselves crowded with their duties. A helpful revival in the school, conducted mainly by teachers and students, has cheered and strengthened their hearts. About sixty-five girls live in Bennett Industrial Home, connected with the Academy.

Miss Ada R. Ingraham, head worker in the Jacksonville settlement work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, reports a year of excelent advance in the work which she has nourished to its present proportions. Miss Ingraham's health is such that she will not venture to return to the South at present ,but she leaves her assistant during the past year, Miss Mary Seward, who loves the work, and has proved herself admirably fitted for it.

The Christian must remember that the world reads him when it refuses to read his Bible. They scan him closely and laugh at the blemishes they see, preferring to make more of them than of the clean good pages. We should watch our lives so carefully that no one could be turned against our religion because we profess it. A consistent life for Christ is an argument none of His enemies have ever been able to answer. —The Presbyterian.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

God Bless the Human Sunbeams

God bless the human sunbeams,
The men both strong and true,
Who daily sing and whistle
At all they have to do.
Their eyes are clear and merry,
Their step is firm, but light.
Their laugh's a benediction,
And life once more seems bright.

God bless the human sunbeams,
The women who, though sad,
Can still be self-forgetful
And other hearts make glad.
Theirs is a blessed mission;
Their smile can make night day,
Their cheery words of comfort
Soon drive all clouds away.

God bless the human sunbeams,
The children fair and fond,
Who come into our presence,
Life's hardest lessons conned,
Their prattle falls like music,
Just as a teardrop starts.
Their kisses and caresses
Can ease poor burdened hearts.

God bless the human sunbeams,
Men, women, children, too,
Who add to life much sweetness,
And leave us less to rue.
God bless them all! God bless them!
They do his work so well.
Reward will follow after,
And heaven the story tell.

By This Sign Conquer

It would not be difficult to show that the essence of apostolic Christianity was not belief in this or that formulated statement about God and Christ, but rather a passionate devotion to Christ himself. And this was evidently what the Lord sought to develop and establish in His followers, as is witnessed by His reference to doing all things in His name and for His sake. This must be the test also of the Christianity of to-day. It is not what we believe about Christ, but our relation to Christ that counts. An apostolic Christian was Andrew Fuller. When he went to his native town to raise money for the cause of missions one of his old friends said to him: "Andrew, I'll give you five pounds, seeing it's you." "No," was the reply, "I can take nothing, seeing it's me," and handed the money back. His friend saw the point at once, and said: "Andrew, you are right. Here are ten pounds, seeing it is for the Lord Jesus Christ." This is the sign—"For Jesus' sake"— by which we are to conquer the world.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

With every rising of the sun
Think of your life as just begun.

The past has shrivelled and buried deep
All yesterdays. There let them sleep.

Nor seek to summon back one ghost
Of that innumerable host.

Concern yourself with but to-day,
Woo it, and teach it to obey

Your will and wish. Since time began
To-day has been the friend of man;

But in his blindness and his sorrow
He looks to yesterday and to-morrow.

You and to-day! a soul sublime,
And the great pregnant hour of time.

With God Himself to bind the twain!
Go forth, I say, attain! attain!

We never envy our inferiors, but sometimes we allow this evil spirit to influence us in our relation to those above us in the walks of life. And it is such a mean and hurtful spirit that when it once gets possession of us it blinds us in our estimate of those whom we envy. We can not do them justice. But the worst of it is its influence rebounds and hurts our own souls worse than it hurts other people. Envy has some of the elements of positive wickedness in its composition.—Texas Advocate.

Love That Lightens Labor

M. E. SANGSTER.

Of the love that lightens service,
Dear God, how much we see,
When the father toils the livelong day
For the children at his knee;
When all night long the mother wakes,
Nor deems the vigil hard;
The rose of health on the sick one's cheek
Her happy heart's reward.

Of the love that lightens service
The fishermen can tell
When he wrests the bread his dear ones eat
Where the bitter surges swell.
And the farmer in the furrow,
The merchant in the mart,
Count little worth their weary toil
For the treasures of their heart.

And, reverently we say it,
Dear Lord, on bended knee,
For the love that lightens service most
The pattern is with thee.
O, the love, the love of heaven
That bowed our load to bear!
The love that stooped unto the cross
And saved the sinner there!

The Highest Courage

It is very convenient for one to have a large measure of physical courage. There are many occasions when one, naturally cowardly, ardently wishes that he had the physical courage to meet and combat a rough opposer. But there are those who, although cowards in a physical sense, are strong in moral courage, and this is the highest kind of courage. A writer says: "During an epidemic of black cholera a physician saw a soldier coming from a quarantined house. He hastened to him, stopped him where he was, told him his condition—that he had the disease already—and that the next day he would be unconscious. He bade him to remain until help was found. The condition was told to the nearest regiment, and a volunteer was asked to care for the man. "You may escape," said the physician, "but you will more likely die of the disease. Who will volunteer?" One man stepped out from the regiment. "I will go," said he. Now this man was named "the coward" of the regiment," because of his well known fear of physical danger, and he had run from many an engagement. But when his heroic act was seen, the regiment recognized his superior courage in another line than that of battle, and a simultaneous shout of approbation arose. "The coward of the regiment" cared for the stricken man, took the disease himself, and in three days died. A five-thousand dollar monument was erected by the members of the regiment to the "coward" who could shame them all in heroism. Those of us who are cowardly in a physical sense may have a kind of envy for the man who s courageous in nerve, but we should covet the possession of that high moral courage which dares to be honest at all times, under the strongest temptations, and which is brave enou tell the exact truth, even at the risk of per loss of material advantages. There are when it requires very great moral courage t fuse to comply with the requests of friends have aided us, and which involves a high principle. We need God's help at such tim

Postal Card Sermon

BY REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text—Matt. 21: 22. Theme—The Powe Prayer.

(I.)

Prayer is the divine impulse in man w makes him feel the need and know the want God alone can fill. Prayer is the vehicle wh exports all our wants, sorrows, sins and des from earth to heaven, and imports from that and plenteous land, from God the Father lights, every good and perfect gift, and lays t in quantity as bountiful as the sunbeams at feet to be gathered and used by us. One has s "Prayer is the peace of our spirit, the stillnes our thoughts, the evenness of recollection, seat of meditation, the rest of our cares, calm of our tempest, the issue of a quiet m the daughter of charity, and the sister of me ness."

Prayer is unknown to holy angels, because t know no want, and would be an unnecess thing among men, if they knew no want and no need. Sorrow is here; death still domina our world, and the man who does not pray m die in the midst of death, and perish away fr his home in heaven. Sorrow is one of the ch instruments in the hand of God with which rouses man up to prayer. To sorrowing m everywhere God says: "Call upon Me in the of trouble. I will answer thee, and thou sh glorify Me."

Prayer is only powerful when free from l man strength and disloyal doubt. God's gi to man do not depend upon human fitness, neith are they given him for his own enlargement the detriment of others; hence the injunction the Savior "to love our enemies, and pray them who despitefully use us and persecute us and to give to him that asks, and to turn n away him who would borrow of us.

Prayer is powerful in its origin. Prayer h its beginning in God. He taught man to pr in Eden, and to hopefully look forward to t promised Savior, who would in due time d stroy the works of the devil, abolish death a restore man again to the favor of God. Pray was the only medium of communication betwe God and man when man was driven out of th Garden of Eden by the terrible flaming sword the Cherubims, which turned every way to kee the way of the tree of life, and thus prevente man from eating of that tree after his shamef fall, which would have eternally perpetuated h marred and disgraced being.

George R. Smith College

President Lowe

The George R. Smith College is among the younger institutions of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, the college building having been completed in Jan., 1894, at which time its doors were opened for a four months' term. Among "The Stars in Our Southern Firmament" it shines out distinct as one of the first magnitude, being of college grade, and located far separate from other of our schools, near the center of the great state of Missouri. The map gives the illiterate colored population of the state as 36,495. This, however, hardly indicates the constituency of the college, for its "patronizing territory" covers adjoining states and territories, and its patronage comes from a class enjoying fairly good common school privileges. To this circumstance is to be attributed the fact that on an average the classification is higher than in most of the Society's schools, but 25 per cent. of the whole enrollment being below Academy or High School grade. The College was incorporated with charter February, 17, 1900.

The property consists of a beautiful plat of 25 acres in the northeastern part of the flourishing city of Sedalia. The main building with steam plant cost originally $43,000. It is thoroughly equipped and adapted to its purpose, provided with chapel, recitation rooms, offices and dormitories for both boys and girls. The dormitories have all been recently newly papered through gifts of the citizens of the place. Most of the halls and recitation rooms also have been papered and the chapel is to have its turn before the opening of the next term. A well kept lawn with abundance of flowers, shrubbery and trees combine to make the place most beautiful and attractive. A recent visitor declared that he had seen nowhere else such beautiful grounds.

The work of the College includes the English Department of primary and grammar school grades; the Academy or College preparatory of full high school work for four yeras each in Classical, Scientific, Normal, Commercial, Biblical and Industrial courses; a four years' College course; and Art and Music departments. All young ladies take regular work in sewing, cooking, dressmaking and millinery. The young men have printing, and steam heating, and when the Industrial building now under construction is completed will have general manual training courses.

With a strong teaching force, a loyal and growing body of students and alumni, with increasing interest and support on the part of pastors and churches, with the Lord's blessing added, the George R. Smith College has added to a useful past, the promise of a still more prosperous future.

A number of students boarding in the college are permitted to earn some part of their expenses by working in the building or on the grounds, provided they are willing and efficient. Liberal pay is allowed for all work done, but employment will not be continued to those who fail to do their work satisfactorily. Most students earn in this way $2.00 per month; some earn larger amounts. Application for work should be made to the President in advance of coming. A large number of students find employment in homes in the city, sufficient to meet expenses of board and tuition. The call for young ladies for these positions is always greater than the supply. Application for such employment should be made in advance through the President of the college. As far as possible we endeavor to safeguard those working in the city, but cannot be fully responsible for those outside the college building. Only young men and women of established habits and character can be allowed this privilege of outside residence.

Main Building

The highest culture is religious. All students are required to attend the daily chapel exercise and Sunday school each Sabbath. A weekly prayer meeting is held, which all are urged to attend. Boarding students are required to attend League services held each Sunday evening. Regular instruction is given in the Scriptures. Denominational preferences are respected, but earnest endeavor is made to lead each student to a simple faith in Christ, and an intelligent, consistent, Christian life.

There are three Literary Societies, the Philomathean for young women, the Masonian and Bowen for young men. These are conducted by the students, but under the supervision of the Faculty. In addition to these there is a Young Women's Home Missionary Society and several Reading and Scientific Clubs.

The Library contains a choice selection of books and a good collection of current periodicals.

YOUNG FRIENDS

My Squirrel Friend

BY HELEN M. RICHARDSON.

Have you ever noticed the little cushioned thumbs between which the gray squirrel holds the kernel of the nut which he is eating? If you ever have the good fortune to tame one sufficiently, watch him while he is eating the nut which you have cracked for him.

He first seizes it in two monkey-like claws so many jointed that he can twist them into almost any shape while extracting the kernel. When a piece of meat escapes from the shell notice how quickly it is grasped between the two padded joints which serve the squirrel as thumbs. Between these soft cushions he holds the dislodged nutmeat, at the same time firmly clutching the shell, to make sure of any more food which it may contain.

Gray squirrels are very easily tamed, patience, kindness and nuts being the chief requisites. As all squirrels are in the habit of punching an uncracked nut into the ground for future use, if they do not happen to be particularly hungry, I have learned that more pleasure is gained from their company by cracking the nut before presenting it to them. The temptation to stop and eat is thus increased, and the taming process is greatly simplified.

The first gray squirrel whose acquaintance I made came to me in the form of a surprise, as good things are apt to come. I called him "Silverskin," his coat was such a pretty, silvery gray, the name seemed to suit him better than any other. And then his tail! The first time that I saw him he stood beneath it like a monk saying his prayers. His forepaws met upon his breast in an attitude of supplication and his large eyes looked appealingly into mine.

I had no idea then that I could tame him. He was merely a chance acquaintance, such as I am frequently mking among the little wild people of the forest. I might never see him again, but I stopped to admire him and to speak a gentle word. After our first encounter, however, we were continually running across each other, and I soon found out that if I desired the companionship of my little friend I must make it worth his while to stay with me. So I got in the habit of holding a cracked nut in a motionless hand for bait. It was as alluring to the squirrel as a piece of cheese is to a hungry mouse. A dart—and the nut changed owners.

After a while I ventured to hold one a little beyond his reach, still keeping my hand motionless. Slowly, cautiously, with much writhing of the body and twitching of the bushy tail, the squirrel approached, put two monkey-like claws in my hand, and reached up for the nut.

He soon grew perfectly fearless, and would sit as confidingly upon my knee as if it had been the limb of a tree. He always kept me in full view, however, and always faced me while eating.

Before the summer was over I could call him to me as easily as though he had been a dog; and often, when I have been asleep in my hammock, I have been awakened by a quick jerk at the rope, to encounter the large brown eyes of my little friend fastened intently upon me. He would then begin a systematic search from hands to feet for the nuts which he seldom failed to find.

Lesson X—September 3rd, 1905. Title—"The Captivity of Judah" —(2 Chron. 36:11-21.) Golden Text.—"Be sure your sin will find you out." (Numbers 32:23.)

The lesson of to-day teaches the captivity of Judah and the destruction of Jerusalem. This captivity began at different times and had various endings.

I. The first captivity occurred about B. C. 606. When the king of Egypt deposed Jehouhaz, cast him into prison, he placed Jehoiakim, a son of Josiah, on the throne. This was in B. C. 608. A few years later Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came into Palestine and pitched his tents against Jerusalem because it was an Egyptian tributary. After a short siege he entered the holy city, took the king prisoner, bound him in fetters, and started with him to Babylon. He also took some of the vessels of the temple and carried them away to the same country. But he seems to have changed his mind and released the king. Jehoiakim was not at this time taken to Babylon, but became tributary to Nebuchadnezzar. But Daniel and his friend were at the close of this siege carried to that country. At this date the seventy years of the captivity began. After three years Jehoiakim broke his oath of allegiance with the king of Babylon, and rebelled against him. Nebuchadnezzar now sent the Chaldeans, the Assyrians, and other subjects of his empire, to overrun the land of Palestine. In the midst of these struggles, Jehoiakim came to a violent death, in the eleventh year of his reign. His body was left exposed on the ground for some time, was then dragged away and buried "with the burial of an ass," without pomp or lamentation, "beyond the gates of Jerusalem." He possessed an irreligious, vicious character, and "did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord."

II. The second captivity occurred about B. C. 597. Jehoiachin, son of Jehoiakim, was placed on the throne at the death of his father. He reigned only three months and ten days. When he came to the throne Egypt was prostrate and Palestine was defenseless. Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem and soon captured it. The king, his mother, the princes, the servants and ten thousand of the chief people of the nation, along with the treasures of the temple, were taken to Babylon. For thirty-six years Jehoiachin was confined in prison. But when Nebuchudnezzar died his son Evil-Merodach, succeeded him to the throne, he brought Jehoiachin out of prison, spoke kindly to him, exalted his throne, dressed him in royal robes and caused him to eat bread at his table. It does not appear from Scripture that Jehoiachin was ever married. The close of his life is hidden in obscurity.

III. The third captivity, B. C. 586. 1. The reign of Zedekiah. (Vers. 11-14.) He was the son of Josiah. His original name was Mattaniah, but was changed to Zedekiah by Nebuchadnezzar, when placed on the throne by that monarch, B. C. 597, at the age of twenty-one years. He did evil in the sight of the Lord, yet he was not so bad as some of his predecessors. He mocked the messengers of the Lord, despised His word, and mistreated His prophets. The wrath of the Lord arose against His people until there was no remedy. There was a disposition among the subordinate kingdoms of the west to throw off the Babylonian yoke. Tyre, Sidon, Edom and Moab united with Judæa to free themselves from the bondage of Nebuchadnezzar. Zedekiah also entered into an alliance with Egypt, which was equivalent to a declaration of war with Babylon. This was a very rash act, and hastened the destruction of Jerusalem. God did everything in reason to prevent His people from rushing down to ruin. There was laid upon them several lesser evils as warnings. Laying waste the country, taking Jerusalem, and capturing king, were admonitions they should have heeded. He sent Jeremiah and other of the prophets to warn them, but they would not take heed.

2. The destruction of Jerusalem. (Vers. 14-21.) In the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, the king of Babylon came with a very large army against Jerusalem, pitched his tents before it, and built forts round about it. For a year and six months the siege lasted. The city was reduced to its greatest extremity. All the bread had long since been consumed. The tongue of the nursing child cleaved to the roof of its mouth for thirst. Little children begged bread from house to house, and no man gave to them. The rich, who had fed delicately, wandered desolate over the streets. Women in scarlet robes searched in offal for food. Mothers murdered and ate their children. Finally the city was broken up, the king, men of war, and many of the common people, made their escape through one of the eastern gates, and fled towards Jericho. The temple, the palaces, and the houses of nobles, were set on fire. The very bones and framework of the city appeared to be wrapped in flames. The walls and gates seemed to lament and cry as they sank into the earth. Some of the princes were hung up by the hands on the temple walls; others were carried off to execution at Riblah. Age and youth, men and women alike, fell victims to the passion and cruelty of the conquerors. (Farrar.)

3. The fate of Zedekiah. (2 Kings 25:4-7.) The army of the Chaldeans pursued the king of Judæa and overtook him in the plains of Jericho. Zedekiah's army was scattered. He was captured and taken up to Riblah, in the land of Hamath. There Nebuchadnezzar slew his sons, and the princes of Judah, before his eyes. He then put out the eyes of Zedekiah, bound him with chains, and led him with many thousands of the Jews, five hundred miles east to Babylon, cast him into prison, and there he remained until death released him.

In marking out our path in life, God does not make the road longer or steeper or rougher than it should be. He knows what lies in the end. He understands that the stepest hills of trouble will finally yield us the finest view of heavenly glory. The director of a gymnasium studies each man and fits the exercises assigned according to such study. The weak man who really wants to gain strength does not complain because his tasks are different from those of his neighbor. With faith in his instructor he steadily goes to work and keeps at it steadfastly until the end is accomplished. If one can put such faith in a human being who has studied his body and its needs, how much more should he put in the great God who understands our souls. —Selected.

Lesson Topic—September 3.

The Abundant Life: How to Get It, How Use It

Scripture References—(John 10: 7-10; R 5: 19-21.)

The Word.—Our Scripture is from that b tiful parable of the Good Shepherd. Jesus is door and the shepherd as well. He draws a sh contrast between the thief, the hireling and wolf, on the one hand, and the Good Sheph on the other. These all bring death. But Good Shepherd brings life. And he not brings life, but the fullness of an immor heavenly, glorified life. He gives the more ab dant life. The second selection tells us how may get this life. It is through the merits obedience of Christ. Sin reigns in us to de but Christ reigns in us to life. And this lif an abundant, that is, a sufficient life.

Our Homily: The Abundant Life.—The spoken of in our lesson is the spiritual life parted to us by the Holy Spirit through the at ing merit of Jesus Christ. It is called an "ab dant" life because it has in it all the essen elements of salvation and immortality. It is ca in one place "more abundant," as if the life parted by Christ might be realized in in a sup latively large and satisfying measure. C sider:

1. The Abundant Life. This is nothing m nor less than the spiritual life imparted to us the regeneration of our nature through the pow of the Holy Spirit. It is that life which we ceive at conversion. An imparted and not imputed holiness. It may be realized in a m abundant measure, but it is the same divine which is given to us by the Spirit. It is the f gift of the Good Shepherd to his sheep. It the regeneration and sanctification of our natu through the Holy Spirit. It is the inheritance all God's people.

2. How To Get It. The plan of salvation easy and simple. It is by the personal surrend of the soul to Christ and appropriation of this l by faith. It is not to be "earned," nor "wroug out," nor "purchased." It is to be appropriat by the individual soul. Jesus has paid the de He has wrought out salvation, He has provid the life and salvation.. It is ours only to take to receive it as a gift. As the Good Shephe "gave" his life for the sheep, so now He "give the life more abundant.

3. How to Use It.—We learn from many pa sages of the Word how to use this life in th service of Christ. Life is given to be used. W are made alive to bring others to life. We a saved in order to serve. We have eternal li not to selfishly enjoy, but to pass on to othe who need it. It will thus be an increasing lif Only as we use it does it become the more abu dant life. Thus we may increase our own spi itual life, and become the means of bringing to others.

The Abundant Life—Is abundant in love t God and man.

Abundant in labor for the church and souls.
Abundant in fruit to the glory of God.
Abundant in power, grace and goodness.
Abundant in helpfulness to the home and com munity.

Illustrative—

Speak to all more kindly
Than the year before;
Pray a little oftener,
Love a little more;
Cling a little closer
To the Father's love;
So—life below shall liker grow
To the life above.—Selected.

Recent District Conferences

MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

The first district conference convened at Lawrence, Mississippi, in the First Methodist Church, July 26-30, with Rev. J. M. Shumpert, D. D., in the chair. Dr. Shumpert was very heartily received, after an absence of twelve years. Rev. C. W. Ivey was elected secretary, with Revs. N. Toole, C. G. Gavins, H. R. S. Irby as assistants. R. B. Anderson, D. V. Morgan and S. A. Cowan were elected statistical secretaries. The report of the presiding elder showed that much work had been done along all lines. All reports were remarkably good. Dr. G. G. Logan, Field Secretary of the Missionary Society, said our district was far ahead of what it was last year at the same time, especially St. Paul Chapel, Meridian. Rev. S. A. Cowan, pastor, had raised the largest collection up to that time, $125. The missionary meeting to be held in New Orleans in October was endorsed by a rising vote. Dr. Logan preached an excellent sermon and organized the district into a Missionary Society with the following officers: President, R. L. Brooks; 1st vice, D. V. Morgan;; secretary, C. G. Gavins; treasurer, N. Tools. Dr. Logan's missionary talks were an inspiration. We had with us that most distinguished instructor and lecturer, Dr. J. W. E. Bowen. Our hearts truly did burn while he talked to us of the wonderful mysteries of God. He emphasized the fact that cleanliness was next to Godliness and the importance of using more soap and water. The following brethren preached very able sermons: G. W. Coleman, R. B. Anderson, W. H. Smith, N. Tools, N. W. Ross, J. M. Shumpert, C. W. Ivey. Rev. R. P. Thirkield, presiding elder of Vicksburg District, and Rev. A. J. McNair, D. D., St. Stephen Church, Yazoo City, Miss., were introduced and each made encouraging remarks. Five hundred and fifty dollars was raised for benevolences. Collection during the conference, $69. G. W. Robinson and D. Slaughter were licensed to preach. Rev. H. R. S. Irby represented the SOUTHWESTERN. The conference was the largest for a number of years. Despite the yellow fever excitement, the house was crowded each day. Rev. Goodloe and his people spared no poins in making everything pleasant for delegates and visitors. The District Epworth League was reorganized with the writer president, Miss M. J. Thrash, corresponding secretary. Plans will soon be made for another year's work. Resolutions endorsing Dr. G. G. Logan's Missionary Meeting in New Orleans, also thanking the people of Lawrence for their hospitality, Dr. Bowen and Dr. Logan for their presence and speeches, Dr. Shumpert for his kind and Christian spirit, the citizens for their kindness, were adopted.

D. B. WATKINS.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT.

The Brookhaven District Conference convened at St. James M. E. Church, China Grove Charge, July 27-30, with Rev. G. W. Smith, D. D., in the chair. Devotional service was conducted by Rev. C. Williams. Jno. H. Johnson was elected secretary, R. L. Tate, assistant. D. D. Duke was elected statistical secretary, with J. D. Reeves and H. J. Jordan assistants. H. J. Jordan was appointed to represent the SOUTHWESTERN. The reports of presiding elder and pastors indicated a marked improvement in work accomplished. The afternoon session was devoted to the literary program. The presiding elder's talk on pastoral theology each day was very instructive. Those who preached during conference were Revs. C. Williams, E. Ford, I. S. Thomas, E. M. Dukes, R. H. Patton, D. D. Duke and J. H. Johnson and Dr. G. W. Smith. The presiding elder urged that each charge in the district be brought up to first-class missionary rank, by making larger missionary contributions, which was agreed to in hearty response by all pastors present. The committee on resolutions tendered a vote of thanks to the pastor and people of China Grove for their careful and hearty entertainment of conference. We extend our thanks to the Fernwood Lumber Company for favors granted to conference; to the Rev. Dr. G. W. Smith, presiding elder, for the brotherly spirit he displayed throughout the session. Collection, $77. Of this amount $23 was taken for SOUTHWESTERN.

JNO. H. JOHNSON.

BENNETTSVILLE DISTRICT.

Bennettsville District Conference, Epworth League Convention and Sunday School Institute convened at Wesley M. E. Church, Cheraw, S. C., Aug. 2-6. The address of welcome was delivered by Mr. Vereen Marshall. The response by Miss Beulah Graham. Rev. W. S. Thompson made an encouraging report for the Epworth League chapters. Able papers were read and discussed. Dr. W. R. A. Palmer represented the Epworth League for Secretary Penn. Dr. Palmer made an instructive and eloquent address. The conference elected Rev. W. S. Thompson secretary and Rev. W. B. Romans assistant. The presiding elder made a full report of the district. Pastors' reports showed that they were doing earnest and successful work on their charges. The papers read and discussed and the sermons preached were an inspiration to all. The Sunday School Institute was interesting. Rev. C. C. Jacobs, D. D., field worker of Sunday School Union, gave light on needed work in our Sunday Schools. Among the distinguished visitors were Rev. Dr. J. E. Wilson, presiding elder of the Charleston District; Rev. Dr. W. R. A. Palmer, pastor Centenary Church, Charleston; the Revs. A. B. McPhail of the Baptist Church, and Johnson of the Presbyterian Church. The conference closed, to be held at Darlington, S. C., next year. Many thanks were extended to Rev. S. S. Butler and his people and friends for their hospitality.

H. H. MATTHEWES.

MONTGOMERY DISTRICT.

Montgomery District Conference and Epworth League and Sunday School Convention met in Mobile, Ala., July 18 and adjourned the 23rd. The first day was devoted to the work of the Epworth League and Sunday school. Reports were had from all local chapters and from each Sunday school. Aside from this, many very thoughtful papers were read and discussed. As a result of the convention all went away with more zeal to push the work in the fields of the Epworth League and Sunday school. The District Conference was a great success. The benevolences of the various charges are far in advance of what they were this time last year. The report of the presiding elder showed that he had been careful and abundant in labors on his district, and that each charge was doing successful work. He delivered a strong and helpful address, which was published in the following daily papers: Mobile Register, Montgomery Advertiser and Pensacola Evening News. The distinguished visitors were: Rev. E. M. Jones, D. D., of the Sunday School Union, who did fine service for his cause. To the delight of the entire conference, that worthy successor to Bishop I. B. Scott, Dr. R. E. Jones, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, visited the conference. The church and the world know Dr. R. E. Jones. It is not necessary to refer to his addresses and sermons. Dr. J. W. E. Bowen was also present and spoke to the conference. On Friday night he lectured before a large and cultured audience. It was a great address.

G. W. LEWIS.

ANNISTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The fifth session of the Anniston District Conference was held at Hobson City, Ala., July 8-13. Hobson City is a small town of colored people and all of its municipal officers are colored men. The session opened with a strong sermon on Tuesday night by Rev. L. S. Price. Presiding Elder Thomas not only demonstrated his ability as a good chairman, but his opening address was timely and impressive.

Revs. W. M. Perry and J. W. Paul were elected secretaries with Rev. B. S. Kirk statistical secretary. The usual committees were appointed and the business began with enthusiasm, earnestness and great religious fervor, which lasted throughout the entire session. All the pastors and many of the church officials were present with good reports, which indicated that the district was in a good, healthy condition. The conference was blessed with the presence and service of Drs. I. L. Thomas, Field Agent of the Church Extension Board, J. P. Wragg, agent of the American Bible Society, and E. M. Jones, Field Agent of the Sunday School Union. All these brethren made timely and impressive speeches and larger collections for their several causes will be the natural results. A District Sunday School Convention was organized with the following officers: President, Rev. L. W. Goodson; vice president, B. S. Kirk; corresponding secretary, J. W. Martin; recording secretary, J. W. Paul; treasurer, Mrs. Dora Garuns. The literary program of the conference was good. Much praise and thanks are due those who read papers and made speeches. Rev. L. W. Goodson and his good people gave the conference a royal and satisfactory entertainment. The outing at Oxford Lake on Friday was an enjoyable feature. E. M. Jones represented the SOUTHWESTERN and secured 11 subscribers.

JONES.

HUNTSVILLE DISTRICT.

The Huntsville District Conference, Sunday School Institute and Epworth League Convention convened at Laurelia, Corrigan Circuit, July 25-30, with Rev. W. A. Fortson, presiding elder in the chair. The conference was organized with Rev. T. S. Pryor, secretary; Prof. J. W. Thomas and Rev. Doak, assistants. Quite a large number of pastors and delegates were present. The brethren manifested great interest in the work. Peace and harmony prevailed throughout the session. Among the distinguished representatives of the church present were Dr. M. W. Dogan, president of Wiley University. Thursday night he made a strong speech touching the work of Wiley University. Rev. P. L. Jackson, in addition to his work, represented the SOUTHWESTERN. The collection for all purposes reached $257 and thus closed a great and successful conference. Too much cannot be said of Rev. W. A. Fortson, presiding elder, and the good people of Laurelia.

J. W. THOMAS, Asst. Secty.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Aberdeen District Epworth League Convention met in Tabernacle M. E. Church on the Athens Circuit, July 26, Rev. J. Burton presiding. Rev. J. H. Everett was elected secretary. A great many chapters made favorable reports. The discussion of the different topics was interesting. We were pleased to have with us Dr. E. M. Jones, Field Agent of the Sunday School Union, who spoke very encouragingly. Presiding Elder Henry rendered valuable assistance. The pastor, Rev. A. E. Franklin, and the good members and friends of Tabernacle deserve much credit for their hospitality and the interest taken in the convention. The District League officers were installed by Presiding Elder F. H. Henry.

MARY W. FLEMING, Secretary.

ATLANTA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Atlanta District Conference, Sunday School and Epworth League Convention convened at St. Mary's M. E. Church, Hogansville, Ga., Aug. 9-13, with Rev. E. H. Oliver, D. D., presiding. The presiding elder, assisted by Rev. J. A. Rush, of Central Avenue M. E. Church, Atlanta, conducted the religious service, which was a great benediction. The address of the presiding elder was pointed and timely. The Rev. C. L. Johnson was elected secretary, with N. J. Crolley assistant. The writer was elected reported. All reports showed great improvement. The conference was wide-awake to every interest of the great church. The conference was a great spiritual blessing from start to finish. There was preaching every day and several conversions. The Epworth League and Sunday School Convention was held Friday and Saturday. Mr. James A. Goodlee is the wide-awake and enthusiastic president. Thoughtful and well prepared papers were read and discussed. The spirit and enthusiasm of our young people are encouraging. Mr. Woodlee was unanimously re-elected president, with a strong cabinet to assist him. The work is at high water mark. Miss Annie E. Hall, deaconess of the Atlanta Conference, held a very enthusiastic meeting of W. H. M. Society Friday evening. Miss Hall is truly a great woman and is well adapted to the work to which she has been called. She is a model Christian lady. A sincere worker for the Lord Jesus. The conference was graced with the following distinguished visitors, who spoke and preached to the great delight of the conference and audience: Revs. R. R. O'Neal, presiding elder Savannah Conference; P. H. Travis, presiding elder Atlanta Conference; Drs. Jno. P. Wragg, of the American Bible Society; I. L. Thomas, of the Church Extension; Geo. W. Arnold, presiding elder of the Gainesville District; Pres. W. H. Crogman, of Clark University. On Thursday evening $345 was raised for Christian Education. Good collections were also taken for the causes represented by Drs. Wragg and Thomas. The benevolent collection was over $300 in advance of last year at same date. The Rev. W. G. Alston and his congenial and loyal people deserve much praise for adequate provision made for the comfort of the conference. The District Conference of 1906 will go to College Park.

Russia agreed to surrender to Japan the lease of he Liao Tung Peninsula, including Port Arthur. Dalney and the Blonde and Elliott Islands. The railway, also, running from Harbin to Port Arthur and New Chwang, goes to China, Japan to have a hand in the branch of the Chinese Eastern Railroad. It is further agreed that Japan is to have a right to fish in the Russian waters of littoral from Vladivostok to the Behring Sea. But there were four items upon which there was no agreement. Russia refuses to yield her sovereignty of the Sakhalin Island, to pay an indemnity for the cost of the war, to surrender the interned warships and to limit Russian naval power in Pacific waters. If these four points are not granted to Japan in substance then she will have cause for the continuation of the war. All the items agreed upon in the Peace Conference are Japan's by right of conquest. Japan could have dictated these items in the Peace Treaty from Tokio. The victories of the Japanese army and navy decided the items agreed upon. Japan ought to have Sakhalin Island; she has this already, and it is occupied by Japanese troops. We do not believe that Japan will surrender it. Of course, Russia ought to pay the war indemnity and Russian naval power ought to be limited in the Pacific for the sake of permanent peace. Evidently Russia is playing a bluff game, and Japan will yet dictate the terms of peace, even tho it must be by shot and shell.

President Roosevelt's movements for peace are appreciated throughout the world and especially in the United States. If the Peace Treaty is agreed upon, it will be more largely due to the efforts of President Roosevelt than any other one man.

The Czar's manifesto creating a parliamentary body for Russia is very weak. The Czar has not the strength to institute a reform. There is absolutely nothing to the proposed Assembly, except that in case any of the Czar's statutes prove too obnoxious they can be vetoed by the representatives of the people. Of course this is a remarkable step, but so far as granting the privilege of help running the government, the Assembly will not be worth the time consumed in the sessions.

Rev. E. M. Jones, D. D., is having pre-eminent success as Field Agent of the Sunday School Union. He took time, however, to represent the SOUTHWESTERN at the recent session of the Anniston District Conference and succeeded admirably. We are in debt to Dr. Jones for this manifestation of his interest.

The Preachers' Meeting of Bennettsville, South Carolina, at the recent session passed appropriate resolutions on the death of Bishop Joyce. The Bishop was to have presided at the coming session of the South Carolina Conference, and the brethren were looking forward to his coming with a great deal of pleasure.

Dr. M. C. B. Mason and Dr. J. W. E. Bowen were present at the session of the National Negro Business League which was held recently in New York.

PEOPLES METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

REV. C. W. HOLMES.

The growth and development of the Methodist Episcopal Church among our people in Colorado Springs, Colorado, is worthy of special mention. Up to January, 1903, we were without an organization in that city among our people, but since then, as if by a magician's wand, a society has been organized and a beautiful and commodious church constructed. It was not the work of a magician but the earnest, patient and self-sacrificing labor of Rev. C. W. Holmes, the pastor, who was appointed to the field January 16, 1903. After a canvass of the town he found eighteen persons who were willing to connect themselves with the proposed new organization and on February 1, 1903, the organization was effected. Not long after that a lot was purchased and plans quickly agreed upon for a church home. The building is modern in construction, containing lecture room and study besides a beautifully arranged auditorium, with electric lights. It was constructed at a cost of $4,000, on which a debt of $2,400 still remains. The organization is known as the People's Methodist Episcopal Church, and the membership has now been increased to 47.

The leader of the movement is the progressive, energetic pastor, Rev. C. W. Holmes, who joined the Central Missouri Conference in 1889 under Bishop Joyce. He has been favored with success at all the appointments he has served, namely, Hannibal, Mexico, Farmington, Kansas City, Mo., Omaha, Neb., Des Moines, Iowa, and Colorado Springs. Brother Holmes is a man of consecrated enthusiasm for the Master's work. His success at Colorado Springs is remarkable and places him among the leading men of his Conference. To begin a mission in 1903 and entertain the Lincoln Annual Conference in 1905 is a record of which anyone should be proud.

Brother Holmes was forced recently, on account of his wife's health, to relinquish his work at Colorado Springs and take up work at Pueblo.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF BENNETT COLLEGE

The election of Rev. S. A. Peeler, A. M., B. D., as president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., brings to the front one of the very best products of the Freedmen's Aid Soceity. He is a man of solid and unpretentious scholarship, an educator by natural inclination, and possesses executive ability of a rare and high order. As a preacher he is strong and convincing. By the force of his Christian character, his high purpose and unselfish motive in all his dealings he has won the full confidence of the constituency he is to serve, and none are more pleased with his appointment than his own brethren of the North Carolina Conference.

Rev. Peeler was born in Cleveland coun N. C., July 24, 1864. He lived there on a far until he was eighteen years old, when he e tered Bennett Seminary (now Bennett College graduating from the seminary course in 188 and in the fall of the same year went to Cla University, Atlanta, Ga., receiving the degree A .B. in 1893. In 1895 he graduated from Gar mon Theological Seminary, receiving the degr of Bachelor of Divinity.

The next week after graduattion from Gar mon he was called to take charge of our churc at Macon, Ga. Three times in succession he wa appointed to serve this church at the unanimou request of the quarterly conference. While h held the charge it grew gradually in membersh and each year raised larger amounts for im provements, salary and benevolence. He pai in part an old Church Extension debt, which ha stood untouched until it had doubled. The pla to pay off the debt was so thoroughly made tha it did not cease operation until the whole deb was canceled.

From Macon he was transferred to Greens horo, N. C., where he has remained since th fall of 1898. Three times, for the benefit o other places, the Bishops requested his remova and as many times did his official board ris with so strong a plea for his retention that h was compelled to remain. Under his pastorat the Greensboro charge has held its own. Ove $17,000.00 has been raised in the nearly seve years of his service. More than $7,000.00 ha been applied in the construction of a magnificen brick church. The church is nearing completio and has on it a debt of less than $1,000.00. Thi church, when completed, will be one of the bes in our Southern Methodism.

This call is the fourth Rev. Peeler has had be fore fully deciding to leave the pastorate. I 1896 he was invited to take the chair of Gree and Latin at Bennett College; in 1897 he wa asked to take the chair of Mathematics at Wile University; in 1903 he was elected president o Cookman Institute.

If the voice of the people may be accepted a a correct index to the will of God, surely hi election has the divine approval.

NEW YORK LETTER

By L. H. SMITH.

After a three days' session the sixth annual convention of the National Negro Business League has come to a successful and triumphant close and once more its distinguished president, Booker T. Washington, of Tuskegee Institute, has covered himself with glory. But not alone to himself has he brought credit, but to the entire race, and he has given to the world a most emphatic and convincing evidence of the practicability of his teachings for the ultimate good of his people. Dr. Washington has been properly styled the "Moses" of his race.

The National Negro Business League was organized in Parker Memorial Hall, Boston, Mass., in 1900. Its purpose as put forth is to stimulate business interests among the Negroes of this country and to bring them together for mutual benefit and help. Morning and evening sessions were held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 16, 17 and 18. There were fully 200 delegates from about thirty different states, besides many visitors present at the opening session. Palm Garden, a beautiful and spacious hall situated in the heart of the city had been secured for the convention, and it was becomingly draped with the national colors; besides, there hung in the front of the hall a picture of Abraham Lincoln, flanked on each side by pictures of Frederick Douglas and Dr. Washington. Mr. Philip A. Payton, president of the Afro-American Realty Company of New York, and vice-president of the League, opened the meeting. Upon the rostrum was a number of distinguished men, among which were T. Thomas Fortune and Dr. W. D. Crum. The invocation was by the Rev. Dr. William H. Brooks, pastor of St. Mark's M. E. Church. The address of welcome in behalf of the city was made by Hon. Charles V. Fornes, acting mayor. In his speech he said:

"On behalf of the city of New York I extend a hearty welcome to the National Negro Business League, and I wish to state in no perfunctory way that I bid you godspeed in your deliberations for the uplifting of your race. In the face of appalling obstacles you have battled for a higher and better existence, and you are to be congratulated on the progress you have made. I believe the work of this organization will contribute more to the advancement of the Negro than any other single agency, by inculcating lessons of thrift and economy and aiding men of your race to embark in various lines of business; in fact, the records show that during the past five years, since the formation of the League, more money has been invested in different lines of business by Negroes than during the previous thirty-five years, since the close of the civil war. You have to-day twenty-six banks in the United States, officered and managed by men of your own race, and you pay taxes upon three hundred millions of property. I sincerely hope that this organization under the wise and able leadership of your distinguished president will continue to the upbuilding and advancement of the Negro race."

The reading of the following letter from President Roosevelt brought forth loud and continued applause from the gathering:

"OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 12, 1905.

"MY DEAR MR. SCOTT—I wish all success to the National Negro Business League. Your organization is absolutely out of politics; and in stimulating activity among your people and working to increase their efficiency in the industrial world it is also doing far-reaching work in the way of giving them a realizing sense of their responsibilities as citizens and power to meet these responsibilities.

"I need hardly say that I put moral betterment above physical betterment. But it is absolutely impossible to do good work in promoting the spiritual improvement of any race unless there is a foundation of material well-being, because the foundation necessarily implies that the race has developed the root qualities of thrift, energy, and business sense. It is as true of a race as of an individual that, while outsiders can help to a certain degree, yet the real help must come in the shape of self-help.

"The success of your organization and the development among our colored fellow citizens of the very qualities for which you stand will mean more for the solution of the race problem than any philanthropic efforts merely from outside could possibly do.

"Wishing you all success, I am, sincely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Another letter was read from Governor Higgins. At this point Abbie Mitchell Cook, a soprano soloist, very pleasingly rendered "Suwanee River," accompanied by a stringed band. After the Hon. Charles W. Anderson had made a few remarks the serious part of the business of the meeting was reached. The chairman introduced the president, and Dr. Washingtonn received a cordial and enthusiastic welcome. R. B. Hudson, of Selma, Ark., described his struggles on starting in the wood and coal business in 1896, and his rise to a successful and well-to-do business man, doing a $10,000 business. Such papers were read all thro the meetings, and they spoke eloquently of the struggle of black men and women against ignorance, poverty and race prejudice to well-merited success. Dr. Washington delivered his annual address on Wednesday evening, and the hall was taxed to accommodate the crowd.

Dr. M. C. B. Mason, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid and Education Society, summed up the business development of the Negro and he was constantly interrupted by the applause of the audience. Robert C. Ogden, partner of John Wannamaker, was present at one of the sessions, and had this to say:

"The struggle of the Afro-American is in most respects the same as the struggle of every other American to-day. We must all work persistently and consistently for the good of ourselves and of the body politic, and the Negro has equal opportunity with others in realizing these ends.

"There's no use in fighting prejudice with opposition. The struggle of the Negro is in its great aspect an economic struggle. By industry, persistence and the exercise of those kindly, simple, human virtues which make any man a good husband and neighbor is his struggle to be won. Struggle on and win it!

"You have won many friends in many walks of life whom you know not of, but who are always ready to help you in those ways in which you cannot help yourselves. Fight on. For I declare to you that the colored man has, measured by divine standards, as great opportunities for public usefulness as lie before any American."

Mr. George Foster Peabody, philanthropist and friend of the race, was also among the speakers. In the basement of the building there was an exhibit of several hundred pictures of business enterprises in all parts of the country conducted by men and women of the race. The delegates were well entertained, as the following program of amusements will show: An excursion in a chartered steamer up the Hudson river and around Manhattan Island, taking in all points of interest and lasting five hours, occurred Thursday afternoon. After the evening session a night picnic and festival was tendered them at Sulzer's Park and Casino. There was no session for the League Friday evening, but instead a banquet at the hall followed by a reception. On Saturday the Glenwood Park Association entertained the delegates to a barbecue at Bloomfield, N. J., where they were to be made welcome by Gov. Stokes and the mayor of the town.

It was agreed at the final session Friday morning that the next convention would be held in Atlanta, Ga.

"LIKE A MIGHTY ARMY"

Interest in the rally for 5000 new subscriptions by October 31 is gathering force. Even our Bishops, taxed with much work and great responsibilites, have joined the movement. Read the following forceful appeal of

BISHOP HENRY SPELLMEYER:

Newspapers are among us for better, for worse. They are here to stay. I believe in them. They create and strengthen public opinion. They bring to us the news from the ends of the earth at a trifling cost. They make nations more intelligent, patriotic, more and more united. When they are on the right side they promote righteousness and christian citizenship. They are an ally of the preacher in his pulpit, and the good man everywhere.

HOWEVER, the secular paper should never supplant the religious paper in the christian home. Let both be taken when circumstances permit, but no circumstance should prevent a christian family from taking some religious newspaper. It is a christian duty.

I ENJOY READING THE SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. It is particularly needed in the territory where it naturally circulates but it should have many readers outside of that territory. It ought soon to be on a self-supporting basis.

ITS SUBSCRIPTION LIST SHOULD BE DOUBLED WITHIN THE NEXT THREE MONTHS. The paper is worthy of it, and the cause demands it. Our Pastors can accomplish this if they earnestly and unitedly assume the task, for they have no equals as agents for church papers.

TO SHOW A CHURCH PAPER WITH SKILL, to describe its merits with persuasiveness, to prove its necessity by argument and illustration, to court a subscription with tactful persistence, is a very profitable way to use part of the time spent it a Pastoral call. I plead with all Pastors to add this to their list of Pastoral duties, for conscience sake.

NEWS NOTES

Deal Jackson, colored, of Albany, Ga., brought the first bale of cotton to market. It weighed 358 pounds and brought 23 cents per pound. He has held this record for several years.

Mr. J. Leon Jones, of Houston, Texas, is doing a big real estate business. It is said that he negotiated a sale of a half block of improved property in Houston, the transaction being the largest real estate deal ever negotiated by a Negro in that city.

The colored business men of Yazoo City, Miss., have organized the People's Penny Savings Bank of Yazoo City, with the following officers: H. H. King, president; E. W. Gatlin, secretary; J. C. Scott, assistant secretary; V. Nelson, treasurer. The capital stock now is $10,000.

The National Defense League of the United States, held in Chicago recently, elected John G. Jones as president. W. A. Gaines, Covington, Ky.; N. D. Brascher, Cleveland, O.; Nich Chiles, Topeka, Kan., and D. R. Wilkins, of Chicago, are prominent among the officers of the League.

Doings of the Workmen.

FLORIDA.

FREE CANAAN AND MELROSE CIRCUIT—Geo. H. Cooper.—Our pentecostal meeting began May 28, closing June 13 in the St. John's Sunday school with glorious results. The membership of the church in this community was greatly revived, and six Sunday-school scholars were happily converted. The meeting was conducted by our beloved pastor, Rev. J. J. Keller, who labored hard for its success. This Sunday school was organized June 22, 1904, by Rev. J. J. Keller, for the convenience of the people who live too far from the main church to attend. It has had a steady growth and is a great strength to the whole work. Our Children's Day exercise followed the revival; the program was nicely carried out and made a fine impression on all present. Total collecton, $3.25.

GEORGIA.

CAVE SPRING, S. B. Beauford, pastor—I just closed the greatest revival at Chubbtown known in the history of the church. Rev. J. A. Holliday, our pastor of Dadeville, Ala., who assisted us, is a power in the pulpit. Thirty-three were converted and joined the church. We will baptize 35 persons the last Sunday in this month.

ROME, FLOYD CHARGE, Y. T. Fedrick, pastor—Our third quarterly conference was held July 22-23, at New Hope Church. Rev. C. W. Adam, presiding elder, preached a good sermon. This church held Children's Day exercises the first Sunday in this month and with only 24 members raised $14. The following is a financial report for the quarter: benevolences, $13.00; trustees, $35.00; pastor, $44.50; presiding elder, $13.50.

NEWMAN CIRCUIT, J. J. Jones, pastor—Our third quarterly conference convened July 29 at Mt. Olive Church, with Rev. E. H. Oliver, presiding elder, in the chair. Prof. J. W. Mitchell, secretary. Out of 44 members, 40 answered to roll call. The session proved a blessing. The circuit is in advance of last year more than $30. Sunday the church was crowded and the elder preached to the satisfaction of all. Collection $20.52.

DECATUR CIRCUIT, T. J. Thompson—We held our third quarterly conference with Presiding Elder P. H. Travis in the chair. We had a good time. Sunday at 11 a. m. the presiding elder preached an interesting sermon. Two members were added to the church and we had a glorious time. Presiding elder paid in full and the pastor paid $4.00. Total collection, $25.00.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, IOWA, O. A. Johnson, pastor—June 18th was a great day here among the Methodists. We had with us that distinguished divine, Rev. Dr. M. C. B. Mason, who at 11 a. m. preached at Wesley. Rev. L. K. Billingsley pastor. The congregation and pastor alike stated that they were much helped spiritually. At 3 p. m. he preached a wonderful sermon in Burns. The church was full. Seventeen of the city preachers were present and assisted Dr. Mason in dedicating the newly finished tow-story brick church. It is admitted by all that our church is second to no colored church building in Iowa. However, remember each colored congregation is doing its best for supremacy. Everyone knows now that the M. E. Church is here to stay. At 8 o'clock p. m., Dr. Mason preached to a large audience at the First M. E. Church, Rev. E. T. Hagerman pastor. Collection $202.50. Two persons admitted into the church.

To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up The System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out the malaria and the Iron builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

MISSISSIPPI.

Fayette, Miss., P. H. Rembert, Pastor.—Our work at this place continues to go forward. July closed our third quarterly conference. Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. R. P. Threlkeld, was on time. Following is our financial report for quarter: Paid pastor, $120.30; presiding elder in full, $9.40; Freedman's Aid, $17; W. H. M. S., $3; other collections, $52; total, $211.70. Total amount of benevolences up to date, $75. The elder preached two good sermons.

Okolona Circuit, W. C. Weatherall, Pastor.—We have had our Children's Day service at all four of our churches on this circuit, but the smallest church on the circuit led in finance. With the help of Mrs. Ida Brandon, Mrs. Annie Devall, Mr. Jimmie Nabor, the program was carried out. Gate's Chapel church is alive. She has raised all her apportionment for the benevolences. She raised for all purposes $22.87. She has done more up to date than the larger churches.

Shubuta Cir., C. W. Jones, Pastor.—My third quarterly conference was held July 13, with Elder J. B. Brooks in the chair. The quarter was a success. All the conference members were present with good reports. Paid to elder, $13; to pastor, $50; other expenses, $10. Total raised, $63. The work is spiritually alive.

Duck Hill, P. A. Lemon, Pastor.—Our first quarterly conference convened at Binford Chapel, April 21-23, Dr. N. H. Williams presiding. Every interest of the church received careful attention, and, notwithstanding inclement weather, the conference was a success. Sunday night Rev. Williams preached and administered the sacrament. Raised during the day, $18.50.

West Point, J. Burton.—My second quarter was held May 12-14, Rev. F. H. Henry presiding. The business of the conference was dispatched with ease. Raised during the quarter $180. Have just closed our revival (May 25) with six conversions and the church greatly revived. The elder preached and administered Sacrament to quite a large number.

Como, P. H. Jackson, Pastor.—Shortly after my arrival here the members united in an earnest effort to raise funds with which to repair the church. Thirty-five dollars was the result of the first attempt; S. W. Wright contributed $6; R. Meredith, M. Jorner and H. E. McGee, $5 each; D. L. Wilson, $3 and many others gave generously. The church is in excellent condition, spiritually and financially. Through the kindness of Brother D. L. Wilson, the pastor received recently a pair of shoes valued at $4.50.

Strong's Circuit, S. H. Clay.—At Paine's Chapel May 20-21 the second quarterly conference was conducted by Presiding Elder F. H. Henry. The official reports presented indicated a prosperous condition of the work along all lines. The business session was very satisfactory and we think this will be the best of Rev. S. M. McLeod's four years' administration on this circuit. Sunday the elder preached to a large and attentive audience; collection for the day $71; total collected during Saturday and Sunday, $81.65.

Harriston, W. N. G. Lipscomb, Pastor.—On the evening of May 30 a number of friends paid the inmates of the parsonage an unexpected but appreciated visit, for they brought with them many pounds of choice groceries.

Meadville, Wm. Vernon, Pastor.—Our quarterly conference met in Brinkley Church, May 27-28. Paid the presiding elder in full, $21; pastor $66, and $8 from the Natchez church; missions, $6.70. Additions to the church during the quarter, 18. The elder preached at Brinkley Sunday morning and at Meadville Sunday evening. Our church work is succeeding nicely.

Garlandville, C. G. Gavin, Pastor.—Rev. J. M. Shumpert conducted the 2nd quarterly conference of the Garlandville Charge at Bethel M. E. Church, May 6-7. I think I voice the sentiment of the entire Meridian District when I say that we are proud of Elder Shumpert. The sermon preached by Elder Shumpert Sunday will live long in the hearts of his hearers. Paid pastor this quarter, $32.35; presiding elder, $17.15; missions, $2.60; total, $52.10.

Indianola, E. H. Holmes, Pastor.—On Sunday, June 4, at Jerusalem Church, $35 was raised for all purposes. Presiding Elder J. W. Winbush held his 2nd quarterly conference on this charge with good results. Raised this year so far $155.15. The good people of Indianola are striving to make this year's record surpass all previous ones.

Shubuta, G. W. Arnold.—Our rally held Sunday, May 21, was very successful. Revs. W. M. Emmerson of Meridian and D. B. Wadkins assisted us. Mrs. Hannah Brown contributed $5; Will Dale and Miss R. Eustus, $2.50 each; Misses Willie and Annie Ewins, $2 and $1.30 respectively; Mrs. S. Dunn $4.10; Miss V. Shird and S. H. Howze $2.50 each; Mesdames J. A. Howze, H. McCarter and H. Gates, $3.80 and $3.50 respectively; T. J. Gates and Mesdames E. Graham, O. Howze, R. Voders and Miss C. L. Powe, $2.10 and $1.50 respectively. Many others contributing from 30 cents to $1.30 each, making a total collection of $84.13.

Meridian Circuit, H. R. S. Erby, Pastor.—During this, my first year on this circuit, we have seated the church at Marion at a cost of $55 and have added two persons to the membership. We held a rally June 4 for the pastor and the total of contributions, some of which ranged from 50 cents to $1.25, amounted to $20. There are loyal members on this charge.

Elliott, J. W. Terrell, Pastor.—A storming party visited the parsonage recently, led by R. H. Johnson, Y. W. Logan, Luvena Oneal, Mary E. Johnson and many other faithful members of Payne's Chapel. The donations were large and numerous and very much appreciated by the pastor and family.

Pickens, O. W. Crump, Pastor.—Our 2nd quarterly conference was held June 3-4 at Spring Ridge, Rev. S. H. Nevils presiding. The reports indicated progress along all lines of church work. Sunday the elder preached at both charges. We collected at Spring Ridge $16.10 and at Pickens $17.30; total for the quarter, $100. The quarter was a success in every way.

Hazlehurst, D. D. Dukes, Pastor.—May 17 and 18 our second quarterly conference was held at Crump Chapel M. E. Church by Dr. Smith, presiding elder, who conducted the business session successfully. He spent three days with us preaching and lecturing to our people.

Alesville, D. P. Shaw, Pastor.—My second quarterly conference convened June 3-4, Rev. N. H. Williams, D. D., presiding. Reports showed the work to be alive along all lines. The elder was at his best and, on Sunday, preached to the edification of all who heard him. Communicants 74. Collection, $28.05.

Greenville, J. B. Shepherd.—The Carpenter's Union No. 1497 had its annual sermon preached at the M. E. Church Sunday, June 4, by Rev. J. M. Marsh. This is the first time in the history of Greenville that an annual sermon has been preached to a labor union. The carpenters hereby offer to Rev. J. M. Marsh, also to his superb choir, heartfelt thanks.

MISSOURI.

Armstrong, F. C. B. Washington, Pastor.—Grant's Chapel.—Our second quarter was held July 16-17. Dr. Geo. W. Reeves, of Glasgow, was with us. He preached two very instructive sermons. Dr. F. Wells of the A. M. E. Church, also preached with power. Our pastor has been sick for three weeks. This was the best quarter in the history of the church, spiritually and financially. Fifty-eight communed. Collection for the day, $30.53. Paid the presiding elder $10; pastor, $20.53.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 176, Notre Dame, Ind.

TALK IS CHEAP; ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

To any reader of this great paper who will send me their name and address (a postal will do), I will send (not a sample) but a full-size box of

GLOSSINE

Queen of all hair tonics. This the greatest and most meritorious remedy for the human hair, causes the hair to grow with rapidity and gives to it that rich glossy tone so much desired by all. No matter how short or harsher curley your hair may be, Glossine will make it long and straight, soft and fine, and of so rich and pliable a texture that it can be dressed in any prevailing style desired. Glossine cannot fail. I stake my honor on its great merit and prove its worth by sending a full-size box free to all who write to me. Doings of the Workmen

LOUISIANA.

MANDEVILLE, G. W. Forest, pastor—Our second quarterly conference convened July 9th. Dr. Marshall, presiding elder, presided with much care. Most of the officers had good reports. After Dr. Marshall's sermon 17 persons came forward for prayer. One cash subscriber was secured for the SOUTHWESTERN. We raised this quarter $80.75; paid pastor, $41.10; presiding elder in full; raised for missions, $9.00. Rev. Vincent entertained Dr. and Sister Marshall. Sister Marshall's presence was a benediction to this work.

SPRING CREEK, Louisa Kimplin—The members of St. Mark Church gave their pastor, Rev. J. S. Weaver, a grand surprise Monday night. This host was led by Miss Olla Hayes, an everlasting church worker, and Brother Martin Hayes. Brothers L. J. James and Richard Stafford are found among the earnest helpers. A great many pounds were left.

PORT ALLEN.—I take this method of thanking the Steward Sisters of Scott Chapel M. E. Church for the amount of $6.10, a contribution to the old church, and we kindly ask them to plan again. We thank them for their faithful work. Sister L. Ricard, president; Lucindy Johnson, secretary.

SMITHLAND.—J. J. Woolridge, pastor.—On a recent evening at the close of a prayer meeting the pastor was presented 43 pounds of nice groceries and $1.35 in money. The church is in good condition spiritually and financially. Two persons were recently received into full membership.

LETTSWORTH.—J. J. Woolridge, pastor.—At Scotts Chapel M. E. Church Sunday evening, June 4, the Epworth League prayer meeting, led by the First Vice-President, Mrs. M. J. Woolridge, was well attended. Three persons were received into full membership, and five persons bowed at the altar for prayer. The president, Mrs. T. H. Moore, made a good address. Collection for the day, $10.30.

TEXAS.

E. Micheaux, Pastor.—My second quarterly conference was held June 24-25. Reports showed great improvement. Paid the presiding elder $10; pastor, $73. Children's Day was a high day. We raised $77.

Dickinson, J. P. Patrick.—Hon. J. Vance Lewis, of Houston, Texas, recently addressed a fine audience in Warren Chapel on "Our Future Possibilities as a Race." The address was a masterpiece. The speaker proved himself to be a man of exceptional ability.

CAUSE AND CURE FOR CONSTIPATION.

A person in order to be healthy must get rid of the waste products (or poisons) of the body. Nature has provided four ways to get rid of them: The Bowels, the Kidneys, the Bladder and the pores of the Skin.

If the Bowels become inactive, that portion of the food which should be thrown off lies in the intestines and decomposes, causing Blood, Nerve, Liver and Kidney Trouble, and closes the pores of the skin, thus creating disease in the entire system.

You can immediately relieve and permanently cure yourself of stubborn Constipation or distressing Stomach Trouble and perfectly regulate your Kidneys and Liver by taking one dose a day of Drake's Palmetto Wine. Any reader of this paper can secure absolutely free a bottle by writing to The Drake Co., Drake Bldg., Chicago.

A free test bottle alone has brought health and vigor to many, so you owe it to yourself to prove what it will do in your case.

Write the company this very day.

SHUBUTA DISTRICT.

We had quite a fall off in our subscription list to the SOUTHWESTERN at the last session of our district conference, which convened at Laurel, Miss.; only 26. We had hoped and asked for 75. A number we could have raised had each one done his part. I now ask that each pastor bring five yearly subscribers to the convention which will convene at Enterprise, Miss., in the month of October. Rev. R. House, the agent appointed by the district conference, will give further notice just as soon as the exact date is given. Now, brethren, please get these ready. Every local preacher is asked to get one subscriber. Brethren, you can do this. Will you do so? I am yours very truly,

J. B. BROOKS, P. E.

To Members of the Mississippi Conference Brotherhood:

Mrs. James Jordon, wife of the Rev. James Jordon, of Heidleburg, Miss., a meber of the Conference Brotherhood, died Saturday, August 12. All members of the order, according to Article 5 of our Constitution, must pay one dollar assessment within sixty days from this date. Yours,

"LA CREOLE" HAIR RESTORER

"La Creole" Hair Restorer contains the ingredients used by the most famous Creole beauties. It will restore gray hair to its original color, stop falling hair, cure dandruff, keep the hair clean, soft and glossy and will make curly or kinky hair lie straight and smooth for a time.

Miss Nancy Rice.

NOTHING TAKES ITS PLACE.

This is a photograph of Miss Nancy Rice, 185 Beale street, Memphis, Tenn., who has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for years, and who says:

"Nothing I have ever used will take the place of your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer, as it keeps my hair in a splendid condition."

Miss Rice is a woman of striking personal appearance, which is owng very largely to her fine hair, the result of using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT FOR A TIME.

HAS DONE WONDERS.

This is a photograph of Mr. Louis Nemore, residing at No. 10 Turley St., Memphis, Tenn., one of the most highly respected colored men in the city. He is implicitly trusted by his employer for the last ten years—Dr. Heber Jones, one of our most prominent physicians, and now president of the Memphis Board of Health. Mr. Nemore says that he takes pleasure in stating that our "La Creole" Hair Restorer has done wonders for his splendid head of hair. "It has kept my hair from falling out, and has kept my head and scalp in a clean, healthy condition. I recommend it very highly.

Doings of the Workmen

TENNESSEE.

Union City, Howard Adkins.—Zion M. E. Church closed during June one of the largest and most successful rallies in her history. Under the administration of Rev. S. M. Strayhorn we have had great success. On June 25, our few members gave of their means willingly, and it was truly a day of rejoicing. at 11, 3 and at nigh the pastor preached powerful sermons to very attentive congregations, composed of members of various churches. The Russian army, under the leadership of Bro. Frank Douglas, one of our local preachers, placed upon their table $69.37. The Japanese army, under leadership of Bro. Alexander Cook, hero of Methodism, placed upon its table $71.78. Total, $141.15, which about places the church out of debt.

Lawrenceburg, M. A. E. Welch.—Our third quarterly conference convened in Wesley's Chapel May 27, with Rev. A. Phillips, presiding elder, in the chair. The reports showed that pastor had been paid during the quarter, $109.75; presiding elder, $22.42; Missions, $10; Walden University, $5; total, $147.17. Our pastor, Rev. W. Ellison, by his skill in organizing and leading the people, guarantees success along all lines of church work. The presiding elder preached two excellent sermons and lectured to the league.

TEXAS.

Brookston, G. R. Turner, Pastor.—Our church here is yet alive. All members seem to have the work at heart and are pushing matters to the front. Rev. F. Parker held his third quarterly conference here on the 9th and 11th. Nearly all officers were present and rendered good reports. Our Sabbath school is one to be admired. The presiding elder's lecture to the school was plain and simple and full of good thoughts. Two dollars was raised for children's fund and one dollar for E. L. Raised for presiding elder, $20.70. Eighty persons partook of the Lord's Supper.

Jefferson, M. C. Gillispie.—While visiting Rev. W. Brown in Bryan, Texas, I found the old parsonage had been torn down and a nice five-room one had been built at a cost of $500, and the membership increased from 70 to 130. He and his members are preparing to build a $3,000 church. The school teachers who come to Bryan every summer to attend the Normal and also the distinguished visitors to his town make his church their place of worship.

Calvert, J. W. Stone, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference was held July 9-10. Rev. J. H. Swann presided. Most of the officers were present. All of the class leaders presented written reports. The elder expressed himself as being well pleased with the condition of the work. Sacrament was administered to 76 persons. Collection, $22.40. Suitable memorial services in honor of Rev. Mack Henson were held. Two excellent papers were read by Profs. C. C. Platt and T. H. Brawley. Strong remarks were made by Dr. Durham and others. The presiding elder preached a strong and touching sermon from these words, "Well done."

Yorktown, Velma Ross.—Our Woman's Home Missionary sermon was preached here by Rev. Tyler.

ARKANSAS.

CLOW.—On Monday evening, May 30, our pastor, Rev. D. H. E. Harris, had an agreeable surprise in the form of a storm party, which was gotten up by Messrs. A. D. Jacques and C. W. Sampson. The affair was well planned. The company came with baskets, boxes, sacks, etc., singing "Let the Stranger in." The welcome visitors entered, sang another song and offered a word of prayer, after which the surprise of the evening was made known by Prof. A. D. Jaques and Brother C. W. Sampson. The pastor responded, thanking the loyal company of Christian workers for their loving remembrance of himself and family. Prof. A. D. Jaques, Bro. C. W. Sampson, Mrs. A. D. Jaques, Mrs. C. W. Sampson, committee; Wm. Gozey, M. D., writer.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

ARDMORE.—A. W. Talbert, pastor.—The third quarterly conference convened in Warren Chapel M. E. Church June 17-18, 1905, Rev. D. G. Franklin, presiding elder, in charge. The majority of officers were present with good reports. Three accessions were reported. Mrs. Matilda Graham, superintendent of the Junior Epworth League, made an excellent report. Mrs. Ida A. Wooten, president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, led all reports. Her department had lifted heavy burdens of the church during the quarter. They had aided the trustees in the repair of the parsonage, having raised and expended nearly $40 this quarter for that purpose. Bro. H. C. Wooten led the class leaders in raising pastor's salary and will be awarded the SOUTHWESTERN for three months. Mr. G. C. Graham reported the Sunday school in splendid condition. The presiding elder preached two good sermons to large audiences. In the afternoon he preached for the U. B. F.s at the C. M. E. Church. Rev. Franklin is playing a very prominent part in the establishment of our Methodism in this territory. Mrs. M. Donahue led a storm party to the parsonage which caused the table to groan under its burden. Receipts for the quarter were $200.00 Mr. Chas. Young, captain of Men's Day Rally, reported $20.00. He did splendid work. Warren Chapel is in good condition.

MISSISSIPPI.

LAKE.—N. E. Goodloe, pastor.—Our third quarterly conference was a success, Elder J. M. Shumpert presiding. And it was the best conference held here in many years. The elder and the pastor paid up to date; $10 for benevolences. Also, at Lake, where we have only 20 members, we raised on the first Sunday to build our church $77.40. The Lord is blessing our work.

MOSS POINT.—S. H. Cannon, pastor.—On our arrival here we found the parsonage nicely arranged for our reception and a committee awaiting our coming. The following Friday night we held our first leaders' and stewards' meeting. The attendance was large. We found the Hargis Sunday school on the Gulf District second to none in the Mississippi Conference. Sunday morning, at the St. Paul Church, a fair congregation was in attendance. Since then some 30 or 40 persons have joined the church. During April we had the greatest revival held in this church for several years. Conversions and additions, 36. Our Sunday school here has an ideal superintendent in the person of Mr. S. H. Wallace, who has been in charge of this work for twenty years. On Easter this school raised $80. Twenty members paid $1 each. The Epworth League work has been resurrected again and is now in splendid shape, under the leadership of T. B. Stallworth. On April 16 we had our first quarterly conference. Rev. R. W. Jones, our new presiding elder was in the chair. He dispatched the business of the conference with accuracy. The elder preached two sermons on Sunday. Paid him in full, $25. The stewards had a rally on pastor's salary June 19, and each captain raised the following amount: Mrs. Cannon, $37; James Hartzell, $33; Josephine Davis, $21.50; Mrs. M. H. Fairly, $45; total amount raised, $133.70.

Elder R. W. Jones was with us and held our second quarterly conference June 29 and July 2. The elder preached at 11 o'clock a glorious sermon. Paid presiding elder, $45.75; paid pastor $320.45; grand total for the five months for all purposes, $685.

Well, Moss Point is quite a peaceful little town. There is perfect harmony. Some of our people here are buying property. Most of them own their homes and some own grocery stores. We have a fine drug store with Prof. W. H. Hardy at its head. C. S. Waters, M. D., has a large practice here among our people. The way our people are learning to employ our own physicians is very encouraging.

DUCK HILL.—P. A. Lemon, pastor.—I take this method to thank the parties concerned for their hospitality shown toward us. Early Monday morning a rattling of wheels was heard at the parsonage door, and Bro. A. T. Pratt, the efficient superintendent, left more than two hundred pounds of groceries in the parsonage. The movement was led by A. T. Pratt and M. D. McKinney. They are loyal members, indeed.

KENNOLIA CIRCUIT.—A. Jackson, pastor.—At the class leaders' rally on the first Sunday in June, held in Wesley Chapel, a prize was offered to the leader raising the most money. The following sums were raised: O. Smith, $3.05; E. Freeman, $6.30; G. Brint, $1.15; R. Colman, $1.20; A. Hillard, $7.35; D. Hillard, $3.05. The friends gave $2.40. Total collection, $24.55. To A. Hillard was awarded the prize.

H. J. Jordan, pastor.—My second quarterly conference was held by Presiding Elder G. W. Smith, who delivered a brief tho able lecture. The reports presented by the officers gave entire satisfaction, and they indicated marked improvement on all lines. The committee on Freedmen's Aid raised $13, and a good paper was read before the conference. Paid the presiding elder in full; paid the pastor $97.

COY.—W. A. White, pastor.—The second quarterly conference of the Coy Circuit convened June 17-18, with Rev. McNeil, presiding elder, in the chair. The conference was largely attended. The work is in a prospering condition. At 11 o'clock the elder preached with power to a large congregation. Truly Rev. McNeil is a financier. Raised for a circuit horse $13.25; raised $11.05 for elder; on salary, $135; other purposes, $1.10; total raised Saturday and Sunday, $26.75. Raised this quarter, $50.75.

"Shut your eyes, open your mouth and see what luck will bring you."

Many a woman is weak and sick, nervous and discouraged. She suffers from headache, backache and other ills. She wants to be well, but all she does is to shut her eyes and open her mouth for medicine and trust to luck for results. She "doctors" month after month, often year after year, in this same blind, hap-hazard fashion, and receives no permanent benefit.

Women take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with their eyes open to the fact that it cures womanly ills. It cures irregularity. It dries debilitating drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. There is no trusting to luck by those who use "Favorite Prescription."

"In the year 1903 my health was poor," writes Mrs. J. Hack, of 242 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y. "I suffered from falling of womb, a disagreeable discharge, painful monthly periods, headache, backache and pains in the limbs. Every month was confined to bed for two or three days. Was weak, nervous and hysterical; life was a burden to myself and I made every one in the family unhappy because I was so irritable. My husband got me four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and before I had taken the first bottle I was feeling some relief. The medicine made me well and strong, free from nervousness, aches and pain, and I felt like a new woman. Before I used the 'Favorite Prescription' I had been taking another physician's medicine for nearly three months, but had received no benefit. Your medicine is certainly the best in the world."

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Don't let a selfish seller over-persuade you to accept a substitute for these Original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated but never equaled.

GREELY.—On June 26 Lula Greely died at Mt. Sinai, La., at the age of six years.

STALLWORTH.—On July 3, 1905, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Stallworth died after an illness of several weeks. The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. H. Cannon.

FORD.—After 40 years of faithful service Sister Fannie Ford departed this life in full triumph of faith, on July 8, 1905, at Alexandria, Tenn. The funeral was largely attended and ably conducted by Rev. Swift, the pastor of the M. E. Church, assisted by Rev. Talley. She leaves six children and a host of friends.

MILES.—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Miles died at their home on July 7, 1905, at Baker, La. Funeral conducted by Rev. Green Dyes and the pastor, C. D. C. Bryan.

CROCKETT.—On July 8, 1905, at Cumberland Furnace, Tenn., Sister Octavia Crockett, a member of Stone's Chapel M. E. Church, departed this life in full triumph of faith. She leaves nine children and a host of friends to mourn her loss. J. R. Reasonover, pastor.

WRIGHT.—Bro. Carter Wright, one of the oldest members of Lafayette (Ga.) Circuit, departed this life July 12, 1905. He was a local preacher for over 40 years. The church will lose a faithful member. The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. J. Jordan, of West Point, and Rev. W. E. Smith, pastor at Lafayette.

NISBY.—Little Robert Nisby, aged 4 years and 6 months, son of Bro. Robert Nisby, died July 17, 1905, at Washington, La. S. Green, pastor.

Doings of the Workmen

MISSOURI.

New Franklin Circuit, H. T. Reeves, Pastor.—Our second quarterly meeting was a success. Presiding Elder J. Will Jackson could not be present. He sent Rev. J. W. Thomas to preside. He preached two able sermons. The elder was paid in full. Raised this quarter, $129.13. Six persons have been added to the church.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 170, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.

Doings of the Workmen

MISSISSIPPI.

Crawford.—The second quarterly conference was held at this point June 3-4. Rev. F. H. Henry presided. Rev. J. J. Johnson, our pastor, presented as usual a good report on all lines. The Sacrament was administered to 79 persons. Rev. Henry preached an eloquent sermon Sunday. Collected during the quarter $19.90.

Houston, R. M. Conwell.—We arrived here May 9 and a few nights after our arrival a great storm passed through the parsonage, filling our table with all kinds of groceries. It was led by Bro. J. V. Termon and M. J. Johns. My quarterly conference was held May 27-28. Elder Clay was absent. The work was in good condition. On Sunday two able sermons were delivered. Collection, $38.

TEXAS.

Richmond Circuit, L. L. Graham, Pastor.—At the quarterly conference the presiding elder preached to a crowded house and administered the Lord's Supper to 40. Raised for the presiding elder $3; for missions, $4.40; total, $7.40.

Houston, W. M. White, Pastor, Hamilton Chapel Mission.—My first quarterly conference was held the fifth Sunday in April with Presiding Elder Lee in the chair. All officers present with good reports. The elder preached a spiritual sermon. Twenty-one partook of the Lord's Supper. Paid elder in full.

Hearne, A. L. Gabriel, Pastor.—On Children's Day, by organizing our people into clubs, we raised at our two churches $43. We hope to do our part in the Wiley rally.

Paris Circuit, G. W. Norris, Pastor.—The third quarterly conference of Paris Circuit was held by Rev. C. Worford, assisted by D. D. Parker. It was held at Bethlehem June 24-25 and was very well attended. Sunday the elder preached and administered the Sacrament. The children rendered their program at 3 o'clock Sunday and raised $4.76. Collected for presiding elder, $4.

Hondo, J. W. Wright, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference convened June 24-25, with Rev. J. W. Weakley, presiding. All officers present with written reports. Raised for presiding elder, $12.58; missions, $18.62; paid pastor, $20.48; total, $51.68. Bro. Ben Taylor is a model class leader, and looks for no failures. The spiritual part of the conference was glorious. Rev. Weakley seemed to preach as never before.

Bremond, R. H. Duncan.—The 13th of July I organized the Methodist Episcopal Church with ten members in a town of 500. This is the first Methodist church ever established at this place.

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back, and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 176, Notre Dame, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Francois, in 2308 Soniat street, celebrated the ninth anniversary of the birth of their daughters Naomi and Agnes, two beautiful and interesting twins, so much "like two peas in a pod" that is difficult to tell one from the other. A number of little ladies and gentlemen were present making merry with song and music and enjoying refreshments.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves

Read this Letter to you about the

Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from overwork or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnish the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

Crescent City Notes

On next Sunday afternoon, under the Young People's Song Service, a sacred concert will be given in Union Chapel, on Bienville street, the program beginning promptly at 4:30 o'clock. Among the numbers of special attention will be two selections by the Christian Endeavor Orchestra, the singing of "Inflammatus" and "Qui Tollis" by St. James choir, and solos by Miss Wilson, Miss Dulac and Mrs. Jones. Mrs. S. F. Williams, principal of Thomy Lafon, will deliver the address. Fans will be furnished the entire audience and free lemonade will be served to all. Valcour Chapman, pastor.

The Sunday services of Wesley Chapel were well attended. Rev. J. W. Turner preached a very spiritual sermon, enjoyed by all who attended. At night the Epworth League had their exercises. The trustees sang a chorus and a solo was sung by Mrs. Williams. Collection for the day, $32.00.

MRS. GOLDEN.

Sister Viola Acause, a member of Mallalieu M. E. Church, died on Wednesday, Aug. 16. She was perfectly resigned and said: "I am ready. I have no fear of dying." She was buried from Mallalieu by her pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright, assisted by Bro. Adam Thomas.

A wagon drove up to Rev. H. J. Wright's home last Saturday evening with a basket of a lot of assorted groceries, for which he thanks the donor.

Love feast at Mallalieu Chapel Friday night. Revs. J. F. Marshall, H. Taylor, W. S. Chinn, J. McKee, V. Chapman, H. Daniels, J. W. Turner and other visitors are expected to be present. All are invited.

H. J. WRIGHT, Pastor.

Dr. J. F. Marshall was with us Aug. 13 at Haven Chapel and assisted in the services. Collection for the day, $26.17. On Aug. 16 Dr. Marshall held our third quarter. Rev. J. W. Turner, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district, was present. Dr. Marshall was well pleased with our work. Paid pastor $144.85; paid presiding elder $10.10. Total amount raised during quarter, $327.27.

J. MCKEE, Pastor.

Sister M. Clay, aged 95 years, a member of Williams Chapel, died Aug. 12 at 9 p. m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. C. Mead. Sister Clay had been sick for the past eight months. She stood her illness without complaint, feeling that God would not put any more upon her than she was able to bear. The pastor was assisted in the funeral services by the following pastors: Revs. D. Young and E. J. Brown of the Baptist Church; Revs. J. A. Tircuit and [illegible] Taylor of the M. E. Church. Miss [illegible] E. A. Brazely led the choir and rendered excellent music, assisted by Mrs. L. E. Brooks, Mrs. D. J. Mitchell and Mrs. Wilson. C. W. REEVES Pastor

Prayer meeting and Sunday school at Williams Chapel, as usual, were good. At 11 a. m. the pastor preached. At 3 p. m. the King's Daughters rendered their monthly program. Mrs. E. Woodfolk presided. Revs. W. Fisher and P. J. Becnel preached. At 8 p. m. Rev. L. Brazely preached. Miss S. A. E. Brazely and Miss L. E. Vining rendered good service at the organ. One subscriber for the paper. Collection $23.84. C. W. REEVES, Pastor.

All mothers of daughters should write Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for free copy of her "Advice to Mothers." See ad. in this paper.

The peace negotiations continue. Compromises are being submitted, but as yet no agreement has been reached. It now looks as tho Japan may withdraw the item of indemnity, which will later be submitted to a mixed commission. If this proposition prevails, then we may have a cessation of hostilities in the far East. President Roosevelt continues active in the interest of peace and his efforts in this regard are commended throughout the world.

It is said that the railroad is a pioneer of civilization, a statement that finds verification easily. Not only so, but the railway systems bear a very intimate and vital relation to our community life and national life as well; hence the keen interest on the part of the people in railroad legislation and particularly in the investigation conducted under the direction of the President. The railroads of this country employ, according to the tabulation for 1904, 1,296,121 persons, who receive in the aggregate for a year's labor $817,598,810. Who can properly estimate this influence upon our national life? The railroads are the pioneers of civilization; they eliminate distance, binding communities and states together. They are great conveniences, indeed an absolute necessity, but we pay dearly for the privilege. For the year ending June 30, 1904, the reports show that 10,046 persons were killed and 84,155 more or less injured. Of those killed 441 were passengers and 9,111 of the injured belong to the same class. Nor do these figures represent all the casualties. Civilization is costly at such a price.

The close of last week shows an improvement in the yellow fever situation. On Monday there were only five deaths and forty-five new cases. The total number of deaths to date have reached 260; the total number of cases to date, 1,787; the total number of cases discharged as cured, 1,346; the total number of cases under treatment, 181. And when it is considered that New Orleans has a population of almost 350,000, one hundred and eighty-one cases seem quite small. The most serious situation, however, is in the outlying parishes, where medical attention is not easily had. Particularly is this true at Leeville, which is situated at the mouth of Bayou Lafourche. Here is a population of 500 people, and an investigation under the direction of Dr. Devron, of the State Board of Health, shows 267 of the 500 are sick, and of this number there are 221 positive cases of yellow fever. The people are panic-stricken, for the reason that doctors and medicine are not close at hand, and, too, the people have been experimenting with too many home remedies. When proper precautions are observed, especially as laid down by the City Board of Health and United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, any one is practically immuned from the yellow fever.

REV. THOMAS DIXON, JR., ON RACE SITUATION

Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., contributes to a recent number of the Saturday Evening Post a commercial article on "Booker T. Washington and the Negro." It is sensational. There is a demand for it. It brings a good price. It is also a good advertisement for his books and it was a shrewd getting of very valuable space in one of the country's most popular journals.

He claims to be one of the Negro's best friends, a friendship which we spurn, reject and denounce. It is blackguard for him to claim to be a "friend," and his use of that holy word in this connection is a pollution.

His class—Dixon, Tillman, William Hannibal Thomas, Vardaman, John Temple Graves—these are they!

The article is full of contradictions and inconsistencies. He says that he admires Booker T. Washington, who "saw a vision and followed it," whose aim "to make Negroes producers, lovers of labor, honest, independent, good," is "noble and inspiring." Then Mr. Dixon adds: "Only a fool or a knave can find fault with such an ideal. It squarely rests upon eternal verities."

In spite of this, further on in his article he says: "The truth which is gradually forcing itself upon thoughtful students of our national life is that no scheme of education or religion can solve the race problem, and that Mr. Booker T. Washington's plan, however high and noble, can only intensify its difficulties."

There seems to be a missing link between the first quotation and the one just given. The ideal as pursued under the direction of Dr. Washington rests upon "eternal verities," and then he forthwith says that no scheme of education or religion can solve the race problem. Eternal verities are never contradictory. All truth is of God. And no truth ever conflicts with another truth. Here Mr. Dixon loses sight of his God. He loses sight of Jesus Christ as the greatest reformer of the world. If he will put God into the equation, the problem will lose its dread and light for its solution is at hand. And if education and the religion of Jesus Christ fail us in the solution of any problem, then we are of all men most miserable.

Mr. Dixon wants an answer to the cold-blooded proposition: "Can you change the color of a Negro's skin, the kink of his hair, the bulge of his lip, or the beat of his heart with a spelling book or a machine?" There is no attempt to make the Negro a white man. The Negro race loves its racial characteristics, as well as its physical outline about as well as the white man loves his. This is verily true with the unadulterated Negro, but Ethiopia has never changed his skin, the bulge of his lip, or the kink of his hair except when he has come within close proximity with the white man. Mr. Dixon taunts Mr. Charles W. Chestnut for his statement in regard to amalgamation. Certainly Mr. Chestnut believes in amalgamation, for he is amalgamated to the extent of being 85 per cent white, and nobody detests the infamous process more than the Negro, who believes, intensely, that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

The bitterness of Mr. Dixon's article is summed up in this sentence: "If there is one thing the Southern white man cannot endure, it is an educated Negro." The Southern white man in the case is the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr.; it is he who cannot endure an educated Negro. For every State in the South contributes, much or little, toward Negro education. There are many in the South who contribute nothing toward his intellectual advancement, but, on the other hand, there are philanthropists among the Southern white people who contribute largely to Negro education. Some of the faculties of our law and medical schools are made up almost entirely of eminent white lawyers and physicians, who receive little or no pay. Mr. Dixon does not represent the South. Prof. George William Walker, president of Payne Institute, Augusta, Ga., is a better representative. Prof. Walker is a Southern white man and believes that the Negro should have the best education possible.

We are free to admit that a large per cent of our Negro population will find employment as domestics, but 9,000,000 of servants, such as Mr. Dixon would have, could not find employment. And if they could, why thwart the purpose of God by turning the artistic fingers of a Tanner to that of serving in a kitchen. It would be robbing the world for Coleridge-Taylor to leave his music for a position as coachman; it would retard world progress for Woods, the electrician, to be a tinker rather than follow the bent of his mind. Think of the physicians who care for the ills of our people, the lawyers, who give legal advice, the ministers, who are inspiring cardinal virtues and pointing the way to the higher life, made to do service as hewers of wood and drawers of water. Think what it would mean not only to a race, but to our civilization, to cast an entire race into a mold of servants.

Oh, well, what would Mr. Dixon do without the Negro to write about? He says he has been "intimately associated with the Negro since the morning of his birth," and it is not to be expected that he will let them entirely alone. What a pity it would be if all the Negroes were sent to Africa, as Mr. Dixon suggests. If such a feat were accomplished, the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., would be one of the first to set sail on a visit to the Dark Continent.

THE HOME LIFE OF THE NEGRO

There is no institution that is of so much concern, both to the State and to the Kingdom of Righteousness, as the home. It is the basis of every great movement; it is a castle of virtue and of patriotism and the citadel of holy living. Without it both society and State must inevitably crumble, and without it the Annual Address of Booker T. Washington

President of the National Negro Business League, Palm Garden, New York, August 16, 1905, 8 P. M.

This gathering brings us to the sixth annual meeting of the National Negro Business League. It is gratifying to note the growth of the organization and the spread of the ideas for which it stands. This all the more so as the League had its origin in a very small and simple way. There are gathered here to-day men and women engaged in business and in various industrial pursuits from nearly every state in the Union where any considerable number of our people live. Not only is this true, but local business leagues are now organized in many sections, and the number is increasing at a rapid rate. We should be careful not to be swerved from our original purpose of making the League wholly an organization for encouraging the economic and business development of our people, for making an opportunity where those who have succeeded in spite of obstacles can tell their stories, and for getting inspiration and encouragement by the touching of elbows each year.

We hope to have few, if any, long speeches; just the simple narration of facts. We place more emphasis in this organization upon hearing about what people have accomplished than in receiving advice, in hearing about what people have done than in what they are planning or hoping to do. We want to hear from the man who has succeeded in his own community. In following this general plan we do not overlook the fact that there are other and vital subjects bearing upon the rights of our race. We do not overlook or minimize the wrongs and the injustices under which the race often suffers, but one organization cannot embrace all the interests of the race.

We believe that we can best serve our people at this time by clinging steadfastly to our original purposes, by clinging to the things which, in a large measure, underlie progress in education, progress in morals, progress in civic rights. There is perhaps no body of individuals who crave more earnestly the opportunity than we do to enter into the full enjoyment of all that is guaranteed to us by the Constitution of our country. The American people like a man who holds up his head and goes forward in spite of difficulties or injustices.

Our progress must be permanent and not artificial. We must pay the price for everything we get. We cannot bridge the chasm that separates us from much that American life offers by simply meeting and passing resolutions. The day has passed when the great body of the American people will give serious heed to high-sounding resolutions or loud "demands." The most potent demand that we can make for fair and just consideration is actual achievement in the locality in which we live. We can do more in a day to advance our cause than legislation can do in a year. More and more we must turn our faces toward the rising sun of constructive, creative and progressive effort and away from the setting sun of whining and complaining. There is no encouragement or inspiration, either for us or for our children, in a policy like unto the "Wailing of Jeremiah," by which others are to rid us of our miseries. We have a right as taxpayers and American citizens to ask the equal protection and enforcement of all laws: but let us not spend all of our time and strength in enlarging upon a demand for these things. One tangible achievement in creative effort will go further in bringing us protection and respect than any recital of wrongs we may make.

Instead of blaming somebody for not providing decent surroundings and decent houses for us to occupy, let us turn our attention to acquiring some of the millions of unoccupied acres of land in this country and to creating for ourselves decent surroundings and comfortable homes. Instead of complaining because work is denied in certain quarters, let us turn our attention, in a large measure, to the policy of going to the fundametntal sources of all occupations; that is, to create out of the soil, out of wood, mineral, water, the products the world wants. This policy will make us creators of jobs and not mere seekers after jobs. When a man is sick in body it is of little value or comfort to have all his aches and pains described to him each day in the year. What he craves is a remedy that shall rid him of his ailments. What the world is now anxious to hear about the Negro is not his sickness, but his health. There is not much inspiration in following a funeral procession. The world is anxiously waiting to learn whether the Negro is to have a funeral or a resurrection from the graveyard of the past. You who are gathered here have convinced me by achievement that you favor resurrection. Let us advertise to the world our strength, not our weakness; our success, not our failure; our achievements, not our hopes; our agreements, not our disagreements.

We need education—industrial, technical, college and professional—but we must not forget to provide a medium through business and industrial enterprises for the services of a large proportion of our intelligent men and women. Emphasizing abstract ideas, academic theories, will count for little, unless they are applied to the vital daily interests of the masses.

In commending opportunities for progress in business and ommerce we should not disregard the fact that of the ten million members of our race, the great masses are in the South, and there, in my opinion, they will remain. While there are evils of which no one should lose sight—in creating and securing labor, in conducting business enterprises and in securing homes—there is no other part of the United States that begins to offer a field more inviting than the South. We should see to it that we do not lose in the South that which we now possess. We should not grasp at a shadow and lose the substance. If we neglect to occupy the field that is now before us in the South it will become there as it is in the North—we shall be excluded by those who are strangers to our tongue and customs.

We should let no influence turn our eyes from the fact that while wrong and injustice often touch our lives, the masses of our people are dependent upon the white people of the South, in a large degree, for employment, education and protection of life and property. We should see that no fire of racial hostility is lighted. Those who light the fire should go into the heart of the South and take the consequences along with the helpless masses who follow their mad advice. Anyone can set a house on fire, but it requires wise effort to extinguish it. My experience teaches me that those who are most active in stirring up strife are the first to flee when danger threatens.

There is a group of white men in the South, however, little we may hear of them at a distance, who are constantly exerting themselves to help forward our cause, and we should see that no action on our part embarrasses them or makes their task more difficult. We should condemn that which is wrong in the white race, but g credit to those in the South and the North w are seeking to help us. We should be slow speak the word that will array the Negro agai any man, North or South. Our race needs ev friend that it can secure in a manly way in sections of the land. The white man has d too much in helping us to secure Christian e cation and the benefits of civilization for us show an ungrateful or hostile spirit.

It is an unwise policy to encourage our peo to leave the South, except from sections wh they are not protected by the law, unless we assured that the conditions will be permaner improved when they reach other sections. one desires to test the sanity of this view of matter, let him move four millions of the ei millions of Negroes from the South into North and West. By so doing a problem wo be created far more serious and complicated t any now existing in the Southern States.

Time was when a man of either race who sired to attract attention, or to secure pro inence and a following, had only to stand and curse the other race; but to-day the Ne is looking not for cursings, but for blessin is looking for racial peace, not for strife. are seeking co-operation, not racial disunion.

In what I have said, I have placed the phasis in the direction that I have, because th are the fundamentals that underlie all busin and commercial success for our race—for race. Though our stay in the wilderness been long and sometimes almost discouragi the work of this and similar organizations is ready enabling us to discern the light that us welcome to the promised land. May our never falter or grow weary while treading toilsome way.

In the postoffice there are several colored n in paying positions, and the entire mail-carry force of the city, with a single exception, is ored.

Of lawyers there are two—Hon. Geo. Lovejoy and James R. Smith. Both seem be doing a paying business, and both own cellent homes and own other property besides

One thing noticeable is the fact that Negr are not barred from any property they can for, and it was our pleasure to see white colored men working side by side on the sa buildings as skilled workmen.

Strength Through Trial

Do these evil thoughts which come to prove me a sinner? They come unbidden, I hate them.

Because we are human we are subject to ten tations by an evil power called in the Bi "Satan." He tempted Christ, but Christ did yield, and He was without sin. Hence we kn that the mere tempting does not prove us sinn It is the yielding that proves sin. On the ot hand, every time we resist an evil temptation, matter in what shape it may come, we stronger. The resistance which we make pro that we are led by the Spirit, and Satan can stand in His presence. Bunyan's experience, he tells it in "Pilgrim's Progress," is an ill tration of strength through the very temptati It is a great comfort to know that the more resist, the weaker Satan's influence over us comes. He tries us in higher ways, but th ways prove us on a higher level. By and by almost leaves us, finding he has nothing in That is a magnificent and deep saying of Jes "The prince of this world cometh and hath no ing in me." It means much, but its great mea ing for us is that as we grow more and more l Christ there is nothing in us that Satan fi agreeable, and he lets us alone. We do not rea this stage at once, but we gradually get nea to it. Blessed be God! He holds us tightly His loving arms, and "no man is able to plu us away."—Floyd W. Tompkins, S. T. D.

South Carolina Conference Notes

A NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

The Rev. W. R. A. Palmer, D. D., the brilliant pastor of Centenary Church, was notified last week of his election as president of our new college at Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Palmer has also been elected to the position of a teacher in the same school. Both of them are worthy of the great honor which has been conferred upon them, and doubtless will do excellent work. Dr. Palmer is a ripe scholar and is a man with great energy and push. He has won laurels for himself as pastor of Centenary and will leave the great church in first-class condition for his successor. But who will he be? is the question that is being asked all over the state. Rumor has it that a good man will be transferred for the place. Some say the lightning will strike a man in North Carolina and some say that it will strike a man in Atlanta, but one of the leading officers of the church informed me this week that the church will take no hand in the fight. That she is perfectly neutral in the matter, and perfectly loyal to the appointive power of the church. She will be pleased to receive whoever the Bishop may see fit to send them. This is the right spirit, and it should be the spirit of every Methodist church. But whosoever may desire Centenary will certainly desire a good thing.

THE SOUTHERN REPORTER.

I wish to inform my friends, and especially the ministers of the South Carolina Conference, that I have sold out all of my interests in the Southern Reporter, and am in no way connected with the paper now whatever. The Rev. J. L. Dart, D. D., a prominent Baptist preacher of Charleston, is sole proprietor and editor in chief. He is a man of learning and fine business ability, and is assisted in the management of the paper by his cultured wife. My friends will please do business direct with the office of the Southern Reporter, as I have no connection hereafter with the paper. But I wish to say that I have not given up newspaper work. I have been engaged as staff correspondent of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for South Carolina, and expect to work as hard for this paper as I did for the Southern Reporter. I should be very much obliged to the brethren of our Conference if they would keep me posted as to what is going on in their sections, and I will mention the same in my notes from time to time.

LAID TO REST.

Again it becomes my sad duty to chronicle the death of a Christian worker. Mrs. Annie Pegues, the wife of Rev. B. M. Pegues, of the South Carolina Conference, passed away on July 31st, 1905, in the city of Beaufort, S. C. The Rev. J. B. Thomas, our pastor at that point, being away at the time attending his district conference, the funeral services were conducted in the M. E. Church at Beaufort by Dr. P. W. Jefferson and Rev. F. P. Crum, of the A. M. E. Church, and others. She and Rev. Pegues were united in marriage one year and nine months ago at Cokesburg, S. C. Her death was a very sad one, but from all accounts she died in the faith and in hope of a blissful immortality in the bright beyond. Her body was laid to rest near her husband's field of labor, to await the sound of the Archangel's trump: for there shall be a resurrection of the dead.

THE YELLOW FEVER SCOURGE.

We, in South Carolina, are very much concerned about the yellow fever epidemic in New Orleans, La. We read carefully the dispatches in the morning and afternoon papers touching the status of the fever. We feel that we have some interests in that great city, as doubtless every reader of thet SOUTHWESTERN feels. We feel that this is our paper, that its editor is our editor, and that the whole office staff are in some way identified with us. And we know that some of the office force are not natives of New Orleans, hence we fear there may be some danger. But they all have our heartfelt sympathy and our earnest prayers for their preservation.

I. E. LOWERY.

Important to Pastors

The attention of pastors is called to the new courses of study offered by the Epworth League on Christian Experience, Personal Evangelism, and Christian Stewardship. These courses are short, requiring but eight to twelve weeks. The text-books are so moderate in cost that the item of expense will not be an obstacle to any one and supplementary books and tracts of the highest value are offered at a very low cost. Helps for leaders have been prepared that will enable any earnest person of moderate intelligence to lead a class with success. The work has been reduced to a form so practicable that these classes can be successfully conducted everywhere.

Few advantages of so great practical value have been offered the church. A membership clear and intelligent in experience, active and efficient in evangelism, and true to the responsibilities of Christian stewardship will develop a multitude of minor graces and make the largest possible success actual. Nothing can surpass in value to a pastor the leavening influence of such a company or the contribution such a church will make to the success of his ministry.

All these classes may be conducted consecutively in a single year. It is recommended that the class in Christian Stewardship be organized as early as possible in September, that the class in Personal Evangelism be organized in November in preparation for the work of the winter revival campaigns, and that the class in Christian Experience be organized during the last of the winter or in early spring, when it may include the new converts with the others who may be induced to make a study of the essential principles of our spiritual life.

Each pastor should include these League studies in his plans of work for the year. Descriptive circulars for each course, directions for organizing classes, and enrollment cards will be sent free upon application. Upon the return of the enrollment card, the instructions for leaders and report cards will be sent free of cost. Address all communications to the Study Bureau, Central Office of the Epworth League, 57 Washington street, Chicago, Ill.

Special Service of the League

It being the purpose of the Board of Control that each official benevolence should be represented in the special monthly devotional meeting of the Epworth League, the devotional meeting for September 24, 1905, will be given to the interests of the Church Extension Society. All who desire special literature may secure it my addressing the Board of Church Extension, 1026 Arch street, Philadelphia. Second vice-presidents should see that the leader for that evening is provided with literature by sending immediately. Those who act promptly never forget. EDWIN M. RANDALL, General Secretary.

The son of General Maceo, of Cuban fame, is taking an enginneering course at the Syracuse University, Dr. J. R. Day, president. Mr. Maceo was sent to this country by the Cuban Government, entering Columbia and later went to Syracuse, N. Y. Unable to secure a position as draughtsman he has accepted the position of running an elevator for the summer. He will return to the University in the fall.

Valuing Opportunities

One needs to have ready wisdom and alert courage to be able to practically value a passing opportunity to render good service in behalf of another person who should have it. It is necessary to have vision enough to see such an opportunity, and then the requisite courage to use it helpfully. Rev. E. Ryerson Young, of Canada, says: "Two young evangelists were going through the country. It was their desire to sow the good seed broadcast through the land. One day they met a man in the field and spoke to him about his soul's salvation. The old man shrugged his big, heavy shoulders and said something about religion being for women, weaklings, and those ready to die. After a vain effort to impress the man, the young men went on. They were college athletes, and took a wide ditch at a jump. The old man saw this, and shouted, 'Well done!' The young men jumped back as easily. 'Where did you learn to jump that way?' asked the old man with interest. The young men told him of their college training in the gymnasium, of their studies and their spiritual life, and also of their desire to spend their holidays in winning souls for Christ. The old man was deeply impressed. He asked the young men to his house, to pray with him and his wife. Before these young men left they had every reason to believe that the old man and his wife had given their hearts to God. The man had become interested in their ability to jump a wide ditch, and the young men were wise to use the lever that God had placed in their hands to pry open the door of the man's heart for God." Those young men rightly valued that opportunity to lead that man into God's kingdom; and the opportunity was more inclusive than they had first supposed it was, for it compassed the spiritual concerns of the wife. It may also be noted that after the young men had made an effort to save that man, and he had spurned them, the case seemed hopeless; but that little incident led to another opportunity, and it was used with gracious effect.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

"Behold He Shall Come."

MARY BERTHA BRADFIELD.

Shall we know Him if we see Him
When He comes?
Shall we fear Him, shall we flee Him
When He comes?
Shall we love Him and believe Him,
Will His own at last receive Him,
Or will slighting coldness grieve Him
When He comes?

Shall we dare to stand before Him
When He comes?
Shall we worship and adore Him
When He comes?
Or will pride presume to try Him,
Will our cravne fear deny Him,
And our sins cry, "Crucify Him,"
When He comes?

May our feet be swift to meet Him
When He comes!
May our hearts leap up to greet Him
When He comes!
May our lips be fit to sing Him,
May our hands be clean to bring Him
All we have and are to crown Him
When He comes!

The Man He Cou d R ly On

A wealthy man came to a poor saddler, and, leaving a bridle, gave orders that it should be finished by Monday.

"That is not possible."

"What nonsense. There is all day to-morrow."

"We do not work on Sunday, sir."

"Then I shall go to those who do."

"We can get it done by Tuesday."

"That will not do; put it in the carriage."

Quietly the saddler did as he was told.

Hours afterward a neighbor said:

"I thought that I would come and thank you, and tell you that I should be glad of as many more customers as you would like to send."

"I shall not send you those I can keep," said the saddler; "but I will never go against my conscience for any man, nor for his money."

Weeks went by—weeks of trouble to this faithful saddler. One day a military man came into his shop.

"So you are the fellow who will not work on Sunday. My friend said that you refused to do his work."

"I had no choice, sir."

"Yes, you had; you were free to choose between serving God and pleasing man, and you made your choice, and because of that I am here to-day. I am General Downing. I have been looking for a man on whom I could rely to execute a large government order. The moment I heard of you I made up my mind that you should have it."—Western Christian Advocate.

In the Grasp of the Almighty

'Twixt gleams of joy and clouds of doubt
Our feelings come and go;
Our best estate is tossed about
In ceaseless ebb and flow.
No mood of feeling, form of thought,
Is constant for a day;
But Thou, O Lord, Thou changest not;
The same Thou art alway.

I grasp Thy strength, make it mine own,
My heart with peace is blest;
I lose my hold, and then comes down
Darkness and cold unrest.
Let me no more my comfort draw
From my frail hold of Thee—
In this alone rejoice with awe;
Thy mighty grasp of me.

Out of that weak, unquiet drift
That comes but to depart,
To that pure heaven my spirit lift
Where Thou unchanging art—
Lay hold of me with Thy strong grasp,
Let Thy Almighty Arm
In its embrace my weakness clasp,
And I shall fear no harm.

Thy purpose of eternal good
Let me but surely know;
On this I'll lean, let changing mood
And feeling come or go,
Glad when Thy sunshine fills my soul;
Nor lorn when clouds o'ercast;
Since Thou within Thy sure control
Of love dost hold me fast.

The Open Door

By all the anguish of God's Son in yonder garden, by all His agony on the cross, by all the tides that sweep across the shoreless sea of God's infinite love, and by the surging sorrows of a perishing world, He calls to us: "Arise and follow where I lead you into the wide, open fields! O my America, what have I not done for you? I have saved you from the great superstitions. I have lifted you to the very heavens in the widest freedom. I have enriched you with more than half the world's wealth. I have called you to the highest seat in the world's great council. O my Methodism, I have called you out of darkness. I have entrusted you with my most secret wish. I have commissioned you to proclaim a knowable salvation. I have multiplied your numbers beyond precedent. I have thrust upon you the blessings of both earth and heaven. Now I turn to you. I will go with you. 'Prove me now, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.'"—Bishop C. H. Fowler, in Central Christian Advocate.

Why Do We Wait

Why do we wait till ears are deaf
Before we speak our kindly word,
And only utter loving praise
When not a whisper can be heard?

Why do we wait till hands are laid
Close-folded, pulseless, ere we place
Within them roses sweet and rare,
And lilies in their flawless grace?

Why do we wait till eyes are sealed
To light and love in death's deep trance—
Dear wistful eyes—before we bend
Above them an impassioned glance?

Why do we wait till hearts are still
To tell them all the love in ours,
And give them such late meed of praise,
And lay above them fragrant flowers?

How oft we, careless, wait till life's
Sweet opportunities are past,
And break our "alabaster-box
Of ointment" at the very last!

Oh, let us heed the living friend
Who walks with us life's common ways,
Watching our eyes for look of love,
And hungering for a word of praise!

For the Master's Sake

"This for the Master's sake I do"—
Ah, magic words to make life sweet!
Devotion, utter, single, true,

Deep peace, sweet peace, to all who say,
"This day the Master's will I wrought."

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson XI—Sept. 10th, 1905. Title—"The Life-Giving Stream" —(Ezek. 47:1-12.) Golden Text.—"Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17.)

Ezekiel was the son of Buzi, a priest. He was taken a captive to Babylon eleven years before the destruction of Jerusalem. He with many other Jews was colonized on the banks of the Chebar, a river or canal of Babylonia. He was married and owned a home in his place of exile. He lost his wife by a sudden and unfortunate stroke. He was held in high esteem by his countrymen. He was a prophet twenty-two years, and is reported to have been murdered in Babylon by some Jewish princes who had been convicted by him of idolatry. Jeremiah and Daniel were his contemporaries. The seven wise men of Greece, Solon, the lawgiver of Athens, and Esop, the fable writer, lived at this time. The book of Ezekiel has four leading divisions—prophecies directed chiefly against Israel (chaps. 1-24); prophecies against other nations (chaps. 25-32); reproof of unfaithful shepherds, vision of valley of dry bones, and the overthrow of gog (chaps. 33-39), and a vision of the temple, a symbol of the restored theocracy (chaps. 40-47).

About the middle of the Jewish captivity the hand of the Lord was upon Ezekiel, and led him forth, not literally but in a vision, into the land of Israel, and set him upon a very high mountain. The man who holds in his hand a line and a reed, is thought by some to be the Angel of the Covenant, by others to be only a created angel. The vision which followed, beginning with chapter 40 and ending with the book, is one revelation. It has always been considered one of the most difficult parts of the Scriptures to explain. The Jews would not allow anyone to read it until he was thirty years of age. They taught that it could not be fully understood, but when Ezekiel returned he would make it plain. We can get to heaven without fully understanding it. We may give a general outline of it without going into details. We have the vision of a glorious temple (chaps. 41, 42); of God taking possession of this temple (chap. 43); of the orders of the priests that were to minister in this temple (chap. 44); of the division of the land about this temple (chap. 45); of ordinances for the princes and people in their worship (chap. 46), and the vision of the river of life, the borders of the holy land, the portion assigned to the tribes, and the dimensions of the gates of the city (chaps. 47, 48).

The source of this river: "Water issued from under the threshold of the house." The angel is still conducting the prophet. These waters forcibly represent the gospel and its blessings. This house, representing the temple, is a type of the church in many ways. It rests on a solid foundation; it is composed of a great variety of materials; it is gradual and silent in its growth; it is the scene of hallowed worship, and it is the dwelling place of Jehovah. The gospel began in Jerusalem. There stood the temple and the great brazen altar, from which the blood of the sacrifices was constantly flowing. There Jesus was crucified, and the Holy Spirit shed forth. There Peter preached the first real gospel sermon: the Christ was his subject. The people were cut to the heart and desired to know what they should do to be saved. Great were the results of that discourse. Note—It was God's plan that "out of Zion should go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (Isa. 2:3). 2. There Jesus lived, suffered and arose from the dead. Let those who knew Him investigate His gospel. 3. God would set us an example of forgiving enemies. It was at Jerusalem where Jesus received His worst treatment. Yet salvation was first offered to them.

This river flowed out from the temple "towards the east country." This may not mean any one course to the exclusion of all others. The gospel moved out in every direction from Jerusalem. 1. There were dwelling in the holy city on the day of Pentecost devout Jews out of every nation under heaven. Many of these heard the sound as of a rushing mighty wind, saw the cloven tongues like as of fire, and heard the apostles speak with other tongues. They received baptism, were filled with the Holy Spirit, and were numbered with the believers. Soon they returned to their native cities, and carried with them the blessings of the gospel. In this way the church was likely established in Antioch, in Damascus, and in Rome. 2. Soon a bitter persecution arose in Jerusalem, led by Saul of Tarsus, which caused many to leave Palestine. And "they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word" (Acts 8:4). Philip proclaimed the way of the Lord to the Samaritans, and also to a nobleman of Candace. Many believed. Peter "passed through all quarters" (Acts 9:32), preaching the word. At Lydda, Joppa and Cesarea, many turned to the Lord. 3. Saul of Tarsus was soon powerfully converted and sent by the Lord far away among the Gentiles. He succeeded in establishing churches at Iconium, Lystra, Derba, Philippi, Berea, Thessalonica, Corinth, Ephesus and many other towns. Thus this river of salvation flowed out from Jerusalem. Now many parts of the earth are full of the glory of God.

This river increased in volume as it flowed onward. Its depth was first to the ankles, then to the knees, then to the loins, and finally it became so deep they could not pass over it: "waters to swim in." This forcibly illustrates the church. At first the twelve apostles, the seventy evangelists, some women, and a few others, in all about a hundred and twenty souls. On the day of Pentecost three thousand were added to this number. Soon after this, when Paul healed the lame-born man, at the beautiful gate of the temple, and preached his second great sermon, two thousand more were numbered with the believers. The church then was composed of five thousand men. Societies were established in the cities of western Asia, southern Europe and northern Africa. At the close of the first century there were about five hundred thousand Christians. At the close of the fifth century there were fifteen millions. At the close of the tenth century there were fifty millions. At the end of the fifteenth century this number had doubled. When the eighteenth century had passed it had increased to two hundred millions. And now at the beginning of the twentieth century Jesus has about five hundred million followers.

This river brings blessings to the nations of the earth. Trees grow on its banks and fish swim in its waters. The fruit of the tree is for meat, and the leaves are for medicine. Does this not clearly teach the power and blessings of the gospel? God's people are like trees planted by the rivers of water, that bring forth their fruit in their season, their leaf does not wither, and whatsoever they do shall prosper. The blessings of the gospel are many. It brings spiritual, intellectual and physical comforts to the world. It is real food for the mind and soul. We feed on the Bread of Life by faith, prayer and thanksgiving. Sin is a disease. It is contagious, incurable by man and always proves fatal. Jesus is a great ,tender physician. His remedies are easy and always cure. We receive them through faith, repentance prayer, baptism and a consecrated life.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

BY REV. J. H. SCOTT, D. D.

Lesson Topic, September 10th,

What is Practical Christianity?

Scripture References—James 2: 14-26.

The Word. This Epistle of James is the most practical book in the Bible. It is a twentieth century epistle. This man James was the Lord's brother, and seems to have imbibed the spirit of Jesus more than some of the disciples. He was a just and holy man, and Josephus attributed the destruction of Jerusalem to the fact that the Jews put to death such a holy man. All the doctrines of this book center around the thought of a "practical" religion. Religion according to James is doing and not hearing nor saying. Some very practical duties are enjoined in our lesson which are as much needed to-day as when James wrote. A workless faith is as useless now as then. True faith is shown by its works. James is the man of to-day in teaching and practice.

Our Homily: Faith and Works. We need a new evangelism of the Gospel of Works. In spite of all the teachings of the Word many are trusting in a "dead faith." So many are now hearing but not doing. Many modern church members are orthodox in faith, but heterodox in life. Many a rich Methodist sees poverty about him, but seeks not to relieve it; sees the world crying out for the Gospel but gives only a pittance to save it. We cannot emphasize too much the subject of our lesson. Practical Christianity is faith at work. It is the application of religion to the needs of this world.

1. A Dead Faith Leads to Death. The lesson teaches this. Faith will clothe no naked poor, feed no hungry man. Faith alone will lead devils to tremble; faith working will lead a soul to salvation. Obedience is the test of faith as well as of love. A dead faith is of the intellect only; a living and working faith is of the heart. We may be said to be saved by faith but kept saved by works.

2. Works are Indicative of a Living Faith. The only way, indeed, to show forth that we have faith in Christ is to do something that He has told us to do. To obey Christ in a practical way is to prove to others that we really believe in Him. To say that we are Christians and fail to do what the Master has commanded us to do is to lie to God. The world is waiting not for a new Bible, nor a new creed, nor a new church, but for the practical application to our lives of what we profess to believe. That is practical Christianity—helping and healing the world of temporal, social, and moral evils.

3. Faith and Works are Real Christianity. I would not inculcate carelessness in faith, but would emphasize carefulness in living; not that hearing, and believing, and exercising faith are unimportant, but that doing, and working, and practicing Christianity are more important. What is practical Christianity? Why, going about doing good as Jesus did. It is missions, and hospital work, and all kinds of aggressive service for Christ. Not the number and length of our prayers, but the proportion of income we give to God, measures our religion. Not going to church only, but going to help and serve some poor sick soul, is often the test of religion. Not in hearing, but in doing; not in saying, but in service; not in faith, but in works, lies the real test of our Christianity.

Illustrative. Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth is illustrating this lesson in her "Hope Hall" at Flushing, New York. It is a haven of refuge for men released from prison, and is helping hundreds of men to start in a new life.

Lowell was once entertaining friends in England, and it was proposed that each person present should say by what he should best like to be remembered. Lowell spoke last, and said: "I should best like to be remembered by kindly acts and helpful deeds."—From Notes on Epworth League Devotional Topics.

Negro Success in Mobile, Alabama

A frank and close study of the Negro at a close range has its reward. There are revelations that come to light only by a study of the Negro as he really is in his religious, home, social and business life. There is no subject before the American people upon which there is such general discussion and at the same time of which there is such gross and criminal ignorance. We heard a speaker say recently: "I know the Negro. I was brought up with them on my father's farm." This man meant, doubtless, to be sincere in his statement. But the Negro that he knew is dead or has evolved into a New Negro. It is alleged that the Southern white man knows the Negro better than any one else. This is not true to fact. He is reaching his conclusion upon ante-bellum experiences.

But even more than this, the Negro himself is not fully aware of the substantial progress that he has made as a race.

It was our privilege recently to visit Mobile, Alabama, and we took advantage of the visit to study the Negro in that locality. It is alleged that the Negro is degraded by city life—certainly many a young man and woman are dragged to infamy and shame by city attractions; on the other hand, there are many worthy examples of the Negro's success in commercial, literary, religious and social lines. Samuel E. Moffat, writing to the Saturday Evening Post some weeks ago made this statement:

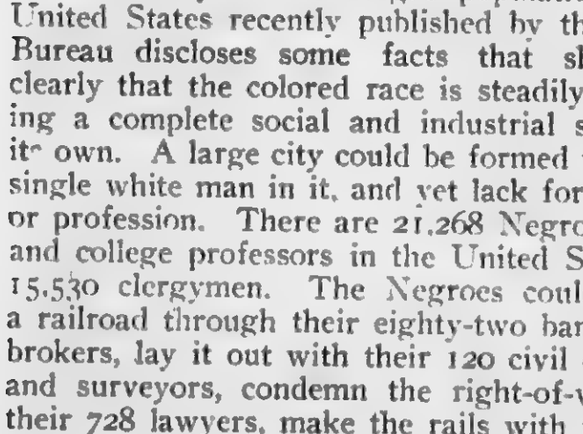
"The study of the Negro population of the United States recently published by the Census Bureau discloses some facts that show very clearly that the colored race is steadily developing a complete social and industrial system of its own. A large city could be formed without a single white man in it, and yet lack for no trade or profession. There are 21,268 Negro teachers and college professors in the United States and 15,530 clergymen. The Negroes could finance a railroad through their eighty-two bankers and brokers, lay it out with their 120 civil engineers and surveyors, condemn the right-of-way with their 728 lawyers, make the rails with their 12,327 iron and steel workers, build the road with their 545,980 laborers, construct its telegraph system with their 185 electricians and their 529 linemen, and operate it with their 55,327 railway employees.

"Colored people complain that they have to sit in the gallery in white theatres, but their 2,043 actors and showmen might give them theatres of their own in which they could occupy the boxes in solitary grandeur. They have fifty-two architects, designers and draftsmen, 236 artists and teachers of art, 1,734 physicians and surgeons, 212 dentists, 210 journalists, 3,921 musicians and teachers of music, and ninety-nine literary and scientific persons. The colored baby can be introduced to the world by Negro physicians and nurses, instructed in every accomplishment by Negro teachers, supplied with every requisite of life by Negro merchants, housed by Negro builders and buried by a Negro undertaker.

"There are Negro bookkeepers and accountants, clerks and copyists, commercial travelers, merchants, salesmen, stenographers and telegraph operators. Negroes are in every manual trade—carpenters, masons, painters, paper-hangers, plasterers, plumbers, steam-fitters, chemical workers, marble-cutters, glass-workers, fishermen, bakers, butchers, confectioners, millers, shoemakers, tanners, watchmakers, gold and silver smiths, bookbinders, engravers, printers, tailors, engineers, photographers, glovemakers—everything that statisticians think it worth while to count. And the curious thing is that in whatever line a Negro man is at work there also is a Negro woman. The only occupations which the colored women have allowed their men-folk to monopolize are those of the architect, the banker and broker, the telegraph and telephone lineman, the boilermaker, the trunkmaker and the patternmaker. You can hire a Negro civil engineeress or an electricienne. There are 164 colored clergywomen, 262 black actresses, and ten Afro-American female lawyers. One Negro woman works as a roofer, another as a plumber, and forty-five of them are blacksmiths, iron and steel workers and machinists. Three are wholesale and 860 retail merchants. Others are journalists, literary persons, artists, musicians, government officials, and practitioners of an infinite variety of skilled and unskilled trades."

A part of this remarkable summary is realized in Mobile. There is not on the American continent a more thrifty set of Negroes than is found in Mobile. They have gathered in Mobile from various sections and their success in business enterprises is remarkable, if not phenomenal.

To select a few from the many is hazardous; but the only way to judge a people is by the individual. Hence we are inclined to give a sketches of the splendid success in Mobile. they are:



C. F. JOHNSON, a pioneer insurance man leader in promoting "24-hour payment in ance," a man of strong convictions, a conser tive and safe business manager, and a Chris gentleman. Speaking in his characteristic m est way, he said, in answer to a question: I have attained anything like success I owe t two chief causes: First, the training I recei from my dear and sainted mother, who co not read her name, and the encouragement strength I have gotten by reading my B daily."

Mr. Johnson is giving employment to nea four hundred young men and women of the ra paying back thousands of dollars every year those who insure in his very popular compa and bringing respect and recognition to the r as only men of his cloth can do. Mr. John is one of the most worthy men of the race.

C. W. PETERS is a very successful busin man, conducting a large furniture business. Peters was born in Hancock county, Miss sippi, near Bay St. Louis. At the age of years he obtained employment as helper at Bay St. Louis station with the L. & N. R. R. C which position he filled with entire satisfact for eight years. Having saved up during t time about $400.00, he went to Mobile, A and engaged in business with his brother, M. Peters, who died in 1889. In 1900 he organiz the C. W. Peters & Co. Furniture Co., of whi he has been the President and General Manag since the organization. The furniture busine is growing under his management, as is e denced by its annual business of about $15,000. with a stock of $8,000.00.

We spent quite a while going thro the esta lishment, finding much to commend and inspi For here was a man conducting a business whi is a credit to Mobile and the Negro race. M Peters succeeded because he was thrifty, econo ical, honest and energetic. We confess quite deal of race pride came over us as we studi this man's success, and wish that we mig point him out to every young Negr Mr. Peters owns the building located the corner of Dauphin and Warre streets, a picture of which may be see at the bottom of this page.

Louisiana has furnished the race son brilliant successes—notably Rev. J. W E. Bowen, Ph. D., and Rev. M. C.

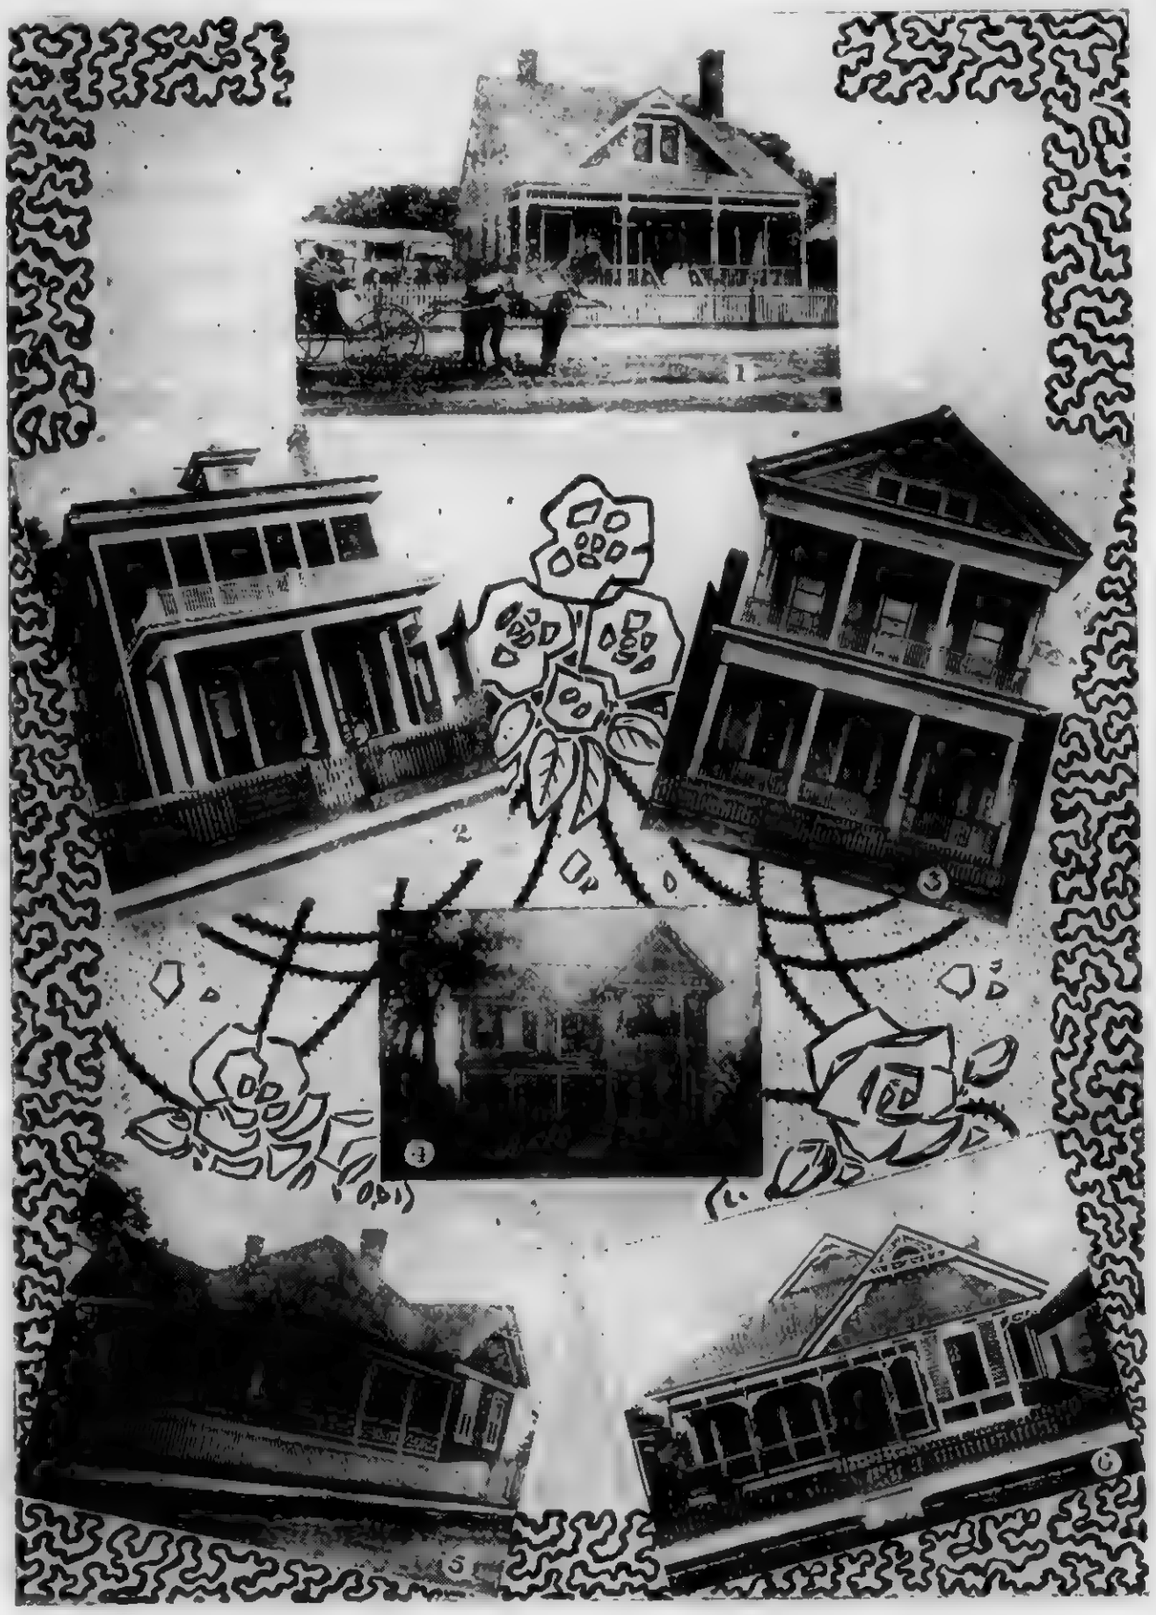
LIVE & LET LIVE DRUG STORE
Dr. H. Roger Williams Proprietor



Negro Success in Mobile, Alabama

By the Editor

Mason, D. D. But Louisiana also gave birth to H. ROGER WILLIAMS, and he has been as successful in his chosen line as the two distinguished sons of Louisiana just referred to, have been in their divine calling. Dr. H. Roger Williams enjoys a large practice, but he enjoys also the confidence of all the people in Mobile, white and colored. Dr. Williams is pre-eminently successful. Besides his practice he operates a large drug business. A picture of the store can be seen on another page. His office is equipped with modern appliances installed at great cost. But Dr. Williams is further a success in that he disproves the claim that a professional man has no time for regular church duties. Dr. Williams is as faithful a churchman as we ever knew. He is an enthusiastic Methodist Episcopalian and he says he is proud of it. But he serves all the churches. During a recent Sam Jones revival he rendered notable service, leading the singing.

To say much more would reveal our ardent admiration of this prince among Negro young men—a remarkable success in business and withal an upright Christian gentleman.

As to the quality of the Mobile ministry we cite the fact that there are nine full-fledged, thoroughly prepared men of degrees, four of whom receive salaries of one thousand dollars and upward for their services. REV. DR. A. F. OWENS is principal of one of the city schools, takes a great interest in works of charity, has by his own effort, assisted by a few others, raised, in less than a year, four thousand five hundred dollars and bought a magnificent ten-acre pear and pecan orchard four miles from the city and converted it into a Home for the aged and orphans of the city. For many years he has been giving dinners on Thanksgiving Day to the poor of the city, and so grateful are the people of the city for his noble work that the white business men lay aside money each year to make his dinners a booming success. He is also a regular correspondent of the Mobile Register, the mouthpiece of southern Alabama, and the Daily Item. He is also secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Owen is a ripe scholar, a forceful writer, a man of intense energy and almost tireless activity. We have often received at his hands brotherly attention and Christian hospitality.

SOME RESIDENCES OWNED BY NEGROES IN MOBILE, ALABAMA.

ALBERT BOYD has been in the undertaking and funeral directing business in Mobile since November, 1893. He commenced business in a small building with less than three hundred dollars. He bought an old second-hand herse, two horses, and a few other necessities. It is more than interesting, it is romantic, to hear Mr. Boyd tell of his early struggles with poverty in the beginning of his business career. He used to carry his stretchers on his shoulders from one end of the city to the other. There was no carriageway thro the rented building to the back yard, hence the necessity of taking the wheels off the buggy and carrying it in and leading the horse thro the hall. What a reward he now has in a flourishing business and owning two large brick buildings, overshadowing the humble quarters of his beginning. By close attention, assisted by his good wife, whom he taught to trim and upholster coffins and the art of embalming, he is doing a very large undertaking and livery stable business. He is regarded as one of the most expert and scientific embalmers and funeral directors in the state. He was the first colored man in the state to secure a license as an embalmer. He and his wife hold each five certificates from leading embalming colleges. Mr. Boyd has one of the best equipped establishments in the country. He has four fine funeral cars, one of which is the finest we ever saw owned by a colored man; five handsome landaus, and a brougham that would do honor to any business anywhere. His business is conducted in a large three-story brick building, which he owns, besides being in possession of other valuable property to the extent of many thousand dollars.

A. N. JOHNSON is widely known, for he is an editor as well as a business man. He owns the Mobile Weekly Press and fills his columns weekly with bright and interesting matter. Mr. Johnson is yet a young man, being only 38 years of age. But what he has accomplished would take some men a lifetime of three-score years and ten. He conducts a very large undertaking establishment. Besides his funeral cars, of the lattest and most improved makes, he offers a private ambulance service. He has added to his business within the last year three carriages, which cost $1,000 each. He keeps on hand caskets the value of which go up into the hundreds of dollars, with 14-karat gold trimmings to match. He makes his own robes and casket trimmings. Mr. Johnson is a man of push. He faces a task with a vim that always brings success. His business is estimated at $25,000.

Here is JAMES T. PETERSON, a man whose conservative rating is between fifty and seventy-five thousand dollars. He recently sold his dwelling house for the sum of nine thousand dollars.

Here we find also MR. CLARENCE ALLEN, a well-to-do young man, conducting a large real estate and brokerage business.

There are five other drugstores owned by young colored men, who have thoroughly prepared themselves for the profession of pharmacy, and besides their diplomas have passed the state board.

Dr. W. T. HARRIS has recently opened a sanitorium, and he is doing exceedingly well. He is a credit to the city of Mobile.

WALTER ROLAND has been a trusted employee of a railroad magnate for a number of years. He has saved his money and now owns quite a bit of real estate in the city and county. He owns and occupies one of the beautiful residences seen in the group.

JAKE WILLIAMS conducts a large poultry business. He has a stall in the City Market and does an annual business that nets him several thousand dollars.

GEORGE SIMMS is a contractor far large haulings. He owns more than seventy-five head of mules and horses and gives employment to from thirty to fifty men, winter and summer. He lives in a magnificent home, and is one of the largest real estate owners of color in the city.

G. W. LEWIS is an architect and contracting builder. Some of the best buildings of this city, white and colored, are evidences of his skill. The home of Mr. C. F. Johnson was recently built by him. His residence is a beautiful one and he is rapidly growing in wealth. His credit is without limitation, and his word is regarded by all the business men of the city as equal to a negotiable note.

GEORGE ROPER is an old resident of the city. He has much property, runs several drays for general use and does a paying dairy business.

Messrs. CAESAR STARKS and J. A. POPE are owners of large plumbing and tinning establishments. They both own fine homes and have property and bank accounts.

There are several colored grocers in Mobile, chiefest among whom we mention V. F. PACKER, a young man of sterling worth and business capacity. He has a large store, keeps several horses, and runs two delivery wagons constantly to deliver goods to his customers. He is rated very high as a business man, owns a beautiful home, and has some very valuable property.

J. M. PRESTON is a retired business man of color, who, with his wife, to whom he has been married fifty-four years, lives off the interest of his life's earnings.

RICHARD PRATT has for more than twenty-five years been a private secretary in one of the railroad offices of the city. He is a fit example of what we can do by less talk and more ability to do what is entrusted to our care.

In the tonsorial business there are a number of the race who have exceeded our expectations. We mention just a few of those who have been successful. EDGAR HARNEY owns property and his home is a beautiful two-story structure in the popular residential part of the city. I. E. EVANS has a large two-story hotel, which his niece conducts for him, while he with his partner (Levans, another thrifty and saving man) carry on the tonsorial business. JONES BELL has a tonsorial parlor that is the admiration of all. His customers are exclusively white. He has a very comfortable home and nets quite a neat little sum of money each week from his large and popular business.

THE HOME LIFE OF THE NEGRO

church, in its effort to redeem the world, must be a failure. "There's no place like home."

The Negro has made marked improvement in his home life, far more than the general public knows of. His home, this is true of all men, is his sacred castle, into which very few persons enter, and, for the most part, only those who are his friends. But the inner life of the homes of our people present a remarkable change. The one-room cabin is passing away. There is an intense desire on the part of a very large per cent of our people to secure better and more comfortable homes.

It was our privilege to visit Mobile, Alabama, recently, and on pages 6 and 7 of this issue will be found some notes, which were the outcome of that visit. On page 7 will be found a picture of a group of homes—homes that in their architectural appearance will do credit to almost any community. They are neat in design and very attractive. All of these homes are well ventilated, with parlors, halls, dining rooms and spacious bedrooms, and are fitted up with electric lights, and baths, and the most modern designs of upholstery. The wall decorations are worthy of special mention. Of course there are no fine paintings by the masters, but there are reproductions of the world's best art. The color display is entirely at variance with the public's general idea of the Negro's conception of the harmony of colors. There is an absence of the spectacular; the interior, including carpets and wall decorations, are of the most elegant and subdued patterns. But these homes are only a few of the representative homes of Mobile and constitute, of course, a very, very small per cent of the good homes among our people throughout the country.

It is often said that the Southern white man knows the Negro. He does know, somewhat, the lower class of people whose shanties and humble dwellings he may have occasion to visit from time to time for various reasons. But these homes of our best people are as much of a surprise to the average Southern white man as they possibly could be to any man who had never studied the Negro situation. It may be a surprise to many to know that these homes are situated in the best localities of the city, in some instances surrounded entirely by white neighbors, and located on some of the most popular streets in Mobile, and no one seems to complain. There is a decided improvement in the home life of our people, and we are only too glad to call the attention of our readers to the substantial progress, in this respect, made by the Negroes of Mobile.

Rust University's brilliancy as a star in our educational system may be summed up as follows: Seventeen ministers, nine physicians, five lawyers, seven in the civil service, five editors, two college presidents, seventeen college professors, one field scretary Missionary Society and many in a variety of business pursuits.

"THERE IS NO PLACE LIKE HOME"

But a home is lacking that does not have the direction and inspiration of a Christian Paper. There are some things that are essentials and there are others that are luxuries, but

A CHRISTIAN NEWSPAPER IS AN ESSENTIAL.

BISHOP DAVID H. MOORE

Knows as well as any man in Methodism the value of the Christian Press. He sends the following stirring appeal:

"Brethren, every interest of your districts will be ADVANCED BY THE PRESENCE OF THE PAPER IN EVERY FAMILY. Denominational intelligence and loyalty will be promoted. The inspiration of world-wide Methodism will be felt. Your people will be more appreciative bearers and more earnest doers of the word. Therefore, to the limit of your authority and influence, urge every pastor to do his utmost to circulate the SOUTHWESTERN."

The SOUTHWESTERN in every home!

Brother, what about the homes on your charge?

MONTGOMERY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The editor had the pleasure of attending the Montgomery district conference of Mobile Conference, held during the closing days of July. A report of this conference has already appeared. The presiding elder is Rev. A. W. McKinney, A. M., who was for some years principal of Huntsville Academy. He brought with him from the school-room high educational ideas and a systematic way of doing things, which are telling for good among our people. His conference was well organized. The program was strong and executed with splendid effect. Elder McKinney is the editor of the Methodist Preacher, a bright monthly, but he is giving considerable attention to the claims the SOUTHWESTERN.

Warren Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Mobile, Ala., Rev. Paul G. Goins, Pastor

The sessions were held in our Warren Street Church, Mobile, Ala., Rev. Paul G. Goins, pastor. The church has undergone a great change under his administration. He has served the church for six years and during that time has stimulated its life by increasing its membership and lifting its community standing. Not only so, the church has been recently remodeled on the exterior at a cost of $1,700, all of which is paid. Bro. Goins is a man of sterling worth, loved and honored by the Gulf City throughout.

The quadrennial gathering of Student Volunteers will meet in Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 28-March 4, 1906. It is expected that upward of 2,500 delegates, representing over 500 colleges of the United States and Canada, besides 200 returned missionaries and a host of other teachers and professors will be present.

PHARMACISTS WANTED

In most towns where there is considerable Negro population and where there is a Negro physician a drugstore owned by Negroes is opened. Where that is not the case it is due largely to the fact that there is a scarcity of pharmacists. In some cases the drugstore is opened and a white pharmacist is employed. President Knight of the New Orleans University has stated again and again that he had more applications for pharmacists thn he could possibly fill. Here is an open field for many of our bright young men and women to enter. Flint Medical College of the New Orleans University and Meharry Medical College of Nashville, Tenn., offer splendid courses and the cost of tuition is within the reach of any active young man or woman.

CHANGE OF CONFERENCE DATES

In accordance with the wishes of the presiding elders, I announce that the date for the meeting of the Tennessee Conference is changed to October 11th, and the place of meeting from Memphis to Murfreesboro. The date of the meeting of the Central Tennessee Conference is changed to October 18th.

CHARLES C. MCCABE, Bishop.

The farm upon which Abraham Lincoln was born near the village of Hodgeville, Ky., was sold at a commissioner's auction Aug. 28 to satisfy a judgment against the same. The Western Christian Advocate suggested that the general government buy the place and make a shrine of it, for all liberty-lovers throughout the land. Many objects of interest connected with Lincoln could be brought together there. The farm consists of 110 acres and brought $3,600.00.

A Negro was in the hands of a mob, recently, in Paris, Texas, being charged with crime. The citizens of Paris, led by the judge and sheriff, were successful in their efforts to take the prisoner from the mob and in securing a legal trial, in which it was proven that the accused was innocent and he was given his liberty. The judge and the sheriff did their duty, of course, but there are so many derelict in discharging such duties that these two men deserve commendation. Paris, Texas, seems to be trying to redeem herself.

The resignation of Lord Curzon has created quite a sensation in England and India.

Personal and General

The Washington Conference has been quite fortunate of recent years in the class of young preachers received into its fellowship. Among these, Rev. Ernest S. Williams, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church, Roanoke, Va., is among the most successful. Here he has built a fine parsonage and a beautiful church during his brief pastorate. Rev. Williams is an earnest, energetic and faithful pastor. He is statistical Sec'y of his Conference.

One of the most successful business men of our people in Mississippi is Mr. Charles Banks, of Mound Bayou, Miss. He was the prime mover in the organization of the Mississippi Negro Business League, which held its session in Greenville. Mr. Banks was unanimously chosen president. His address was a splendid plea to his people for economy and industry. He is also the fourth vice-president of the National Negro Business League. Mr. Banks is cashier of the Mound Bayou Bank of Mound Bayou, Miss.

Prof. M. S. Davage, A. M., has been appointed by our publishers to fill the place in our business office made vacant by the resignation of Prof. H. L. Billups, who resigned several weeks ago for health reasons. Prof. Davage assumes this responsibility with enthusiasm. He is an alumnus of New Orleans University, having received the degrees of A. B. and A. M. In addition to his training at New Orleans University, Prof. Davage has spent some time at Chicago University, taking post graduate work in mathematics. He has for several years filled most acceptably in his Alma Mater the chair of mathematics, which he resigns to accept the position of cashier in our business office. Mr. Davage is blessed with youth and ability, and his many friends are confident that he will give a good account of himself in this new position.

Bishop Mallalieu has given a full month to camp-meeting work. He delivered in eighteen days ten sermons and fourteen public addresses.

The Board of Trustees of Meridian Academy met Wednesday of this week. Dr. J. M. Shumpert is president and Rev. R. N. Jones secretary.

Miss Sadie Dorsette, class of 1904, Tuskegee, will go to Teachers' College, New York, next year, to take the scholarship provided there for Tuskegee graduates.

The eighteenth anniversary of the American Bible Society, which took place in New York, shows that the great institution continues to increase in usefulness.

A competent pipe organist is wanted in Los Angeles, Cal. It will be well for those who are competent to write Prof. T. A. Green, 248 East Second street, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Presbyterian Church increased its membership during the year to 20,754 and raised for church work and benevolences $18,636,750. The present membership of the church is placed at 1,115,662.

The Epworth Era, Dr. H. M. DuBose, editor, is a gem. It sparkles each week with intensely interesting reading matter. It is the worthy organ of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Union Memorial Church, St. Louis, Mo., Rev. R. E. Gillum, D. D., pastor, has effected the purchase of the Temple of Israel at a cost of $41,500. It is a magnificent stone building, with a seating capacity of 1,000.

Asbury Church, Holly Springs, Miss., Rev. N. R. Clay, A. B., pastor, is building an annex to the parsonage. On a recent Sabbath $104.00 was raised for the enterprise. Dr. B. F. Woolfolk and Dr. W. C. Clay were present and assisted in the rally.

The forty-fourth anniversary of the marriage of Bishop and Mrs. Edward G. Andrews, also the Bishop's eightieth birthday, were celebrated August 7th by their friends at Lake Nunnewaska. They were presented a purse of gold with which to purchase a souvenir.

President Peeler of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., is sending out to his constituency a strong appeal in behalf of that institution. He solicits the hearty co-operation of students, alumni, clergy and fathers and mothers. He deserves this and will no doubt get it.

Rev. W. H. Brooks, pastor St. Marks, New York, has issued in pamphlet form his sermon on the Race Riot, which was preached Aug. 6th, 1905. It is strong and eloquent; a just denunciation of mob violence and a manly plea for our people. Write him for a copy, 316 W. 53d St., New York City.

Rev. H. T. Johnson, D. D., editor Christian Recorder of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, is recuperating in England. Dr. Johnson is one of the most vigorous and efficient editors of our race and has served his church for a number of years as editor both to the credit of his church and himself.

Bishop James M. Thoburn, D. D., is to deliver the missionary lectures at Boston University School of Theology the coming winter. Particular interest attaches to this course because of the lecturer and because it will be in some measure a part of the jubilee celebration of the founding of our missionary work in India.

The following article, clipped from the Indianapolis Freeman, will be of interest to our readers: "Paul Lawrence Dunbar is living quietly and happily at his home in Dayton, O., and endures his ill health with patient resignation. He writes considerably, has much pleasant company from abroad and conducts a voluminous correspondence with friends."

Prof. R. C. Childress, for eight years Professor of Mathematics and Secretary of Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark., has tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of that institution. Prof. Childress is thoroughly identified with the church and educational interests of his state; he is trustee, class leader and Sunday school superintendent of Wesley Chapel, the largest appointment in the Little Rock Conference. He was a lay delegate to the General Conference in Chicago in 1900. He is Secretary of the Teachers' State Convention and the John C. Martin State Institute.

Prof. I. Garland Penn, A. M., Litt. D., our Assistant General Secretary of the Epworth League, has been invited to address the Bethel Literary and Historical Association of Washington, D. C., during the season of 1905-1906. Dr. Penn has accepted and will address the society Nov. 7th upon "The Negro Young People's Christian and Educational Congress—What It Means—Its History and Future." This is opportune, since the next and second congress is expected to be held in Washington, D. C., in July or August, 1906. Dr. Penn has also accepted to speak at the interdenominational celebration of the Montgomery (Ala.) churches of our race at Washington Park, Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 14-16. He will represent the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society will be held in Indianapolis, Ind., October 18-25, and all delegates are requested to send their names and full address at once to Mrs. W. M. Ampt, 1737 East McMillian street, Cincinnati, Ohio, who will effect reduced rates; also to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. M. J. Allison, 2815 Southerland avenue, Indianapolis, Ind. Our own Mrs. M. A. Sissle is on the committee of entertainment and she informs us that the delegates will be furnished with board and lodging free. Visitors can secure breakfast and lodging at 50 cents per day. Dinner will be served in Central Avenue Church at 25 cents and supper at 15 cents. The presence of Mrs. Sissle on the reception committee assures the delegates of our people ample and comfortable entertainment.

NEWS NOTES

That typhoid fever is increasing in New York City is shown by the 38 cases in the first week in August last year to 92 cases this year.

In religious affairs men are not usually in the majority, but Bishop Bashford says that they comprise nine-tenths of our 2,300 membership in West China.

On the top of Mount Tamalpais a wireless telegraph station is being erected, and by this means it is hoped to establish direct communication with Honolulu.

The church at Viequez, Porto Rico, for which Bishop Cranston has been earnestly laboring, was dedicated July 20th, the services closing with a great revival movement.

Of President Roosevelt's address on a recent Sabbath in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Oyster Bay, an exchange says: "It was full of exactly those old truths which to-day need new emphasis."

The battleship Kansas, the largest battleship ever built in the West, was christened with spring water Saturday, Aug. 12, at the yard of the New York Shipbuilding Company, in Camden, N. J., by Miss Anna Hoch, daughter of the Governor.

Bishop Hargrove, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who died recently, was almost seventy-six years old. He had been in the ministry forty-eight years, and was a member of the famous Cape May Commission, which, nearly twenty years ago, arranged a "treaty of comity" between his denomination and our own.

The beautiful church edifice known as Wiley Chapel, erected at Springfield, Ohio, under the superb leadership of its present pastor, Rev. T. L. Ferguson, is the center of a prosperous work. Here on Thursday night of last week, during the session of the Ohio District Conference, Dr. M. C. B. Mason delivered before a very large and intensely interested audience his magnificent lecture on "Napoleon at Waterloo." The previous evening Rev. Elam A. White, presiding elder of this district, had given the conference a rare treat by his lecture on his trip through the Yellowstone National Park. It was both interesting and instructive.

ARKANSAS.

Hazen, A. W. Piggee, pastor—Aug. 30 was observed as Children's Day. Program was well rendered. Collection $3.00.

Danville, T. J. Thompson, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held July 22 and 23, with the presiding elder, M. W. Langston, in the chair. The officers were present with good reports. Everything bids fair for a good year's work. A large number partook of the Lord's Supper. Paid Rev. Langston in full. Collection for the day, $15.

DELAWARE.

New Castle, G. B. Coleman, pastor—Since taking charge of this work it has greatly improved on all lines; congregation has almost doubled; have had seven accessions and two conversions. We have forty odd members, but they work like beavers when they try. May 21st we raised for trustees $75; Children's Day, $35; sisters' rally, July 9, nearly $40. I have organized one new Sunday school and formed one class for religious instruction. The Evangelistic Convention of the Wilmington District was held at Middletown, April 26 and 27. It was a great spiritual treat and a general revival to all concerned. Our Epworth League and Sunday School Convention convened at the same place, June 29 and 30. The Rev. Doctor J. W. E. Bowens, of Gammon's, was with us and held us spellbound during his wonderful lecture. Also the influential Doctor O'Connell, the newly appointed presiding elder, was with us and rendered great service during his stay. Dr. J. R. Brown, of Cambridge, and Dr. N. W. Moore, of Centerville, were present and took part in the discussions.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

LOUISIANA.

North New Orleans District Preachers' Meeting organized July 26, with the following officers elected: President, Rev. T. B. Cooper; vice-president, Rev. C. O. Pardo; secretary, Rev. M. C. Harrison; assistant secretary, Rev. John Wise; treasurer, Rev. D. J. Price; reporter, Rev. B. F. Branch; steward, Rev. F. A. Durham. All local preachers are members of the Preachers' meeting. The meeting will be held each month. It is urged by the president that a full attendance be present at each meeting. Rev. T. B. Cooper, President; M. C. Harrison, Secretary.

MISSISSIPPI.

Winterville, R. L. Lee, pastor—Our dear members remembered the pastor by sending him a 50-pound box of groceries which, especially at this time, was much needed and thankfully received.

Clarksdale, Wm. Bell, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held June 24-25, with Dr. B. F. Woolfolk, presiding elder, in the chair. The reports from pastor and officers showed marked progress. Members added to the church, 14; baptized, adults 3, children 9. This charge is moving along nicely. Paid pastor $106.57, elder $30, benevolence $63.40, building and improvements $221.69; total, $421.66.

Florence, M. Cooper, pastor—On the second Sunday in June Children's Day was observed. Our second quarterly conference was held June 18th, with Rev. G. W. Smith in the chair. Reports indcated an advancement. Paid presiding elder in full, $17.50. Total raised in quarterly meeting, $23.

Dahomey, B. H. Hill, superintendent—Children's Day was observed at Lewis Chapel M. E. Church. Collection $3.25. We have a good Sunday school but no pastor.

Rockport Church, Ackerman Charge, B. Little—Our third quarterly conference was held July 30th, with Dr. T. W. Davis in the chair. All officers made good reports. The church is spiritually alive. We are building a new church at a cost of $1,500. Our pastor, J. W. Byrd, is a hustler. Collection this quarter, $16.50.

Byhalia, S. S. Myers—Our third quarterly conference was held July 15-16, with Dr. N. H. Williams in the chair. Officers were present. Reports showed some improvement. We expect to push the battle to the gate with Rev. B. F. McEwen at the head. Paid presiding elder in full, $18; paid pastor, $34.20; raised in the quarter, $22.20; total, $56.40. Quite a number partook of the Lord's Supper.

Lexington, C. E. Moody, pastor—On the first Sunday in this month, August, I commenced a revival at one of my churches, Shady Grove, and after remaining three nights I had to close on account of the quarantine, no kind of service, on account of yellow fever, being allowed in this county. But I had a great meeting for so short a time. The result was six souls happily converted to God, all of whom joined our church. We left a host of anxious mourners waiting on the salvation of God. Pray for us, brethren.

Alesville, J. W. Isaiah—Our rally at Ingraham Chapel, July 30, was a success. The following persons gave $1 each: James Duncan, Jack Campbell, James Collins, Emma Collins, Henrietta Collins, Choma Campbell, Chorcis Campbell, Elizabeth Collins, Olia Cook, Mary Wilkin, Emma Kirkwood, Julia Lott, Willie Lott, Lucinda Poe, Maggie Ruffin, T. Lott, M. Poe, Addie Campbell, S. Dargin. Total, $32.30. Rev. D. P. Shaw is our pastor.

West Jackson, C. H. Jones—We held our third quarterly conference with Presiding Elder Rev. J. C. Hibbler presiding. He preached one of his soul-stirring sermons at Mt. Pleasant on Sunday to a crowded house. At night he preached in our city and our hearts were filled with joy unspeakable. We have just completed a new parsonage worth $750. Paid elder in full; paid pastor this quarter, $91.38. Before the pastor left for district conference we bought him a suit of clothes. Our choir is as good as any in the city, with Miss Nettie Campbell, the daughter of our lamented Elder Campbell, as organist. We cannot forget to mention our pastor's wife, Sister Marshall, who is taking an active part in all of our church work whenever the occasion allows. We will soon pitch a battle here against sin. In God's name we expect to take this part of the city for Christ.

Aberdeen, N. H. Cooperwood—Easter was a high day on the circuit. Raised $30. Children's Day was fine; program carried out in full. Raised for all purposes $91. Rev. J. T. Cannon is the pastor.

H. J. Jordan, pastor—Summit and Magnolia Charge is alive on all lines. The members of this charge are loyal and faithful. Each class leader has pledged himself to take the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Sunday was a grand day at Magnolia. The Lord sent his blessing upon the church. The house was crowded. Conversions, 25.

Strong's Circuit, S. H. Clay—Our third quarterly conference met at Oak Grove Church, Aug. 5-6, with Rev. F. H Henry, presiding elder, in the chair. The elder seemed to be at his best; he preached one of his forceful sermons. Forty-eight partook of the Lord's Supper. Raised in the quarter, $29.50; paid the elder in full, $12.50; paid pastor this quarter, $76.90. Sister Mariah McClendon died Aug. 4.

Duck Hill, P. A. Lemon, pastor—The Red, White and Blue prize contest, June 25th, was quite a success. The contestants held a flag representing the above colors. They were Mr. C. L. McKinney, who reported $1.12; Miss Geogiann McCuiston, $4.16; Miss Elvia Ratliff, $4.72. Miss Ratliff being the victor, received the prize. Realized for benevolences, $10.

Como Depot, P. H. Jackson, pastor—My second quarterly conference convened July 22-23. The presiding elder could not be with us. Brother W. A. Roger of Batesville held the quarterly. Collection, $18.05.

OKLAHOMA.

Langston City, Reporter.—The third Sunday in June was observed as Children's Day. The program was carried out. Rev. L. J. Hardiman, pastor, preached an instructive sermon. Rev. E. M. Madden conducted the program. Music was furnished by Miss Daisy Gidding. Collection, $3.75.

Langston.—Children's Day at Iowa Chapel was observed the third Sunday in July. The pastor, Rev. A. Haynes, preached a good sermon on "Training Children." The program was excellent. Collection $2.25.

DRAGGING

down pains are a symptom of the most serious trouble which can attack a woman, viz: falling of the womb. With this, generally, come irregular, painful, scanty or profuse periods, wasteful, weakening drains, dreadful backache, headache, nervousness, dizziness, irritability, tired feeling, inability to walk, loss of appetite, color and beauty. The cure is that marvelous, curative extract, or natural wine, of herbs, which exerts such a wonderful, strengthening influence on all female organs. Cardui relieves pain, regulates the menses, stops drains and stimulates the womb muscles to pull the womb up into place.

WINE OF CARDUI

It is a sure and permanent cure for all female complaints.

WRITE US A LETTER

Put aside all timidity and write us freely and frankly, in strictest confidence, telling us all your symptoms and troubles. We will send free advice (in plain, sealed envelope), how to cure them. Address: Ladies' Advisory Dept., The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"I SUFFERED AWFUL PAIN

in my womb and ovaries," writes Mrs. Naomi Bake of Webster Groves, Mo., "also in my right and left sides, and my menses were very painful and irregular. Since taking Cardui, I feel like a new woman, and do not suffer as I did. It is the best medicine I ever had in my house."

Doings of the Workmen

TEXAS.

Hondo, Miss M. E. Thomas—Our second quarterly conference was held May 24-25. The Rev. J. W. Weakley, presiding elder, was in the chair. Prof. S R. Burton was elected secretary. The officers presented written reports which showed great improvement. The elder preached three inspiring sermons, to the delight of all. Rev. J. W. Wright is our pastor. The program rendered by the Epworth League at the close of the evening sermon was interesting. Collected for missions, $18.62; for presiding elder, $12.58; total, $31.20.

Texarkana, L. M. Bolden, Pastor.—When we came here we found a few faithful soldiers like Simeon and Anna waiting on the Lord. Our first preaching service was held on the first Sunday in May. Few were present in the morning and the night service was a little better attended than the morning service. The following Sunday there was a decided improvement over the previous Sabbath. Now we are growing rapidly. We have added to the church six souls who came to us during regular preaching services. The church is being revived and the future is bright and encouraging. The Lord does manifest himself to us in our meetings. On Tuesday night, June 13, the Lord filled every soul present with joy and gladness. Shouting was in order. A glorious meeting did we have. A revival spirit is prevailing among the members, and soon we shall go into battle for the Master.

Waller Circuit, Geo. E. Belcher, Pastor.—My second quarterly conference was held June 4-5, with the Rev. J. E. Bryant in the chair. Most all the officers were present with written reports. Sunday the presiding elder preached to the delight of a crowded house. Eleven souls came forward and joined the church. The Sacrament was administered to a goodly number. Paid the presiding elder $18, his full assessment for quarter. Total collection $23.65.

Winkler, Texas, G. W. Carter, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference, held July 22-23, was a decided success. Our presiding elder, Rev. L. S. Blakeney, could not be present, though he made no mistake when he selected Rev. P. H. Jenkins to preside. All officers were present Saturday except three, with written reports, which showed an increase along almost all lines. Sunday was a day long to be remembered. At 11 o'clock Bro. Jenkins delivered a thoughtful sermon. Collection for presiding elder, $9.

Arthur City, W. M. Jones, Pastor.—My second quarterly conference for Medill Circuit was held at Reed's Chapel May 13-14, 1905. Rev. F. Parker, presiding elder, was present. The reports were good. The presiding elder preached one of his strong sermons, after which the Lord's Supper was administered to 52 persons. At night Rev. A. Carter of the Baptist Church, preached to the delight of all. Paid presiding elder, $13.60. Raised this quarter, $55.

Dear Brethren: Doubtless you have done well under the circumstances, and yet a great deal is to be done before we are ready for conference, at Clarksville. The district conference is postponed on account of yellow fever and the quarantine restrictions, until Oct. 17-22, thus giving each pastor more time for raising his benevolences. Brethren, please make good use of the time; you know how very important is this matter. You are asked to forward what money you have on hand for Wiley, to Dr. M. W. Dogan, at once. Don't hold it back; his vouchers will be counted the same as cash in the district conference report. The certificate will go to the charge which raises the highest amount, whether reported in cash or vouchers. Don't forget the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We want your help in securing 5,000 subscribers by next October. We are preparing to assist you in person with your benevolent rally.

Zion and Vernon, at Vernon, 26-27; Guthrie Circuit, at Iowa Chapel, Dec. 3-4. Dear Brethren: The third quarter brings us through the harvest time of the year. Let us do our best to bring up the financial side of our work. The Lord has wonderfully blessed us in saving souls. Now let us bring the finances to the front. Let us put the SOUTHWESTERN in every Methodist home this quarter. Remember the order of district conference is that all local preachers and exhorters are required to take the paper. Renewal of their license is conditioned upon their taking the SOUTHWESTERN.

D. G. FRANKLIN, P. E.

PINE BLUFF DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Members are hereby notified that the district conference will meet at Pine Bluff, Ark., St. James, Sept. 14-17. Get your health certificate from the Board of Health, signed by the proper authorities. Come prepared to stay through Sunday. The pastor is planning a reception for the delegates on Sunday night, 13th. Let everyone come. Pastors will collect for Philander Smith College and send the same to Dr. Cox at Little Rock.

S. MCDONALD, P. E.

BATON ROUGE DISTRICT.

Dear brethren, owing to the existence of yellow fever in New Orleans, and the strict quarantine throughout the state, I am prevented from getting around to hold my third quarterly conference. I am looking for each brother to look after the benevolent collections. Let us see to it that the Baton Rouge district stands in the front rank. By all means stands by the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Let us do our part in getting the five thousand subscribers asked for. I think we will be able to have our district conference some time in October.

J. W. TURNER, P. E.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The cabinet of Meridian District Epworth League will meet at Haven Chapel, August 25. All members are expected to be present. Business of importance. D. B. Watkins, District President; Miss H. J. Thrash, Corresponding Secretary.

PALESTINE DISTRICT.

Dear brethren, membe rs and friends on the Palestine District, there is a general effort being put forth by the several conferences to add five thousand subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN by Oct. 31st. This is a worthy effort and should have the hearty support of all loyal Methodists and lovers of good literature. First, because the paper is indispensable to the success of our church; second, because it is one of the best church papers of our race. Every member who loves the grand old church and her cause should subscribe at once for the paper. Friends who love good, clean-cut family literature, should subscribe for the paper. Those filled with race pride should take the paper. The movement has my full support in every way.

NOTHING TAKES ITS PLACE.

This is a photograph of Miss Nancy Rice, 185 Beale street, Memphis, Tenn., who has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for years, and who says:

"Nothing I have ever used will take the place of your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer, as it keeps my hair in a splendid condition."

Miss Rice is a woman of striking personal appearance, which is owng very largely to her fine hair, the result of using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT FOR A TIME.

HAS DONE WONDERS.

This is a photograph of Mr. Louis Nemore, residing at No. 10 Turley St., Memphis, Tenn., one of the most highly respected colored men in the city. He is implicitly trusted by his employer for the last ten years—Dr. Heber Jones, one of our most prominent physicians and now president of the Memphis Board of Health. Mr. Nemore says that he takes pleasure in stating that our "La Creole" Hair Restorer has done wonders for his splendid head of hair. "It has kept my hair from falling out, and has kept my head and scalp in a clean, healthy condition. I recommend it very highly.

MISSISSIPPI.

Bradley Circuit, N. B. Bell, pastor—Our second quarterly conference was held July 29-30, Rev. W. L. Gillespie presiding. Reports were good and showed marked progress. Total collection for the quarter, $62.30. The good members at Bradley gave the pastor one hundred and ninety-six pounds of groceries.

MISSOURI.

Butler, Reporter.—The grand rally at Zion's Chapel, to lift the church debt of 8 years standing, was a grand success. Rev. G. B. Abbott, the pastor, organized three clubs which made their final report July 9. One of the clubs was composed largely of the outsiders who contributed in nickels and dimes and was in charge of Mrs. G. B. Abbott, whose earnest work has been an inspiration on the charge. The following young people ably assisted her to raise $20.50. Misses Lou Emma Abbott, Clara Ford, Gertrude Crouch, George Caves, Walker Caves and others. Mrs. Jenny Kenoly, Mrs. Jane White, Prof. W. W. Kenoly, Mrs. Hannah White, Mrs. Lizzie Goff, Mrs. Lucy Fischer and others, under their brave captain, Mrs. Rosa Jones, raised $55.05. Mrs. Mary Booze, Captain, assisted by Mrs. Sarah Crouch, Mrs. Dolly Ford, Mrs. Eva Wright, Mrs. Amanda Tucker, Prof. A. N. Wright and others, raised $62.50. The day's rally including a special collection, was $140.15. This amount pays the church entirely out of debt with a few dollars over. Rev. H. R. Pinckney, of Mound City, Kans., Rev. J. A. Barker, pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted the pastor. Rev. Abbott and his members are happy over the result of the rally and the thought that their church is out of debt.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Machpelah, G. W. Brower—Our third quarterly conference convened at Denver, N. C., June 3rd, in joint session with the quarterly conference of the Sherrill Ford Circuit, Rev. W. M. Crawford, pastor. Rev. M. M. Jones, D. D., was present and presided in his usual easy and graceful manner. We are finishing our fifth year on this charge. The pastor is a class leader and has in his class all of the officers of his circuit or station. The writer collected from the officers in his class $8 for presiding elder. Paid elder this quarter, $25.00; pastor, $50.00. Eighteen of our officers are annual subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. The elder preached an excellent sermon and administered the Holy Communion.

to do more in the near future.

Earlboro, J. A. Gallon, pastor—My quarterly conference convened 15th and 16th inst. The church was packed with a very intelligent audience. Our presiding elder is D. J. Franklin, D. D. We had two additions during our conference. Collection $36.18. Our church is insured for $800. Our cornerstone laying took place the third Sunday in August.

Earlsboro, Rebecca McLure—We have our own church which when completed will cost about $1,000, and notwithstanding the hard winter this church has been built in the last five months, under the leadership of Rev. G. A. Gallon. His work will speak more than I can for him. Our quarterly conferences convened July 15-16. Officers were present with the presiding elder, D. G. Franklin, who preached two able sermons. Administered the Lord's Supper to fifty-three. We have done some work along in the Woman's Home Missionary Society since I have been appointed president, and we hope

Let go or die. That's the alternative of the shipwrecked man with the money bags. A great many people have a like alternative before them. Business men come to a point where the doctor tells them that they must "let go or die." Probably he advised a sea voyage or mountain air. There's an obstinate cough that won't be shaken off. The lungs are weak and perhaps bleeding. There is emaciation and other symptoms of disease, which if unskilfully or improperly treated terminate in consumption.

Thousands of men and women in a like condition have found complete healing by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"It gives me pleasure to send you this testimonial so that some other poor sufferer may be saved, as I was, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Geo. A. Thompson, of Sheldon Ave., Chatham, Ont., Canada. "I had a cough for years, expectorated a great deal, and was slowly failing. Was losing flesh every day. Lost in weight from 150 pounds down to 128. My flesh got soft and I had no strength. Did not say anything to any one but made up my mind that the end was not far off. One day my wife was reading in the 'Common Sense Medical Adviser' about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I said, that sounds more like common sense than anything else that I had heard. I at once bought a bottle of your famous remedy and before I had taken half of one bottle I felt better. Took thirteen bottles and it made a new man of me. I gained sixteen pounds and never have had a cough since. I feel splendid and give all the credit to your medicine."

Given away. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. The book contains 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations and several colored plates. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Doings of the Workmen

TEXAS.

Anchor, E. P. Robbins.—On the 4th Sunday in May, at St. Joseph M. E. Church, we had a grand rally for the purpose of raising money to build a parsonage. Rev. Wm. Mack, pastor of the Velasco Circuit, preached a soul-stirring sermon, assisted by Revs. B. F. Hall and Geo. Franklin. Collection, $59.66. The Lord seems to be with us in all of our church work. Seven joined the church.

San Augustine, G. W. White, Pastor.—Our second quarterly conference convened June 10-11, with Presiding Elder L. S. Blakeney in the chair. Officers were present with good reports. The elder expressed himself as being highly pleased with the work, notwithstanding the long continued rains. Paid the elder in full. Sunday was a glorious day. Rev. Blakeney preached a soul-searching sermon, at the close of which three joined the church. The Lord's Supper was administered to about 50.

Sprinkle, Geo. Pleasant, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference convened Saturday at Fort Prairie. Our presiding elder, Dr. N. J. Johnson, being absent, Rev. S. E. Jones, pastor of Simpson Tabernacle, Austin, presided. Every officer was present with written reports. Sunday morning Rev. Jones preached and administered the Sacrament to 42 persons. At Sprinkle he preached at 3 o'clock and 8 persons were convicted of their sins and others were converted. After the sermon at night 12 were converted and 8 reclaimed. Collected for missions, $8.

Under the auspices of the Colored Sanitary Association, one of the series of mass meetings in the campaign against the mosquito was held at First Street M. E. Church on August 22nd. Standing room was at a premium. A brief address was given by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Tircuit, in which he welcomed the audience. Prominent among the speakers were Mrs. W. J. Behan, Rev. A. Hubbs, and Hon. W. L. Cohen. Dr. Ohara spoke briefly upon the yellow fever situation, after which Dr. Quitman Kohnke gave his famous stereopticon lecture upon the mosquito, explaining in full his mode of conveying the germs of disease. The meeting was a tremendous success, due largely to the energy of Rev. Tircuit in working up the audience.

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves

Read this Letter to you about the

Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from over work or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnish the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

Crescent City Notes

The Sunday morning service at Wesley Chapel was well attended. Rev. Castry, a local preacher of Wesley, preached an interesting sermon. The Sunday school catechism contest was conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Johnson. Those who participated were the teachers of the various classes, also Misses Henry, I. Williams, Smith, I. Hicky, Johnson and Mr. Thomas. Collection for the day, $34.51.

On last Sabbath afternoon, at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, an appreciative audience gathered that filled the gallery and crowded to its doors this large and commodious building. The occasion was a sacred concert given under the auspices of the Young People's Song Service of Union Chapel. The program presented Sunday was of a high order and successful from every point of view, and many are asking when a similar one will be rendered. Well, the editor, who is conductor of the song service, says soon—probably Sunday, September 30th—we want to see again the pleasing sight of so many business and professional men in our midst. We give in full the program, without further comment, as the names of those who participated speak for themselves. Yet we must say that we know all were charmed as they listened to the sweet strains of music produced by the little folks who composed the Christian Endeavor Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Emma C. According to the press dispatches of Tuesday there is great dissatisfaction in Japan on the items of the treaty signed at Portsmouth. It is alleged that the dissatisfaction is so strong that a revolution is possible.

The ideal state is that in which each family lives in its own homstead. But for the ultimate realization of this ideal the prospects are not very bright. Since the census of 1850 there has been a constant decrease in the number of homes owned by American families and an increase of the renting class. According to the last census out of sixteen and one-half million families, more than one-half are renters; only four and three-quarter million owning homes free from mortgages.

Our country is growing, our territory reaching far into the Pacific. There is so much work connected with our newly acquired island possessions that a new bureau is proposed. Secretary Taft made recently this significant statement: "We want to unite in some bureau the interests of the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska and Porto Rico, so that all matters of information about all of them can come from that bureau, and Hawaiians can go there and ascertain the latest things in connection with the affairs in Hawaii."

President Roosevelt by his unselfish statesmanship, exerted in the interest of peace in the Far East, wins for himself universal praise. His efforts are appreciated by both the Czar of Russia and the Mikado of Japan, and none regard his efforts other than in the light of honest and sincere. The President desired a peace which would be honorable to the victor as well as to the vanquished. No other citizen of the world could have accomplished this delicate task save President Roosevelt, and he has again confirmed the contention of his friends that he is one of the greatest men of the world. In recognition of his services in the interest of peace the Portuguese Peace League has conferred upon him the title "Benefactor of Humanity."

New Orleans continues in its battle against yellow fever, using every means that science offers and supplementing science by prayers. Protestants and Catholics as well have held special services, offering prayer to Almighty God. The reports of Saturday and Sunday were exceedingly encouraging, the report for Sunday showing 29 new cases and 3 deaths. The report for Monday, however, showed 55 new cases with 9 deaths. The increase of new cases may be accounted for by the arrest of a prominent physician who, it is claimed, had not reported suspicious cases, and the 55 new cases reported for Monday may not be all genuine cases of yellow fever. The total number of cases to date is 2,079; total number of death, 292; cases under treatment at present, 318; discharged as cured, 1,469.

THE TREATY OF PORTSMOUTH

Peace negotiations at Portsmouth have been concluded, by the Japanese and Russian Commissions, and war in the Far East is ended. The world welcomed the announcement of peace, for the war between Japan and Russia has been costly, both in men and in money. While Japan has won in all points for which she contended at the opening of war, peace terms from the Japanese standpoint are disappointing. There were twelve items in the peace negotiations submitted by Japan; three of these Japan withdraws altogether and there was a compromise in the division of the island of Sakhalin. In the peace settlement Russia secures more consideration than had been anticipated at first, and she comes from the Peace Conference with honor, for Russia does not pay one cent of indemnity, loses none of her interned warships, and does not concede to the limitation of her navy in Pacific waters. In speaking of the conclusion of peace Mr. Sato makes the following statement in behalf of the Japanese plenipotentiaries:

"The questions of the final disposition of the question of Sakhalin and the reimbursement to Japan of her war expenses have from the first been issues on which absolute divergence of views existed. The difference of opinion upon these points—not one, but both—have frequently threatened the existence of the conference. But his Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, responding to the dictates of humanity and civilization, has in a spirit of perfect conciliation and in the interest of peace authorized his plenipotentiaries to waive the question of reimbursement of war expenses and has consented to a division of Sakhalin upon terms which are mutually acceptable, thus making it possible to bring the important work of the conference to a successful issue."

And the world will honor and admire Japan for this step, however disappointing it may be. It is feared in some quarters that instead of this being a permanent peace between Japan and Russia, that Japan may be forced at some later day to resume the war.

The nine points agreed upon in the treaty are are as follows:

1. Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderant influence" in Corea, with her right to preserve order in the civil administration, give military and financial advice to the Emperor of Corea, Japan binding herself to observe the territorial integrity of Corea and (it is believed) the policy of the "open door."

2. Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria.

3. Japanese obligations to restore in Manchuria Chinese sovereignty and civil administration.

4. Mutual obligation to respect in the future "the territorial integrity and administrative entity" of China in Manchuria and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the industry and commerce of all nations ("open door").

5. Cession of one-half of the Island of Sakhalin to Japan.

6. The surrender to Japan of the Russian leases of the Liao-Tung Peninsula, including Port Arthur, Dalny and the Blonde and Elliott Islands.

7. The surrender to China, by arrangement with Japan, of the branch of the Chinese Eastern Railroad running south from Harbin to Port Arthur and New-Chwang, together with the retrocession of all the privileges obtained under the concession of 1898.

8. The limitation of the Chinese concession obtained by Mr. Rothstein and Prince Uhktomsky in 1896, under which the "cut-off" through northern Manchuria was built to connect the Trans-Siberian and the Ussurri Railroads, so as to provide for the retention of the ownership and operation of the line by the Chinese Eastern, but with provision for the eventual substitution of Chinese imperial police for Russian "railroad guards."

9. The grant to the citizens of Japan of the right to fish in waters of the Russian littoral from Vladivostok north to the Behring Sea.

The war began February 4, 1904, and lasted 527 days. The estimated cost to Russia is $1,875,000,000 and the estimated cost to Japan is $1,500,000,000. The Russians have lost in battle 329,779 men, while the Japanese have lost 166,756. The Russians have lost 73 warships, at a cost of $150,000,000, while the Japanese have lost 12, valued at $15,000,000.

This war has raised Japan to the consideration as one of the first nations of the earth. Brave, and skillful in battle, magnanimous in victory. Japan has also punctured the theory of race inferiority, for it was little thought that the brown men of the Island Empire would succeed against the great Russian Empire. This brown man belongs, it was alleged, to an inferior race and the odds were against him. But the Japanese have won a clear, indisputable and honorable victory, and it is gratifying that the world acknowledges it.

THE TRUE REFORMERS

The Grand Fountain of the United Order of True Reformers is the name of an organization with 70,000 members that was organized in 1881 in the city of Richmond, Va., by Rev. W. W. Brown. Its operations have been, for the most part, in Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and the contiguous territory, where more than $2,000,000 have been distributed in relief and benefits. While the organization partakes, somewhat, of the nature of a secret society, nevertheless, it has long ago overleaped that bound and has become the strongest business enterprise known to the race. Among other departments the organization owns and controls a bank, which began with a paid up capital of $4,000 and $1,206 deposit. To-day it has 10,000 depositors, has transacted business aggregating more than $10,000,000, and a conservative estimate of its assets will reach half a million dollars. The strength of the bank was notable in 1893 when the banks of Richmond, as well as many others throughout the country, were compelled to use script in daily transactions, this bank paid dollar for dollar all of its demands. It advanced, at that time, to the city of Richmond money with which to pay the salaries of the public school teachers.

In addition to the banking department the organization operates a real estate department, which has assets amounting to $400,000 and owns buildings in several cities, ranging in value from

Our Foreign Field--Africa

By Rev. J. H. Reed, D. D. Vice-President College of West Africa.

Heathenism is a world-study. This is seen best upon the grounds where active Missionary enterprises are in operation. When we take into consideration the fact that four-fifths of the entire population of the globe occupy the plane of heathendom, it is then that we comprehend the deep significant meaning of the mighty movements of the Christian Church for the redemption of the world.

Among the most important foreign missionary fields is Africa. Here under the tropical sun, with a climate that causes alarming mortality, are two hundred millions of black population, the hem of whose garment has not been touched by Christian civilization. These all sit beneath the stately palms in the shadow of darkness that has shrouded the continent through all the centuries. Here, amidst tropical diseases that baffle the skill of present medical science, are the ancient tribes whose history has been written in legalized tribal polygamy and religious superstitions.

Africa presents problems the solution of which requires the most careful and impartial study. First among these problems which confront the new missionary might be mentioned the Native Conception of Religion. The untutored savage has a belief with which the Christian missionary must reckon. He is not a heathen in the sense that his mind is a blank. Back of the wild and vacant look, there is a positive idea, the very basis of heathen social order and ethical code. Christianity in this particular must come in as a substitution. The problem therefore is the elimination of this native belief under all the circumstances and conditions. There is in this problem a positive trend of native thought now running through the public press and to which native leaders are giving much attention. Methodism has operated on the West Coast for nearly seventy-five years. The results of our efforts are not as large as the Church would like to have them; but this is due to the above mentioned conditions to which it takes time and patience for the Church to adjust itself. The task is one that requires the deepest consecration of men possessing the widest experience in church work and a keen perception into the things affecting racial peculiarities.

A race cannot be divorced from its ancient superstitions within a generation; there must be a constant process of evolution in ideas and morals culminating in the Christianization of pagan tribes. We meet to-day, a strong tendency of native religious belief towards Mohammedanism. To study this on the Continent it arises from several causes; first and most important is the adaptability of the Mohammedan religion to existing customs. It makes no war upon polygamy, and this is to the religious advantage of the natives, whose social order finds its basis in this system of ethics. In conversation with a native king, it was no little surprising to hear him so logically defend his system of marriage. This man had twenty-eight wives and owned a town of several thousand inhabitants. His argument ran thus: "One wife man been take other man wife. My law punish man for spoil man wife. Me take plenty wife, me own dem by law.. One wife man own one wife by law, he take other wife no law for true true."

Thus, the argument is against our Christian matrimony. These kings are strong men in African thought and have their "towns" under perfect control. They claim that Christianity destroys their family ties and disorganizes their government. In order to have them forsake their customs which have been imbedded in them for centuries, presents a religious problem that requires more than an ordinary "revival meeting." It is the complete renovation of social and governmental order, the enthronement of Western ideals and ideas, the emancipation of a race from the cruel bondage of mental enslavement, the greatest in the history of races.

The burden therefore of present workers in this field is the careful study of the African himself, the insight of his dialect and a complete knowledge of his thought. To take away from these tribes their laws and customs and leave them without a proper knowledge of the Christian religion with which to maintain themselves amidst heathen superstitions is to throw them into confusion and make them hate the very name "Missionary." Hence, the necessity for an educational basis with which to work upon the native mind is paramount to the successful achievements of protestant evangelism. The problem becomes one for the awakening of self-consciousness on part of the African, and the application of religious principles adapted to present needs on the part of the missionary. This is absolutely necessary if there are to be aggressive movements for the redemption of the "Dark Continent."

We cannot arouse this dormant religious nature by simply telling the African "We be God man." His mental faculties must become attuned to the God idea by Christian education. A redeeming feature in this particular is, that there are no well organized systems of so-called secular education to deflect the African mind from the light of the gospel. The College of West Africa occupies a most unique place among forces for the evangelization and Christianization of Africa. Its supreme work must be the training in deep and enlightened religious experience of native workers, who with such a training coupled with their native dialect and tribal affinity, will go forth as burning lights to redeem their fellows and form an indigenous constituency. This is necessary because of the few missionaries from the home field. Here for more than sixty years has stood this institution of learning as a lighthouse by the sea. If the church could fully realize the enormity of this task for the redemption of Africa, there would be unstinted appropriations for the enlargement and better prosecution of this work. There should be no retrenchments of men or means, but a mighty advancement for Christ and the Church in Africa. An open door emergency stands wide for systematizing the educational facilities of Methodism, thus duplicating the work of the Freedman's Aid Society among the nataives. The burden that rests heavily upon the heart of Bishop Scott, who comes with an intense zeal for the church and the race and which has rested upon Bishop Hartzell for eight years, is to push our Mission Stations into the interior and touch the great tribal life of the Continent. This was the goal towards which the Sainted Bishop Taylor bent all of his tremendous spiritual energies and for which he gave a life of ripe missionary experience.

Our interior mission stations must of necessity be centers of educational and industrial training as a basis for the spiritual enlightenment of the heathen. Hence our missionaries must necessarily be prepared to preach, to teach and work in order to lay the foundation of future African civilization. These stations cannot at this time be run upon a self-supporting independent basis, for the reason that there is nothing tangible upon which to build, but the raw untutored savage and a wild, undeveloped country.

Consecrated workers must, therefore, have the full support of the home church to make any praiseworthy advancement in combating such influences of climatic destructions and pestilences that walk at noon day upon this "Dark Continent."

Some Present Day Masters

By Mrs. S. F. Williams.

[An Address Delivered Before the Young People at Union Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, Sunday, August 27.]

Oliver Wendell Holmes has said that, "A man was at least four people: the man the world knows, the man his friends know, the man he himself knows, and the man that God knows." I want each one of you to resolve, this afternoon, within your souls, that the man the world knows will be the one that God knows.

The great inducement to young people to live two lives is the desire for freedom; they chafe under the restraint of parents, teachers and society. They fondly imagine that if they could only be free, they would be so happy. Free to come and go as they please; free to keep any company they choose; free to say and do what their parents and teachers object to. Therefore, they try to accomplish their desires by seeming to be one thing, when they know, and God knows, that they are something else.

In this free republic where men and children enjoy the greatest liberty of action, the most efficient safeguards are necessary to prevent that liberty from degenerating into license, and it is to mark the line between liberty and license that the young need the guidance of those whom they seek to shun, under the plea of larger freedom.

In the midst of all these fancied dreams of liberty, it is somewhat startling to be told that most of us are slaves, in a more pitiable sense than if we were claimed as such by the most despotic Turkish power.

We are slaves, abject slaves, to our vices, our habits, our fears and our superstitions. These shadowy masters rule us with rods of iron and no court of appeals can emancipate us from their clutches. Of the mastership of those twin vices, drink and gambling, there can be no two opinions. We have seen their votaries and we know their power. Little by little, they invade the soul and strengthen their grasp until the whole being is dragged down and they become supreme in their tyrannical sway, their victims being lost to all sense of love and duty until the chain is wound so tight around them, that they sink into oblivion, yet leave a heritage of shame to the loved ones whom they should have shielded and protected.

But it is of anger, jealousy, envy, superstition and prejudice that I would speak. Those are the masters who daily assert their power, clouding our mental vision; silently creeping into our hearts; biasing our better judgment and closing our ears to the still small voice of conscience; and are far more exacting in their demands than our parents or teachers have ever been.

He who habitually gives way to anger will find many things to excite it, and send him into a rage whose violence grows at each outburst until it is not easy to quell it. He may have a generous heart, but of what practical use is it? if, as the Irish say, "it is not in the right place." Do not try to find refuge in that worn out excuse that he has his mother's temper, or, "He is a chip of the old block." You have heard that the sins of the father are visited upon the children, but you have never heard that the sins of the children were excused because of the father.

He who is looking for causes of jealousy will find them everywhere and will make his life a torture to himself and a burden to every one else. There is no limit to the whims and vagaries which control this tyrant, suspicious of all friendship he soon has no friends left. Jealousy is more a lack of confidence in one's self than in others, mistrusting his own abilities, he fears a competitor and carries incipient wrongs about him and suffers them before they happen. When one is his own injurer as well as the sufferer, there are few chances of happiness in store for him, for meanness begets meanness, and he who habitually injures others may expect others to injure him, therefore, must be always on guard against his fellow-men like a picket who is both ready to attack and resist.

Next comes envy, with her evil eye to corrode into his very flesh, for envy is a form of hate which has no legitimate place whatever, as feeling bad at another's success is pure malevolence.

While envy is a wishing of evil, it usually, among young people, takes the negative form of regretting the good fortune of others. Want of sympathy with our neighbor is bad enough, but positive displeasure at his happiness is pure inquity.

Next comes that dark hag, Superstition, shuffling her pack of marked cards, or boiling her caldron of toads, bats and serpents while mumbling incomprehensible incantations. This vice will never want for customers as long as there are gullible people who believe that the seventh son of a seventh daughter will bring them luck by boiling a few herbs in a copper kettle and repeating some unintelligible jugglery, while the pot is simmering, in imitation of Shakespeare's witches or Rider Haggard's hot-pot. What unlimited power has she over her weak-minded subjects, playing upon their fears until mole hills grow to be mountains, making them afraid of being happy for fear of coming evils. They see a sign of ill luck in a shooting star; in the new moon, if first seen behind a cloud; hear it in the hoot of an owl or the howl of a dog; who believe that to dream of a black beetle or a white horse is a sure sign of death, while if a mangy dog follows you it will bring you a handsome husband. There is a great affinity between the spirit of prophecy, the spells of the Voudous and the fortune teller with her love potions and luck charms, yet many who repudiate the former accept the latter, though one is as baneful as the other in its moral degradation, which like a deadly poison, will in time permeate the whole mental and moral nature with its malignant influences; for superstition is one of the worst forms of slavery, and it is built upon the slightest of all foundations.

Last, but by no means least, comes prejudice; that hydra-headed monster, which takes so many forms of evil. The person dominated by this monster has, indeed, many masters; his mind becomes so narrow that he recognizes nothing but his own. No creed, no form of teaching, no religion, no politics, no country, no family is believed to be as good as his own. The victim of this master is to be pitied, and it would be a charity to close our eyes and ears to his mental conduct.

No one can conscientiously call himself free who habitually gives heed to any passion, he must resolutely fight it at every stage, for from the first indulgence, it will aspire to the mastership and the chances are in its favor. "He who would be free must himself first strike the blow." Your freedom will depend upon every little victory that you may gain over self-love, over every wrong habit, over every imppure thought. Let your life and your language be pure and chaste and free from scandal. Do not let fall from your lips anything untrue, coarse or vulgar. Use your influence to silence any conversation that is neither true nor pure. Nothing in this world is sadder than soiled lips, unless it be soiled imaginations or soiled hearts; indeed, one is the cause of the other, for "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

Another fact which I wish to impress upon your mind is that it is useless to sit idly down, Micawber like, waiting for something to turn up, and let slip the work that is around, and thus miss the present opportunities by wishing for something greater and grander. If your circumstances were different, you would not be different because you carry yourself with you wherever you go. Emerson knew this when he wrote, "The world is nothing; the man is all. In yourself is the law of all nature; in yourself slumbers the whole of reason; it is for you to know all, to dare all."

Life brings to each his task but remember that it is not dwarfed but ennobled by being lived in the presence of God, and your happiness and success depend upon yourself, for it is written that "Whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

Realizing this truth is the reason why your parents and teachers try to guide you. Suppose mother is tiresome and irritable; have patience with her; remember you were fretful when she cared for you during infancy and no matter how fatigued in body and mind, she was ever patient with you through the worry and sickness of childhood.

Suppose father is testy and grum, do you know what he has been through down town, to get market money or house rent? Suppose your parents are not educated; they may be ignorant of books, but they are not ignorant of life; they have experienced the pitfalls from which they are trying to shield you.

Granted, that your teacher is old-fashioned in her ideas of right and wrong. A back number according to your judgment, but have you ever considered that virtue and vice are as old as the world, that they existed before the flood and have not materially changed their meaning since?

My dear young friends, be not found among those whose conduct is separated from their conscience. It is a blessed state when perfect harmony exists between the inclination, the conscience and the conduct of a person. Then all discord ceases, the whole being is a well tuned instrument, giving forth beautiful music, while the chords are swept by the hand Divine.

If you will look deeply into your hearts you will see that the discipline of life is meant to bring about this harmony; and you will never truly know that God is your Father and you are his children, until you realize that as you cannot be good citizens of a republic without studying and observing the laws of your country, neither can you become citizens of heaven without knowing and practicing the laws of God. If you do this, then the man that the world knows will be the same man that God knows, is the thought that I wish to leave with you this evening.

The Autumn Rally

Sunday School Union Day—What a time the summer has been! What freshness has come to us by change and rest! But now "the harvest is past, the summer is ended," and this is the time to gather for the renewal of service. We are servants and our Master is the King of kings. He freely gives us all things. We should as freely render to him our portion in due season. This is the of the Church and Sunday School. Full provision is made for it by the Sunday School Union. The time fixed is the last Sunday in September, but if that is not suitable, then a date as near to that as may be. That it shall be held on a certain day is not so particular, but that a day be observed is of vital importance. A most interesting and informational service has been prepared, and its price ($1.20 per hundred) put within the reach of all our schools. It does not bear any date, only 1905, so it can be used whenever the school is ready for the observance of the day. At least five hundred thousand copies should be put into circulation. That is not many for a Sunday school host of more than three million. Every plan should be made that it may be an occasion of good to all.

It is a "welcome home" after the wanderings of the summer.

It is a greeting to the stranger that may be within the gates on that day.

It is a pledge for increased activity in the Sunday school and church work. Every one is fresh after resting, ready for battle. What may we not expect from these forces!

It is a time to connect again the lines that lead to spiritual things and make new plans for the salvation of the scholars. It affords an opportunity for many schools to have presented to them the best methods of work. We are in a new era in Sunday school affairs. Never was so much attention given to it as now. The church is becoming conscious that this is the great harvest-field already white for the gathering. Teacher training should be given an impetus by the introduction of the "Teachers' Library," one of the best arranged courses of reading and study ever put before Sunday school workers. The booklet entitled "The Pastor and the Sunday School" fully describes this. A copy may be had by sending to the Sunday School Union, office at New York.

This day should strengthen the tie between the local school and the Sunday School Union. Let them know what it stands for. Make clear the work being done by the Methodist Episcopal Church in organizing and helping Sunday schools, presenting the latest methods of work, and providing the very best literature.

With all of information and inspiration that can be secured, the Rally Day offering should be given. The Scripture does not intimate that there is no blessing in receiving, but says "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Both blessings are in the work of this day. This offering from the Sunday schools ought to average at least one cent per member. If this were given throughout the Church it would bring more money into the Sunday school treasury than all the gifts of former years. Then, add to this the offerings required from the churches and it will double the income. That would be a fine increase for one year.

Why not adopt the suggestion, "A Plan for Doing It," in the April number of the Sunday School Journal and Bible Student's Magazine, and take the offering by classes and the class giving the largest amount (providing it be more than $1.00) will receive the beautiful silk Honor Banner, a very handsome thing indeed. We call the special attention of presiding elders, pastors and Sunday school superintendents to this and hope they will join in a forward movement to make the Autumn Sunday School Union Rally Day a great event. Send to the Book Concern, 429 Carondelet St., New Orleans, for the programme.

Your life journey leads by a way you know not. It is best you should not know. When you come to the rugged hills, climb them. Enjoy the beautiful landscapes as you pass them. And rest assured that at the end of your journey every good thing that has entered into your inspiration, plan and purpose will greet you in that world where hope is changed into fruition, and the longing for perfection shall find its realization. Your highest dreams of spiritual purity, exaltation, and blessedness now are sure prophecies of what you shall be then. What you put into your dream here, God will put into your destiny there. —O. P. Fitzgerald.

There is some duty which God has made ready for you to do to-day! He has built it like a house for you to occupy. You have not to build it. He has built it, and he will lead you up to its door and set you with your feet upon its threshold. Will you go in and occupy it? Will you do the duty which he has made ready Perhaps it is the great comprehensive duty of the consecration of yourself to him. Perhaps it is some special task. Whatever it is, may he who anticipated your love by his own in giving you the task, now help you to fulfill his love with yours by doing it. Amen!—Phillips Brooks.

No one of my fellows can do that special work for me which I come into the world to do; he may do a higher work, but he cannot do my work. I cannot hand my work over to him, any more than I can hand over my responsibility or my gifts.—Ruskin.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Humility

BY HON. JOHN HAY.

Lord! from far-severed climes we come
To meet at last in Thee, our Home.
Thou who hast been our guide and guard
Be still our hope, our rich reward.

Defend us, Lord, from every ill,
Strengthen our hearts to do Thy will.
In all we plan and all we do
Still keep us to thy service true.

O let us hear the inspiring word
Which they of old at Horeb heard;
Breathe to our hearts the high command,
"Go onward and possess the land."

Thou who art Light, shine on each soul!
Thou who art Truth, each mind control!
Open our eyes and make us see
The path which leads to heaven and Thee!

Peace Through Purpose

Peace comes through purpose. It is some great aim in the merchant's mind, centralizing, unifying, inspiring all that he is and has and does, toward which he is driving with all his power, that steadies his hand and thought in the midst of the darkness and cross-currents of business. It is the captain's confidence that there is a port ahead, that he knows the way to it, that his ship can meet all the issues between, that keeps him and his passengers tranquil amid the buffetings of wind and sea. Days of panic, on ship, in market, in the soul, remind us that purpose has fled, that our trouble is within, that purpose must be re-enthroned. The peace of God is the gift of God, but it will shape itself into some lofty aim that will gather up into one splendid impulse all that we are and have and sweep us onward to God's goal, and beneath the outward storm of the moment will give us a deep and central calm. All must be well, for the way is clear and the far-off port is certain. "The louder the battle roar, the fiercer the carnage," said Wellington, "the clearer I can think and the calmer my command, for I know my plan of battle." The Captain of our salvation knows what battle-peace is,—and so may we.—Sunday School Times.

Renunciation

BY MYRA GOODWIN PLANTZ.

I laid it down at His dear feet,
The thing so precious and so sweet,
The thing which seemed to me the best,
Yet which had brought my heart unrest;
Then turned to take my work again,
And soothed my deep heart-breaking pain
With "Now my Lord has all."

Long afterwards I heard my name,
And gladly to His side I came,
Expecting then some new command,
Or gift of love from His dear hand,
And heard, "Take this your life to crown."
It was the joy I had laid down,
And still my Lord had all.

God Sees the Best

God does not set the less against the greater, as we do. He sets the greater against the less, that is his way. Who will not say, Blessed be his love? Man being very small, being petty at the kingliest, finds a flaw.

Thus the wise fool talks: "He is honest, he is wise, he is gifted; he is, on the whole, a man of notable intellectual stature and influence; but"—man thinks he is clever when he discovers a "but." He gathers himself in into Pharisaic perpendicularity and says: "I discovered that, I pointed out that frailty, I saw it."

There can be no pit deep enough for a wretch like that. How doth God speak? Thus hear the music of infinite love: "He has gone astray, he has been unfaithful, he has turned aside from me a thousand times, he has done the things he ought not to have done; yet"—that is the difference between human judgment and divine judgment in relation to that greatest of all mysteries, human character.

It is better to fall into the hands of God than into the hands of men. Your brethren like to speak against you, to have discovered a peccadillo, one little sin, and to have fingers dainty enough to pick out that little hair and to be able to say: "I've got it!" The Lord saith: "You have wounded me and disappointed me and gone away from me, yet—how can I give thee up? Return!"

That is the difference between your human theories and the great divine idea of redemption—God always seeing the best, fixing his eyes upon the salvable points, looking to those elements that are still left out of which he can rear manhood. He will not quench the smoking flax, he will not break the bruised reed.—Joseph Parker, in Epworth Herald.

God In Nature

BY WARREN ELSING.

O man, who thinks there is no God,
Roam far and wide o'er every land,
And view the work of Nature's hand.
Canst thou then cry, "There is no God?"

Stand on the mountain's lofty height;
Intently gaze with watchful eye
On peaceful earth and glorious sky.
Canst thou then cry, "There is no God?"

Behold the ocean's foaming tide
Beat fiercely on the rock-bound shore,
And think of One whose might is more.
Canst thou then cry, "There is no God?"

From slumber wake at break of day,
And view the glory of the dawn,
Foretaste of the eternal morn.
Canst thou then cry "There is no God?"

The Book of Nature open wide,
The sea and all its wonders sound,
Science and Nature's laws profound.
Canst thou then cry, "There is no God?"

O man who thinks there is no God,
Search truly now thine inmost heart,
And of His love see but a part.
Then wilt thou cry, "My Lord! My God!"

The Least Sorrow

"A tearless life is a loveless life." The greater the love with which our life has been blessed, the keener will be the sorrow when the earthly ties with a loved one are sundered. And then comes the danger of letting our grief, which is right, become blind hopelessness, which is wrong. Is death indeed the worst grief which can come to a trusting Christian? There are griefs that are blacker than death. A young man, clean, true, upright, lovable, brilliant in his promise of usefulness, is taken home. For the moment, light goes out for the grief-stricken parents. But all their memories of their boy are beautiful—nothing to regret, nothing to conceal, nothing to wish different, save that he might be back again. What of the mother whose boy is alive but behind prison bars, or in a far country, no one knows where? Even that mother's sorrow is not hopeless, thank God! but it is a sorrow before which mere death becomes a joy. "Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted." Our comfort may be found by turning away from self to the blessed memories of our dead, by rejoicing in their present gain, and by ministering to those whose grief is greater than ours.—Sunday-School Times.

To Trust

ADELBERT F. CALDWELL.

It's easy to trust when the skies are blue,
When everything goes as you wish it to;
It's easy to trust when no hope's denied,
When every desire is as quick supplied;
When your joy each day grows more and more,
Till the heart somehow is a-spilling o'er!
You just can't help it; it seems you must,
Wherever you are, in the Father trust!

But it's hard to trust when the skies are gray,
When nothing seemingly goes your way;
It's hard to feel that it's "for the best,"
When suffering comes to the dear home nest;
When one by one your joys depart,
Leaving a desolate, widowed heart.
But you just can't help it; it's now you must
In the Father's love believe and trust!

Postal Card Sermon

REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON.

Text: Matt. 21:22. Theme: The Power of Prayer.

Prayer is powerful in its influence. The dying thief in the last moments of life by prayer so influenced Jesus, who was also dying, that he saved him, saying: "Verily I say unto thee, to-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise." Prayer is powerful in that it creates and maintains a spiritual atmosphere. Moses' face shone so brightly from the effect of the spiritual atmosphere created by his prayers that men were afraid and unable to stand in his presence. Stephen's face shone so brightly in the midst of this glorious atmosphere that his enemies who stoned him "saw his face as it had been the face of an angel." Prayer by its influence has prepared the heart of the unconverted by the Holy Spirit, and made it willing to accept the gift of life by faith, thrown down all self-defenses, stretched the bridge of belief firmly across the awful chasm of despair and death, and saved the dying sinner as he hung over hell, as an aspen leaf, just ready to fall into the bottomless pit, where the worm dieth not, and the fire is never quenched. Prayer is powerful in that it secures for man the best things of God. There are many things that God has to give that can be obtained only by prayer, and no man gets or attains unto the highest good without prayer. There are some things that man gets from God without prayer; such as physical life, bodily comforts, air, water and a thousand other blessings which he uses daily; but the real, eternal good things can only be obtained by prayer to God. Prayer is powerful in its wonderful effect of transformation. Our world after the desolating storms of more than six thousand yaers have ravaged it, and the destructive fires of more than six thousand years have swept over it, and the destroying insects of more than six thousand years have assailed, and the awful droughts have devoured and blasted it, and the frosts, the hails, the sleets, and the snows of more than six thousand years have nipped, broken and buried, shall by prayer once more shine with the resplendent glory of Eden. Our world, so long under the dominion of Satan, so often and so long invaded by hostile foes, shall by prayer become "the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ; and He shall reign forever and ever."

"Be not afraid to 'pray—to pray is right,
Pray, if thou canst, with hope; but ever pray,
Though hope be weak, or sick with long delay;
Pray in the darkness, if there be no light."

Prayer, believing prayer, is the great need of Christian men to-day. Is there anything wrong at home which needs to be made right in the sight of God? Just ask Him in prayer, believing, and ye shall receive. Man, by prayer, makes himself the child of God.

New Presiding Elders

Dr. P. O'Connell, the new presiding elder of the Salisbury District of the Delaware Conference, is one of the best products of the race. He is a man of ripe and profound scholarship, having made a notable record in the study of the Semitic language. He is a preacher of great force, being fearless and convincing. He is a remarkable and interesting personality, honored and loved by his parishioners, and the better he is known the more he is loved. He has held some of the best appointments within the gift of the church. The Salisbury District, in point of numbers, is the strongest in the Delaware Conference, and the friends of Dr. O'Connell expect that great success will attend his labors in this new field. Here is a brief biographical sketch, which is intensely interesting:

Pezavia O'Connell was born of slave parents in Natchez, Miss., March 2, 1861. He was educated in the public schools of Natchez and the Natchez Baptist Seminary, at which school he graduated from the Normal Department in the year 1881. He was converted and called to preach in July, 1879, and joined the Zion's Chapel, A. M. E. Church. He taught school in the country for two years, '81 and '82; was licensed to preach and joined the Mississippi Conference A. M. E. Church, in the autumn of '83. Went to Wilberforce University in the winter of that year, where he remained till October of the year '85. He then went to Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., from which institution he graduated in the year '88. This year marked two important events in his life, his joining the Methodist Episcopal Church and marrying Miss Maria J. Johnson, a graduate of Clark University. He did his first work in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Raleigh, N. C., as pastor of the Cox Memorial Church. At the meeting of the North Carolina Conference in the autumn of the next year, '89, he, having already been ordained deacon in the A. M. E. Church, was ordained elder by Bishop Joyce, and stationed at Greensboro, which place he held for three years. He was then appointed to the Lumberton Circuit. In July of the year '93 he was transferred from the North Carolina Conference to the Delaware Conference, and stationed at St. John's Church, Newark, N. J., by Bishop Hurst. At the meeting of the Conference in the spring of '95 he was appointed to Bainbridge Street church, Philadelphia, by Bishop Newman. While at Newark, he was a student in Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary, New York City. He remained in Philadelphia four years and while here he was a student in the University of Pennsylvania, from which institution he graduated in June of the year '98 with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He was chosen principal of Princess Anne Academy, the Delaware Conference school, in the year '99, and remained till the meeting of his conference in the spring of 1902, when he was stationed at Ezion Church, Wilmington, Del. Having served this church three years, at the last session of the conference, he was appointed presiding elder of the Salisbury District.

No one could visit the Delaware Conference without meeting Rev. John Raymond Brown. He stands there in the forefront loved and honored by his brethren. His appointment as presiding elder was no surprise and no one envied him, but all wished him well. He has been successful in all the appointments committed to him. He is a representative man, a forceful preacher and careful at business affairs. He will no doubt complete his term as presiding elder, life lasting, with great credit to himself and his great conference.

John Raymond Brown was born March 21, 1866; was soundly converted to God at the age of eleven years and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church; was educated in the public schools of Maryland, pursued and completed courses of study by correspondence in Chautauqua College, University of Chicago, and Central University, supplemented by the best private instructors obtainable. The degree of Bachelor of Philosophy was conferred by Central University in 1903. He was a successful teacher in the public schools of Maryland 1885-1888.

He was admitted on trial in the Delaware Conference in 1889 and has served the following charges: Wittman, two years; Queenstown, two years; Nanticoke, two years; Unionville, one year; Salisbury, two years; Crisfield, two years; Ezion, Wilmington, Del., three years; Middletown, Del., two years; Fairmount, one year. He was elected treasurer of the Conference in 1904 and re-elected in 1905. At the last session of the Conference he was appointed presiding elder of the Cambridge District.

The new presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District of the Louisiana Conference, Rev. J. W. Turner, was

W. Turner, who was born April 15, 1866, near Thibodaux, La., and attended public school in his native town eight years. He was also a student of the Theological Department of the New Orleans University five years, under Dr. L. G. Adkinson and two years under Dr. F. H. Knight. He joined the Louisiana Conference in 1891, at New Orleans, La., and has served the following charges: Raceland and Thibodaux, Malden Chapel, New Orleans, St. Martinville, Pleasant Plains, New Orleans, Thompson, New Orleans, New Iberia, St. Matthew, New Orleans. During these fourteen years as a pastor he has had splendid success winning his way to the ront by merit.

Four hundred and twenty-eight souls have been added to the church under his preaching, one church has been built, two remodeled, and one parsonage built. Debts to the amount of $3,605 have been paid. This is a record of which any preacher would be proud.

Ideala's Day Dream

By Stella A. Florence

Ideala, with the warm spring sunshine enfolding her, gamboled joyously in the apple orchard, and, seizing the drooping branches above her head, shook down a soft, fragrant shower of pink and white petals.

"Ah," she whispered to herself, with a little sigh of absolute content; "how good it is to be living in the spring time! I am glad, now, that God did not let me die when I had the fever last year."

The busy bee, circling about among the sweet blossoms beneath which Ideala stood, buzzed a musical acquiescence.

"It is indeed good to live in the spring time," he said; "but the summer, little girl, is even better."

"And, pray, what do you know about it?" asked Ideala, with awakening curiosity; and she paused in the midst of her revel to listen for the answer.

The busy bee wagged his little head wisely.

"Ah, little maiden," he replied, sagely, "one does not need to be either very big or very old to know that hay ripens only in the sunshine; and as it is with the hay, so is it with other fragrant and necessary things. I, looking for materials wherewith to make honey, rejoice when the garden begins to put on her summer glory, for then I know that my harvest time is near."

"Why," exclaimed Ideala, with astonishment written large upon her expressive face, "I thought only the farmer had a harvest time! I did not know that the bees had one, too!"

The busy bee smiled indulgently. Did you ever see a busy bee smile, I wonder? If not, you still have something very strange and interesting to discover in Nature's wonderful world.

"My harvest lasts all through the long beautiful summer," he answered, in his quiet way. "Wherever a sweet flower blooms, there I gather the luscious sap that by and by will appear on your table as clear golden honey. Just a sip of the liquid sweetness, and I am gone! I do not gather all of the delicious store, for I know that the all-wise Creator did not design it all for me; so I flit from flower to flower, pausing here and there to taste, and always singing a little song of sunshine to the blossoms whose nectar I sip. Thus I give as well as take, and the flower is benefited no less than I."

"That is a very nice plan," said Ideala, thoughtfully. "I wish I were a busy bee, so that I might try it."

"O, that is easy enough," buzzed her winged companion, cheerily. "God's sweet flowers do not all grow upon stems, nor does his glorious sun shine only out of doors. Try, little girl, to bestow as much happiness as you expect to receive, and you will soon discover how many kinds of sunshine there are. Some of it, too, will last you through the dull, cold days of winter, when busy bees, like myself, can neither gather sweet honey nor sing merry songs. Try being a busy bee yourself, little Ideala, and store sunshine as well as honey. You will know then how very good it is to live, all the year around."

"Why, so I will!" cried Ideala, clapping her hands delighted. "It will be a new kind of play, and it will be heaps and heaps of fun!"

But to this no answer was forthcoming, and Ideala, rubbing her eyes, gazed about her wonderingly, for the busy bee had already flitted away to another tree, and was now crooning his pleasant song among the apple blossoms on its topmost boughs. Ideala began suddenly to realize the wondrousness of a talking bee, and for a minute or two she could not quite bring herself to believe that those keen little ears of hers had not deceived her. Then, hearing her mother's voice calling her from the kitchen door, she all at once remembered what the busy bee had said; and, knowing well enough that one is not likely to dream good advice out of one's own head, she decided that this busy bee must be somehow different from all the other busy bees she had known. She glanced wistfully up into the beautiful mist of fragrant pink and whiteness overhead, and wished in the depths of her childish heart that duty did not so often call one away from the things that one finds so pleasant. And just at that moment, a dancing golden sunbeam peeped shyly through the overhanging branches and lovingly kissed her glossy chestnut curls.

"I will store that dear little sunbeam," thought Ideala, gravely; and, taking it right into the coziest corner of her warm little heart, she ran off joyously to find out what mother wanted.—Epworth Herald.

Why is our attitude at our work so destitute of practical enthusiasm? Because we too are not lifting our eyes to the hills. We are looking for nothing but little things, and therefore we see nowhere any threshold or field worthy of God. How can the sense that the living God is near to our life, that he is interested in it and willing to help it, survive in us, if our life be full of petty things? Absorption in trifles, attention only to the meaner aspects of life is killing more faith than is killed by aggressive unbelief.—George Adam Smith.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

BY REV. G. N. JOLLY, D. D.

Lesson XII—Sept. 17th, 1905. Title—"Daniel in Babylon"—(Temperance Lesson, Dan. 1:8-20.) Golden Text.—"Daniel proposed in his heart that he would not defile himself." (Dan. 1:8.)

About six hundred years before the birth of Jesus Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, besieged Jerusalem. The Lord gave the city into his hands. The golden vessels of the temple and many of the people were carried away into the land of Shimar. Among them were princes without blemish, well favored, skilled in wisdom, knowledge and science, quick to learn, and able to stand in the king's palace. Of these were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. Their names were changed to Belteshazzar, Shadrack, Meshack and Abednego.

I. The temptation. (Ver. 8.) Chosen. The king selected four young men, likely from among the princes who were skilled in wisdom, knowledge, and science. Daniel was one of this number. He was well born and religiously raised. Note—Thankful should the child be who has wise and godly parents. Such a child has many advantages over the one who is not so well favored. Other things being equal, he will be chosen first every time by those seeking help for responsible places.

Favored. They were set apart by the king and given a portion of the king's meat and wine. They were, as the Chaldeans supposed, more highly favored than other Hebrews. It is pleasant to be recognized by those in authority. Temptations are much easier resisted from some than from others. This solicitation to evil was from the king and was no doubt hard to overcome. It probably struck a vibrating cord in the heart of the tempted. Their appetite for food and drink likely arose and demanded their rights. It required the firmness of a martyr to withstand such invitations to do wrong. Note—We should learn while young to control our appetites and passions.

Decision: "He purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat." He was conscientious in the matter. The battle was half won when he reached this firm conclusion. Note—We should not halt between two opinions, or debate between right and wrong. If an act or word is wrong, and we know it, let it be dismissed at once.

II. Resisting the temptation. (Vers. 9-16.) 1. The goodwill of others. God gives His people, when it is for their good and His glory, the favor and compassion of those about them. His grace goes before and prepares the way for them; it goes with and strengthens and protects them, and it follows and puts the best construction possible on what they say and do.

2. We know not why this food would defile. It may have been pastry and not solid diet; or the meat may have been a kind the Jews did not eat; or it may have been first offered in sacrifice to an idol; or possibly it was killed by strangulation, and not well bled. Daniel felt that it was wrong to eat it, therefore he begged to be excused. The wine was likely the fermented juice of the grape. It no doubt had alcohol in it. He very wisely rejected it. Note—It is the first drink and not the last that makes the drunkard. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the yord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." (2 Cor. 6:17.)

3. The servant gave two reasons for refusing the request of Daniel: (1) He believed the pulse they asked would not be sufficient to sustain them. That they would, after eating it for a season, become pale and lean. In this he was mistaken. Vegetables and fruits are the most healthy diets. (2) He feared he would displease the king. Nebuchadnezzar was a despot. His word was law. To displease him was death. He set apart their meat and drink, and they must take it or risk the consequences. Note—We should strike to please those we serve, provided their demands are reasonable, and there is no sin in obeying them.

4. The test: "Prove thy servants ten days," said Daniel. This is the only way to find the real value of any matter. Nothing reveals genuine worth better than an experimental test. The countenance is the expression of the face. This, sooner than any other part of the body, will show the effects of the diet. Ten days was a very short while to test the strength of this food. Yet it began to show its force in that length of time. This was a very fair trial. Mild means will often succeed when harsh ones will fail.

5. The effect: "At the end of ten days their countenance did appear fairer and fatter than those who ate the king's meat." Our food makes our blood, and the blood is the life. If it is pure we have a high type of life, but if it is impure our state of existence is low. We should avoid every kind of food and drink that poisons the blood. Use but little tea and coffee, and never drink anything stronger. Always eat clean, wholesome, well-cooked food.

III. Some results of resisting temptation. (Vers. 17-21). 1. They were blessed of God. He gave them knowledge, skill and wisdom. Knowledge is that which we know; skill is ability to do, and wisdom is the proper use of knowledge and skill. "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God and it shall be given him." Daniel had understanding in visions and dreams. The study of dreams was in that land and age an art. God sometimes revealed His will to the people in dreams. He alone could interpret them, or give to others the ability to do so. The secret of the Lord is with His people. The wisest men in every age and nation have been those who loved and feared the Lord.

2. They were called by the king: "Bring them in." The call was made at the end of three years. These had been years of probation, of temptation, and of education. When the summons came they were ready to stand before the king. Note—Our life here is one of trial and training for the one hereafter. The King of Kings will soon call for us.

3. They were examined by the king. When brought in they stood before Nebuchadnezzar, and he communed with them. He found them to have ten times as much knowledge and understanding as all the magicians and astrologers of his realm. Note—"We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ" and be examined according to the deeds done in the body. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Our God, out of Christ, is a consuming fire. Those who honor Him He will honor. He gives prudence, temperate habits, favor with men, and in the end everlasting life.

The Great Surrender

Scripture Reference: Acts 9, 1-22; Rom. 6, 16-23.

The Word—The conversion of Saul of Tarsus has been a favorite and familiar portion of Scripture. It illustrates what he afterward teaches in Romans, the great surrender of the soul to the service of Jesus Christ. To Paul there was no compromise. Serving sin even under the pretext of grace made one the slave of sin even unto death. But being freed from sin by the surrender of the soul to Christ one becomes the servant of righteousness unto holiness. Sin pays the wages of death, but Christ gives the privilege of eternal life. The great surrender is the absolute and unconditional abandonment of sin, and the full and complete dedication of our ransomed powers unto God.

Our Homily: The Surrender of the Soul—There is no battle fought more interesting and more important in its results than the battle of a human soul with its convictions. Saul of Tarsus is a good type of the convicted sinner. The supernatural light, the audible voice, the outward phenomena are incidental. The great fact is that God met a soul and brought it face to face with duty. Up to this hour Saul may have been deceived. But now he knew he ought to surrender to Christ. And he did. There comes to every soul the moment when he must decide. And there comes to many, as there came to Saul, the full, complete, absolute surrender to Jesus which carries with it all future duties and service. Notice some elements of this great surrender:

1. It is Absolute and Unconditional. Paul never reserved anything. He gave up absolutely to Jesus. There was no "string tied" to his surrender. It embraced all his life—all of his time and all of his days. It took in all the future. To his death nothing moved him, for all was surrendered to Jesus. He delighted to subscribe himself as the "doulos," or slave, of Jesus Christ. There may have been after-moments of special consecration, but it was all embraced by his "What shall I do, Lord?" There was never a longing look backward, but a constant pressing forward.

2. It Takes in All the Life. Some surrender their time, their money, or their service to God. Paul put it all in. It meant to him his time, his service, his thought, his all. It was a devotion to Christ as the devotion of a slave. He called nothing his own. It meant prison, stripes, journeyings oft, sacrifices many, poverty, pain, loss, and death. God does not call all to such a life as he lived, but he does call on us for a surrender of the whole life to him.

3. It Became the Keynote of the Life. This surrender of Paul determined every action and service of the future. It was the determining factor at every turn in life. Once so surrendered, a soul has never a quarrel or question with duty. Obedience becomes a habit. New details of consecration are easy. God's claims are never questioned. Such a great surrender makes Christian living easy. Only such a surrender can bring peace to the life and the soul. Every soul should at once make this great surrender.

What We Are to Surrender

Our wills and purposes in life.

Our habits, plans, and business in life.

Our time and strength to do and be for God.

Our money and temporal interests to be used for him.

Our all to be of service anywhere and any time.

Why Surrender?

Because we belong to God, "bought with a price."

Because self-interest is allied to his plan.

Because only thus can we be of use to God.

Because our ignorance needs his wisdom.

Because heaven and holiness are only thus found.

Recent District Conferences

LA GRANGE (GA.) DISTRICT.

The ninth session of the La Grange District Conference convened at Cannon Chapel M. E. Church, Thursday, July 27, with Rev. R. R. O'Neal, presiding elder, in the chair. From the first greetings till the last good-byes were said, the good people of West Point were ceaseless in their efforts to make welcome and comfortable the guests within their borders.

Rev. G. H. Lennon was elected secretary, with Revs. J. D. Jenkins, F. R. Bridges and E. D. Giddens, assistants. Rev. Dr. I. L. Thomas, corresponding secretary of the Church Extension Board, addressed the conference. Revs. J. W. Tharpe, J. W. Alston and S J. Jordan were introduced and made very interesting remarks. Rev. J. B. Maddox preached a good sermon from Psalms 39-11.

Rev. C. L. Dunn was introduced and gave a stirring address in behalf of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. The welcome address was read by Miss Persanna McCardon, response by Rev. J. D. Jenkins. Rev. Dr. J. P. Wragg addressed the conference Friday morning. A collection of $3 was raised for the American Bible Society. Rev. Albert R. Bond, of the First Baptist Church, West Point, Ga., and Rev. Henry Long of the C. M. E. Church, were introduced. W. V. Jenkins, C. C. Godwin, W. G. Greer, C. W. Prothro and J. A. D. Billingsley were licensed to preach. On Friday night a soul-stirring sermon was preached by Rev. I. L. Griner, of Greenville, Ga.

The District League held its session Saturday. The following papers were read: "What has been the progress of the Negro in the M. E. Church? Mrs. F. P. Terrentine; "How may a dead Epworth League be Revived?" Miss Willie A. Moore; "The Woman's Sphere," Mrs. Ida Colquitt; "The inspiring touch of Epworth League Work," Rev. C. L. Dunn. Dr. Albert R. Bond addressed the meeting. Woman's Home Missionary Society was organized with the following officers: President, Mrs. F. P. Terrentine, Greenville, Ga.; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Q. T. Griner, Greenville, Ga.; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Amanda Harvey, Barnesville, Ga.; 3rd vice-president, Miss Mattie Reese, Odessadale, Ga.; 4th vice-president, Mrs. Mary E. Moore, Liberty Hill, Ga.; 5th vice-president, Miss Ida Hill, La Grange, Ga.; corresponding secretary, Miss Willie A. Moore, La Grange, Ga.; recording secretary, Mrs. Ida Colquitt, Meansville, Ga.; treasurer, Mrs. F. R. Bridges, Culloden, Ga. Chipley, Ga., was selected as the seat of the next District Conference. During the Sabbath the following preached: Rev. A. C. Allen, E. D. Giddens, Rev. I. T. Griner.

MRS. F. P. TERRENTINE.

WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF ST. JOSEPH DISTRICT.

The St. Joseph District Woman's Home Missionary Society was organized and held its first meeting during the session of the District Conference, at Ames M. E. Church, Aug. 26, at Independence, Mo. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. M. Harris, of Kansas City, conference president. The meeting was interesting and helpful. Pastors seemed more enthused than ever before, and we feel that by next annual meeting a full and encouraging report can be made.

Officers: President, Mrs. N. J. Bethel, Independence, Mo.; vice-president, Mrs. D. J. Mitchell, St. Joseph, Mo.; secretary, Mrs. Annie Ellis, Kansas City, Mo.; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Harris, Kansas City, Mo.

W. H. M. S. CONVENTION.

Our District Association of the Woman's Home Missionary Society met at Hobson City, Ala., in connection with the District Conference. The business meeting as well as the literary part was quite interesting, and well attended. Each auxiliary reported some work accomplished. We are feeling very much uplifted over the progress of this work on our district. We have collected and paid out as follows: For membership dues, $27; local work, $115.74; subscriptions to W. H. M., $15.75; subscriptions to C. H. M., $2.40; clerical expenses, $2.50; total, $163.39. Our watchword is "An auxiliary in each church on the district, and W. H. Missions in the hands of every member.

The district officers are: President, Mrs. C. J. Martin, Gadsden, Ala.; recording secretary, Mrs. L. H. Hunley, Roanoke, Ala.; treasurer, Mrs. Julia A. Brooks, S. Anniston, Ala.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Thomas, Anniston, Ala.

WESTERN (N. C.) DISTRICT.

The Western District, North Carolina Conference, held its session in St. Paul M. E. Church, Newton, N. C., July 27-30, 1905. Presiding Elder M. M. Jones, D. D., opened the conference with a devotional service. The conference was organized with Revs. N. D. Shamburger as secretary, who chose for his assistant J. W. Simpson.

Rev. H. L. Ashe was then introduced and made a strong plea for a trained ministry. Dr. C. C. Jacobs, Field Agent of the S. S. Union, and Rev. R. Smith, of the Winston District, were among the visitors. Dr. Jacobs put into a nut shell a speech that would have taken some men an hour to have delivered. Elder R. Smith then made a splendid speech. Rev. J. W. Wells, representative of the American Bible Society, addressed the conference on that cause.

S. MCDONALD.

WAYCROSS DISTRICT.

The fifth annual session of the Waycross District Conference, Savannah Conference, convened in Scott's Chapel M. E. Church, Blackshear, Ga., July 26-30, 1905. During the entire session the "revival fire" took possession of both the clergy and laity; and at the close nine persons were happily converted and brought into the church.

The Rev. A. B. Allen, presiding elder of the district, presided with such grace and impartiality that he has completely won the confidence and love of the brethren. The session was informally opened on Tuesday night, the 25th, with a great "Reunion" service. The sermon was delivered by one of the old veterans of our Methodism, the Rev. L. W. Coates. On Wednesday morning, the 26th, the conference was organized. Rev. C. R. O. Rowland was unanimously re-elected secretary. Scores of converts have been made; the cause of the church has been greatly strengthened One of the heroes during the year entered into his rest, namely, Rev. O. N. Samples, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, Valdosta. The benevolences reported are far in advance of last year. Among the many distinguished visitors who attended the deliberations of the conference, were Prof. W. H. Crogman, LL. D., Rev. J. W. Fisher, P. E., Savannah District, and Prof. M. C. Lovett. Prof. Crogman electrified his audience on Friday night, the 28th, with an eloquent address on behalf of Clark University. Rev. Fisher, P. E., preached a most appealing and stirring sermon on Wednesday night. A strong appeal was made for the SOUTHWESTERN by Rev. W. A. Holmes, followed by the secretary. A "Great Missionary Rally" was projected, to be held within the bounds of the district, at some centrally located place. The other districts have been asked to co-operate. The district has been affectionately named the "Baby District," but at the rate it is looming into prominence it will not be many years before it will be capable of filling an equal place beside its parents.

A Memorial service was held in honor of Bishop Joyce. The Sunday School and Epworth League Convention held an interesting session on Saturday evening, the 29th. The entertainment which was accorded the conference by the membership and friends at Blackshear, through the energetic and efficient pastor, Rev. McD. Spencer, was the best ever experienced anywhere. The conference adjourned to meet July, 1906, at Americus, Ga. C. R. O. ROWLAND.

CUMBERLAND DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Cumberland District Conference of the Washington Annual Conference convened in Jones Chapel, on Chestnut street, Morgantown, W. Va., Aug. 16, 1905. Rev. L. W. Briggs, P. E., occupied the chair, and conducted the devotional service, after which the secretary of the last conference, Rev. John M. Beane, of Clarksburg, W. Va., called the roll. Rev. I. M. Beane was re-elected secretary and Miss Estella M. Cambric, Revs. C. S. Briggs and R. R. Robinson were elected assistants. The conference annual sermon was preached by Rev. E. Duke Venture, of Grafton. At the afternoon of the first day's session interesting papers were read by Mrs. Nellie E. Mason, Nellie M. Wilson, Mary F. Coffman and Miss Pauline Blue. The Epworth League Annual Sermon was preached by Rev. R. R. Robinson, of Buckhannon. Able addresses of welcome were delivered by Col. Frazer on behalf of the city and churches; H. T. Jennings on behalf of his church; Lawyer W. W. Smith, on behalf of the Professional League; Mr. A. W. Wright, on behalf of the Afro-American business men, to which Rev. S. P. Huskins responded in behalf of the conference.

During the second day's session Rev. S. A. Virgil offered the following resolution: "Owing to the great numbers coming from the South to Western Pennsylvania, be it resolved, that the presiding elder be requested to ask for a special donation from the Missionary Board to develop the work in Western Pennsylvania, and that he (the presiding elder) put such agents in the field as he believes capable to do the work."

The officers for the District Epworth League were elected at the afternoon session: President, Prof. I. C. Cabell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. N. E. Mason; 2nd vice-president, Rev. C. S. Briggs; 3rd vice-president, Miss Helen Hall; 4th vice-president, Mrs. M. Coffman; Junior League superintendent, Miss Pauline Blue; treasurer, Rev. H. T. Jennings; secretary, Miss Estella M. Cambric.

The Missionary sermon was preached in the evening by Rev. G. W. W. Jenkins, D. D. The conference was given a grand reception at the Delicatessen Hotel, by the members of the Epworth League of the Jones M. E. Church. It was voted that the next district conference convene at Grafton, W. Va.

The subject of Bishops for races and languages in the M. E. Church was discussed in the afternoon. At the Educational Anniversary able speeches were made by Mr. Samuel Monroe, Rev. G. W. W. Jenkins and Prof. J. McHenry Jones, president of the West Virginia Colored Institute. Sunday the services held in the court house; love-feast was conducted by Mr. G. E. Wooding and Mr. J. W. Bruce. The following preached during the day: Revs. S. P. Huskins, Virgil Carter, J. McHenry Jones. Resolutions expressing the thanks for the royal entertainment given to the members and visiting friends of the conference by the hospitable people of Morgantown, were adopted.

THE TRUE REFORMERS

$20,000 to $75,000. But the organization has gone still further and operates an Industrial and Mercantile Asssociation, and is thro this branch fostering a number of business houses. Recently there has been constructed "Hotel True Reformer," modern and up-to-date in all its equipments, with accommodations for 150 guests.

The organization has also for the benefit of its old and infirm members an Old Folks' Home, situated upon a farm of six hundred and thirty-four and one-quarter acres in the suburb of Richmond. This organization also publishes a weekly paper in the interest of the movement, known as the True Reformer.

Such is a brief statement of a magnificent enterprise, which began years ago with a most unpretentious program, which to-day has grown beyond the expectation of its founder or any of its most sanguine supporters. It evinces, first of all, the business capacity of the Negro. It is alike an irrefutable argument in favor of co-operation, and much more could be done if our people were to band themselves together in similar enterprises.

SIMULTANEOUS REVIVALS

The brethren in the cities on the Pacific Coast and in Colorado have attained results that are quite satisfactory in arranging for revival services to be held in all the evangelical churches during the same period. This plan has been tried, it has worked well and is most heartily commended by those who have tried it. The plan calls for the co-operation of all the churches in a city or town, and should there be a unity of effort along this line we can see no reason why there should not be success. At least it would be a splendid lesson to the public in Christian fellowship and a strong emphasis placed upon the ultimate aim of all evangelical churches, namely—the conversion of sinners. The movement has in it the spirit of aggressive evangelism, and no doubt will prove of great help to any community where it is thoroughly tried.

DEATH OF THE REV. H. P. HAMILTON

The Rev. H. P. Hamilton, for twenty-six years the Agent of the American Bible Society in the republic of Mexico, died very suddenly in Mexico City, August 20, 1905. For more than a quarter of a century Mr. Hamilton has given his life to the circulation of the Scriptures among the people of this neighboring republic. He has had from thirty to fifty colporteurs under his superintendence, traveling through all the cities and villages of Mexico. He has been in direct correspondence with the missionaries of the American Churches at work in that nation. During this quarter of a century there have been circulated through his agency among the people of Mexico more than five hundred thousand copies of the Bible, New Testament, and portions of the Scriptures.

REV. W. R. A. PALMER, D. D., PRESIDENT-ELECT OF THE ALABAMA UNIVERSITY

It has been announced in these columns before that the Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society has elected as president of the proposed university to be located at Birmingham, Ala., Rev. W. R. A. Palmer, A. M., D. D., at present the pastor of Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Charleston, S. C. Dr. Palmer is pre-eminently prepared for the position. He received his early education in the Avery Normal Institute, Charleston, from which he graduated in 1879. He has been chosen by this institution to deliver its fortieth anniversary address, which takes place during June, 1906. Mr. Palmer spent seven years in Howard University, Washington, D. C., graduating from the College Preparatory and College Courses, receiving the degree of A. B., Prof. Kelley Miller being a member of the same class. He subsequently spent three years in Drew Theological Seminary and graduated with high honors, the degree of B. D. being conferred. It was here that he gave special attention to general history and metaphysics. He received the degree of A. M., incursu, in 1889 from Howard University, and the honorary degree of D. D., from Allen University, Columbia, S. C. It can be seen from this statement that his training has been all that could be required.

The educational work is not altogether new to Dr. Palmer. He has held summer institutes in various parts of South Carolina and was principal of the Normal Training School in connection with his pastorate at Sumter, and was at one time Professor of Ancient and English Classics and Pedagogy in the State Colored College of South Carolina; he had before this time served as Professor of Greek Language and Literature in Claflin University and prior to that had been assistant Professor of Hebrew and Greek in the Theological Department of Howard University.

But Dr. Palmer's ministerial career has been equally interesting. He joined the Washington Conference on probation in 1887 and was received into full membership in 1889. He transferred from the Washington Conference to the Newark Conference and was stationed at St. John's Church, Newark, N. J. He served one year as agent of the Newark City Missionary and Church Extension Society and paid off a debt of $6,000 of twenty-two years' standing. He was transferred from the Newark to the Washington Conference and served several of its important charges, when, upon the request of the brethren of his native state, he was transferred to the South Carolina Conference and appointed to Beauford, where he built a new church on Lady Island. He served also the Denmark charge, remodeled two churches and in 1889 and 1901 served Sumter, building a new church on this charge and a new schoolhouse and also laid plans for the erection of a magnificent church in the town of Sumter. In 1901 he was appointed to Centenary Church, Charleston, S. C., his native town, where he had been a Sunday-school attendant. He had in his congregation his father and mother up until a year ago, when his father died, besides many of his relatives, his old Sunday-school teachers and many of the officers at present in this church were play-fellows with Dr. Palmer in his earlier days. Here at Centenary he has had remarkable success, spending almost four years in this most important charge of the South Carolina Conference, and the largest charge in our Southern Methodism. Not only has the church been greatly remodeled, but it has had a great spiritual awakening. Great revivals have attended Dr. Palmer in all of his charges and this has been equally true at Centenary, where during a recent revival 521 souls professed saving faith.

In addition to Dr. Palmer's duties as pastor he has served as assistant secretary of the South Carolina Conference for seven years, is at present chairman of the State Executive Committee of the Interdenominational Sunday School Association, president of the Charleston John C. Martin Bible Institute and president of the Conference Epworth League.

These salient facts taken from the career of Dr. Palmer are given as evidence of his equipment for the difficult and highly responsible task as president of the new university. These statements are also prophecies of a brilliant career. The opportunities for the new university are very bright; situated at Birmingham with a large and increasing population, with the entire state to draw upon and with two Conferences to foster the institution, there need be no doubt of the success of the university, from the beginning.

Mrs. Palmer has been chosen as preceptress of the university. She has always been an indefatigable worker and a substantial help to Dr. Palmer, both in his work as a pastor and as an educator.

DEATH OF REV. W. P. RYDER

The death of Rev. W. P. Ryder, which occurred August 24, 1905, removes from the Washington Conference one of its most distinguished members. Rev. Ryder was sixty years old, having been born in 1845 on the eastern shore of Maryland. His father, Morris Ryder, was a slave, but his mother was free, being an Indian of the Pokum family. As was the case in those days, the offspring took the status of the mother and he was free. He spent ten years as a sailor in the merchant marine service on the Chesapeake Bay. In 1862 he was married in Washington, D. C., to Miss Harriet C. Middleton. It was in 1859 that he was converted and joined the New Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church in South Washington, but in 1861 he transferred his membership to Ebenezer Methodist Episcopal Church.

Rev. Ryder was a remarkable man, being a preacher of unusual acceptability, as indicated by some of the important pastorates which he held, namely: Saint Mark, New York; John Wesley and the Metropolitan, Baltimore. He was also presiding elder of the Washington District for one full term.

He held several important civil positions, such as trustee of the public school fund in the city of Washington, member of the mixed board for white and colored schools, and assistant assessor for the District of Washington.

He entered the ministry in 1877 and has enjoyed twenty-eight years of remarkable and unqualified success. He was strongly urged for the pastorate of Sharp Street Memorial at the recent session of his Conference, but it was thought that his strength would not permit him to undertake such a great task. No man in the Washington Conference enjoyed more of the esteem and good will of his brethren than did Rev. W. P. Ryder. He was a man of simple faith and of implicit confidence in God, beautiful in spirit and a remarkable example of Christian living. His funeral took place from Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Wheeling, W. Va., where he was serving as pastor. The funeral sermon was delivered by Rev. J. M. Beane, and Rev. L. W. Briggs, presiding elder of the Wheeling District, made a brief address. Rev. R. F. Broadus, of Bridgeport, Ohio, assisted in the service.

His first wife having died, in 1875 Rev. Ryder was married to Miss Senia Penn, who survives him.

Personal and General

Rev. Mack D. Spencer, of Blackshear, Ga., has proven himself to be quite an organizer. He is the founder of the Industrial Training School and Orphanage at Blackshear, having through his efforts purchased sixty-eight acres of land and put up a substantial building. Rev. Spencer is a member of the Savannah Conference, having joined that body in 1890, and has served several of the important charges, including Waycross, South Atlanta, and Macon. He is in the midst of his fourth year as pastor of our church at Blackshear, and here he has been favored with his usual success.

REV. MACK D. SPENCER.

The correspondents of Rev. J. A. Rolax should address him, Box 384, Jeanerette, La.

Mr. John D. Gainey, editor of the New Age, Portland, Oregon, honored our office with a call recently.

Mr. W. W. Cowan represented Walden University at the recent session of the West Tennessee District Conference.

A new church has been organized at King's Mountain, N. C., under the energetic leadership of Rev. Samuel McDonald.

Mrs. Delia Adams left the city Tuesday evening for Atlanta, Ga., where she will resume her work at the Gammon Theological Seminary.

Rev. Martin Reed, one of the oldest and most honored members of the Central Missouri Conference, died August 27, at the age of seventy.

Mr. James Gair, Sr., a well-known citizen of East Feliciana parish, Louisiana, attended the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, held in Pittsburg, Pa.

Prof. R. M. Davis, A. B., the new principal of the Alexandria Academy, Alexandria, La., will enroll as one of his pupils his daughter, who was born August 26, 1905.

Misses Mary Ann and Isabella Robinson, of Point Coupee parish, are spending a while in the city. Their stay is made the longer on account of quarantine regulations.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Mary E. Long to Rev. Samuel M. Strayhorne, of the Tennessee Conference, the ceremony to take place at Union City, Tenn., September 12, 1905.

Rev. J. E. Wilson, D. D., presiding elder of the Charleston District; Hon. W. D. Crum and Mr. T. L. Grant, constituted a part of the South Carolina delegation to the recent session of the Negro Business League.

Samuel Huston College, Austin, Texas, is to have a new boys' dormitory. The architect's plan has been accepted, which is attractive, and will make most comfortable quarters for the boys. The work, which will begin soon, will be rushed.

The colored citizens of Verdenville, La., have organized themselves for the fight against yellow fever. Rev. Charles C. Landry, our pastor at that place, has been chosen president of the movement and he has the hearty co-operation of the best citizens of the place, and they are rendering faithful service.

We have just received a report of the Greenville District Conference from the pen of Rev. J. M. Marsh. The delay has been due to the fact that Rev. Marsh has been ill and quarantined from his pastorate at Greenville. He is at present at Stephensville, Miss., where he has been since the first of August.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Mr. Reginald Dykers, secretary, appearing at the top of page 7, in this issue. We take pleasure in assuring all our readers that the organization which Mr. Dykers represents is composed of some of the best people in the state of Louisiana, and that they may enter into negotiations with them freely, and in full confidence.

Miss Irene Theodosia Bowen, the eldest daughter of Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, left Atlanta, Ga., this week for Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass. She will enter the second year of the Academy Course, and after the completion of this course she will enter the New England Conservatory of Music. Miss Irene was accompanied by her brother, John W. E. Bowen, Jr., who returns to Phillip Exeter Academy. Enroute the couple will stop at Washington, Newark, N. J., and New York.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Robert F. Spann to Miss Elizabeth J. Luckey, the ceremony to take place in Emanuel Methodist Episcopal Church, Sumter, S. C., September 12, 1905. Mr. Spann is a clerk in the United States Railway Mail Service, in which capacity he has received several commendations and promotions for efficiency. He is one of our most promising young men, being a graduate of Clark University. The SOUTHWESTERN extends the heartiest and most sincere congratulations.

Three cheers and hats off to Wiley University and its energetic, invincible and indefatigable president, Rev. M. W. Dogan, Ph. D.! The Texas Conference is not satisfied with having put up, largely through its efforts the magnificent McKinley Memorial Hall, but these brethren have gone forward with unabated energy in the construction of a president's cottage, and so far four of the districts have reported at their Conferences as follows: Huntsville, $209; Palestine, $262; Paris, $244; Navasota, $345, making a total of $1,060, with the Houston District yet to be heard from. Already work is under way for the president's new home. He richly deserves it and the Texas Conference will see to it that he gets it.

August 31, 1905, marked the one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the birth of Francis Asbury, the first Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church ordained in the United States.

Publishers' Appeal

For Thousands of New Subscribers

Dear Friends and Brethren:

The membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church in our colored Conferences is a large force, numbering at present nearly 300,000 souls. This membership represents a constituency much larger than itself, and one constantly growing in numbers. The religious education of this vast mass of persons presents a question of most urgent and supreme importance. To meet this question in part, our Church has officially established the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. This paper is published solely in the interests of our colored people. An able editor and an efficient office force--all from the colored race--are employed to edit and circulate this periodical.

We are pleased to observe and to believe that the SOUTHWESTERN, under its present management, is better than ever before. We are gratified to note its recent increase in circulation. But we are gravely impressed by the fact that as yet this excellent paper is finding its way on an average to less than one in every fifty families in our colored membership. This is really a startling fact. No christian family can afford to be without its Church paper, No man can be an ideal church member who is not in constant and intelligent touch with the religious life of his own denomination. Moreover, a large subscription list is a condition to the production of the most representative and valuable paper. Every subscriber, therefore, not only does himself and his family an invaluable service by taking the paper, but he thereby helps the Church to furnish a larger value both to himself and to all other subscribers.

The great enlargement in circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a vital condition to the best intellectual and spiritual development of our colored constituency in the South. We earnestly appeal to all Presiding Elders and Pastors to actively use their large influence in promoting this canvass. The SOUTHWESTERN should enter upon its next year with many thousands of added paid subscriptions to its present list.

NEWS NOTES

Hundreds of Negro women are seeking employment in the factories in Massachusetts, since the doors have been opened to them.

A complete record of the war in the Far East is being printed by the Japanese Government, in English and French as well as Japanese. This record will be made public.

Miss Rebecca Bracken, for forty years a train dispatcher on the Michigan Central, the only woman in the world occupying such a position, died recently at Niles, Mich.

By legislative action, approved of by Governor Terrell, the five Negro companies of the Georgia State Militia, composed of from 50 to 60 men each, have been abolished.

Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, poetess and editor of St. Nicholas, the well-known friend of many thousands of American children, died in Onteora Park, Tannersville, N. Y., August 21.

The quarantine regulations are working hardships to many of the brethren. At Lake Providence, La., where Rev. Joseph Jones is pastor, with illness in his family the situation is getting serious. No services can be had as the town is completely isolated; business is suspended and many of the people are threatened by want. Brother Jones is in need and requests a speedy response. Anything sent will be duly acknowledged.

Mr. W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education in Chicago, says that owing to the industrial competition of women, man is being rapidly forced back into fields where heavy manual labor is necessary. He says further: "In 1890 there were 3,914,571 women employed in gainful occupations in America; this number having increased in 1900 to 5,329,807. The birth-rate among the female population is increasing; the death-rate decreasing, which is just the reverse among the men."

Doings of the Workmen.

ROME DISTRICT.

The conference convened its twenty-ninth annual session at Adairsville Ga., Aug. 10th. Rev. C. W. Adams, presiding elder, called the meeting to order. The elder had a most excellent report of the financial and spiritual condition of the district. It showed that many new churches had been built and many souls saved. The sessions were held in a large tent. The pastors' reports showed the spiritual condition of their charges had never been better and that the benevolent collection had increased; $650 for the benevolences had been raised since the last Annual Conference. Prof. W. H. Crogman received for Clark University building $203. There were five candidates licensed to preach. Among the visitors were: Drs. W. H. Crogman, president of Clark University; I. L. Thomas, of Church Extension; S. C. Upshaw, Sunday School Agent; J. P. Wragg, Agent of the American Bible Society, and Rev. E. D. Giddens, of the Savannah Conference, and Dr. G. W. Arnold, presiding elder of the Gainesville District. Rev. William Bailey and the hospitable people should be commended highly for their generosity in caring for the delegates.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT.

The Epworth League, Sunday School Convention, and District Conference at Morehead, Miss., July 26-30. The conference opened with Rev. J. W. Winbush, presiding elder, in the chair. Pastors were present but two, and a goodly number of local preachers and other representatives. J. M. Marsh was elected secretary, and G. Orange, statistical secretary; J. T. Strong, reporter to the Southwestern. Presiding elder's report was full of facts concerning the condition of the district. We were blessed to have with us the Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, D. D. He made two able addresses upon race building and the different causes of the church. The following ministers preached acceptable sermons during the session: T. B. Barnes, R. T. Compton, C. A. Jordon, M. King, L. P., E. D. Billups, J. S. Pleasant, J. M. Marsh, and G. Orange. The Baptist congregation tendered their church to the convention in which to hold its sessions. Raised for all causes during the session, $85.55. The League convention was presided over by Rev. J. M. Marsh, the president. Numbers of delegates read very intelligent papers. Officers elected were: Prof. J. T. Strong, president; Miss Malisa Orange, secretary. The Sunday School convention was very interesting and helpful. Officers elected: C. W. Evans, president, and Miss Mariah Davis, secretary. Both the League and Sunday School conventions were a success. Raised for the new building of Rust University, $30.50. Reporter.

ANNISTON DISTRICT.

The conference met in Hobson City, August 9-13, with Rev. J. W. Thomas, presiding elder, in the chair. The devotional services were conducted by Rev. L. S. Price. The presiding elder made some very timely remarks, and urged upon the ministers the importance of trying to save our young people. Wm. Perry was elected secretary. We were favored with the presence of Revs. I. L. Thomas, D. D., E. M. Jones, D. D., J. P. Wragg, D. D., and several others, who made wonderful speeches that stirred the minds of the people. The Woman's Home Missionary Society met in connection with the conference. Too much praise cannot be given Rev. L. W. Goodson and his good people for taking care of the conference so nicely. May the Lord bless them in their homes. Total amount raised this year for benevolences, $398.80 in advance of 1904. The characters of all local preachers and exhorters passed except one or two. The conference meets at Roanoke, Ala., 1906.

Wm. Perry, Secretary.

GREENVILLE (S. C.) DISTRICT.

The conference was convened in Robertson Chapel M. E. Church, July 26, with Rev. M. M. Mouzon, A. M., presiding elder, in the chair. The Holy Spirit was present throughout the entire session, as was evidenced by the conversions and accessions to the church. This was a most remarkable session; it was an old-time camp-meeting in which everybody was greatly revived. The sermons were full of spiritual power. The license of every local preacher and exhorter was renewed. The discussions were helpful and inspiring. The literary productions were of the classic order throughout, yet brimful of sparkling originality. The Sunday School Institute was the best we've ever witnessed here, as was also the district Epworth League. Every feature of the work was discussed with profit to everyone. Rev. Chas. C. Jacobs, D. D., of Sunday School Union, was present and made the speech of his life. The Epworth League gave to his cause $11.00. Prof. I. Garland Penn preached with telling effect and was given $5.00 by the district League. Rev. I. L. Hardy and Rev. J. C. Armstrong were among the brethren who preached during the session. Reporter.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT.

The conference met at New Goshen South Greensboro, N. C., July 19-23, Rev. M. J. Bullock presiding. All reports showed an encouraging increase. Thirty-five or forty were licensed to preach and they renewed their pledge to take the Southwestern. Among the visitors were Rev. M. M. Jones, the presiding elder of the Western District, who gave an excellent address. Drs. I. L. Thomas, Field Secretary of Board of Church Extension; and C. C. Jacobs, Field Worker of Sunday School Union, ably represented their causes, thereby increasing the interest of these departments of our church to those who heard them. Dr. J. D. Chavis delivered a stirring sermon. The Institute work was well conducted by Drs. J. D. Chavis, J. P. Morris and S. A. Peeler. C. W. Blaylock.

GAINESVILLE DISTRICT.

The conference convened in Lavonia, Ga., Aug. 17, with Rev. G. W. Arnold, D. D., presiding. Rev. J. D. Lovejoy was re-elected secretary. The meeting was well attended, nearly every pastor being present the first day. Great crowds continued with us and peace and quietness prevailed. We raised $341.00 for the F. A. & S. E. Society alone, saying nothing of the excellent collections that went to six other causes in this district. Dr. G. W. Arnold is one of the strongest men in Methodism and it is not surprising that he can bring anything to the front. Sermons or addresses were delivered by Dr. I. G. Penn, Dr. W. H. Crogman, Rev. Z. K. Gowen, B. S., Dr. C. C. Jacobs, Rev. S. C. Upshaw, Dr. J. P. Wragg, Rev. P. H. Travis, P. E., Dr. I. L. Thomas. A. McNeal, Reporter.

CLARKSDALE DISTRICT.

The Epworth League and Sunday School convention of Clarksdale District convened in the M. E. Church at Ruleville, Miss., July 26-27. Rev. G. H. Harvey preached opening sermon. The Epworth League reports were very encouraging. District officers were installed by Dr. Woolfolk, presiding elder. Several important topics were ably discussed by representatives of the League. At the Sunday School Institute, Rev. J. B. Starkey, district president, presided. The reports from the eighteen Sunday schools were full of inspiration. The papers were interesting and ably handled by the speakers. Dr. Woolfolk impressed the district officers with the importance of their office and duty. L. F. White, Reporter.

TUPELO DISTRICT.

The Tupelo conference met in its twenty-seventh semi-annual session in Houston, Miss., July 20-23, with Rev. W. C. Clay, A. M., D. D., in the chair. Bro. M. Young conducted the religious services. J. M. Walton was elected secretary, with J. T. Cannon and W. C. Weatherall assistants. J. H. Bynum was elected statistical secretary, with P. S. Bowie and W. C. Hilliard assistants. The presiding elder's report was inspiring. The pastors' reports, with two exceptions, showed good work had been accomplished. Among our visitors was Miss Mary L. Clay, daughter of our presiding elder. Dr. Logan never represented the cause of Missions as well as at this conference. Dr. Bowen electrified the large audience that greeted him. His matchless speech was heartily received and cheered by white and colored. Dr. E. M. Jones laid the burden of the Sunday school upon the hearts of the conference in such way that great good will be the result. The anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid and Rust University was ably conducted by J. M. Walton and J. C. McGee. The Southwestern was carefully looked after by H. B. Hart. The following named brethren preached during the week: L. N. Jones, R. B. Buchannon, B. J. Roberson, J. T. Cannon, W. C. Weatherall, H. B. Hart, and J. W. Johnson, Dr. E. M. Jones, J. C. McGee, P. S. Bowie, M. Adams, S. Gates and Wm. Lester conducted love feast. Our collection was more than three hundred dollars. There cannot be too much said in praise of Bro. W. C. Conwell, the pastor, and his good people for their hospitality. They have built a new church which would be a credit to any town in the state. The district is growing very rapidly.

J. M. Walton, Secretary.

CLOW DISTRICT.

The conference convened at Horatio, Ark., July 26, with Rev. D. B. Harston presiding. A large delegation was present. At every session the spirit of the Lord was manifested. Sinners were converted and added to the church. The reports of many of our pastors showed that a wonderful spiritual awakening had accompanied their labors this year. Only two of our pastors were absent, while in some way every charge was represented. The people manifested great interest in the conference. They came on horseback and in wagons and on foot fifty and sixty miles, and spent the entire week. Every provision for the entertainment of the conference was made by the untiring pastor and people. The reports which follow show an increase in almost every department over last year:

This round brings us to the next session of our Annual Conference. Let us go up with glad hearts, having done our best in the Master's vineyard. Your reports at the district conference was all that could be expected. You are within $50 of the total amount raised by the district last year for benevolence. Now, brethren, let us make one long and united effort to raise the last dollar of our benevolence. Not a man on the district can afford to come up to the Annual Conference short in his collections. The eyes of our great church watch our footsteps, and great things are expected of us. Our motto is: "A thousand souls for Christ and a thousand dollars for the church." Yours in Christ, C. W. ADAMS, P. E.

SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

Salem Church having been remodeled, will be ready for re-dedication the third Sunday in October. All former pastors are invited to participate in the dedication exercises. TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The cornerstone laying and rally that was to have been at Leonia, Miss., on the Paulding Circuit, Sept. 16th, is postponed until October 14, 1905. This change is made on account of the quarantine. The Masons of Heidleburg will officiate. The Revs. J. C. Hibbler, R. E. Jones, W. W. Lucas and the Rev. J. B. Brooks, presiding elder of the Shubuta District, will be present October 14-15. All are invited.

B. W. ROBINSON, Pastor.

HUNTSVILLE DISTRICT.

The conference convened at Stevenson, Ala., July 27-30. Rev. A. S. Williams, presiding elder, being absent, Rev. I. Townsend, ex-presiding elder, was elected to preside until Rev. Williams came. Mr. Timberlake, a member of the M. E. Church South and one of the leading merchants in Stevenson, delivered the address of welcome. The response was delivered by Rev. J. T. Martin. Among the visitors was Mr. Vault, editor of Stevenson Chronicle. The reports of the presiding elder and pastors showed the district to be making some headway. Raised for benevolences $285.17. A sermon was preached each day at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. R. C. Toney, G. W. Bynum, Arthur Wynn and G. W. McGuire were licensed to preach. The SOUTHWESTERN was ably represented by Rev. F. Martin, of Huntsville. Memorial services were held in memory of Bishop I. W. Joyce and Brother Paton McCauley. Conference collection, $30. A resolution to send in a list of subscribers to SOUTHWESTERN was adopted.

W. J. HARRIS.

MISSISSIPPI.

COLUMBUS, Leon Johnson—Our second quarterly conference was held June 24-26, by Rev. G. J. Dobson. The session was pleasant. Rev. Dobson preached twice. Seventy-two persons partook of the Lord's Supper. Collection, $24.50. Raised during the quarter, $80.00.

"LA CREOLE" HAIR RESTORER

Much of the physical beauty of man or woman is dependent on the hair. Keep this "crowning glory" in best condition with "La Creole" Hair Restorer, the preparation used by famous Creole beauties. It makes the hair lie straight and smooth for a time, cures dandruff, prevents falling hair and restores original color to gray hair.

UNEXCELLED FOR PURPOSE.

Mrs. Melissa Dancy, of 281 Orleans street, Memphis, Tenn., is one of the most prominent women in the colored society of this city, in both a social and religious way. Mrs. Dancy has been using our "La Creole" Hair Restorer for many years and takes pleasure in saying:

"Your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer is unexcelled for the purposes for which you recommend it, viz., to keep the hair in a soft and glossy condition and to prevent it from falling out."

Mrs. Melissa Dancy.

MAKES HAIR LIE STRAIGHT FOR A TIME.

SPLENDID HAIR DRESSING.

To the old patrons of the Peabody Hotel, Memphis, Tenn., this is a familiar face—that of Mr. James Bacon, who has had entire charge of the dining room in that celebrated hostelry for over twenty-five years, and who, by his courteous manner and polite attention has secured the friendship and respect of every one with whom he comes in contact. Mr. Bacon says:

"Your 'La Creole' Hair Restorer is a splendid dressing for the hair and I have received great benefit from its use."

His address is 98 St. Paul street, Memphis.

Mr. James Bacon.

Doings of the Workmen

ARKANSAS.

Clow, D. H. E. Harris.—We have just closed (Aug. 28) at Wiley Chapel, a glorious revival. Fifty-five persons were happily converted and joined this church; other accessions, 3, making a total of 58.

Crawfordsville, C. A. Taylor, Pastor.—On August 28, our rally day, we collected $22.10. Our church is up and doing and we will be able, at roll call, to make a good report.

Brinkly, A. T. Stephens, Pastor.—Our third quarter was held Aug. 7-8. Rev. B. J. Griffin looked carefully into the business of the conference and was well pleased. Paid the elder in full. All departments of the church are alive and in working spirit. The state Epworth League will be held here Oct. 26.

LOUISIANA.

Columbus, M. L. Stringer.—In spite of high waters and other hindrances, our pastor, Rev. W. C. W. Turner, has added seven members to the church and expects to begin a revival as soon as expedient. We hope to accomplish a good work this year.

Booth, A. C. Mitchell.—I desire to thank the young ladies and gentlemen who, led by Misses Daisy Wilson, Martha Lott, Georgiana Jefferson, John Harry and others, for the generous donations which they brought to the parsonage Friday evening, August 5.

Hahnville, C. Taylor.—One evening recently, Rev. T. B. Cooper and family were aroused by a band of music. A surprise followed, led by Mr. C. Taylor, Mrs. D. Taylor and Mrs. Mary Lamore. They presented to Rev. Cooper a neat purse and over seventy-five pounds. We pray a special blessing upon them. St. James is on top.

Bonita, R. A. Taylor, Pastor.—The stewardess band of Lawson Church, led by Sister Lue Lamperts, president, Dora Baker, Betsy Louvolle, Julia Lamperts, Harriet Baker, Harriet Anderson and others, presented the pastor with a purse of $7.50 on the night of August5. Many thanks to these dear sisters.

Natchitoches, T. Larkins, Pastor.—We thank the friends, both white and colored, and also the members of Grand Ecore, for the pound surprise meeting, led by Mrs. Margaret Hall, Joe Davis, Rachel Emanuel, H. January and others.

Benson, Charley Adams.—Our rally was held July 30. With our small membership of four we raised $13.70. Rev. T. P. Norris, pastor of Shady Grove church, and Rev. T. C. West, of the Baptist church, assisted our pastor, Rev. J. J. Haskins.

Brownlee, J. B. Henderson.—I take this method to thank the sisters and friends of Scott Chapel for the kindness shown my family during their illness. They put forth every effort in their behalf. To Sisters E. Williams, A. Miles and R. Crow we are especially indebted.

Lake Arthur, T. B. Oville, Pastor.—I desire to thank Sisters Rebecca Heninson, Edy Gipson and E. M. Warlice for their recent kindness. The generous contribution of Mr. O. E. Austin was a beautiful pulpit stand valued at $25. We are struggling to elucidate the present indebtedness. Our Sunday school is in good condition, with R. L. Wilson as superintendent.

St. Martinsville, George Drake.—Our third quarterly conference convened July 30. Owing to the quarantine, on account of yellow fever, our presiding elder, Rev. J. J. Obee, could not be with us and so authorized Rev. Randolph to preside. Reports indicated an increase along all lines. Seven members received into the church this quarter. Deaths, three. Our Sunday school is in good condition. The Epworth League is beginning to do good work. Raised this quarter for all purposes, $162.10; raised for benevolence, $70.40. By our works we will prove just how much we honor and respect our pastor and elder.

Ripley, Sarah Prince.—On the 5th Sunday in July at Mt. Zion Church, Rev. Daniel Verner, of the Baptist Church, preached two noble sermons. Our pastor, Rev. W. M. Luster, was absent, owing to illness. Collection for the day, $9.50. The young men of this church gave Father Emry a collection of $1.50.

Rosedale, L. W. Wessinger.—Our presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Turner, was with us July 22. During the evening he preached an able and acceptable sermon. The J. W. E. Bowen Epworth League elected the following officers: President, Prof. H. J. Edwards; 1st vice-president, Laura Young; 2nd vice-president, A. Thomas; 3rd vice, E. Bessie; 4th vice, Jackson Johnson; secretary, Lillie Davis; superintendent Epworth Guard, Ida Augusta; librarian, Walter Page. Rev. Augusta, our pastor, is doing his best for Hartzell. He is a Christian gentleman and a good strong preacher.

Woodlawn, J. D. Wilson, Pastor.—Led by Brothers Will Gray, T. Pemitton, Sisters Mary Gray, Elizabeth Osbury, Ella Johnson and Mary White, a host of members from the Rosedale plantation presented their pastor recently a large supply of groceries. Presentation speech by Brother L. E. White.

Welsh, S. M. Haynes, Pastor.—I desire to thank the members of class No. 2 for the 50 pounds of groceries which they presented me recently. Brother G. Slater is the leader of this energetic class.

Bluff Creek, B. Carr, Pastor.—On Sunday, August 6, Brother Jack Bell preached a fine sermon. The congregation was large and appreciative. Thirty-five persons partook of the holy Sacrament. On August 5th a grand barbecue was given here, led by Messrs. Albert Hays, of the Pine Grove, Henry Brasel, of Beach Grove M. E. Churches, also I. H. Bell and E. H. Holmes. Probably 300 people were on the grounds. Raised $300.50.

Jones Creek, Lawrence Estavan, Pastor.—The first Sunday was high day in Union M. E. Church. I preached and administered the Lord's Supper to a large number. One backslider reclaimed. Collection, $4.90. A few nights ago the members and friends gave us a surprise in the shape of 76 pounds and 25 cents in cash. We take this method of thanking the friends. Our rally meeting on the second Sunday proved a success for these hard times. Raised $17.70, which amount covers the entire indebtedness of the church. The SOUTHWESTERN is a wholesome paper and I could not afford to be without it. It ought to be in the home of every member. I am proud to be presided over by such an able and worthy Christian as our presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Turner.

Gueydan, J. P. Oville, Pastor.—The stewardesses of Williams' Chapel, Sisters Lillian Parke, Olivia Williams and Bertha Baily, presented their pastor a nice $25 conference suit. The same is paid for. On Monday night, Aug. 21, the members and friends presented their pastor many pounds of groceries.

Darrow, C. W. Kershaw.—We had good success in our financial war between the Japanese and Russians, notwithstanding all hindrances. The Japanese, led by Mrs. C. Jones, captain, Mrs. M. Powell, Lieut., and Mrs. L. Hudson, B. G. of Finance, raised $17.55. The Russians, led by Mrs. F. Bates, Capt., Mrs. D. Wilson, Lieut., and Mrs. G. Kenner, B. G. of Finance, raised $18.35. Total $35.90.

MISSISSIPPI.

MASHULAVILLE, Rebecca C. Tubbs—Our second quarterly conference convened July 1-2, with the Rev. F. H. Henry in the chair. The conference was very well attended. Reports showed that the work was in a fair condition. The elder preached a delightful sermon at 11 o'clock The Lord's Supper was administered to 76 souls. Raised this quarter, $92.70. Our elder was at his best and worked faithfully. His lecture to the Epworth League was impressive. Our Children's Day was a success, under the laedership of Mrs. A. N. Hughes and Mr. J. W. Walker. We are serving a generous hearted people and are doing all we can to help them.

GREER.—Brother Isaiah Greer, the 18-year-old son of Brother Richard P. Greer, of LaGrange, Ga., departed this life Monday morning, July 23, 1905. He was for four years a member of Union Chapel M. E. Church, and was much beloved by his comrades and friends. He leaves a loving father, two brothers, one sister and several relatives to mourn his loss. His funeral was conducted by the pastor, G. H. Lennon, assisted by Rev. White of the A. M. E. Church.

SIMMONS.—On August 2, 1905, Mrs. Mary Simmons, of Fairfield, La., was called to her eternal home. She leaves a husband and one child, a mother and a number of friends to mourn her passing. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. D. Thomas, assisted by Rev. Materson of the A. M. E. Church.

MORRIS.—Mrs. Louisa Morris, for many years a member of Union M. E. Church, New Orleans, died after several months of illness in great peace.

GALLARD.—Miss Ellen Gallard, a probationer of Union M. E. Church, New Orleans, La., died in peace July 29, 1905. She connected herself with the church on probation a few days before her death.—Valcour Chapman.

ROBERSON.—Mrs. Julia Roberson, an aged and honored member of Union M. E. Church, New Orleans, for 31 years, died very suddenly Monday morning, July 24, 1905. She leaves several children, grand and great-grandchildren. Among them one child and one great-grandchild are members of Union Church. Her funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Valcour Chapman, assisted by Brother R. C. Metoyer.

MOORE.—At Lake, Miss., August 10, 1905, Mrs. Rosa Moore, one of our best members of St. Paul M. E. Church, fell asleep in Jesus. She leaves a husband and father, mother and brother to mourn her going. The funeral was attended by Rev. N. E. Goodloe and W. H. Smith.

BOYD.—On July 28, 1905, from Handsboro, Miss., Mr. Willie Boyd, a devout Christian of this church, departed this life, leaving relatives and friends to mourn his loss.—A. M. Trotter, pastor.

GIRDNE.—Mrs. Lena Boyce Girdne, after an illness of eight months, died in full triumph of faith August 1, 1905, at the age of 22 years. She leaves a husband, one child and several sisters and brothers to mourn her death. The Knights of Pythias and Woodmen of America assisted in the burial service. Rev. J. Burton conducted the funeral, assisted by Rev. Coats, presiding elder of the A. M. E. Church, and G. W. Baker.

SCOTT.—Mrs. Mary Scott, of Crawford, La., departed this life July 24, 1905. She was a faithful member of Mt. Zion M. E. Church. She leaves three sisters, a host of relatives and friends to mourn her passing. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, J. D. Poole, assisted by Rev. A. Murray of the Baptist Church.

KING.—Moses King, of Marion, Miss., departed this life July 23, 1905, at the age of 80 years. He was a faithful member of St. Peter M. E. Church for eleven years.—S. S. Lowry.

YOUNG.—After 23 years of faithful service, Mr. Mark Young, a member of Clarks Chapel M. E. Church, McMinville, Tenn., departed this life July 30, 1905, at the age of 80 years. His funeral was largely attended by representative citizens of both races. Those who took part in the funeral service were: Dr. S. P. Livingston, W. R. Smith, presiding elder of Nashville District; ex-Judge Whitson, of the McMinville bar, and the pastor, W. R. Smith.

BLACKMAN.—On August 5, 1905, the Lord called from our midst a very useful young lady, Miss Clementine Blackman, aged 17 years. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blackman, of Jackson, Miss., and was an example worthy of imitation. She was a member of the senior class of the High School. Her funeral was conducted by Rev. William McMorris, pastor. Eulogistic addresses were delivered by Prof. J. A. Martin and Mrs. R. P. Threlkeld.

GRANTHAM.—Miss Annie May Grantham, of Jackson, Miss., the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Grantham, departed this life August 2, 1905, at the age of 15 years. She was a faithful member of the Sunday school and with her sweet disposition won the love and admiration of all who knew her. She was a student of Rust University. A loving father and mother, two brothers, one sister and many friends survive her. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Wm. McMorris.

BAILEY.—On July 22, 1905, from Vaiden, Miss., Mrs. Tilla Bailey, aged 82 years, departed this life in full triumph of faith. She leaves a husband and six children and a host of relatives and friends. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. S. Leake.

STEWART.—Miss Majarene Stewart, the beloved daughter of Rev. Stewart Simmon Oakley, was born in Barnwell county, Nov. 13th, 1876, and died recently. She was baptized in infancy by the Rev. Lisbon Johnson and was converted in Old Bethel at Charleston, S. C., under the pastorate of Rev. C. C. Jacobs, D. D., but afterwards joined Centenary Church. She was educated at the Simonton Graded School in Charleston, and became an efficient teacher both in the Sunday school and the day schools. She was a rare scholar, and won several gold medals while a student, but was always too modest to wear them. She was a devout Christian, and read the Bible through several times. Miss Majarene was married last year, but when she was taken sick with the fatal disease she asked to be taken back to her father's house. This last request was granted. Wherever her father preached, there she taught. She taught the children in the day, and the older ones at night, and when Sunday came, she would be found in the Sunday school teaching both young and old the word of God. She was a good singer, and taught all the people how to sing, and when the whole community turned out to her funeral, the people sang the very same songs she taught them how to sing. She organized benevolent societies among the people—societies by which the sick were cared for, and the dead were buried. She told her father to have her funeral sermon preached from these words of St. Paul: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Dr. Palmer, of Charleston, went up and performed the last sad rites. Brother Simmons has the sympathy and prayers of all his brethren in this his sad bereavement.

JAMES.—At Welsh, La., August 13, 1905, occurred the death of Mr. Thos. James.—S. M. Haynes.

SHEPARD.—Lee James Shepard, aged 2 years, died in Welsh, La., August 15, 1905.—S. M. Haynes.

HAYS.—At Bluff Creek, La., July 30, 1905, Miss Bessie Hays, a member of Pine Grove M. E. Church, died in peace at the age of 15 years. Her father, brothers, sisters and many friends survive her. The funeral service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. B. Carr, and Rev. Charley Robinson, of Beach Grove Baptist Church.

Unhappy Women!

No woman can be happy when her health is undermined. No woman can have good health while she suffers from female weakness, inflammation, ulceration or any disease of the delicate womanly organs. Nervous, sleepless, fretful, suffering in body and mind, she does not live but only exists.

More than a half a million such women have found a perfect and permanent cure for their diseased condition in the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Women cured by this remedy say it is a "wonderful medicine," so perfectly does it restore them to health and comeliness.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither does it contain opium, cocaine, nor any other harmful drug. It is in the strictest sense, an honest, temperance medicine. Its ingredients are purely vegetable, and it will agree with the most delicate constitution.

☞ Don't be hypnotized, or over persuaded, into accepting a substitute. This medicine has a record that's worth far more than any difference in price.

Sick and ailing women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, either personally or by letter, absolutely without charge or fee, thus avoiding the unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations and obnoxious local treatments considered necessary by many local practitioners. All correspondence treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets

These tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules regulate Stomach, Liver and Bowels, cure Constipation and Bad Stomach, attended by foul breath. One or two for laxative, three or four for cathartic.

Doings of the Workmen

ARKANSAS.

Center Point, W. E. Pruitt, Pastor.—Our third quarterly conference convened Aug. 20-21, Presiding Elder D. B. Harston at his post. Sunday night at 7:30 he preached a soul-stirring sermon from Heb. 3, 6 vs. and as we were in revival it was very suitable. Seventeen persons professed a hope in Christ. The business session of the quarter was held Monday at 9:30. All officers presented good reports. Paid elder $10; raised for all purposes this quarter, $69. Our work is spiritually alive and financially growing.

UNITED FOR LIFE.

HARRIS-WILLIAMS.—One of the most beautiful, brilliant and impressive weddings ever witnessed in Chattanooga, Tenn., was that of Miss Adelaide E. Williams, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. L. Williams, to Mr. John R. Harris, in the Wiley Memorial M. E. Church, Tuesday, August 22, 1905, at high noon. The event brought together an audience composed of the most cultivated and refined people of the city. The altar was beautifully decorated with evergreens, white roses and ferns. Shortly before the arrival of the wedding party Mrs. Sadie Blount charmingly sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told." To the sweet strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Miss Gertrude Jackson, the bridal party entered the church in the following order: Ushers J. M. Easterling, John Alexander, Otis Montgomery, Fred Carter; groomsmen, Jas. Rosemond, Dr. J. P. Frierson, Matthew Cates; bridesmaids, Minnie Williams, Juanita Williams, Sadie Blount; following the bridesmaids came Master Ross Blount, bearing on a silver tray the wedding ring; maid of honor, Miss Florence Ramsey, and following her came the flower girls, Johnnie Drain and Louise Blount. The bride entered leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. The ceremony was beautifully and impressively performed by Rev. G. W. Arnold, D. D., presiding elder of the Gainesville District. Lang's "Flower Song" was softly played during the ceremony. The party retired to the music of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The bride's dress was of white Liberty Mesialine silk with trimming of chiffon applique; she wore a bridal veil with wreath of orange blossoms and carried in her hand a beautiful little white morocco-bound Bible. A reception was held at the residence of the bride from 1 to 3 o'clock. At 3 o'clock the newly married couple left for a two weeks' trip abroad. Many costly and valuable presents were received. The bride is an educated and refined young woman, a graduate from Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Fla. She is a teacher of marked and recognized ability. The groom is a prominent and highly respected young man of Chattanooga, of high family connections. For 15 years he has been in the employment of the D. B. Loveman's drygoods firm and now holds the place of chief receiving and shipping clerk. Several valuable presents were received from Mr. Loveman and also from the clerks in his establishment. Many kind and good wishes follow the happy pair as they launch out on the new life.

MCCHIAR-BIOUS.—By Rev. D. G. Taylor, at the home of the bride in Monroe, La., August 23, 1905, Mr. Peter McChiar and Miss Francis Bious.

PIERRE-HAMLIN.—At the parsonage of Mallalieu Chapel, New Orleans, La., August 26, 1905, Mr. Joseph Pierre and Miss Bertha Hamlin, by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright.

GAYDEN-DURN.—On August 6, 1905, at New Hope M. E. Church, by Rev. J. G. Garrett, Mr. Henry Gayden and Miss Loula Durn, residents of Bowerton, Miss.

RODGERS-THOMPSON.—By Rev. E. F. Scarborough, at Oxford, Miss., August 20, 1905, Prof. S. W. Rodgers and Miss Selma Thompson.

Doings of the Workmen

MISSISSIPPI.

SHUQUALAK, G. J. Dobson, pastor—The second quarterly conference of the Shuqualak Circuit was held at St. Peter's Church, July 8-9. The elder sent Rev. J. H. Everett, who presided with much ease. He preached two able sermons on Sunday and assisted by the pastor, administered the Lord's Supper to 75 communicants. Raised this quarter, $154. Paid the elder in full.

OHIO.

Oberlin, Mrs. N. A. Carter—There was given by the Junior Epworth League, June 9th, a grand literary and musical entertainment. The little church was crowded. Now the Juniors are happy over the possession of $8.00 cleared from the entertainment.

Bellaire, Cecil Marcellus—Our second quarterly conference convened at Bellaire and Bridgeport, July 22-24. The reports showed the work in good condition. Raised during the quarter, $190.33. The elder, Rev. E. A. White, preached two soul-stirring sermons and on Monday eve, he delivered his lecture, "The Yellowstone National Park," to a large and appreciative audience, and all present were well pleased. The church at Bridgeport is being painted, and other repairs are going on. We raised on Sunday, $22.50. Paid the elder in full. Rev. R. F. Broadous is our pastor.

HAVEN CHAPEL.—A rally was given by the steward sisters Thursday night, August 31, for the benefit of the church and pastor, Rev. John McKee. Revs. F. Branch and Curtis of the Baptist Church and Rev. W. S. Chinn were present and rendered able service. Collection, $7.50. On last Sunday evening the editor preached to this congregation. Collection, $9.15.

PLEASANT PLAIN.—The social class-meeting held Tuesday night, August 22, was a success. The members and friends urge its repetition. Collection $6.00. Rev. F. Branch preached acceptably at the evening service of Aug. 27. One subscription was secured for the SOUTHWESTERN.

WESLEY CHAPEL.—The Sunday school held a very interesting missionary service last Sunday morning, the children rendering songs and speeches in a very pleasing manner. The superintendent's remarks were encouraging. Communion was served at night to two hundred and fifty persons. Collected during the day, $39.37. The bazar which opened in this church Monday evening, September 4th, will continue until the following Monday evening, September 11th.

MEN AND WOMEN

Who have Tired Brain and Weak Nerves
Read this Letter to you about the
Great Invigorator of Mind and Body

Dear Friend: Do you feel "all dragged out," lacking in energy, incapable of concentrating your thought? If so you are in danger—your physical and nervous vitality are at a low ebb and you are in absolute need of our treatment. We wish to impress upon you the fact that to delay in taking measures to cure yourself in any case of brain or nerve exhaustion or weakness might prove a very serious result. When you are tired all the time from overwork or dissipation or excesses of any nature it is a certain sign of exhausted or collapsed brain or nerve cells.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food & Nerve Restorer

being composed of the same chemical constituents of which the brain and nerve cells are made, furnish the best possible nutriment for them, and is so composed that it is readily assimilated and digested.

For all sexual weakness, this food is unquestionably a positive cure. Being directed to the weakened nerve centers of the affected parts, it restores them to a natural, healthy condition, bringing back lost powers, stopping un-natural discharges, etc. By acting on the nerve centers—or "life centers"—in this way it is the only honest and effective treatment for these troubles.

No Alcohol; no Mineral Salts. The cost of a month's treatment is only One Dollar ($1.00). Think how much cheaper that is than paying doctor and drug bills at home. And consider the features of time saving and privacy and, best of all, the fact that Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer only one tablet at a dose three times a day (at home or at work) is the only true cure for weak and exhausted conditions of brain and body and that it will make a new being of you—positively curing and preventing Lost Power, Kidney Ills, Brain Fag, Neurasthenia, Weakened Organs, Low Vitality, Nervous Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Sleeplessness, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Locomotor Ataxia and Weakness of any kind that makes you miserable and weak where perfect men and women are strong like you should be and thereby making you healthier, happier, longer-lived and increasing your earning powers and your success in business or in any undertaking. Good for Minister, Office-man, Student, Tired Mother, Man of the World and Growing Child. If you hesitate about sending $1.00 in advance, send 50c for a half month's treatment; that should be enough to convince you that the treatment will do all that we claim for it. Do it to-day, delays are dangerous. Money returned if you are not satisfied. When you order, please mention this paper.

TESTIMONIALS FROM LOUISVILLE

Mrs. Sydney Simpson, writes: For many years I have been weak, tired, exhausted, had no life or ambition, was irritable, cross, blue and very discouraged; at times I felt I would lose my mind.

Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer is wonderful. It has no equal. It made a new person out of me and I cheerfully recommend it as the greatest remedy on earth for nervousness and exhaustion.

Mr. Alx. Hill, writes: I was persuaded to try Dr. Taylor's Brain Food and Nerve Restorer. My nerves became invigorated and strengthened, my tired brain and debilitated body received new life, my memory returned and it brought such sunshine happiness and health to me that I am forced through gratitude to add this unsolicited testimonial for the benefit of the thousands who are sufferers from shattered nerves and exhausted energies.

MALLALIEU CHAPEL.—On last Tuesday evening the stewardesses presented the pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright, a purse of $7.70, and received, of course, his sincere thanks. The love feast was a meeting of great interest. Presiding Elders J. F. Marshall and J. W. Turner of the Baton Rouge District were present; also Revs. John McKee and D. M. Seals. Sunday morning Presiding Elder Marshall preached. Rev. W. F. Waters addressed the Sunday school at its usual hour and preached at night.

MALDEN CHAPEL.—A grand Tribe meeting was held in this church Sunday, August 27, the following pastors and local preachers participating: Revs. T. J. Johnson, H. Taylor, Bros. H. Zeno, R. Jennings and Rev. J. F. Marshall, presiding elder. Mallalieu Chapel adopts this method of thanking them for the valuable service rendered. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Mamie Francis, a Sunday-school teacher in this church, for her maiden effort along this line. The tribes led by the following captains reported: Mamie Francis, $7.50; Mrs. Florence Crunby, $6.00; Mrs. R. Armston, $5.00; A. Anderson, $5.00; R. Lindsay, $5.00; Mrs. C. Fields, $1.00; Mrs. O. Perry, $1.00. Total day's collection, $31.25. Rev. Jno. A. Lindsay, pastor.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ALLIANCE.

Notice is hereby given to the members of the Young People's Sunday Alliance that the next meeting will be held at St. James A. M. E. Church, 218 S. Roman street, on Wednesday night, Sept. 13th, at 8 p. m.

We cordially invite all pastors and superintendents and lay-workers of all denominations doing Christian work among our people to associate themselves with this good movement.

The objects of the Alliance are to take a census of our people who attend church service; to persuade all non-church goers to attend some church and to urge a more general observance of the Sabbath Day.

By order of the Alliance.

REV. T. J. JOHNSON, President.
N. W. GREEN, Secretary.
P. M. BURKE, Asst. Secretary.

The American farmer is waking up to his strength. He is determined that no longer the price of his products shall be fixed by his speculators, but they have combined to hold the cotton crop for the minimum price of eleven cents. Why shouldn't the man who makes the crop and knows its cost determine the selling price?

A Negro was lynched in Rankin county, Mississippi, eleven miles from the town of Brandon. The jury's verdict was that he came to his death at the hands of unknown parties. The cause of the lynching is unknown. Was there any real cause? Up to date there have been sixteen lynchings in Mississippi since January. Only one was for criminal assault; four for attempted assault.

For twenty-five years Negroes have had representation in the town council of Huntsville, Ala., but the disfranchisement amendments are enforced and Negroes no longer enjoy this representation. Free from the embarrassing presence of the Negro councilmen, the council of Huntsville proceeded forthwith to reduce the salaries of the principals of the Negro schools from $75.00 to $40.00 per month. The man who has no representation will suffer this disadvantage every time.

The United States is reaping some fruits of the recent peace treaty. For some years Russia had levied higher duties on certain American products than was levied on the same articles from other countries. Recently the Czar has informed President Roosevelt that he is pleased to order the discontinuance of the "levying of so much higher duties on American products, in order that henceforth American manufactures should pay the same duties as imports from other countries." This is one of the indirect fruits of peace. It is said that boycotting in Shanghai is waning, China realizing that it's a great thing to be on good terms with the great American republic.

The signing of the treaty at Portsmouth does not appear to have brought peace altogether, for there was a skirmish between the opposing armies as late as Saturday, in which Russia lost forty killed. But the most serious discord comes from Japan, where Christian churches and school houses have been destroyed and other demonstrations, showing that the popular mind of Japan is not pleased with the terms of peace. It is said that Japan to-day is a bankrupt by peace and that the people are disappointed that there are no funds to reimburse the internal loans and to pension the soldiers. It is claimed that the outbreak is not anti-foreign nor anti-Christian. It is, nevertheless, a very serious matter and of great concern to the Christian church, for if the revolution becomes anti-foreign in its spirit the Christianization of Japan will be retarded for many years.

A RIGHTEOUS DEATH

"It is impossible to follow God and chase the devil," was the laconic and yet very comprehensive statement made by the proprietor of the Subway Tavern, New York City, which closed its doors recently. It will be remembered that this tavern was blessed by Bishop Potter at its opening. It has failed. Utterly failed as a reformation of the saloon. Whiskey and religion don't mix; they never did, they never can. They are diametrically opposed to each other. The saloon, of whatever type, fosters crime, destroys the home, robs man of self-respect, undermines society. The religion of Jesus Christ stands for all that's good and ennobling. The saloon and the church cannot join hands, even tho the ceremony be performed by a Protestant Episcopal Bishop. The experiment has failed and it is a good thing that it has. The New York Sun, in commenting upon Bishop Potter's idea, claiming that it is impracticable, says:

"The notion that under any circumstances or with any sort of surroundings a rumshop can be made other than it is, a place in which to get a drink and wholly removed from the possibility of any religious association and influence, provoked only amusement among people accustomed to such places, however seriously it may have appealed to the fancy of sentimental and whimsical philanthropists. If a rumship was a religious institution the proper place for it would be in a church as a feature of evangelism."

The Subway Tavern is dead. No death was ever more appropriate and just. May this be the prophecy of the death of all other saloons.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF NEW ORLEANS

In a recent issue of the Picayune writing up the public schools of this city, Prof. Nicholas Bauer, Assistant Superintendent of City Schools, brings to light certain facts concerning the colored schools. There has been a notable decrease in attendance. Eighteen years ago the enrollment of the colored children of the city schools was 4,817; last year it was 4.558, a decrease of 259, while the enrollment of the white pupils during the same period has increased 10,297. After giving other facts concerning the decrease Prof. Bauer says: "These facts clearly indicate that the present plan of work in the colored schools does not appeal to and satisfy the needs of the colored population. A change is necessary."

There ought to be a change in the plans of our colored schools. The reason for the decrease in attendance may not be apparent, indeed, we are at a loss for a reason that seems to us altogether tenable. But everything is done to make the colored schools of New Orleans non-attractive to the patrons. New Orleans has less pride in its colored schools than any other city in the South. Some of the smaller towns could furnish this great city a splendid example. Does the city of New Orleans really mean the education of the Negro, or does it mean merely to do enough so that it may be said something is being done? Does not the city's policy on Negro education tend to discourage the Negro youth? There is a lack of enthusiasm for education among Negroes is apparent. But whose fault is it? What a system of education New Orleans offers the Negro! The great city proposes to fit its large Negro population for citizenship by giving them a course leading thro the fifth grade. The fifth grade! that's all the greatest city in the South can offer one-third of its citizens. This fact itself, on general principles, would discourage education. This is dangerously near no education at all.

What does it matter if one of our largest schools is located in a lewd district? The city had reason for the selling of this building, but continues to rent it. What inconsistency! May be the city needed money, hence the building was sold. What does it matter if the best school building provided for the colored children remains in ashes. It was given years ago by a Negro whose benefactions reached half a million dollars, most of which went not for his own people, but for others. What does it matter if the principals' salaries are reduced, the principals getting but little more than a train porter can pick up?

The colored schools of New Orleans need life begotten of enthusiasm for education. The parents themselves need to be aroused to the importance of education and the danger or ignorance. The teachers themselves can help in this matter. It is their duty. The great city of New Orleans needs to rise to its strength to the opportunity and do the patriotic service of taking the foremost lead in the direction of the education of the 90,000 Negroes within its borders.

A PRINCELY LAYMAN

Mr. Frederick Hastings Rindge passed to his reward suddenly August 27th, at Yreka, Southern California. Mr. Rindge was a native of Massachusetts, having been born in Cambridge December 21st, 1857, but moved to California on account of his health. He was a remarkable man, earnest and zealous in the Master's work. He leaves a fortune which is estimated at $20,000,000, although prior to his death he had given very liberally and largely for various civil and religious purposes. He was extremely modest in his giving. Some years ago he gave $25,000 for the prosecution of Sunday school work among the colored people in the South, and yet he objected to his name being made public with the gift. He gave to his native city $100,000 for a library building and an equal amount for a Manual Training School. He gave also $225,000 for a City Hall; $49,000 to Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, and $10,000 to the Young Men's Christian Association.

He requested that none of the structures to which he had donated be named for him, but de-

The Native Problem

By Rev. J. H. Reed, D. D. Vice-President College of West Africa.

Just at this time, the most prominent question among the various governments owning territory in Africa is what is known as the "Native Question." This is a problem as to what part the natives shall take in the government of the Protectorates of English, German and French Colonies. It is a time when traders by the thousands are pouring into these possessions, thus making it more difficult for missionary enterprise and aggressiveness. These governments are sending into the territory a hundred traders for every one missionary sent out by the Protestant churches of all denominations. It verifies the Master's declaration that "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." Thus the natives are being merchandized rather than Christianized. But in order to redeem Africa and turn back this tide of materialistic onset that sweeps over the Continent, the Church must awake to the duty of the hour and give our missionary Bishops the world-wide command to "go forward" and plant mission stations over which shall float the banner of Jesus and the cross. We cannot measure the possibilities of this mighty field by dollars and cents, but rather by the eternal destiny of two hundred million immortal souls. This vast field needs workers. Not inexperienced adventurers who go for the novelty of world sight-seeing, but men and women from our home field who have stood behind the guns in mighty battles for Christ, and heard the Macedonian cry: Come over and help us. Such men, obedient to the heavenly wisdom, will tell mightily for God and the race in Africa.

It seems almost preposterous to say that there are Racial Difficultics in a country of multiplied millions of blacks. This is nevertheless true. It must be remembered that the entire Continent, with the exception of Liberia, is owned by the English, French, German and Spanish governments. These different nations are confronted with the same problem of self-government for the natives, to which reference was made above, as that which taxes the best American statesmanship touching the distant possessions of the United States. Here is the real battle ground upon which the redemption of Africa must and will be fought. Some racial difficulties have alraedy arisen concerning missionary operations in South Africa. From this break between missionaries and government officials under the English Protectorates, it seems that henceforth mission workers must be subject to the government in this section. Should this obtain in South Africa, it would doubtless be the rule adopted by all other nationalities in their various Protectorates. Thus one can very readily see the hindrances to all missionary enterprise under such a system. It would put the church under the constant surveillance and control of the state, practically developing a state religion, a thing so objectionable to Protestant Christianity.

This question arose out of the oft-repeated dictum on this Continent: "Africa for the Africans," thereby intensifying the racial affinity between the whites of the colonies as well as bringing about racial antipathy between the native blacks and the European whites. A correspondent of The African World, the leading magazine of African thought, published at London, writing on "The Black Man's Limitations," in April number, page 480, speaks as follows:

"Wherever the black race has been left to govern itself, ostensibly on civilized lines—whether in Hayti, San Domingo, or Liberia—the result has been discouraging to the last degree. It has shown the Negro to be utterly incapable of self-government, as the white man understands it, and has provided an unmistakable warning against any attempt at experimenting with self-government for the natives in our West Coast, or any other colonies. * * * They will be protected from oppression and enabled to enjoy the fullest intellectual, religious, commercial and industrial freedom; but they cannot and will not be allowed to govern." The above remarks will not sound strange to the American Negro, but they really seem to be the voice of race prejudice crying in the wilderness when coming from this "Dark Continent."

How widespread is this sentiment remains to be seen through subsequent events. It indicates, however, the trend of colonial thought and clearly sets forth the truth of racial difficulties. This is simply one of the mighty revolutionary movements now going on upon this Continent. Here are the nataives hemmed in by surrounding and contiguous nationalities who own the virgin soil with all of the abundant natural resources which must be developed in God's time and providence. This presents another fact that the Anglo-Saxon races have been given another opportunity to work out the Divine will in the development of the darker races of the world. In the same magazine above mentioned, page 418, is an editorial under the caption, "South African Natives and Land." This is an editorial upon a recent judgment rendered by the Transvaal High Court of Pretoria, a ruling which grants the natives to purchase and hold land the same as the white man. Upon this judgment the editor writes as follows: "At first sight this may seem fair enough. It may be argued with some show of reason that a man, whether white or black, is surely entitled to obtain and hold whatever he can come by honestly, and that if a native can pay his way he has as much right as the white man to spend his money as, and on what, he pleases whether it be on land, or cattle, or a loaf of bread. But those who are acquainted with the native and the land tenure system in South Africa know the practical objections to this theory. To give the native the right to buy whatever land he pleases does not create a condition of equality between him and the white man, it places the white man distinctly at a disadvantage, because while it throws the whole of South Africa open to the native for purchasing purposes, it leaves the white man still under the disability of not being able to touch an acre of some of the finest agricultural land in the country. * * If this condition of things is to be preserved, common fairness demands that the white man in his legitimate territory should be safeguarded from the encroachments of the natives."

Here is a problem involving rights of two distinct peoples—a question of racial possessions. To know the history of territorial acquisitions is to realize what mighty transformations, adjustments and readjustments must take place before a definite solution can be reached in this land problem.

In the final analysis, all of these things have their influence upon missionary work in Africa. The establishment of permanent systems of government by these European nationalities upon a basis that will preserve their rights in preempted territory will bring about a series of conflicting international interests that will hinder greatly in the Christian civilization of the natives. But God rules and holds the future destiny of this mighty continent in the plan and purposes of His Allwise providences. While these discussions and counter-discussions agitate the public mind, they forecast the coming of Christ's Kingdom in fulfilment of prophecy: "I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possessions."

From point of natural resources Africa is without contradiction the richest continent that lifts its head above the sea. Her vast wealth lies sleeping beneath the swift heels of the Aborigines. Thousands of coolies are being transported into the mining regions. The "Gold Coast" is occupied by European capitalists. The twelfth annual report of the "Randfontein Gold Mining Company" showed that this company alone owned property, machinery plants, live stock, etc., to the amount of £8,654,457, equivalent in U. S. currency to $41,541,393.60. This is only one of the industries. The finest granite in the world simply remains hoary and moss covered awaiting the sons of industry who must come to build up a system of modern public improvements. African forests abound with the best wood on the globe. Saw mills and tramways cry to be put into operation. Butter nuts, cocoanuts, bananas, guava, paupau, bread fruit, palm oil, palm butter, are some of the naturai productions. Here is the land of promise—a wasted continent—where the future religious, moral, social, industrial, educational and political civilization of two hundred millions of the Hamitic race is to be worked out. Whose work is this? Shall it be left to adventurers and explorers who seek self-honor rather than the redemption of these millions? No! A thousand times no! The clock of God strikes the hour! These commotions among the nations are but the upheavals which usually precede mighty formations of social, civil and political order. Who knows but that the American Negro has come to the Kingdom for such a time as this. There is to be an African civilization. It must come by the very nature of things on the continent. It seems that God has held in reserve this fruitful land as the arena upon which the darker races can work out a racial destiny in the complete development of their highest possibilities. This is evident despite the fact that European nations hold an entire continental protectorate.

What then is the relation of the American Negro to this continent? This is a question that must be answered by sober judgment rather than rash passion. First of all, every wholesale scheme of emigration at this time is a delusion. Africa is not ready to receive the ten million Negro population of America, nor are these ten millions prepared for Africa. The imperative need at present is a class of pioneers who will come fully prepared financially, morally and religiously, to develop the wasted industrial resources of the country. Men and women of the hardy Huguenot, Cavillier and Puritan type, who laid the foundation of American civilization. The vast jungles are to be penetrated by the pioneer settler. Hence there should come the best and most skilled farmers, mechanics, artisans and handicraftsmen to fell the forests, cut roadways, build modern villages, construct bridges, and make the waste desert blossom as the rose. There should come the best physicians backed by strong accumulated capital in the home land, who can study carefully the many tropical diseases and by their skilled practice, decrease the enormous death rate of helpless victims, thus rendering the truest missionary service. The best pharmacists should appear upon the scene in order that carefully compounded prescriptions can be filled in the treatment of tropical diseases. In fact, Africa needs the best American Negro. Nothing can be accomplished by the wild goose chase of seeking freedom without toil.

Here the race question must be solved. The race is not in America but in Africa. When the status of these millions has been determined then also will have been the solution of the problem of that small fraction in America. But we must be sure without any high sounding, oft repeated phraseology that this continent, in God's own time, is to be the future home of the Negro race. He is adapted to the climate; he is indigenous to the soil; he has here plenty of room where he can reach out and mould a new Africa. The European must always find his habitat in the temperate zones; Western civilizataion in its Anglo-Saxon aggressiveness and racial conflicts will never assimilate the black man as a political factor, nor stop to consider his sociological development as worthy of notice in national life. There can never be any special reservation distinctly prepared for the American Negro similar to that of the American Indian, who has died out. The Negro is a prolific race; he must either be absorbed by amalgation, corrupted to the core by racial miscegenation or eliminated as a whole from the body politic. The latter seems evident. What then? Let the pioneers stem the flood and lay the corner stone of African civilization broad and deep upon the principles of Jesus and the Cross. The scheme of Providence is working. The transportation of twenty blacks to the West means the retransportation of millions for God and home and fatherland in the centuries yet to come. Just as "The ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads," so the exiled remnant of the Hamitic race shall return and come to

The Model Sermon

By Rev I H Fulton

The first thing that is necessary in order to have a model sermon is a model preacher, a model man. A man whom God has called, to be His messenger, "For how can he preach except he be sent?"

The model sermon is God's message to the people. God will not send His message by unworthy messengers. He chooses His own messengers, and gives them special preparation to carry the message. The true messenger carries the message just as he receives it from God. He will not seek to add to, nor take from, the message; nor will he undertake to apologize for the sharp rebukes and promised judgments it contains. There are false messengers to-day, as in all other ages of the world's history. But the presence of the false establishes the existence of the true. The man who preaches for loaves and fishes, or because he is too lazy to make a living otherwise, may preach well, may carry the masses with him for a time; but he cannot deliver a model sermon, for a model sermon is God's message to the people.

The homiletical construction, the rhetorical dress, the logical deductions of a sermon cannot make it ideal. It is the fact that God sent the message through a qualified messenger that makes it a model. We believe that a call to the ministry is a call to preparation. The preparation must be spiritual and literary. In short, a model sermon can only be preached by the called minister, who prepares himself for the work. While the spiritual preparation is the more important, we nevertheless must put emphasis on the literary. The literary preparation is everywhere implied. While we are to "search the Scriptures," we must search the spelling book before we will be able to search much else. God gives the messenger food for thought, and inspiration, but does not furnish the dress for the thoughts. There are some things that God does for man, and some things that man must do for himself. For a sermon to be a model it must be God's word clothed in fairly good English in order that it will reach the people.

This is a day of criticism, and many times the message is weakened by the literary unpreparedness of the messenger. The model sermon must leave little room for just criticism. It must be couched in language that will bear inspection.

Again, the thoughts must must be clearly put and earnestly impressed, that the people can remember, and, if desired, repreach the sermon.

The model sermon of to-day must not be too long. It is true that in other days long sermons were well received, but to-day habitually long sermons hinder the cause. The average preacher who persists in preaching one hour and a half will gradually lose his congregation, until there will be but few left, and they will be sleeping. The model sermon ought to range between 30 and 45 minutes, and by all means ought the preacher begin on time.

The model sermon is not a repetition of words, and thundering voice, but rather the preacher who must himself be a model seeks to be himself in his delivery, and stops when he gets through.

The model sermon has but one conclusion. One writer has said that "The conclusion is the thing for which the sermon is made." Granting this to be true, the model sermon can have but one conclusion. No preacher ought undertake to conclude but once, for when he reaches his second conclusion he generally leaves his hearers behind. The model sermon does not seek to magnify science, nor the preacher, but its one aim is to lift up Jesus as the Savior of the world. There are sermons that have little of Jesus in them, but the model sermon is fraught with Jesus from start to finish. It is built in accordance with the views expressed by Paul when he said: "For I am determined to know nothing among you, save Jesus and Him crucified."

It is Jesus in every sermon that makes it valuable. Jesus said: "Without Me ye can do nothing."

The man who undertakes to preach without having Jesus in his heart, Jesus in his life, and Jesus in his sermon, is in a worse fix than a ship without a rudder, or a bird without wings; for he is sinfully crippled.

Last but not least the model sermon must contain comfort for God's people. God commanded the prophets, saying: "Comfort ye my people. Say ye to the righteous it shall be well with him." The people have heavy burdens to bear. They are troubled on every hand. They are misjudged, and their rights are taken from them on every hand. Sorrows are heaped upon them. Death is slaying their loved ones on one hand, and the penitentiaries and chain-gangs on the other. Sometimes the battles are so hard that some are ready to give up in despair. Let God's true ministers give comfort to His people. Tell them that death does not end all, but that "beyond this vale of tears there is a life above unmeasured by the flight of years and all that life is love."

Tell them that their captain is always present, even when He is not visible, and that victory is sure.

"Right forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne, but the scaffold sways the future, and behind the grim unknown standeth God within the shadows, keeping watch above His own."

The Liquor Traffic

By Rev. J. A. Bray, D. D.

"A covenant with death and an agreement with hell," is a mild description of the iniquitous "rum trade" which has so silently pushed its way into almost every community of our country and which holds in a stupor the conscience of the nation. Its strength is not known until an effort is made in some town or city to dislodge the dreadful beast. Then it becomes a roaring lion, threatening destruction to its disturbers. Its chief strength comes from the fact that it has lulled the conscience of public sentiment to sleep with its revenue—its blood money, the price of domestic happiness, the cost of virtue, the price of moral character. The argument of revenue has closed the preacher's lips, has caused the officer of the law to wink at its vices, has made its advocates bold and daring.

This iniquitous trade is one of the most dreadful social evils of our nation. It is debauching the flower of our manhood, corrupting our purest maidens, creeping in and laying hold upon our most respected society.

The following statistics will make their own plea and address themselves to the conscience of the church.

One year's record of the "rum traffic" in the United States, a Christian nation:

Amount paid for liquor by consumers	$1,000,000,000
Value of grain destroyed	33,497,644
Cost of crimes, insanity, pauperism due to rum traffic	137,762,220
Loss of production in labor	1,106,250,000
Shortened lives	147,000,000
Misdirected work	354,000,000
Total	$2,678,504,864

Revenue from rum traffic for one year—

Internal revenue	107,695,910
Customs	9,518,081
State and local revenue	24,784,496
Total	$142,000,487
Net loss in money to the nation as a result of the liquor traffic	$2,536,504,377

In addition to this financial consideration there are 1,000,000 men engaged in the rum traffic; there are 60,000 that die annually as a result of strong drink. It is estimated that 5,000,000 persons are deprived of labor by being in prison, in insane asylums, hospitals, as a result of strong drink.

If the members of the Christian Church will cease all patronage of rum shops and will lend their influence against them (1) by refusing to vote the saloon ticket, or for any officer who will support saloons, (2) by refraining from the use of liquor, (3) by pushing an active campaign against the cursed traffic, in less than twelve months more than 25 per cent of the now 200,000 saloons that are open doors to hell for our youth will be closed.

There is something beyond the philosophies in the light, in the grass blades, the leaf, the grasshopper, the sparrow on the wall. Some day the great and beautiful thought which hovers on the confines of the mind will at last alight. In that is hope, the whole sky is full of abounding hope—something beyond the books that is consolation.—Richard Jeffries.

To love is better than to be great, it is better than to be refined, it is better than to be wise. Love takes precedence of all prophecy, of every kind of knowledge, and of the gift of tongues; love is higher than hope or faith, and is the very royalty of God.—Selected.

What power there is in genuine Christian enthusiasm! Its root is faith; its vital sap is consecration; its nourishing soil and atmosphere are the living Word of God and the breath of prayer. THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Release

Out of myself, Lord!
From the narrowing prison,
The grave-clothes bound on hand and foot and knee,
Up to that life and light where Thou art risen,
Call me, and set me free.

Out of myself, Lord!
From the restless seeking,
The babel of earth's care and fret and loss,
Into the hush where love alone is speaking—
The silence of the cross.

Out of myself, Lord!
From life's tangled story,
The doubts unsolved, the fears unanswered still,
Into the clear white morning of Thy glory,
The peace which is Thy will.

Out of myself, Lord!
What shall yet befall me
I ask no more; enough that Thou art mine.
Turn but Thy face, O Son of God! and call me
To lose my life in Thine.

Negative Religion

It is strange how many are content to bring themselves up to the line of usefulness and then stop. "I do no harm," is a familiar expression to every Christian worker. These dear, good-for-nothing people ought to wake up and discover that they live in a positive world. Let us see how their doctrine works in other trades. The book agent loafs from Monday morning till Saturday night, and then sends in his bill because he has done no harm. The lawyer talks at random about fifty things, and claims a fee because he has done his client no harm. The man who would not enlist applies for a pension on the ground that he did his country no harm. Negative business is all right as far as it goes, but it is only one side of the slate. If our negative religion friend were a large employer, and a stranger should come to him seeking a position in which he would merely "do no harm," he would consider the applicant a fit subject for the insane asylum. In brief, the negative business man is a fool; it is hard to tell whether the negative religion man knows enough to catalogue himself correctly.—The Religious Telescope.

A Sunshine Song

Would you make some saddened heart
Just a little lighter?
Would you make some burdened life
Just a little brighter?
Drop a word of hope and cheer;
Set the echoes ringing
With your notes of love and joy,
As you go a-singing.

Would you smooth the rugged path
Down along life's highway?
Would you plant the rose of faith
In some lonely byway?
Just a deed of kindness done
Clears the path before us,
And the lilies of God's love
Bloom and blossom o'er us.

Just a little word of cheer
Lightens every duty;
Just a smile will often show
Faces wreathed in beauty.
Sprinkle sunshine as you go,
Comfort the distressing,
And your own reward will be Heaven's choicest blessing.

A Crisis in Our Lives

REV. JESSE BOWMAN YOUNG.

The hour of any striking and peculiar providence in your life may be reckoned as a special time, when, according to the text, God calls on you to bestir yourself.

Your life may go on for months at a smooth jog trot. Nothing startling may occur; all things move evenly, monotonously, without a jar. You become, in scriptural language, settled on your lees, or, to change the figure, at ease in Zion. Smooth sailing, quiet seas, no storms, "all quiet along the Potomac" of your life—when suddenly you are roused by the storm. Financial loss or entanglements embarrass you; one of your mental faculties, or some of your physical powers, which you fancied were cast-iron, threaten to give way; sickness lays you low, and gives you a chance to see how empty and hollow some of the things are which you thought were worth so much; one that you loved better than life is smitten down by your side, and like a bird with broken wing you flutter, bleeding, crippled, praying for death, on the earth by the edge of a new-made grave—a blow of some kind comes upon you that is grievous to bear, under whose weight you stagger to and fro; an arrow from the Almighty transfixes you, and the hurt takes hold of your very soul. An alliance is formed or planned, in which your interests and your very life are interwoven. A friendship is made that binds you in sympathy to a kindred spirit, or bonds are broken that almost wrench your soul in twain in the agony of separation. A child is born into your home, or one is transplanted to the heavenly home. These are some of the occasions when you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the mulberry trees; some of the times when God, by his providences, commands you to bestir yourself.

Such events are exigent and opportune moments. Each one of them is a crisis in your history. Brood not over your losses; despond not at your adversities; rebel not in view of your bereavements; lose not courage in the hour of danger and trial, but rather bestir yourself into new activity. God knows just what you need, how much you can bear, and what path to lead you through. His providence is no hit or miss, random, chaotic operation. He can make all things work together for your good, if you trust Him. In these critical hours of your life realize that it is God who is guiding, overruling, interposing, governing, in your soul. By these startling, revolutionizing, overturning operations He is sounding an alarm, making signals of danger which you are to heed.—From "The Hungry Christ."

At Last

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

When on my day of life the night is falling,
And in the winds from unsunned spaces blown
I hear far voices out of darkness calling
My feet to paths unknown,

Thou who hast made my home of life so pleasant,
Leave not its tenant when its walls decay;
O Love Divine, O Helper ever present,
Be thou my strength and stay.

Be near me when all else is from me drifting—
Earth, sky, home's pictures, days of shade and shine,
And kindly faces to my own uplifting
The love which answers mine.

I have but thee, my Father; let thy Spirit
Be with me then to comfort and uphold;
No gate of pearl, no branch of palm, I merit,
Nor street of shining gold.

Suffice it if—my good and ill unreckoned,
And both forgiven through thy unbounding grace—
I find myself by hands familiar beckoned
Unto my fitting place,

Some humble door among thy many mansions,
Some sheltering shade where sin and striving cease,
And flows forever through heaven's green expansions
The river of thy peace.

There, from the music round about me stealing,
I fain would learn the new and holy song,
And find at last beneath thy trees of healing
The life for which I long.

Postal Card Sermon

By REV. B. F. WITHERSPOON, D. D.

Text—Matt. 21:22. Theme—The Power of Prayer. (4.)

It is not the arithmetic of prayers as to the number of them; nor the influence of prayers as to their rhetorical form; nor the length of prayers as to their geometrical arrangement; nor the sweetness of prayers as to the musical sound of them; nor the argumentative force of prayers as to the logic of them, which make them powerful and mighty in the sight of God, and in the help of man, but it is the use of prayer—believing prayer—which does the work, and prevails with God in man's behalf. Prayer is powerful in use, and is of divine authority and is appointed by God to lift man out of moral and spiritual weakness into the power and strength of God. Abel used prayer in his sacrifices to God, and by it was made able to offer unto Jehovah a more excellent sacrifice than Cain. By prayer Enoch walked with God three hundred years as a friend walketh with another, and by it was so transformed as to be translated that he should not see death. By prayer, when the world was grossly wicked and lost from God, Noah found God, obtained His favor, received from Him instruction how to build the ark, enter it, save himself, his wife, his three sons, their wives, to sail through the watery world of death to the dry land of life, where he lived three hundred and fifty years after all the men were dead who prayed not, believing, being overwhelmed by the awful catastrophe which swept away all living creatures which breathed the breath of life, as a besom from the face of the earth. Prayer served Abraham, "the father of the faithful," in the place of a standing army among strangers of warlike nature and cruel disposition, in those foreign lands where he wandered alone for many years. By prayer he was preserved in peace and plenty when Lot was environed, vexed, harrassed, and sorely grieved by the wicked Sodomites. Prayer obtained for him Isaac back from the dead, and the most honorable titles ever given to man on earth, "The friend of God" and "the father of the faithful." By prayer Abraham saved the life of Lot, arrested the chariot of the destroying angel with its destructive load of brimstone and fire, caused Him to make known to himself the secret will and fixed determination of God to burn up, to utterly demolish, and eternally erase from the face of the earth Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim. By prayer Jacob received power to wrestle with God, to prevail as a prince with Jehovah and with man, to appease and forever stay the wrath and indignation of Esau. Jacob by prayer delayed the onward approach of death long enough for him to worship God, "leaning upon the top of his staff," "while he blessed both the sons of Joseph" in the name of the Angel which had redeemed him from all evil.

Young Friends

Couldn't Have the Horses

Much of George Washington's firm strength of character was due to his splendid ancestry, as the following little anecdote will testify:

While reconnoitering in Westmoreland county, Va., one of General Washington's officers chanced upon a fine team of horses driven before a plough by a slave. Finer animals he had never seen. When his eyes had feasted on their beauty he cried to the driver:

"Hello, good fellow! I must have those horses. They are just such animals as I have been looking for."

The black man grinned, rolled up the whites of his eyes, put the lash to the horses' flanks and turned up another furrow in the rich soil. The officer waited until he had finished the row; then, throwing back his cavalier cloak, the ensign of rank dazzled the slave's eyes:

"Better see missis! Better see missis!" he cried, waving his hand to the south, where, above the cedar growth, rose the towers of a fine old Virginia mansion. The officer turned up the carriage road and soon was rapping the great brass knocker of the front door. Quick the door swung upon its ponderous hinges and a grave, majestic-looking woman confronted the visitor with an air of inquiry.

"Madame," said the officer, doffing his cap and overcome by her dignity, "I have come to claim your horses in the name of the government."

"My horses?" said she, bending upon him a pair of eyes born to command. "Sir, you cannot have them. My crops are out and I need my horses in the field."

"I am sorry," said the officer, "but I must have them, madame. Such are the orders of my chief."

"Your chief? Who is your chief, pray?" she demanded with restrained warmth.

'The commander of the American army, General George Washington," replied the other, squaring his shoulders and swelling with pride. A smile of triumph softened the sternness of the woman's handsome features. "Tell George Washington," said she, "that his mother says he cannot have her horses."

With an humble apology, the officer turned away, convinced that he had found the source of his chief's decision and self-command.

And did Washington order his officer to return and make his mother give up her horses? No; he listened to the report in silence, then, with one of his rare smiles, he bowed his head.

An exchange tells the story of a poor workingman who told his wife, on awakening one morning, a curious dream which he had during the night. He dreamed that he saw coming toward him, in order, four rats. The first one was very fat, and was followed by two lean rats, the rear rat being blind. The dreamer was greatly perplexed as to what evil might follow, as it had been understood that to dream of rats denoted calamity. He appealed to his wife concerning this, but she, poor woman, could not help him. His son, who heard his father tell the story, volunteered to be the interpreter. "The fat rat," said he, "is the man who keeps the saloon you go to so often; the two lean rats are my mother and me; and the blind rat, father, is yourself."

That boy was a modern Joseph in the interpretation of dreams.—Herald and Presbyter.

New Presiding Elders

About two years ago at the session of the North Carolina Conference presided over by Bishop Joyce, the Raleigh district was re-established. At the last session of that Conference Rev. Hugh L. Ashe was appointed to lead the forces on this district, succeeding Rev. J. P. Franklin. Presiding Elder Ashe has been in the saddle almost a year and reports to date show large advances on all lines and the district in good spirit and fine working order. Brother Ashe has the genuine elements of leadership. He is honest and frank with his brethren and he has therefore their confidence. He is good in debate and a splendid preacher. He was born in Rockingham county, North Carolina, and attended district and private schools when a boy. He spent several years as a student at Bennett College. He joined the North Carolina Conference in 1895 and served successfully several of the important charges. He entered Gammon Theological Seminary in 1900 and graduated in 1903. At the following Conference he was appointed to Asheville, a charge he had served before he entered the Seminary. He was received most heartily by all the people. To him much credit is due for the fine new church that is now nearing completion at Asheville.

Rev. H. L. Ashe

The new presiding elder of the Anniston District succeeding Rev. Dr. E. M. Jones is Rev. J. W. Thomas, who was appointed by Bishop Goodsell at the last session of the Central Alabama Conference. Bro. Thomas is a native of South Carolina, being born near Bennettsville. He entered Clark University and Gammon Theological Seminary in 1888, completing his Theological course in 1895. He was assigned at once to our St. Paul Church in Pensacola, Fla. At this place he has more than doubled the membership and renovated and beautified the church. His next appointment was Brewton and Pollard; from thence to Decatur, and on to Anniston; from this place he was assigned to Gadsden. The district is doing well under his administration. He expects to make advances along all benevolent lines. The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE receives special attention at the hands of Elder Thomas. Equipped by training, consecrated in life, Elder Thomas has before him a brilliant future.

EDUCATIONAL

The Alexandria Academy

To the presiding elder, pastor and members of the Alexandria District of the Louisiana Conference:

The Freedman Aid has appointed me to take charge of its work on that district. I cannot, on account of the yellow fever conditions, get on the field now, but as soon as conditions will allow I shall be at my post. Now, brethren, this scholastic year promises to be the greatest in the history of the institution, not because I am at its head, but because the great society in whose hands it is promises to make larger appropriations than formerly. I mean to make this schooi equal others of academic grade.

There will be much work to do, money to be raised, and a building to be erected. Let each member on the district catch the idea of doing more than ever for the school.

There is no force in the church that builds and Christianizes more than education. It cuts down the "Forests of Ignorance," levels the mountains, builds bridges over the deep chasms and paves the way for civilization to march. This institution will be felt throughout the district and state. Dr. Mason said that "this is a large and great field for usefulness and labor." We have arranged to open the first Monday in October. Should the "yellow fever" conditions not allow, then we will open when we can. Let each pastor and every other member of district hustle up new students and money for the purpose of putting into effect the proposed improvements at this point. I shall be more definite when I am on the field about matters. Every church may look for me. I am coming to see you on behalf of the school.

King Home

When nearly twenty-five years ago the Woman's Home Missionary Society established industrial homes for the colored girls of the South, she set before them an open door for larger service. Hundreds and thousands of young women have entered these doors and are to-day wielding a sickle in earth's harvest field, and yet how few are the laborers! Never was there such an imperative call for trained women—trained as dressmakers, milliners, teachers and home-keepers. To all wishing to equip themselves for a life of real usefulness we ask you to consider the advantages offered by King Home, one of these schools, situated at Marshall, Texas, and affiliated with Wiley University, a Freedmen's Aid school. The aim of our work is, first to give to those entering it an object-lesson of what a Christian home should be; second, to give a thorough course of training in all the sciences relating to home life.

The sewing department, so long conducted by Miss King, and now under the supervision of Miss Simmons, is so well known throughout the state that but brief mention need to be made of it. The new room completed one year ago was made more convenient last year by the addition of several glass cases for exhibiting work; a tailor iron for pressing and two drafting tables. The work system of drafting together with Indian bead and raffia work were introduced as new features.

The millinery department opened as an experiment a year ago has become a permanent part of our work. We were unable to secure a teacher until February this year, when Miss Morrison, a milliner of experience, came to us and began work at once with a class of thirty-five. The progress of the class was marked and the work so satisfactory that we were able, not only to furnish hats for the students and teachers, but to fill orders for Little Rock, Ark., Austin and Houston, Texas. Miss Morrison will spend part of the month of August in the wholesale house of St. Louis, Mo., buying our fall goods and studying designing and return to us in October fresh for work.

We are glad to announce to our readers that at the beginning of this school session a new department will be opened—Scientific Cooking. We feel we are fortunate in securing as head of this department Miss Clyde, a graduate of one of our cooking schools in the West, who is not only highly recommended as a competent instructor but an earnest Christian worker. Young women, do you not believe "The Master has come and calleth for you" to prepare for life's work?

For information write the superintendent, Miss R. T. Robertson.

The Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Fla

This famous pioneer school—the oldest school in Florida, for the colored people—will open its thirty-fifth year on Monday, Oct. 9. Last year the enrollment ran up to about 350, but this year the prospects are that the number will go beyond that mark. A fine, promising class of young men and women from all parts of Florida and Georgia are writing for accommodations in the boarding department. The president, Rev. Dr. J. T. Docking, has been spending his vacation among old friends in New England, and has been kept quite busy preaching and lecturing in the interest of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society. Dr. Docking will have the assistance of a strong and very efficient faculty and it is expected that the coming year will be one of great prosperity. Parents and pastors interested in the education of our youth can secure the new catalogue and any other information by addressing the president. Pastors in the Florida Conference are asked to call the attention of their people to the school, and invite any who wishes to enter next term to make application at once.

The Silver Anniversary Meeting

The Board of Managers of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church will hold its twenty-fourth annual meeting this year in the Central Avenue Church, Indianapolis, Indiana, October 18-25.

This meeting, celebrating a quarter of a century's labors in behalf of the Christless poor of our land, will present several features of unusual interest. Many veterans in the work are to be present to counsel and rejoice with the workers of a later day over the ever expanding work of the Society. The officers and managers of the Society, bureau secretaries, Conference secretaries, delegates from Conferences, deaconess homes, city missions and orphanages, together with a number of missionaries and deaconesses, will make up this important gathering in the interest of Christian education and the evangelization of our own land.

This Society during twenty-five years has accumulated and disbursed nearly $3,000,000, and holds property valued at $1,000,000. What has it to show for this expenditure?

It can point at this time to forty-seven Industrial Homes and Schools, including those in Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, twenty-four deaconess homes, three national training schools for missionaries and deaconesses, four city missions, two immigrant homes, four orphanages and a dozen or more mission stations in the far West. A force of about two hundred missionaries and four hundred deaconesses are engaged in the work.

For results in part, the Society can point to thousands of young women trained in the various homes who are doing noble work; tens of thousands of strangers in a strange land welcomed and helped by our immigrant missionaries, and, at a low estimate, 25,000 souls brought into the kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Thousands of children and youth each year pass through the classes of our city missions, while our orphanages are training many homeless children for useful positions in life.

The morning sessions of the convention will be largely given to the hearing of reports and the transaction of business, and will be of great interest. The afternoon and evening sessions will be given to stirring addresses on the conditions and needs of our country demanding missionary effort. Friends and well wishers of this work in all parts of our land are cordially invited to be present. Admirable arrangements have been made for the entertainment of all delegates, and visitors will be heartily welcomed and aided in securing good homes at reasonable rates.

Mrs. M. C. Allison, 2815 Southerland avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., is the chairman of the entertainment committee, to whom letters of inquiry may be addressed.

An Appeal for the Superannuate

To the Members of the Texas Conference:

After searching the records of our conference claimants and finding its number so very large, and is constantly increasing, the thought presents itself what are we going to do for our fathers, who went forward when the way was dark for Methodism, and cut down the timbers, cleared up the way and sometimes had to walk for miles without water and food, thereby establishing what now makes up the great Texas Conference.

The last session of conference at Navasota, the list of claimants was 45, the amount received from the chartered fund, $22, amount from the Book Concern dividend, $787; from Conference, $336, making a total of $1,145, just a little more than one claimant receives in some of our Eastern Conferences. We admit we cannot do as much as some of our great conferences, but we can do better than we do. Think of eleven hundred and forty-five dollars being divided among 45 claimants. Watchman, what of the night?

The resolution offered by Dr. F. Parker, touching the appointment of a corresponding secretary, to look after the conference claimants' collection was unanimously adopted by the Conference, and a secretary appointed for each district has not been carefully looked after in all of the districts and the year is swiftly gliding by. When we shall be called to answer at Clarksville December 6, what shall we say in regard to Conference claimants? Watchman, what of the night? This is one of the neediest causes in our benevolences, which should be greatly increased and this can be done without strain on our membership. The last General Conference of the M. E. Church South, which met at Dallas, Tex., May, 1902, decided to raise $5,000,000 for the superannuated preachers, widows and orphans. Up to May 4, 1905, they had, including cash in bank, notes on contributors, open subscriptions, loans secured by mortgage on real estate, appropriation by Book Committee of proceeds of Publishing House, $173,206.95.

Brethren, shall we neglect this great cause and as small as some of our assessments, come to Conference with only a part of that raised. Remember, you are growing older and some day must sit down and look to the Conference for help. Remember the teachings of our Master. "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you."

Holidays are designed for those who deserve them. A holiday is like wages for work well done; and we must work for our wages before we begin to spend them. One of the best preparations for a happy holiday is to carry into it a good conscience for good work well done. And thus it is that experienced holiday-makers work their very hardest and do their very best just before their holiday time. They have learned by many instances that nothing ruins a holiday like a bad conscience about bad work.—Alexander Whyte.

The true Christian is the true citizen, lofty of purpose, resolute in endeavor, ready for a hero's deeds, but never looking down on his task because it is cast in the day of small things; scornful of baseness, awake to his own duties as well as to his rights, following the higher law with reverence, and in this world doing all that in him lies, so that when death comes he may feel that mankind is in some degree better because he has lived.—Theodore Roosevelt.

We are apt to forget that the development of the inner life is not perfect unless it issue in such going about doing good as was the flower and fruit of our Savior's thirty years.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

By J. H. SCOTT, D. D.

Lesson Topic, September 24,

Home Missions in Mountain and Plain

Scripture Reference—Matt. 9: 35-38; Luke 9: 1-6.

The Epworth League's Board of Control has directed that the treatment of this topic shall be devoted to the interest of Church Extension.

This is essentially home mission work. The building of churches for Methodism means the permanent establishment of Christianity in the life of the nation. It means the providing of permanent places of worship, where the disciples may be instructed and where the soldiers of Christ may be drilled for defensive and aggressive warfare.

The Object. The Board of Church Extension was called into being to aid in building churches in new and destitute fields. By donations and loans this Board helps struggling congregations to house themselves and to build parsonages. The purpose is to aid churches that cost less than $10,000, including the value of the land, from the General Fund. While helping in all parts of our home field, including our insular possessions, the special sphere "for its benefactions has been the Western frontier, the South, and newer sections of rapidly growing cities and towns."

The Need. It has been well said that "Church Extension by church erection is an indispensable factor in the successful work of home or domestic missions, because it furnishes the permanent element. The missionary may do the work of calling men to repentance ever so faithfully; he may visit from house to house; he may conduct meetings in groves and halls and homes; but unless a permanent place of worship is provided, where the people may rally, where the sacrament may be celebrated, where the disciples may be instructed, and where the soldiers of the church militant may be drilled for defensive and aggressive warfare, his work will prove evanescent in character; his spreading the truth will be like salt cast into the running stream."

The field is vast and the need is great and urgent. The poor, struggling congregations of the South, both black and white, the efforts of the missionary on Western frontier, the success in gathering the foreigners within our territory, the need of church-building in the Philippines, and in Porto Rico, all call for aid from the Board of Church Extension, "To-day there are hundreds of Methodist Episcopal Church organizations," says Christianity in Earnest, "without church structures to shelter them and without altars where the sacraments may be celebrated and where penitents may be led to Christ."

Surely the collection for this cause should be increased. Let every Epworthian do his best.

The Achievements. What has already been accomplished by this society? Nearly 1,500 churches have been aided, employing nearly $8,400,000. This Board has aided in erecting or saving 3,000 churches in the bounds of our twenty colored Conferences. Without the aid furnished by the Board we could not have held our own, much less advanced as denomination. It has been from the churches thus helped Methodism has largely secured its recruits and maintained "its spiritual and numerical prestige in American Protestantism."

While in the world we are citizens of the world; it is our duty to share its joys, to take part in its sorrows, not to shrink from its difficulties, but to mix ourselves with its infinite opportunities, so that if time be short, so far from that fact lessening their dignity or importance, it infinitely increases them; since upon these depend the destinies of our eternal being.—F. W. Robertson.

Recent District Conferences

GULFPORT DISTRICT.

The Gulfport district conference convened at Mood; s Chapel, McLain, Miss., July 5. Rev. R. N. Jones, presiding elder, called to the platform Rev. J. C. Ho ston, Rev. A. M. Trotter and Rev. F. Smith, and these conducted the opening service of the first Gulfport district conference ever held in the history of Methodism. Truly it was a great meeting. The McLain people received us gladly and royally entertained us. This was their first district conference to entertain and they begged for and also prayed for the next session and voted for the same. Nearly all pastors were present and presented grand reports of their work. We were also graced with the presence of Dr. E. M. Jones, S. S. Union Field Agent, who said some very encouraging things to us along the lines of Sunday school work and especially on grading the Sabbath schools. The petition of Bishop I. B. Scott in the World Wide Mission for catechisms was fully met by Sunday schools of the Gulfport District. Too much credit cannot be given Rev. A. C. Lacy and people for such noble and untiring work in entertaining the session. Th following brethren preached to the delight of all who heard them and we were benefited: Revs. A. M. Trotter, J. C. Houston, A. D. Smith, J. E. Holmes, Dr. E. M. Jones, J. K. Comfort. Dr. W. W. Lucas, of Meridian Academy, came in Sunday and gave us one of his best and well-prepared lectures, seasoned well and received gladly. Collections, $160, with many subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Resolutions were many, and so closes the first district conference Gulfport District, Mississippi Conference, ever held. Rev. R. N. Jones is in the midst of his first term and first year and first district meeting. He worked well and pulled like a tongue steer. Our prayers are for his success.

D. R. BENTLEY.

GUTHRIE DISTRICT.

The second session of the Guthrie district conference convened in Newman Chapel, at Hennessey, O. T., July 27-30, 1905, Rev. D. G. Franklin, presiding elder, in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. Haynes, of Guthrie, O. T. The following conference officers were elected: Secretary, Rev. C. K. Brown, B. D.; statistical secretary, Rev. S. R Gipson; reporter to SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, Rev. A. W. Talbert; reporter to Central Christian Advocate, Rev. C. K. Brown; reporter to city papers, Rev. J. C. Williams.

The conference was well attended. Pastors, local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, class leaders. Sunday-school superintendents, Epworth League presidents and others made commendable reports. Amount of benevolences collected up to date, $108. Revs. J. M. Strong, pastor of First M. E. Church, city; Prof. F. F. Bailey, city; Hon. Mr. Anderson, of Guthrie, were introduced to the conference. Good and interesting papers were read by Rev. A. W. Talbert, Rev. C. K. Brown, Miss Mamie Hayes. The conference ordered the paper read by Miss Mamie Hayes sent to SOUTHWESTERN for publication. Rev. Paul Prewitt preached the introductory sermon. Excellent sermons, which the people of Hennessey will not soon forget, were preached by Rev. W. F. Smith, Rev. S. R. Gipson, Rev. H. H. Hubbard, Rev. D. G. Franklin, presiding elder; Rev A. W. Talbert, Rev. C. K. Brown, A. M., B. D.

Prof. A. J. Scales, district president, took charge of the Epworth League work of the district on Saturday. The reports showed much progress in the League work of the district. The conference adopted a resolution which recommended that all local preachers and exhorters who failed to attend the district conferences and to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, without a lawful excuse, would not have their licenses renewed. The conference and Epworth League convention elected the following places as the seat of its important meetings for 1905 and 1906: Seat of district conference in 1906, Boley, I. T.; District Epworth League convention in 1906, Purcell, I. T.; District Missionary convention in 1905, Shawnee, O. T. The following pastoral charges lead in the missionary collections and are reported in the first class rank for 1905 by the Board of Missions at New York: Guthrie, C. K. Brown, pastor; Ardmore Circuit, Paul Prewitt, pastor; Oklahoma City, S. R. Gipson, pastor; Shawnee, D. Bruce, pastor. The Rev. D. G. Franklin is a typical Methodist presiding elder, loved and honored by all in his district. The work is greatly prospering in his hands. The work in the twin territories is destined to make a strong conference in the very near future, if taken care of properly. Oklahoma City, where Rev. S. R. Gipson is pastor, is a great railroad center. Quite a number of our people live there. Our church there greatly needs the attention of the Missionary and Church Extension Boards. Brother Gipson is doing a good work here at great personal sacrifice. He should be remembered at once. Rev. J. C. Williams and his good people entertained the conference royally.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The annual session of the Epworth League met July 26, at Calvin's Chapel, on the Holly Springs Circuit, with the president, Y. W. Logan, in the chair. The Leagues were well represented and delegates enthusiastic. Excellent papers were read on the topics assigned. More than $120 was raised for Rust University. The annual sermon by Rev. W. A. Rogers, of Batesville, was impressive and well received. The welcome address by Mrs. Amanda Shipp, and the speeches by Profs. Shaw and McKissack were encouraging, elevating and inspiring. The cause of the SOUTHWESTERN was ably presented by the pastor of Holly Springs (Rev. N. R. Clay) and a goodly number of subscriptions secured. The convention and conference received a rare treat through the patriotic and inspiring speeches delvered by the Revs. R. Sewell and E. C. F. Troupe, who had lately returned from the International Epworth League Convention at Denver, Colo., and a very favorable impression was made by them concerning Epworth League work. Dr. W. C. Clay, presiding elder of the Tupelo District, was with us with his usual words of pleasantness and encouragement. The crowning service of the session was at 11 a. m., when Rev. E. F. Scarborough, of Oxford, preached, fully 1,000 persons being on the grounds. Rev. J. H. Wesley and the good people of Calvin's Chapel spared no pains in making our stay both pleasant and profitable. Three souls were added to the church and our able presiding elder, Dr. N. H. Williams, went to his home elated over the results as never before.

S. W. ROGERS.

WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The fourth annual convention of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, Little Rock Conference, convened in Taylor Chapel, Cotton Plant, July 20-23, Mrs. A. T. Strickland presiding.

The sudden death of the nephew of Mrs. W. S. Sherrill, the recording secretary, caused her absence. Mrs. Elizabeth Saxton was elected recording secretary pro tem.

Among the vistors whose presence, sermons, lectures and talks enlivened and encouraged the convention, were: Rev. Horn, of Cotton Plant; Prof. J. E. Knox, principal of Brinkley Academy; Prof. J. A. Hibbler, fraternal delegate from Baptist Young People's Union and Sunday School Convention, being held in the city at the same time; Rev. A. T. Stevens, pastor at Brinkley; Revs. J. M. Cox, D. D., president Philander Smith College; D. W. Boatner, B. D., dean of Bible School; Rev. Geo. W. Beaman, A. B., of A. M. E. Church; Rev. D. B. Harston, presiding elder of Clow District; Rev. J. Smith, of Brinkley; Rev. B. J. Griffin, presiding elder of Forrest District; Rev. W. S. Sherrill, presiding elder of Little Rock District; Rev. G. N. Johnson, pastor.

The papers read by Mrs. Saxton of Pine Bluff, Mrs. Nancy Green, Sweet Home, Dr. G. H. F. Morris, Cotton Plant, were instructive and eloquent. Rev. B. J. Griffin made the welcome address on behalf of the Forrest City District; Rev. G. N. Johnson, pastor, on behalf of Taylor Chapel; Rev. W. A. Byrd, principal of Cotton Plant Presbyterian Academy, on behalf of city churches. Their addresses were enriched with new thoughts and inspirations. The discussions were enthusiastic. The pastor and members deserve great credit for the interest taken and for the cordial hospitality with which they cared for the delegates. Five minute talks were made by each delegate. They pledged themselves to do more than ever befor for the grand society. The noon prayer services held during the convention were a spiritual uplift. All plead for a more rapid growth of the society on all lines and that God would send more women to answer the call and say, "Here am I, send me." The young people's programme rendered Friday evening by sixty voices was a rare treat. Miss Naomi Johnson and Mrs. Martha J. Williams deserve special notice for their tireless efforts. The reports from the auxiliaries by the corresponding secretary were encouraging and the outlook hopeful for large results this year. The plans to anvance the work are excellently arranged and all concerned are urged to do all they can to advance the cause.

The treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Nasmyth, could not be present. Her report showed 42 organizations and $191.30. Received in cash by the corresponding secretary at the convention: Hot Springs, $5; Sweet Home, $5; Newport, $3; Cotton Plant, $1.25; Clow, $1.55; Saratoga, $2.25; Nashville, St. Paul, $4; Woman's Home Missions, $4.20. Mrs. A. T. Strickland and Mrs. Saxton returned the fraternal greetings to the B. Y. A. and S. S. Convention. The following were elected delegates to the meeting of the Board of Managers of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, Indianapolis, Oct. 18-26: Mrs. A. T. Strickland, Mrs. G. N. Johnson, Mrs. Elizabeth Saxton, reserve, Mrs. L. B. Humphries, visitor, and Miss Annie Cox, to represent young people's work. Each auxiliary was assessed $3 on delegates' fare, to be raised without delay. Rev. J. M. Cox, D. D., preached an eloquent sermon at 3 p. m. The love-feast Sunday morning, conducted by Mrs. Martha J. Williams, was a spiritual feast. Mr. Nat Darby, a loyal Methodist, opened wide the doors of his beautifully arranged hall for a cordial reception, given in honor of the delegates and visitors. The following officers were elected: Mrs. A. T. Strickland, president; Mrs. G. N. Johnson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Hattie Cox, vice-president; recoding secretary, Mrs. Nancy Greer; treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Nasmyth; mite box secretary, Miss Delila Lemons; superintendent of young people's work, Mrs. Elizabeth Saxton. The presidents of districts, the presiding elders' wives. Each delegate went home newly inspired and promised to do a far greater work than ever. Rev. S. N. Johnson preached the closing sermon Sunday night. The next annual session will be held at St. James M. E. Church, Pine Bluff, Ark. Resolutions commending the pastor and his wife and the good people of Cotton Plant for their gracious reception of the convention were adopted.

1—All business letters should be addressed to Eaton & Mains, and all communications intended for publication to the Editor.

2—In sending matter for publication, write plainly on one side of the paper, and make your communication as short as the subject will allow.

3—When the ADVOCATE does not arrive regularly, notify us promptly.

4—Methodist pastors are our authorized agents, to receive subscriptions and collect dues for the ADVOCATE.

PRESIDING ELDERS ENDORSE

THE PLAN.

Our presiding elders are enthusiastic and hopeful of the success of the rally for 5000 new subscriptions by October 31. Letters from every conference in the connection are coming in. From time to time we will publish these expressions as they voice the feeling of not only the presiding elders but of the pastors of their districts.

DR. D. W. HAYS of the Alexandria District, Washington Conference:

"Certainly, I am in hearty accord with your plan. I believe the pastors are like-minded, and will cheerfully do all they can towards enabling you to realize your long-cherished aim. We shall endeavor to enlist the support of all our people within the bounds of the district. You will hear from us."

REV. FREEMAN PARKER, D. D., Paris District, Texas, Texas Conference:

"I heartily endorse the plan and voluntarily promise to put forth new efforts for a wider circulation. Our preachers, superintendents and presidents of Epworth Leagues should faithfully enter the present rally."

REV. A. W. McKINNEY, Montgomery District, Central Alabama Conference:

"I heartily join in the effort for self support. We must not be satisfied with anything less. It ought to be done, it can be done and with the proper effort it will be done. There will be no lagging at our end of the line."

REV. J. C. HIBBLER, Jackson District, Mississippi Conference:

"The plan to raise 5000 additional subscribers by the 31st of October is timely and necessary, if we would retain ourselves in the church with credit and respect. The Jackson District will do its share."

THE NEW ORLEANS CONVENTION

On account of the conditions now prevailing in New Orleans caused by the epidemic of yellow fever, the Open Door Emergency Commission deems it best to postpone the convention at New Orleans, planned for October 17-19, until further notice.

In behalf of the commission:

FRANK D. GAMEWELL, Executive Sec'y.

The best year in the history of the Book Room of the English Wesleyan Church is said to be the past year, the profits during this time amounted to about a quarter of a million dollars, chiefly due to the large sale of new hymnals, issued one year ago.

A new cure for consumption—the juice of raw table vegetables—is announced by the New York Post Graduate Hospital. It is stated that under this treatment eleven patients with well developed pulmonary tuberculosis have been absolutely cured and fifty other patients are improving.

PROF. H. W. McDONALD

At a recent meeting of the Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Educational Society, Prof. H. W. McDonald, A. M., who has been for some years principal of the literary department, was chosen principal of Gilbert Academy and Industrial College. This recognition comes after several years of hard work and preparation and is a recognition of merit and of manly worth. Prof. McDonald is the youngest principal of any of our important schools; he was born about 29 years ago near Mansfield, La. He enjoyed the tutorage of his father until the age of 10, when he was sent to Wiley University, Marshall, Texas, where he remained three sessions. It was at the revival conducted by Dr. I. B. Scott, then president, that he was converted. He was one year at Gilbert Academy. In 1891 he worked on a coal barge, hauling coal, and later at a sugar mill, making money to enter New Orleans University January 1, 1892, and from this institution he graduated in 1898 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He was immediately elected to the chair of Latin and Greek. He made further preparation for his work by taking post graduate work in the University of Chicago. The degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him by New Orleans University in 1901. Five years ago he was elected as principal of the literary department of Gilbert Industrial College as an associate of Rev. Dr. Pierre Landry, who was dean and the executive head of the institute. During the recent summers Prof. McDonald has had the distinction of being one of the instructors of the Peabody Normal Schools for instruction of teachers.

Prof. H. W. McDonald, A. M.

In 1902 he was married to Miss Devine M. Daniels, an accomplished young lady, who finished the college preparatory course of New Orleans University in 1899. She has nobly assisted Prof. McDonald in all his work and enters with him heart and soul for the larger development of Gilbert Academy and Industrial College.

Dr. James Dunkard, through an article in the Methodist Times of London, makes the remarkable statement that there are Methodist churches that never meet for prayer. But we cannot believe that this old and reverend custom has been abandoned by any Methodist Church in America.

The Daily Vacation Bible Schools of the Federation of Churches, maintained in the city of New York this summer at a cost of $3,600, have closed. In these fourteen schools 4,130 children have been registered, the daily average attendance being 1,034.

A PRINCELY LAYMAN

sired to be permitted to place in these buildings certain tablets.

These tablets express the man's vigorous intellectual capacity as well as his deep spiritual life and a high sense of citizenship. From his fertile brain and noble heart came this inscription, which is over the front entrance of the City Hall:

"God has given Commandments unto Men. From these Commandments men have framed Laws by which to be Governed. It is Honorable and Praiseworthy to Serve the People by administering these Laws Faithfully. If the laws are not Enforced, the people are not Well Governed."

The tablet placed in the public library gives the ten commandments, beneath which appears the following inscription:

"Men, Women, Children. If you obey these Commandments, you will be Happy. If you Disobey them, Sorrow will Come upon you; and still lower, in two parallel columns:

"It is Noble to be Pure.
It is Right to be Honest.
It is Necessary to be Temperate.
It is Wise to be Industrious.
But to Know God is best of all.

"Paul the Apostle besought men to present their Bodies a living sacrifice Holy and Acceptable unto God. The Body must not be Dishonored by Impure Acts. Wise are they who protect the purity of their blood and Preserve their Strength by Living Pure Lives."

At the Manual Training School is to be found a most remarkable suggestion and one that should be of special interest to all peoples:

"Work is One of our Greatest Blessings. Every one should have an Honest Occupation."

It is stated that in his will he made no public bequests, but he leaves a life of unselfish devotion to the cause of the Master.

At the recent session of the Afro-American Council, held in Detroit, Mich., the following officers were elected: Bishop A. A. Waters of New Jersey, president; J. C. Napier of Tennessee, vice-president; Cyrus F. Adams of District of Columbia, secretary; George W. Thompson of New York, treasurer; Bishop George W. Clinton of North Carolina, national organizer.

The Sultan of Turkey is the most lonely monarch in Europe, often speaking to no one for days but his immediate attendants. But it is conceded that no monarch in Europe works harder than he, and it is also an accepted fact that the principal trait in his character is cowardice. He fears chiefly the darkness and pays 180 pounds per night to have his bedroom guarded. He is fond of revolver-shooting, animals, music and French literature. Altho he has always hated sovereignty, yet as a ruler he is headstrong, and a master of diplomacy.

The Young Men's Christian Association is steadily winning recognition as an organization of far-reaching, religious and educational influence. It is stated that during the past year thousands of working men have attended the shop classes and meetings of this organization; work has been organized in nearly all the military posts in America and on nearly all the battleships that come into New York Bible study classes are organized. The educational department in some of the large cities has an enrollment of 2,000 students in the night school.

In spite of the many disadvantages Methodism seems to be prospering in South Africa. In 1850 the Wesleyans had a church membership in Cape Colony of 4,365, English and natives together. When the Conference was organized in 1882 the membership was 29,886. At the end of 1904 there were 9,454 English and 113,059 native members, including probationers. Adding to these those connected with the W. M. S. in Transvaal and Rhodesia, the full-blooded Africans in the Methodist Church of South Africa will be found to number about 120,000.

Personal and General

Bishop Scott is in perfect health.

Bishop Merrill will be 80 on the 29th of this month.

Bishop Neely will arrive in this country about the middle of September.

Bishop Walden will represent the Freedmen's Aid Society at some of the Pacific Coast Conferences.

Rev. F. D. Avant, of the Central Missouri Conference, is enjoying a vacation with his relatives in Illinois.

Ex-Senator John P. Green, it is said, will give to the public an account of the life and military achievements of Toussaint L'Ouverture.

The opening day of New Orleans University is changed to November 1st. President Knight expects to reach the city on October 23d.

The General Committee of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society will meet in Hanson Place Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., November 6-7.

Rev. P. M. Carmichael, of the West Texas Conference, has been appointed to St. James M. E. Church, Waco, Tex. Bro. Carmichael has done large service in the church.

The Cleveland Gazette gives a writeup of Prof. J. R. Reynolds, A. M., of Wiley University, and his remarkable work in the departments of mathematics and electrical engineering.

The Carrie Steele Orphanage at Atlanta, Ga., is giving a comfortable home and education to a large number of colored orphans. The work is conducted by Mrs. Gussie Wims Logan.

Dr. H. T. Johnnson, editor of the Christian Recorder, has been invited to preach the three hundred and fiftieth sermon of Huguenots in the Cript of the Canterbury Cathedral, London, September 15th.

Rev. W. H. Whitlock, our pastor at Durant, Miss., is laboring under the embarrassment of the quarantine regulations. His church has been closed for several weeks, but his congregation is standing by him loyally.

Dr. A. W. Brazier has just returned from Chicago, where he has spent several months taking a course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The Doctor hopes to enter upon his practice in the very near future.

Germany's war with the heroes in Southwest Africa, which began in January, 1904, has cost the German army 59 officers, 1,194 private soldiers and the government $60,000,000, and a settlement has not yet been effected.

Bishop M. C. Harris was royally treated while the guest of the Japanese Army in Manchuria. At Port Arthur he addressed the Army Club, some eighty Japanese officers being present, including General Nogi's chief of staff.

A Missionary Institute for Southern Ohio will be held in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 18-20. Among the speakers announced are Bishop J. M. Thoburn, Dr. J. C. Floyd, and Mr. S. Earl Taylor.

On account of ill health, Bishop Benjamin W. Arnett has resigned Episcopal supervision of the First Episcopal District of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. This District includes the New York and New England Conferences.

Rev. C. E. Alaxender, pastor at Murfreesboro, Tenn., requests all whose purpose it is to attend the Tennessee Conference to convene at Murfreesboro October 11th, to notify him so that he may make ample provisions for homes.

Dr. W. D. Crum recently presented to the Sunday school of Centenary Church, Charleston, S. C., a costly cornet. Led by this cornet and a new Kingsbury piano, which was purchased recently, Centenary will have good music during its Sunday school sessions.

Rev. Geo. A. Sissle, presiding elder of the Indiana district, Lexington Conference, was brought home Monday morning, Sept. 4th, from one of the stations on his district seriously ill, and is still in a critical condition at his home in Columbia avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Rev. W. H. Dean, pastor of Leigh Methodist Episcopal Church, Richmond, Va., preached the third Theban Anniversary sermon recently, and the Criterion of that city, publishes the sermon in full. The sermon is strong and is worthy of the heart and brain of Brother Dean.

Rev. W. R. A. Palmer, D. D., the new president of the Alabama University, was converted at the age of six. He is an enthusiastic Sunday school worker, having taught regularly a class from the beginning of his ministry, whether he was serving as a pastor or as an educator.

It is said that the Baptist World Congress, held recently in London, marked a forward step. During its session the Baptist World Alliance was organized, an organization for conference and discussion, but without legislative authority. The next meeting of the Baptist World Alliance in 1910 will probably be held in this country.

Rev. W. A. C. Hughes, Ph. B., pastor of Sharp Street Memorial, is enjoying unusual success. In a recent rally the church raised $1,900, and the pastor says he is setting his angles for $7,000 before the close of the year. The membership is increasing, for there has been born in the parsonage a boy, and they call him "Bishop."

A. D. Bush, M. D., of Atholl, Mass., has been elected by the Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society dean of Flint Medical College, this city. Dr. Bush is splendidly equipped for the position to which he has been called and a cordial reception and

The South Carolina Conference has quite a number of strong men, men who have had the advantage of scholastic training, and men who have genuine native ability. Rev. Isaac H. Fulton is one of the younger men of the Conference who is rapidly coming to the front. He is now serving the Orangeburg Station, the seat of Claflin University, and is having remarkable success. This is one of the leading appointments in the South Carolina Conference. Previous to this, Brother Fulton had served, among other charges, Aiken and Columbia. He is president of the Interdenominational Sunday School Convention of South Carolina, having served in this capacity for two years. He was a delegate to the recent International Sunday School Convention held in Toronto, and was chosen as one of the vice-presidents of the convention. Brother Fulton is a strong and able pastor.

the heartiest co-operation of all concerned awaits him.

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Shumpert, of Columbus, Miss., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Gilbert, and Prof. William Judson Echols, of Birmingham, Ala. The ceremony took place Sept. 5th at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Shumpert has been a most successful teacher in our Freedmen's Aid Schools, and Prof. Echols is principal of the Birmingham High School. The SOUTHWESTERN extends congratulations.

Rev. W. P. C. Morrison, pastor of St. John Methodist Episcopal Church, Natchez, Miss., is in the North soliciting funds for his church. He will visit four of the Annual Conferences in the state of Ohio. This church enterprise deserves favorable, faithful consideration at the hands of the public. Tho the membership is small, a splendid building has been secured and a magnificent work is being done. A dollar invested here will be multiplied over and over again in the spreading of the Master's cause.

NEWS NOTES

Hezekiah Butterworth, the noted writer, died in Warren, R. I., Tuesday, Sept. 5th.

The village of Brooklyn, Ill., with its 1,600 inhabitants, has an entire force of Negro officers.

Daudi Chua, King of Uganda, is the youngest king in the world, being now about eight years of age.

Mr. Brackenridge, of Austin, Texas, gave recently to the colored people of that city a lot and school building.

Women have been forbidden to enter Canterbury Cathedral, London, without the customary headdress, and several who did so were excluded.

It is announced that Mr. Andrew Carnegie has given $25,000 towards the endowment of a chair of political economy at Western Reserve University, to bear the name of the late United States Senator, M. A. Hanna.

The Indianapolis Freeman says that Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, in his address on "Foundation Building" before the recent National Negro Business League, "easily distanced all competitors in point of scholarship and solidity of argument."

The long distance wire, now being laid between Denver, Omaha and Kansas City will be the means of a direct communication between New York and San Francisco, the distance between these points being nearly four thousand miles.

In Germany one hundred and sixty-one cases of cholera have been reported up to date and fifty-eight deaths have occurred. An epidemic such as occurred during previous years is not feared, as the health authorities are now prepared to cope with the disease.

At the annual session of the International Sunday School Association, held recently at Clifton, Miss., $1,200 a year for two years was promised for the support of Dr. James E. Shepard, of Durham, N. C., the general field secretary of the work among the Negroes.

Mrs. Wu Ting-Fang, wife of the former Chinese minister to America, had a surgical operation performed upon her feet before leaving this country and is now able to walk easily. It is thought that her example will influence thousands of high-class Chinese women to do likewise.

The Union Transportation Company has been organized by the Negroes of Nashville, Tenn., with a capital of $25,000, to fight the separate street car law. This company will run automobiles. Since the Negroes began their boycott the street car company has lost, it is said, $500.00 each week.

The Nashville Clarion says that there is now a new order of things in the Nashville postoffice. There are separate water coolers, separate mugs, separate toilets, etc., for Negro employees. The Negroes have formulated a protest, which was signed by the Baptist Ministers' Conference in a body, and the same was forwarded to Washington.

Dr. M. C. B. Mason's presentation of "The Business Development Among Negroes," before the recent assembly of the National Negro Business League at New York, is said to have captivated his audience and he was compelled to go on at a much greater length than he had intended.

One of the worst accidents in the history of overhead railroads in New York occurred Monday, September 11th. A train on the Ninth Avenue Elevated Railroad running at a rapid speed struck an open switch and car and passengers were pitched into the street below. Eight persons were dead when taken from the wreck, four died later, and more than a score are injured, some seriously.

On last Monday, for the first time since the existence of yellow fever in this city was announced, not a single death was reported. This is encouraging, for on September 11, 1878, there were 73 deaths from yellow fever. Yet the number of new cases has increased. This, it is thought, is due to the fact that the citizens generally, when they saw the situation improving, relaxed their vigilance. The official record up to Monday evening was as follows: New cases, 38; total number of cases, 2,327; new foci, 18; cases under treatment, 306; cases discharged, 1,711; total number of deaths, 316.

Farm and Fireside

A PROGRESSIVE FARMER.

BY REV. J. A. LOVELL, A. B.

Mr. Richard Howell, a member of our church at Goldsboro, N. C., five years ago was farming on rented land. In 1901 he waked up to the fact that he was paying for the soil he was tending over and over again in rents, yet he was getting no deed to it. So he purchased a tract of 135 acres at a cost of $5,000, to be paid in annual payments within a period of eight years. Mr. Howell has an energetic wife who is versed in common sense economy, and a number of boys and girls who find it no disgrace to do farm work, and they all together set about to accomplish the task that was before them. At the end of the third year they had paid $3,000 with all accrued interest, and their 1905 crop bids fair to enable them to lift the annual note with interest that is due one year hence.

How does he do this? He produces from 50 to 60 bales of cotton, 100 to 125 barrels of corn, about 200 bushels of peas, about 100 bushels of oats, 225 bushels of potatoes and other products in proportion, annually. Besides, he raises truck for the early market. Mr. Howell tells us that two years ago the peas picked from a four-acre lot netted him $416. He planted the same lot in cotton the same year and when all had been sold he found that the four acres of ground had produced about $700 worth in a single year.

Mr. Howell is not educated but he knows a great deal about agriculture. He studies to improve his land, to increase his yield and to take care of his stock.

Mr. Howell modestly estimates his estate at $15,000.

We would call this man a progressive farmer, one whose example might well be imitated.

Doings of the Workmen.

ALABAMA.

TENSAW, P. B. Benjamin, pastor—Our Sunday school here, of which Mr. J. P. Brown is superintendent, gave a very enjoyable picnic recently. The pastor delivered an address, the children rendering songs and speeches. Our school was visited recently by Rev. Dock Ankom of the Baptist Church, and Rev. Alfred English, of the A. M. E. Church. They found the service very interesting. Rev. English preached at 11 a. m. A good collection was raised.

BIRMINGHAM—Yesterday, Aug. 26th, was a gala day at St. Paul M. E. Church. We entered the auditorium of our brown stone church with songs of praise and great rejoicing, after having to worship in the basement for nearly two years. Too much can not be said in praise of our beloved pastor who has toiled with us so faithfully. His heart is in the work of the church, surely. He and the brethren worked night and day that we might be able to enter our auditorium on the day appointed. A pastor's wife never worked more earnestly and unceasingly than did Sister Buckner during the five nights' entertainment. We raised $400 in the rally, holding service all day. It is said that Rev. Buckner can raise more money than any other pastor in the city. St. Paul Church can certainly boast of a pastor of sterling qualities and one who is a Christian gentleman. He deserves the support of the entire community.

ARKANSAS.

CANFIELD, A. N. Hamilton—Southwestern Arkansas was honored by the presence of Dr. Jem Cox, A. M., D. D., president of Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark., who on his lecture tour through the state spoke to large and enthusiastic gatherings at Texarkana, Stamps, Canfield and Lewisville, Ark. Dr. Cox's lectures were well attended by the whites, especially at Canfield, where the entire white population turned out to hear him. The lecture was an inspiration to all who heard it and the Doctor has been given a cordial invitation by the white people to speak at Walnut Hill, Ark. Dr. Cox also spoke to a large body of teachers at Lewisville, Ark. His lecture was attended by several representative white men.

FLORIDA.

FREE CANAAN AND MELROSE CIRCUIT, Geo. H. Cooper—Our Pentecostal meeting began May 28, closing June 13 in the St. John's Sunday school, three miles north of Free Canaan Church, six Sunday-school scholars happily converted. The meeting was conducted with glorious results. The membership of this church was greatly revived, and by our pastor, Rev. J. J. Keller, who labored hard for its success. This Sunday school was organized June 22, 1904, by Rev. J. J. Keller, to meet the pressing demand of the people who live too far away from the main church to conveniently attend. It has had a steady growth and is a great strength to the whole work. Our Children's Day exercise followed the revival. The program was nicely carried out and made a fine impression on all present. Total collection, $3.25. Mr. Geo. H. Cooper, the superintendent, deserves much credit for the success of this school.

The Quinine drives out the malaria and the Iron builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 27 years. Price 50 cents.

GEORGIA.

ARAGON, R. T. Jackson, pastor—Our third quarter was held July 15-16 by presiding elder C. W. Adams, who was greatly pleased with the signs of advancement along all lines. The elder preached an able sermon at 11 o'clock a. m. before a crowded house and 82 persons communed at 4 p. m. Rev. Adams delivered a fine lecture on "Education" and Prof. W. S. Lester, our public school teacher here, spoke on the same subject. The pastor has organized a Junior Epworth League, also a Ladies' Aid Society, and these organizations are progressing nicely.

GRANTVILLE, E. N. Miller, pastor—The third quarterly conference of this charge was a success. The accomplishments of the loyal membership is worthy of note. Raised Saturday and Sunday, $41.00. Old debts of seven years' standing have been cancelled to the amount of $150.00; the church entirely renovated within and without: new pulpit lamp, chandeliers and new carpet put in, at a cost of $210.50. Our entire benevolent assessment of $160.00 has been raised. During my three weeks' revival ninety-seven precious souls were converted and taken into the church, making a total of one hundred and twenty this year. Rev. Joseph Griffith and Rev. W. M. Nevins rendered valuable service in revival. Have baptized fifty-five adults and twenty infants. Have thirty-eight more yet to be baptized. Our congregation is very large indeed, at every service. The church at Grantville will be dedicated to God, Oct. 8th. The church at Lutherville will soon be entirely renovated. Have raised for all purposes this year, $860.00. We will raise at least $1,200 for 1905.

KENTUCKY.

HARDINSBURG, A. A. Woolfolk, pastor—The second quarterly meeting of Talbot Chapel was held Sunday, August 13. Rev. Joseph Courtney, D. D., was present and preached two very excellent sermons. The meeting was well attended. Paid the presiding elder in full. Collection for the day, $36.14. The church is alive, and the members are hard at work to raise one hundred and fifty dollars the first Sunday in September. Four clubs were put to work on the 13th of August and we are looking for great results on Sept. 13th.

LOUISIANA.

Clinton, W. L. Mills, pastor—We are moving along nicely on this work. When I came I found the church in a very bad condition. With the help of the members we raised $40.64 to repair the church. Next we organized the church into clubs with captains over each. The report of the captains and others is as follows: Sister Sarah Holly, $17.00; Norah Sims, $13.50; Dorah Fryor, $14.00; and Lulu Gee, $5.50; collected from others, $8.05; total, $98.69. So the Lord is with us.

Donaldsonville, T. A. Brown, pastor.—The rally on August 13 was quite a success. The working part of the church was divided into two parts—the Japanese and the Russians. Owing to quarantine regulations, not even the presiding elder, J. W. Turner, could be present. The outlook was discouraging, but on Tuesday night prior to the rally a consecrated meeting was called by the pastor, and we bowed in prayer to the Almighty for his guidance in this struggle against the debt. Too much praise cannot be given to those that made the sacrifice in giving. Sisters Artelia Thompson, Ida Foster, Mary Smith, who is 73 years old, Brother Louis Mukes, and Brother Sie Green gave $10 each. The writer desires to thank Miss Albertha Childres and Miss Malvina Baptiste, young ladies of the church, who gave entertainments and by this means brought to the rally $19.50. We are also indebted to Messrs. Sam P. Thompson, S. A. Walker, Edward Herbert, Peter P. Wright, and to Misses Mamie O. Armitage, Maud Johnson, Erma H. Howell, Albertha Reed, Cecil Wesley and Mrs. Edward Duffell, as musical director, and Miss Mayda Slater, general manager to an enterprise that resulted in $30. The same was brought to the rally. And we are under obligations to the Revs. Dave Wilson and M. P. Vincent, of the Baptist Church, and their congregations, also Rev. Gommis, of Port Barrow, for their assistance. We raised $502.90 and every dollar was paid on the debt. October 8th is the day fixed for the next rally, in which we are compelled to raise $200 more on the debt of this church. Sister Aglin Gaudin is leading her company to victory, as is also Sister L. J. Shallowhorne, and as they march on the debt is being lessened.
